Foreword

This is an expansion and rewrite of the earlier volume of 'Fuzz Acid and Flowers Revisited' that was published in September 2004.

This latest version is as long as can be bound at this size. The time-span has also been broadened from 1964-75 to 1963-77. This is as comprehensive as we can make it in book form.

Assembled with the help of avid record collectors, this book is the most detailed guide to US psychedelia, garage and hippie-rock of the 1963-77 era ever published! This latest volume also encompasses a number of privately pressed albums and includes entries from the prog, folk and rural-rock genres.

The book also aims to bring to your attention some of the recordings by lesser known bands of these genres. Biographies have been written about some of the better known artists and bands in this book. Consult these for more detailed histories of them.

Countless bands sprang up in America in this era and it would be an impossible task to document them all (as you can see the book is now as long as we can make it anyway). The ones I've included are those I consider merit an entry. Doubtless there will be many omissions. I've tried to ensure that the book is as accurate as possible but not all the information is easily verified. If you spot errors or feel strongly about omissions please contact me care of Borderline Productions, PO BOX 28869, London, SW13 0XY or email me direct at:-

How To Use This Book

All bands appear in alphabetical order. 'The' has been ignored as the first word of a band's name. Individual artists have been alphabetised under surnames, e.g. Tim Buckley appears in the 'B's'.

Some entries are very brief, where bands or artists just released one 45 or appeared on a compilation, but for more prolific acts expect to see the following:-

Personnel Listings

Personnel are listed alphabetically by surname. Where more than one line-up occurs, these are indicated by the A-Z characters.

Personnel:	Name:	Instruments:	Line-up:
	MEMBER 1	gtr, vcls	A
	MEMBER 2	bs	AB
	MEMBER 3	drms, vcls	A
	MEMBER 4	keyb'ds	A
	MEMBER 5	gtr, vcls	B
	MEMBER 6	perc	B

Album Discographies

Where more than one has been released, they are listed in order of release. Line entries are as follows:-

ALBUMS:

No/Line-up *	Name	(U.S. label & Cat No) Year + R
1(A)	ALIOTTA HAYNES JEREMIAH	(Ampex 10119) 1970 -
2(B)	LAKE SHORE DRIVE	(Big Foot 714) 1971 - SC
3(C)	SLIPPIN' AWAY	(Little Foot 711) 1977 -

NB: * Where albums are known to have been reissued or pirated, this is indicated. Reissue information is not confined solely to US releases and encompasses releases from other areas of the world too. '+' Highest chart placing where applicable. 'R' Rarity scale rating, where applicable.

EP Discographies (where applicable)

Where more than one has been released, they are listed in order of release, in the same format as above.

45 Discographies

These are also listed in order of release. Line-up information is not supplied, but otherwise the same information is supplied as for album releases. 'c' before the year of release = circa or approximate and appears where the year of release is not known for sure.

Assorted Information About The Band Or Artist

In the text, the name(s) of other bands or artists who are featured in this book appears in bold to facilitate easy cross-reference. Where bands have tracks which are also included on compilations these are also identified in italics as for all but the most ardent collector they will be the only means of accessing the song. A list of all compilation albums referred to, along with label details, catalogue numbers and (where known) year of release, appears in the compilation section of this book. Some of these compilations had very limited pressings and are also rare now.

CD Releases

Many albums referred to in this book have now been repackaged on CD and this is referred to beneath the album discographies, where known. It has proved impossible to keep abreast of the flood of these reissues so the information is not fully comprehensive, but it is much more detailed than in the previous volume of 'Fuzz Revisited'. Many CD compilations have been released in recent years and those known to the author are included in the compilation section of the book.

CD releases included in this book encompass both US and non-US releases.

A Rarity / Sought-After Scale

Those albums and EPs that are rare and sought-after (obviously there are some rare records that nobody wants) have been given a rarity rating. The scale below is a rough banding guide to value and is provided for guidance only. It is based on prices in US Dollars on the world market at the time of printing. My thanks to Clark Faville for preparing this rarity scale and for appraising all the sixties and seventies albums in the book. The rarity rating is found to the far right of the line containing data on each album.

-	Relatively easy to find	Less than $25
SC	Scarce	$25 -$50
R1	Rare	$50 - $100
R2	Very Rare	$100 - $250
R3	Extremely Rare	$250 - $500
R4	Ultra Rare	$500 - $1,000
R5	Seldom offered for sale but very sought-after	$1,000 - $1,500
R6	Only a handful exist and they are very sought-after	$1,500 +

PLEASE NOTE: any guide to the value of records is highly subjective. Many factors come into play, including condition, desirability, and the ever-changing degree of scarcity... a record that was rare last week can drop in value when a quantity surfaces in a warehouse or with a found band member.

Since the last edition of this guide, the internet has changed the face of record collecting. Online auctions are now the primary focus of collectors worldwide. Brick-and-mortar record stores are disappearing as they move their stock online. Print catalogues of rare records from specialist dealers have all but vanished as these sellers establish an online presence. Today, even the most obscure locally-released records are only as far away as your computer. Understandably, this dynamic has changed the values of private pressings. Many have dropped in value due to their enhanced availability.

Quite a number of previously unknown local albums have turned up via the internet since the last edition of this guide. In most cases, the first few copies made available online fetched very high prices at auction, while the prices on subsequent copies have gradually spiralled downward. With this in mind, the rarity ratings you will find here on some "recent discoveries" may seem conservative at the time of printing but will hopefully prove to be accurate over time.

Ultimately, the price at which you buy or sell any record is an individual decision, and Borderline Productions, its owners, employees and related companies cannot accept responsibility for any economic loss that may be encountered with regard to the use of this material. Several internet sites are dedicated to documenting record auction results and these will provide the most current information.

Credits

Expanding, rewriting and fine-tuning this book, particularly in view of its size, has been a massive task and far too big for one person alone.

I want to thank:

- Clark Faville, who in addition to appraising all the albums in the book against the rarity scale, has provided many new entries and illustrations and assisted me with the editing of this volume. His expertise on rock music of the sixties and seventies has been invaluable. Clark has helped in many ways on some of my other projects over the years.

- Max Waller, who has been the major contributor to previous volumes of the book, interviewing band members who contacted the old Borderline Books website and bringing numerous regional experts on board to improve the project, has upgraded many existing entries and provided many new ones this time too and made available his wealth of expertise on singles and compilations in particular. Gray Newell has also contributed to updates/rewrites on new entries on several Californian/West Coast bands. Steve Seymour has granted permission for some of the articles on Michigan's previously undocumented Upper Peninsula scene to be sourced for band personnel and other basic data/discographical info to improve some existing entries (e.g. Renaissance Fair) and flesh out a few new ones.

- Ivor Trueman, who has been involved in all of my projects since 'The Tapestry of Delights', has tirelessly handled the disc conversion, typesetting and design for this latest project.

Where people have contributed entries to the book their full name has been credited in abbreviated form at the end of the text e.g. Max Waller (MW), Clark Faville (CF).

THE OTHER HALF.

Introduction

The mid-sixties garage band phenomena, which attracted so little attention at the time, has generated far more interest retrospectively. After the excitement of the first wave of rock'n'roll music of the late fifties, the early sixties were a relatively unexciting era in American music. On the West Coast, in particular, there was a plethora of surf-orientated instrumental bands, whose music was still rooted in rock'n'roll and who produced some memorable guitar runs, but for the most part the scene was dominated by dance bands and balladeers. Enter Beatlemania and the British Invasion sound, as it became known, and things rapidly changed. The music of The Beatles and their other European contemporaries derived from American rhythm and blues and rock'n'roll to which was added enthusiasm and a fresh interpretation of these musical styles. Yet Beatlemania, Merseybeat, the British Invasion (whatever you want to call it) was more than just another new musical style ... with their hair styles, fashion and opinions, these bands heralded a new youth culture.

All over America thousands of teenagers started rock'n'roll bands, which were initially influenced by the British Invasion sound, which itself had its roots in American rock'n'roll. Most of these bands were full of average teenagers who could only manage a few chords on a guitar but they transformed thousands of kids into weekend stars among their peers. The better ones got to play at local fraternity parties, dances, shopping centres ... anywhere the opportunity allowed really ... the really good ones made it to bigger venues ... the lucky ones got to cut a record (often a one-off recording deal was the prize for winners of local 'Battle Of The Band' competitions, which were a regular feature at weekend dances in most American towns and cities in this era), the more enterprising ones raised enough bucks themselves to have a record pressed. A minority of these got played on the local radio station and those that caught on became local hits maybe ... the big national labels were always searching for exciting new talent and, as you'll notice when you delve into the meat of this book, some of these local releases were picked up by major labels for national distribution. This offered the opportunity of a hit record, indeed a few of these discs became million-sellers. The 45 discographies in this book show the highest placing in Billboard's Hot 100 of all discs listed (and the equivalent placing for all albums listed in Billboard's Top 200 Album Charts for that matter) so you can see the discs and artists that really won through to, (so far as most garage bands are concerned) stardom. Sadly, most discs and the artists who created them remained in total obscurity.

The term garage band referred to the space where many of these bands rehearsed and to a musical phenomenon. In fact, the music they played was very varied but more than anything else the timely invention of the fuzztone box in the mid-sixties helped mould this sound. In its purest form, this was a crudely-recorded, raw (even savage), primal three-chord sound, thrashed out on Vox guitars and cheesy Farfisa organs laced with lots of fuzz and snarling vocals. Lyrically, they tended to deal with the problems of teenage life - social restrictions and uncooperative parents and girlfriends (for the American garage band was almost exclusively a male phenomenon as rock'n'roll had been before it). 1965 and 1966 were the prime years of the 'garage' band.

THE LIVING CHILDREN of Crystalize Your Mind fame.

TIMOTHY LEARY - L.S.D. LP.

Around the Spring of 1966 marijuana and LSD were introduced to the college and high school campuses, by 1967 they were in widespread use among America's youth. When these naive teenage bands began experimenting with psychedelic drugs the result was sometimes very interesting leading to some of the most demented recordings ever made - the chords became more discordant, the basic rock'n'roll rhythms were broken down and the lyrics started to deal with peoples dreams or more often their nightmares. 1967 and 1968 were the prime years of 'garage psych' as it became known, but the term has been widely abused and misused, particularly by dealers who apply it as widely as they can in the hope of raking in extra cash for records, which are not 'psychedelic' at all. Hopefully, some of these have been exposed in this book, which also guides you to those bands who were the real McCoy... bands like The Calico Wall who on Flight Reaction sought to recreate the paranoia of someone sitting in an airplane prior to take off and fearing that it would crash; The Bees, who related a nightmare in their Voices Green and Purple, which was one of many records which recounted vivid descriptions of colours associated by acid-inspired dreams; The William Penn V, who hallucinated a guru and wrote a song about it; The Bohemian Vendetta, who sang of 'skies paved with marshmallow love' on their Paradox City or Cosmic Rock Show's Psiship with lyrics like, 'Ride it to the moon/Psychedelic space ship/I got the feeling it'll be another bum trip!'... there were countless others. Of course only some garage bands experimented with psychedelia, thousands of them were content to stick more closely to their more basic primal thrash.

As those of you who read my earlier books ('The Acid Trip' and 'The Flashback') know not only garage bands experimented with psychedelia, psychedelic music grew out of other influences as diverse as folk, the blues, beat and rock'n'roll. The term 'psychedelic' really relates to human perception and experience whilst under the influence of psychedelic drugs. It is sometimes equated with 'mind expanding' yet it arguably means something more because new wave music was mind-expanding without being psychedelic. It's tended to be applied to music that is mystical, drug induced or designed to recreate the (psychedelic) drug experience. In its most literal form psychedelia is basically "trippy", uses distortion, minor keys (generally) particularly minor 7ths and relates to consciousness (mind) expansion as derived from the drug culture of the sixties. Psychedelia brought electricity, mysticism and hitherto unknown musical freedom to rock and pop. A whole new range of instruments - sitars, theremins, wind chimes and other electronic devices were introduced to rock and pop music for the first time.

This new radicalism was not solely confined to the music, a new youth culture was born with its own ideology and audience characterised by the hippie. Hippie audiences and music were very different from the 'garage' or 'garage psych' scenes. Many of the emerging psychedelic rock groups like The Doors, Jefferson Airplane and Country Joe and The Fish strove to push back the musical frontiers and preoccupation with three-minute pop songs was soon surrendered in favour of experimentation and improvisation, as audiences sought after even more 'far out' sounds. The 'hippie' culture had its own underground press and rock journals like 'Rolling Stone' and 'Mother Magazine'. In their dress hippies sought to re-create the visions of beauty and vividness of colour associated with the LSD experience. They wore kaftans, beads, bells and flowery shirts. 'Head shops' sprang up in centres like San Francisco, New York and elsewhere throughout the States selling joss sticks, pipes, books about hallucinogenic drugs and various other forms of psychedelic paraphernalia. 'Flower power' as it became known represented the commercial side of psychedelia in the same way that the 'flower-pop' acts included in this book represented the commercial arm of psychedelic music. Indeed, whilst the underground groups whose lyrics were often ladened with drug references for the benefit of turned-on kids were liable to have their records banned from the airwaves: the 'flower-pop' acts like The Mamas and Papas, Lovin' Spoonful, Turtles etc. whose lyrics talked of peace, love and flowers, often sold records in large quantities achieving sustained commercial success, as you'll see when you browse through the book. It was these bands who took psychedelia (albeit in diluted form) beyond its essentially elitist audiences to the masses, which is why they are included here.

JEFFERSON AIRPLANE.

The new psychedelic culture encompassed all related art forms. The light shows, psychedelic posters and record sleeves all represented a further attempt to recreate the LSD experience. The light shows initially developed in the San Francisco area with names as exotic as the groups they served (e.g. North American Ibex Alchemical Company, Garden Of Delights, Head Lights, Pacific Grass and Electric). They usually consisted of film slides and liquids on a transparent dish through which the light was projected onto a wall. The dishes were movable, enabling artists to make the swirling colours move in time with the rhythms of the music. Strobe lighting (on-and-off flashing light giving the impression of stopping motion) was first widely used in this era.

COUNTRY JOE - Country Joe Sings Resist (Rag Baby EP).

Equally derivative of the San Francisco music scene was the growing art of rock posters - essentially an attempt to translate the vivid impressions of an acid trip onto paper. These were usually vivid in their use of colours and concepts. Eventually San Francisco's Art Museum mounted an exhibition of posters, 'The Joint Show' and their designers - Rick Griffin, Wes Wilson, George Hunter, Alton Kelly, Stanley Mouse, Victor Moscoso etc - became nationally known art figures. George Hunter and Michael Hunter (of The Charlatans) designed one of the very earliest posters to advertise their residency at the Red Dog Saloon, Virginia City in Nevada. When the 'Acid Tests', a series of free-form events, were organised by Ken Kesey and His Merry Pranksters in 1965, artist Norman Hartweg designed a poster to advertise them. Alton Kelley (a member of The Family Dog collective) produced the first three handbills and helped with the posters for the three dances held late in 1965 at the Longshoremen's Hall, San Francisco. Jefferson Airplane, The Charlatans, The Marbles and The Great Society played at the first on 16 October, The Lovin' Spoonful and Charlatans played at the second on 24 October and The Mothers (Of Invention) and Charlatans appeared at the third on 6 November. By 1966 these rock posters had become prolific. Between February 1966 - November 1968 at least 147 posters were produced in the numbered landmark series to promote San Francisco-based concerts mostly at the Avalon Ballroom and the Fillmore Auditorium. After the Family Dog ceased to stage rock shows at the Avalon, the new production company (Soundproof's) first event was a Grateful Dead dance accompanied by Rick Griffin's 'Aoxomoxoa' poster. The band later used Griffin's title and art for their third album sleeve. Rock promoter Bill Graham also used posters to promote his early Mime Troupe Shows and Benefits and the concerts staged at the Fillmore between 1966-71. A series of handbills were also produced to promote concerts at The Matrix (originally created by Jefferson Airplane's Marty Balin) between 1965-66. Indeed by 1966 most concert halls in America were using rock posters to promote their shows. Posters were also produced for the Trips Festival, a mixed media event, which was the culmination of the 'acid tests', as Kesey called them, and was held at Longshoreman's Hall in San Francisco between 21-23 January 1966. This, more than any other event, marked the inauguration of 'acid-rock' as a musical phenomena. Although The Grateful Dead starred at The Trips Festival, it was more than just a rock event - all kinds of avant-garde artists working in various media took part. In short, it was an attempt to stimulate the LSD experience with the drug available for those who wanted to try it. Further Trip Festivals were held elsewhere in America, but before long LSD was made illegal and people were forced to be more discreet with its use.

Another landmark in the history of the hippie culture was the Human Be-In held on 14 January 1967 in Golden Gate Park, San Francisco. 20,000 people gathered there on that sunny January day. Three of the city's top groups played there - Jefferson Airplane, Grateful Dead and Quicksilver Messenger Service and Jefferson Airplane wrote a song, Saturday Afternoon, to commemorate the event. Stanley Mouse, Alton Kelley and Rick Griffin were among those who designed posters for this event, which heralded the 1967 'Summer Of Love' in which people from all over America and beyond converged on San Francisco to create a new way of life which challenged the nation's prevailing social values. The 'Be-In' inspired 'The Monterey Rock Festival' held later that year in the resort area 150 miles downcoast from San Francisco.

Although overshadowed by San Francisco in the early psychedelic era, Los Angeles (which had always been a major recording centre) and Southern California generally was a vibrant music centre in the mid and late sixties. In the early sixties it had been the recording base of the surf/hot rod music and groups like The Beach Boys, Jan and Dean and a plethora of lesser known ones. By 1965 it became the centre of the emerging folk-rock music.

THE STANDELLS.

The main influences on this type of music had been Bob Dylan (who I've not covered in this book as so much has already been written about him) and protest singers like Barry McGuire. Groups like The Byrds, Buffalo Springfield and later Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young put folk material to a rock format, playing music characterised by acoustic guitar (at first) and fresh, melodic harmonies. Some of them later experimented with psychedelia, but generally their music was more commercially orientated than their San Francisco counterparts.

The second distinguishable strand to emerge from Los Angeles in this era was the music of the heavy rock and rock/blues bands, Of these, the most interesting were probably two bands signed to Jac Holzman's Elektra label - The Doors and Love. The Doors, in both name and music were clearly influenced by LSD. Yet their brand of 'acid-rock' was different from that of their San Francisco contemporaries. They took the acid experience less literally, their lyrics tended to centre around leader Jim Morrison's obsessions with the newconsciousness and their struggle against social repression, for example Break On Through (To The Other Side) rather than urge their audience to turn onto LSD and love one another. Morrison was well-read, his lyrics were often poetical and concerned with his obsessions with freedom, which resulted from his reading the works of various existentialist writers. These factors made The Doors something of an anachronism among the acid bands and also rather special. Indeed, they were the most controversial and commercially successful of the West Coast underground bands. Love started out as a folk-rock act but their experimentation with drugs led them in a rather different direction to that of their contemporaries. At their best, they attained the melodic musical harmonies associated with the finest L.A. folk-rock bands and yet the surrealism and nihilism of their lyrics set them apart, though they do bear some comparison with The Doors.

GRATEFUL DEAD - Axomoxoa LP.

Los Angeles too boasted a number of influential music venues, mostly in the vicinity of the Sunset Strip. The most popular was the Whisky-a-Go-Go, which soon became not only an important venue for the San Francisco bands, but also a springboard for many of L.A.'s own acts like The Doors, Love and The Byrds. Other significant venues were The Troubador, the Shrine Auditorium, The Kaleidoscope, the Ash Grove, Ciro's (where The Byrds were frequent performers), Pandora's Box and the Sea Witch. Strangely, Los Angeles was never a great centre for rock posters. The Pinnacle concert production company was the first significant concert and production company to put on rock concerts and dances in Los Angeles, mostly at the Shrine Auditorium. The posters designed by local artist John Van Hamersveld for these events are now legendary works. Los Angeles also had a prolific garage band scene. Many of the biggest and best garage bands like The Seeds, The Standells, Music Machine, Sons Of Adam, came from the city and countless more roared out of its surrounding suburbs. As you turn the pages of this book and read about the recordings of bands like The Avengers, The Grains Of Sand, The Lyrics, The Starfires, Limey and The Yanks, and The Human Expression you can imagine how exciting the city's music scene in the later half of the sixties must have been.

San Diego, although the third largest metropolis in California, failed to develop its own musical style and was mostly influenced by Los Angeles to its north, but its major venues were frequently visited by top bands. Its most significant venues were The Hippodrome (managed by Trans Love Airwaves Productions), which had a San Franciscan, Rebecca Galdeano, as its poster artist and modelled itself on that city's Avalon Ballroom and The Community Concourse.

Elsewhere in the States psychedelic rock venues were mushrooming. A group of students at the University of Texas in Austin set up the Vulcan Gas Company, the State's first psychedelic dance hall. Many of the State's top bands played there (The Conqueroo and Shiva's Headband played at the grand opening on 27 and 28 October 1967) and a local artist, Gilbert Shelton, designed several posters for the venue.

Texas is best remembered for tough garage punkers in this era - bands like Larry and The Bluenotes, S.J. and The Crossroads, The Bourbons and hundreds more. Another Texas speciality was garage psych, not only did it produce some relatively well known demented geniuses like Roky Erickson and the 13th Floor Elevators and The Moving Sidewalks, it also produced countless more obscure acts like The Mind's Eye, The Outcasts, The Remaining Few, Stereo Shoestring and Thursdays Children, whose discs are now sought-after and highly-valued by collectors.

Chicago was less closely associated with psychedelia, being the home of the urban blues, but it produced acts like The Paul Butterfield Blues Band, The Buckinghams, Cryan' Shames and The American Breed, as well as some seminal garage bands like The Shadows Of Knight, The Del-vetts, The Knaves, The Rovin' Kind and Saturdays Children. It also had several notable dance halls, like the Kinetic Playground (where much of the Concert Art was produced by Mark T. Behrens) and the Aragon Ballroom.

Detroit and its suburbs produced one of the most vibrant and unique local garage band scenes in America in this era. The opening of The Hideout Club in May 1964 and the associated record company proved a catalyst for several promising garage acts fronted by The Fugitives (who later evolved into SRC) and The Underdogs and as more clubs like the Crows Nest, the Hullabaloos, the Pumpkin and the Birmingham-Bloomfield Teen Center, opened up the number of bands proliferated further - The Tidal Waves, The Yorkshires, The Unrelated Segments, the Anglophile-influenced Human Beinz. By 1967, the smaller clubs had been over-shadowed by the Grande Ballroom, which boasted its own poster artist Gary Grimshaw (and later Carl Lundgren) whose psychedelic handbills were a match for any poster designed by San Francisco's own artists. All the city's top bands - MC5, The Rationals, The Woolies, SRC, The Frost (formerly The Bossmen) played there and a second wave of local groups like The Amboy Dukes, Psychedelic Stooges, Third Power, Frijid Pink, Teegarden and Van Winkle emerged too. By then, the city was very much associated with the heavy rock genre.

BEACON STREET UNION 1966.

The Pacific Northwest, from the late fifties onwards had been the home of some of the finest instrumental combos in the land, bands like The Wailers, The Ventures and The Frantics. What characterised them from the 'also rans' of the era was their very strong, powerful, upfront rhythm section. The music of the Northwest was raw, aggressive and powerful and the phenomenal commercial success of acts like Paul Revere and The Raiders and The Kingsmen encouraged other local garage bands to seek the same without compromising any of their grungy sound. Among its major venues were Seattle's Eagles Auditorium, the Aqua Theatre and the Seattle Ballroom and Portland's Crystal Ballroom, Memorial Coliseum and Beaver Hall. Seattle also had well-established regional labels like Jerden, Etiquette and Seafair-Bolo that gave emerging young groups access to good studios and experienced producers. Indeed Jerden had various subsidiaries like Burdette, Panorama and Piccadilly and recorded countless garage bands in this era. These well established regional labels also had good access to major labels and national distribution channels as well as influence over regional radio stations meaning that local hits could relatively easily become regional hits, which could then be leased to one of the majors and become a national hit. All of these factors are thought to have contributed to the generally good quality of Northwest recordings in this era. The prime Northwest garage band was The Sonics, who exuded a surly demeanour and created one of the rawest, toughest garage sounds. People as diverse as The Kinks, Bruce Springsteen and The Sex Pistols have acknowledged The Sonics' influence on their own music. The Northwest produced several other garage bands of note such as The Bootmen, The Brigade, The Live Five, The Night Walkers, Mr. Lucky and The Gamblers and The Wilde Knights as well as psychedelic acts like Cotton Mouth, The Crome Syrcus, The Daily Flash, The Floating Bridge, The New Tweedy Bros! and The Lollipop Shoppe.

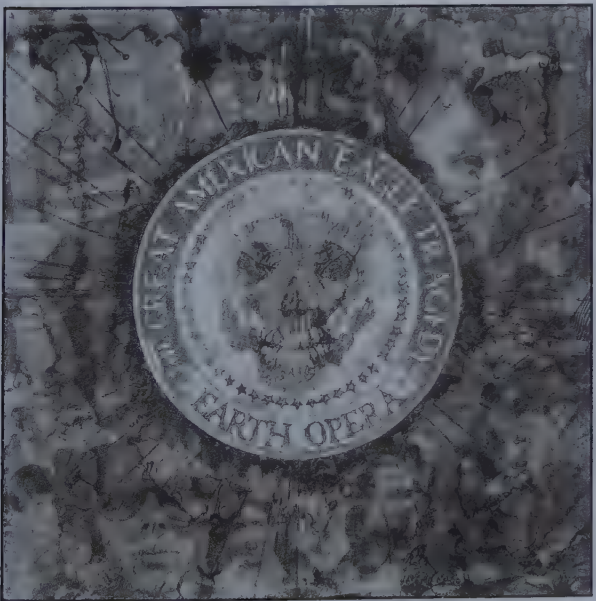
Boston had a thriving garage scene, featuring bands like The Remains, The Barbarians, and Teddy and The Pandas, but more exciting was the emergence in 1968 of the so called 'Bosstown Sound', which featured outfits like Ultimate Spinach, The Beacon Street Union, Freeborne, Phluph and Earth Opera. The city's own psychedelic scene soon sprouted from small clubs into larger psychedelic dancehalls like the Boston Tea Party, the Ark, the Crosstown Bus, Club 47 and the Psychedelic Supermarket.

Minneapolis was a sort of mecca for much of the Midwest producing some first rate psychedelic bands like C.A. Quintet, Calico Wall, The Litter and The Electras as well as more commercially successful acts like The Trashmen.

There's only been space to mention a few of the major cities here but throughout America most towns and cities had their own garage bands and psychedelic scenes in this era. Some of the finest records of this genre came from the Midwest States and places like Colorado as you'll see as you browse through this book. Not all the bands in this book were garage or psychedelic bands, many were more loosely associated with the hippie movement and the music they played was more grounded in folk and the blues. The flower-pop and bubblegum bands represented the more commercial side of psychedelia and garage music. Ah yes, bubblegum - the basic beat of bubblegum records like Simon Says, Gimme Gimme Good Lovin', 1,2,3, Red Light, Quick Joey Small and Yummy, Yummy, Yummy was the basic sound of rock and roll and had close links with the garage band sound, the difference being that infantile lyrics were substituted for the usual rage, aggression and snarling vocals. So that's why the main bubblegum acts are included here, too.

This expanded volume also delves deeper into the Jesus rock and prog acts of the mid-seventies.



THE GREAT AMERICAN EAGLE TRAGEDY
EARTH OPERA

EARTH OPERA - The Great American Eagle Tragedy LP.

We've mentioned the music, the fashion, the new art forms associated with the hippie culture, but the movement was more than just that - it was advocating a new lifestyle in a rapidly changing country. As the sixties evolved American society became very volatile indeed. Certain key events like the assassination of President J.F. Kennedy, the growth of the Free Speech Movement, the freedom marches in Mississippi and the draft and the country's entrenchment in the Vietnam War sparked off a challenge and defiance towards the American establishment among the Nation's youth. The hippie culture was very much a part of this mood. The word hippie was first used in a San Francisco Examiner article in September 1965 about a coffeehouse called The Blue Union in the heart of the Haight Ashbury area of San Francisco and the clients who patronised it. The movement's close association with psychedelia was cemented by Ken Kesey and The Merry Pranksters' activities in organising the Acid Tests and Trips Festival. It even had its guru, Dr. Timothy Leary (a Havard psychologist), who announced in September 1966 that he was forming a psychedelic religion, The League for Spiritual Discovery. He called a formal press conference at the New York Advertising Club and called on Americans to "turn on, tune in and drop out".

At its most extreme, the hippie life-style would involve dropping-out of conventional society and discarding one's material possessions to live off the land in communes. Obviously, this represented a reaction against the growing materialism, violence and impersonality of Western Society (i.e. many rock songs of this era were imploring audiences to love their neighbours because they were their brothers) and the related pressures of urban life (i.e. 'let's quit the city and get back to the land') was also a regular theme in lyrics of this era. As one might expect given the experimentation and improvisation of its music the hippie life-style was essentially individualistic with its emphasis on meditation and doing 'ones own thing' as a means to self-fulfilment and realisation. On a more superficial level, long hair was a manifestation of both this new-found freedom and an act of defiance against the standards of conventional society.

By 1969 the hippie movement was dead, discredited in the violence of the Altamont Rock Festival, and almost all its dreams remained unfulfilled, but sociologically and musically these were very exciting times. What follows is an encyclopaedic guide to the garage, psychedelic, hippie-rock and related music which came out of America in the sixties and early to mid-seventies.

Aardvark (WI/IL)

45: Wish I Could Tell You/
Change For Ever (Zoological Gardens 8606) c1968

Wisconsin and Illinois are both claimed as home turf. Whatever, Wish... is a haunting melodic garage-ballad with echoey vocals, keening guitar and moody Hammond vibes. Flip over for another good example of the garage-ballad genre, full of yearning with a reflective piano solo. One for late night unwinding. (MW)

Aardvark (?)

45: Salty Dog/The Kiss That Touches Me (Bullet 800) 196?

A subsidiary label of JEMKL (out of Miami & Nashville) may hint at possible locations for this band. Salty Dog blasts off with some discordant distorto-fuzz, and later features liberal doses of wah-wah. It is essentially an up-tempo late sixties rocker with a driving beat, like Emerge-period Litter but with less bite. Kiss is a soul-tinged last-dance ballad. (MW)

45s: I'm Higher Than I'm Down/That's Your Way (Vark 2058) 1966

Let's Move Together/Cherie, Can't You Tell (Talpa 68101) 1968

Erroneously thought to be a Chicago band, this act was in fact from Muskegon, Michigan. They were formed in late '64 under the name The Hitch Hikers, but later pulled the "Aardvarks" moniker from the first page of the dictionary.

Released on their own Vark label I'm Higher Than I'm Down despite the title wasn't a "drug" song. The flip, That's Your Way, is another fine number full of jangly guitar. The Vark release was recorded/produced and pressed by Fenton Records from Grand Rapids, Michigan for whom they also recorded their second single. The 'A' side to this, I Don't Believe, is a reasonable punker.

The Let's Move Together single was originally released on Forte, but was later re-issued by the band's ex-manager, after he had left town with a bunch of their money.

The band also recorded two unreleased songs: I Can't Explain which is a moody guitar and organ original and People Of This Land a sparse protest tune with lonesome sounding harmonica.

A.B. SKHY - Self Titled LP.

Compilation appearances include: I Don't Believe on Destination Frantic! (CD), Michigan Mayhem, Vol 2 (CD), and Scream Loud!!! The Fenton Story (2-CD); I'm Higher Than I'm Down on Michigan Mayhem Vol. 1 (CD), Pebbles, Vol. 11 (LP), Gravel Volume 2 (CD), Sixties Archive Vol. 7 - Michigan Punk (CD), and *Scream Loud!!! Subconscious Train Of Thought can also be heard on A Lethal Dose Of Hard Psych (CD). (CF/MW)

ALBUM: 1 MUSIC BY AARON (Eastern ERS 539) 1974 R1

From Virginia, a four-piece band with guitar and organ interplay on a mix of southern rock and melodic, sometimes jazzy progressive material. There are some commercial cuts on this like Dreamin' and the appealing ballad Like The Season. Only 500 copies were pressed, and the disc is housed in a home-made textured cover. (SR/VJ)

Abandoned (IL)

45: Come On Mary/Around And Around (The Abandoned 4867) 1966

This four-piece frat-rock band from Chicago formed in 1964 as The Satin Flames when they were all 11-year-olds. Come On Mary, a simple frat-rock raver was recorded in March 1966, at the Stereo Sonic Recording studios in Chicago and released on their own label. The flip, Around And Around was a cover of the Chuck Berry classic.

Compilation appearances include: Around And Around and Come On Mary on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 9: The Nightclub (LP & CD); and Come On Mary on Back From The Grave, Vol. 6 (LP). (VJ)

ALBUM: 1 HERE COME THE ABBREV'S
(American Division 3074) 1966 R3

This rare album was the work of a Rocky Mountain, South Carolina band.

All the tracks are cover versions; aside from one original True Fine Lovin'. The music sounds gritty and Stones-influenced with decent guitar and Farfisa organ.

True Fine Lovin' also got an airing on Tobacco-A-Go-Go, Vol 2. (VJ)

ALBUM: 1(A) INTRO TO CHANGE (Abnak ABST-2072) 1969

From Fort Worth, Texas this rock group was led by John Abdnor, formerly in Jon and Robin. As it was recorded in 1969, this short album (21 minutes) contains lots of horn arrangements, but the tracks are generally rather dynamic and benefit from the friendly vocals of Abdnor, in a R&B style. The album ends with the longest track, Relaxation culminating with a nuclear explosion while the singers keep on singing "Relaxation, you need relaxation"...

Ed Lively, their guitar player, was previously in The Mods and Whistler, Chaucer, Detroit and Greenhill. He would later play with Freddie King and record some good albums of Texas blues. (SR)

45: The Only Bad Thing About Her/
All Alone Am I (Arcola UA-407-41259) 196?

Two low-key strummed Beatlesque pop numbers by a cleverly named group from Duluth, Minnesota. A crude and sparse sound from Arcola Recording of St. Paul, gives the impression of dating from 1964 although a much later date has been suggested. Both sides were penned by R. Redosevich. (MW)

45: Camel Back/Just What I Need (PS) (MGM 14086) 1969 100

Originally known as New Blues, they were basically an electric blues band with horns and some jazz influences. From Milwaukee, Wisconsin they relocated to San Francisco where they became a popular live attraction at venues like the Fillmore and Avalon in the late sixties. Produced by Richard Delvy (Chamber Brothers, Challengers), their first album contains a mix of original songs and covers (You Upset Me Baby and Keith Jarrett's It's Love Baby, 24 Hours A Day) and is still very nice to hear. The single cuts are from this album.

Terry Andersen and Howard Wales then left, the latter to play with Harvey Mandel, Jerry Garcia and the Grateful Dead. They were replaced by Rick Jaeger and James Curley Cooke (ex-The Versitones and The Steve Miller Band).

Still in the same style, their second album was recorded in March 1970 and produced by Kim Fowley and Michael Lloyd. Cooke had obviously become their leader, writing most of their original material. The covers this time were Fats Domino's I'm Walkin, Doc Pomus's My Baby Quit Me and a version of Groovin'. The excellent and long track Gazebo was clearly jazz oriented and dedicated to Gabor Szabo. The band also started work for a third album which was never completed.

Upon their demise, Cooke went on to Cat And The Fiddle and also played with Boz Scaggs and Ben Sidran. After some years out of the music scene, he came back in 1980 with a decent solo album Gingerman (First American). Rick Jaeger joined Crowfoot and became a session man.

A CD, A.B. Skhy, Featuring Howard Wales (One Way 30011) 1984 has also been issued. Camel Back can also be heard on The Core Of Rock, Vol 2 (LP). (VJ/MW/SR)

The Abstracts were formed by Peluso and Dondini, both from Los Angeles and Pierre Vigeant (from Montreal) whilst they were in high school. They discovered Thatcher (from Dallas) in a 'Battle Of The Drums Contest' in L.A. County and asked him to join their group. Their album was recorded for the small Pompeii label at Sound City Studios in Fort Worth, Texas, produced by Darrell Glenn and David Anderson and engineered by J. "T-Bone" Burnett. It was rather patchy on the whole but with a few highlights and ranged from soft to heavy, sometimes psychy, pop. The single catches two of their better efforts: - a lightweight cover of the West Coast Pop Art Experimental Band's psych-pop nugget (also covered by Southwest FOB, Pawnbrokers and nineties Norwegian folk-psychers Smell Of Incense); See The Birdies is a slab of Vanilla-Fudge-essenced heavy acid-pop.

Apart from the material written by Peluso, the album also contains a cover of Gerschwin's Summertime and Any Old Time, a Pat and Lolly Vegas song. Smell Of Incense on the album was credited to Peluso, not to the WCPAEB! On the single however, the song is credited correctly to Markley-Morgan.

In 1971 Peluso was in Instant Joy, the backing group of Mark Lindsay (ex-Paul Revere and The Raiders) and then went on to play with the Carpenters and Seals and Crofts. (MW/SR/EW)

Despite the Gray Sound label address of Brooklyn, New York City this group was from Springfield, New Jersey. Blacked Out Mind is an interesting, if uninspired keyboard-heavy punker that is not in the least psychedelic despite its title. The flip unashamedly rips off the backing keyboard track from 96 Tears and is again a little pedestrian.

Their 1966 punker You're Gonna Break My Heart was misspelt Your... on the label, which also credited the group as Abstrack Sound. The flip is an excellent understated protest song.

Compilation appearances have included: Blacked Out Mind on *Basementsville! 	All Of My Life/I Want Your Love	(Panorama 10) 1965

Here's a different Accents also from the Seattle area in the Pacific Northwest. They evolved out of a Bellingham Wailers-styled act called The Night People, led by Reginald Shannon (bs), with Gary Hill (ld gtr), Laurie Vitt (sax) and some other musicians from Seattle. Laurie Vitt was recruited at short notice, after their original sax player had quit: - "I played with them for about three months, but the band was starting to fall apart, mostly because the keyboard player and drummer were driving up from Seattle. At the same time, Ron Peterson from The Frantics had entered Western and their band too fell apart. We hired Ron to take Gary Hill's place - I liked Gary, but he and Shannon had a major falling out and, if you can believe it, Shannon owned the PA system so the band stuck with the PA. We continued to use The Night People name but it was clear that Reginald had to go. We also picked up Vic Bundy and Pat Jerns when the keyboard player and drummer dropped out, all within the space of a month. The Night People had become pretty well known in the northern part of the state so we had lots of bookings. Ron Peterson couldn't get along with Reginald either and before long we started thinking that it was time for him to go. Ron contacted George Palmerton about replacing Reginald and he agreed. So, in a major falling out, with threats by Reginald about lawsuits, we threw him out and got George. As it turned out, George was great, not only as a bass player, but as a singer. We changed our name to The Frantics, mainly to keep Reginald off our backs - and he was fuming to say the least. He claimed that he owned The Night People name. We then decided to record Linda Lou but Ron was worried that we might face legal problems if we did a record under the name Frantics. So we changed our name to Ron Peterson and the Accents".

"We then did the Linda Lou record with Sampan (written by Bundy) as the flip side. The voice introducing us on that record is Pat O'Day from KJR Radio Station in Seattle. It was this group, Ron Peterson and the Accents, who first tried out Kathi at a small grange hall in Mt. Vernon. Kathi was 13 at the time and she blew us away. I might add that Vic Bundy was either 13 or 14 and I was 18. As time went on, Kathi sang with us more and more and we started paying her $10 per night. At some point George Palmerton quit (he was driving up from Seattle), but on very good terms - we regretting seeing him go, and we replaced him with Doug Ling. Doug was an animal and a mediocre musician so it was clear that he wouldn't last. Ron Peterson decided to quit soon after and he also left on good terms. In the meantime Ron had coerced me into singing, which of course scared me to death. He was basically priming us to continue without him and it turned out that I wasn't too terrible. Then we hired Bill Capp who not only was a decent guitar player, but a good singer. We kept the name The Accents for a while but added "Bellingham" to it and did the Bacon Fat record which got some local air time but that was about it. One of our booking agents suggested The Bellingham Accents part arguing that it made us sound British."

Linda Lou has also resurfaced on the cassette only compilation History Of Northwest Rock Vol. 7.

Laurie Vitt is now Curator of Reptiles and Professor of Zoology at Sam Noble Oklahoma Museum of Natural History! (MW/LV)

This San Diego-based group was previously known as The Accents, who played live concerts but made no recordings (line-up 'A'). The Accents held open auditions for a female vocalist and were so knocked out by Sandi Rouse that they gave her top billing! Their first single was a huge local hit (Los Angeles - San Diego) and the group was immediately picked up by Challenge Records who re-released their single with national distribution and that summer it made the charts in markets all across the country. Their subsequent singles met with similar success, but the group broke up when Myers was drafted. Mannix and Johnson later formed a group with David and Rick Randle called The Brain Police who eventually made an incredible album in 1968, after Johnson and Mannix had moved on. Johnson later became a sought-after live and session drummer, playing with Mary Wells, Junior Walker, Commander Cody, Maria Muldaur, Hoyt Axton and others. Sandi and The Accents were the most popular group in San Diego in 1964 - 1966, and staged a 30 year reunion concert there in 1996 that was a sold-out, standing-room only event. Their sound was R&B and soul-based pop/rock. (CF)

The Aces (MI)

The Aces have three cuts on Thee Unheard Of, a compilation of Michigan acetates. Train's Late - an Elvis-style ballad, a really raw version of Bo Diddley's Who Do You Love, and a great garage ballad I Can Hear The Rain Drops with rainstorm effects and a big nod to the Cascades. The trouble is that the latter track is really I Can Hear Raindrops by The Noblemen 4. The other "Aces" tracks are also thought to be different artists. It turns out that many of the 'acetates' on Thee Unheard Of are actually modern forgeries manufactured by a fraudster who took the tracks from obscure sixties singles to exploit the compiler's interests.

Who Do You Love has also subsequently appeared on Sixties Archives Vol. 7 - Michigan Punk (CD). (VJ/MW/MM)

ALBUM:	1(A)	INTRODUCING	(Justice JLP-134) 1966 R2

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Collectables COL-0605) 1995.

A schoolboy quintet, all 14 or 15 according to the reproduced liner notes, trot through some favourite covers - surf/instrumental (Wipe Out, Apache), ballads (Under The Boardwalk, My Girl), frat/dance (Shake A Tail Feather, The Monkey Time) and pop/beat (Pied Piper, This Boy). Kudos to Collectables for reissuing these extremely rare and expensive albums. Curiosity is satisfied without selling the family china, though the general sound of these lesser known Justice albums is the pre-fuzz 1964/1965 period and of more interest to fans of beat/pop/frat than the "class of '66" clan. 45: My Rights/I Want Your Love (Canaltown 254) 1967

This mid-sixties combo, who operated out of Palmyra in New York State, recorded a catchy folk-punk song, My Rights, about the plight of the high school kid penned in by parents, teachers et al. It's captured in all its splendour on Pebbles, Vol. 16 (LP) and on Psychedelic States: New York, Vol. 2 (CD). (VJ/MM/MW)

This rural prog-rock group's album has delicate vocal harmonies and acoustic/electric instruments. They were probably from the Memphis Area, where TMI, owned by Steve Cropper, was based and who also released albums by Edgewood and Watchpocket. (SR)

Action Unlimited (CA)

45: Thinking To Myself/My Heart Cries Out (Parkway P-115) 1966

A bouncy melodic male-harmony popper (think of an upbeat Association) backed by a haunting dream-like ballad with harmonies and oscillating psychedelic effects. Both sides were composed by a C. Trisko. The group personnel is unknown and may have just been another anonymous Los Angeles sessioneer aggregation. Historical significance and interest is assured by the production wizardry of Curt Boettcher, which would be given greater exposure with Millennium and Sagittarius.

You can also find the excellent 'B' side on the 1998 Arf! Arf! CD compilation No No No, subtitled 28 Moody Somber and Tragic '60s Garage Rock Sagas. (MW)

45: No One Wants Me/It's You (Shane 57) 1966

This sixties garage band hailed from Texas (most probably Houston). Their single is rather primitive with both sides featuring pounding drum work, sloppy tambourine and guitars low in the mix - great stuff!

Compilation appearances have included: It's You and No One Wants Me on Sixties Rebellion, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD) and Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 2 (LP); No One Wants Me on Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 8 (LP & CD) and It's You can also be heard on Wyld Sydes Volume Seven (CD). (VJ)

Here's an interesting single by a Portsmouth, Rhode Island band, although it's more pop than psych/garage. I've Just Seen You feels like it's on the verge of breaking into a fuzzy freakout... but never does; Yesterday Noontime is breezy pop a lá Merry Go Round with some psychy effects and has resurfaced on Red With Purple Flashes Vol. 2 (LP).

The Sampson brothers went on to form The Buzzards and wrote Mon's Meg, which appeared on the flip of Don Meehan Project's My Silent Symphony single in 1969. (MW)

45: Eve/Where Has My Little Girl Gone (Mala 547) 1966

Eve is a strange and chaotic psych-punker that is hard to describe. Beginning with a fabulous instrumental passage which kicks into Eight Miles High mode, it evolves into an off-the-wall punker with fuzz guitar, keening backing vocals and screams that give it a nightmarish aura. The avalanche of guitars returns at intervals and the whole affair concludes abruptly in an odd anti-climax. Check it out on Incredible Sound Show Stories Vol. 7 (LP) and A Lethal Dose Of Hard Psych (CD).

The flip is just as bizarre in that it's a straight harmony-vocal ballad.

Possibly just a New York City studio aggregation, Henny, Miller and Schnug turned up again in 1967 as the Balloon Farm. (MW/MM)

ALBUM: 1 IN YOUR EYE (Coronet no #) 1973 R2

This album contains pretty stark early seventies singer/songwriter material and is not the loner acid-folk epic that some dealers promote it as. The songs are quite melodic but unless you're obsessed with this genre there is nothing special to recommend here. (VJ)

ALBUM: 1 AN EYE IN EACH HEAD (Harlequin HR1 1001) 1973

From the East Coast, a folk duo whose Columbia albums reputedly contain some good acid-folk tracks with Eastern influences. Such Interesting People was a straight-ahead folk album, produced by Creed Taylor, which is getting hard to find. Eastern Ferris Wheel was the duo's 'psychedelic' excursion: a decent Eastern-influenced folk and folk-rock outing that featured Dave Brubeck on one song. They released at least ten albums on various labels, including some private pressings. (SR/RMh/VJ)

Sixties Hollywood outfit The Advancement's album is one of those strange late sixties barrier-breaking experimental efforts trying to fuse different musical genres. Orient Express, Autosalvage and John Berberian are other similar projects which spring to mind. This particular one is an attempt to fuse jazz with folk, rock and acid. Interesting but its success is debatable.

On this single it is backed by a cover of a Byrds' classic. Check it out there unless you've $100 plus for an original. It's been speculated (but not proven) that the band came from Pennsylvania. Proposition 13 is driving orchestrated female-vocal folk-pop with trumpet flourishes, that'd appeal to flower children or fans of Bob Lind. The flip is an extremely soppy male-led harmony-pop ballad.

Chan also recorded with Randy Sparks and Back Porch Majority and in the seventies worked with The Burgans and the reformed We Five. Qualey departed in late '67 and went on to have a long career as a solo guitarist. (MW)

Aerosmith formed in Boston, Massachusetts during the early seventies. Tyler, from New York City, was a veteran of Chain Reaction and The Strangeurs. He met Perry at an ice cream parlour where Perry worked during the summer while both were vacationing in Sunapee, New Hampshire. Perry invited Tyler to sit in with his group The Jam Band. After shifting through several line-ups, the above members moved to Boston and built up a local following.

AEROSMITH - Get Your Wings CD.

The band signed to Columbia in 1972 after Clive Davis saw them at Max's Kansas City. According to legend, Jerry Wexler from Atlantic also spotted the band that night, but declined to make an offer as he thought they weren't ready to record. The self-titled debut album attracted moderate interest at first, as the band toured as an opener for The Mahavishnu Orchestra, The Kinks, Mott The Hoople and Sha Na Na. Initially, Aerosmith were slagged off in the press as a third-rate Rolling Stones clone. By 1975, though, the Jack Douglas produced third album Toys In The Attic found the band really gelling; it became such a success that the band's debut single Dream On was reissued and hit the US Top 10, and the debut album, retitled Aerosmith featuring Dream On also recharted and climbed to US No. 21.

Aerosmith's commercial and artistic peak was Rocks in 1976. It was renowned for the menacing, hard-rock stomper Back In The Saddle, and the viscous funk groover Last Child, but had several other good tracks like Rats In The Cellar, the Stonesy Combination, and the riffy-rocker Get The Lead Out. The album closed with a ballad Home Tonight and took Aerosmith to No. 3 in the Album Chart.

On Down The Line the band returned to simple, straight-ahead hard-rock. The album-opening title track features an abrasive slide guitar riff from Joe Perry. Other highlights include a reworking of the blues obscurity Milk Cow Blues, as well as I Wanna Know Why, Critical Mass, Get It Up, Kings And Queens and Sight for Sore Eyes. Draw the Line would become the last true studio album from Aerosmith's original line-up for nearly a decade.

Following that album there followed a long downward slide due to excessive drug use, where both musical quality and record sales suffered. After some personnel changes in the eighties, however, the original quintet reunited and detoxed, became even more commercially successful making one of the most surprising and dramatic comebacks in rock history. There are several compilations of their material. Some of the most popular are detailed in the discography above. (JPs/VJ)

NB: α are UK-only releases.

Formed by Tom Hartman in St. Louis Missouri in 1966, he was so enamoured of The Beatles that he would eventually go all the way to London in an attempt to record there..... amazingly the band succeeded on almost all counts, recorded two singles and an album at Abbey Road, hob-nobbed on the swingin' club scene, and met some of their heroes.

Two singles secured a UK release but the band fell at the last hurdle. Having lost Edholm (sent home during their UK recordings), Mike Lombardo went AWOL on their return home. With just two left standing, EMI cancelled the album and it would not be heard of again until the 2003 reissue.

There was another Aerovons in Fort Lauderdale in the mid-sixties who released one single - Was It Meant To Be/Be Bop A Lula (Winterhurst no #) - in August 1965. There is no connection other than Tom Hartman saw that band, while he was living in Florida for a few months before his family returned to St. Louis, and he named his outfit after them.

Hampstead, Long Island group Aesop's Fables' What Is Love single contains most characteristics associated with the "Long Island sound". And When It's Over is very different from The Vagrants' rampantly heavy version of Bert Sommer's pop melodrama, starting with an encouraging dreamy intro but then replacing the guitar lines with brass and orchestra.

The album was recorded at Syncron Sound Studios, Wallingford, Connecticut and produced by Bob Gallo and Louis Cofredo, who were also the producers of Sum Pear (also with John Scaduto on drums). It should please fans of Chicago and other horn-rock groups, but is far too heavily orchestrated and full of brass arrangements to be of real interest to fans of psychedelia. All their material was original, bar the Bert Sommer cover. (VJ/MW/MM/SR)

ALBUM:	1(A)	A EUPHONIOUS WAIL	(Kapp KS 3668) 1973 SC

Heavily influenced by San Francisco bands (Big Brother and the Holding Company and Jefferson Airplane quickly come to mind), the Santa Rosa, California-based A Euphonious Wail sound more '68 than '73.

Built around the talents of drummer Doug Hoffman, keyboardist Bart Libby, singer Suzanne Rey, singer/guitarist Steve Tracy and bassist Gary Violetti, the band's self-titled 1973 debut teamed them with producer Brian Ingoldsby, although Lowell Levinger (of Youngbloods fame) reportedly also helped out. It does have a couple of moments, but for the most part the album is surprisingly lame and uninspired. Lead vocalists Rey and Tracy have decent, if unexceptional voices (though Rey tends to screech in the higher registers). Taken individually guitar and keyboard propelled rockers such as Pony, We've Got the Chance, When I Start To Live and F# aren't bad, but stretched over an entire album, there simply isn't much to stand out, and the songwriting is average. The band was even less successful when they tried slowing things down - check out the lame ballads Did You Ever and I Want To Be A Star. Needless to say, the album vanished without a trace.

The Michael Hawes cover drawing is interesting; depending on how you look at, you can see something completely abstract, or possibly obscene. (SB/VJ/CF)

The Rowberry brothers formed The Mystics in Idaho Falls in 1964 (line-up A) with some high school and neighbourhood friends, initially as an instrumental outfit. By the time they graduated in 1967 and decided to take a crack at some recordings, they'd changed their name to the Affection Collection and picked up a new bassist in Ray Hassell, a Texan who was touring the area with another band.

Hassell knew all about Norman Petty's studio in Clovis and persuaded them to go there to record. Their first effort, In Apple Blossom Time, was put out on their own Maudz label; with decent sales thanks to local airplay back in Idaho, plus Petty's help and connections, it was picked up for national release by United Artists.

However United Artists failed to get any promotion behind the band so Petty got them out of the deal and they reverted to self-promoted releases on their label until Petty secured an album deal with Evolution, as reported by Billboard in February 1969. The album featured a cover of Sonny Curtis's The Collector, also recorded by the Blue Beats (under the alter-ego #1) in 1967 and by the All Night Workers in 1968. Several tracks were originals by the band or their friends; the remainder came from George and Barbara Tomsco, whom Petty had brought in to help with the recordings.

Alas their lightweight pop-rock failed to set the charts alight and Evolution, like United Artists, lost interest. At that point all except Hassell decided to abandon the stardom trail and went off to college, although the quartet did return to Petty's studios the next summer (1970) for a final fling, which produced the Feelin' Fine single.

Meanwhile Hassell had stayed in Idaho Falls and formed Sledgehammer, who released a single in September 1969 - I'll Stop Pretending Someone's Here A Watchin' (Maudz 45-005) - both sides of which he composed.

Band members kept in touch over the years. Eventually Doggett, Rowberry, and Christenson reformed The Affection Collection for special local events, with Jon Horst and Larry Thatcher (from Goodwill, Doggett's regular band).

In 2007 a 25-track CD retrospective The Affection Collection appeared. It gathers together single and album cuts, several unreleased tracks, and two new songs by the reformed band.

This Houston band was best known for Torture, a driving psychedelic punk track with raw vocals, powerful drumming and rich organ work, which Rock Romano co-wrote with Messrs Clark and Sartie.

Formerly a guitarist with The Six Pents and later with The Fun And Games Commission, Romano played on the Soma single but was not a regular member of this outfit.

The band operated on and off during the seventies and eighties recording an album in 1978 but line-up data is hard to come by. The band's sole album was a rather forgettable effort entitled Ulysses, The Greek Suite. Released for 20th Century Fox, the resulting 23-track, double album set was clearly intended as a concept piece built on ancient Greek mythology. Written and arranged by keyboardist Michael Rapp, musically the set showcased the talents of singers Ted Neeley and Yvonne Iverson. Neeley wasn't half bad, displaying a nifty gruff voice that was well suited for more mainstream rock (the MOR Ambrosia-styled Ithaca). Recalling Yvonne Elliman, Iverson wasn't as impressive, though it didn't matter since her performances were scattered far and wide. Exemplified by material such as the instrumental Greetings From Olympus, Ulysses Theme and Island Of The Lotus Eaters the collection was heavy on pomposity, complete with spoken word narratives and over-the-top ELP-styled synthesizers and

After All comprised members from various bands in Tallahassee, Florida. All the members had their roots in rhythm and blues and jazz but they set out to record an album that blended acid and classical rock with surrealistic lyrics. They recruited a young poet Linda Hargrove (later a Nashville songwriter) who provided lyrics for most of the songs.

The album, which is not easy to find, is organ-dominated progressive rock with a psychedelic taint and a clear classical influence. The first side features two extended pieces. Both Intangible She and Nothing Left To Do sport attractive melodies and strange ominous atmospherics. And I Will Follow has a nice organ intro and Blue Satin is quite a melodic love song. After All was a one-off project, they all returned to their individual careers as soon as it was finished in 1969. AFTERGLOW - Self Titled LP.

From Chico, California this band was originally known as The Medallions. Their album, which was produced by Larry Goldberg and Leo Kulka (aka Leo De Gar Kulka, owner of Golden State Recorders, in San Francisco), consists of soft pop with a tinny organ backing and memorable tunes. Some of the tracks such as Susie's Gone, It's A Wonder, and Afternoon are extremely psychedelic and side one is much the stronger of the two.

Something of a cross between Country Joe and The Fish and Canadians British North American Act, their album is certainly worth investigation and has been reissued on CD by Sundazed, with four previously unissued tracks - alternate versions of Susie's Gone, Chasing Rainbows, Afternoon and Morning. These are looser and less rigid alternate backing tracks.

Compilation appearances include: Morning on Psychedelic Crown Jewels, Vol. 1 (CD); Susie's Gone on Beyond The Calico Wall (LP & CD) and Pebbles, Vol. 2 (ESD) (CD); and both Morning and Susie's Gone on Crystalize Your Mind (CD). (VJ)

Aftermath formed in North Hollywood in early 1966 after Danny and Gary met in Continuation School (a sort of halfway house for social misfits). They decided to form a band and got together in earnest with the rest of the guys. They got to play gigs at places like Pandora's Box, the Hullabaloo and It's Boss and were auditioned for a record deal at A&M but lost out to the Merry Go Round. Their increasing indulgence in psychedelics and brushes with the law were their downfall, the final straw coming when Danny was arrested backstage at one gig and thrown into Juvenile Hall for three months. Although they didn't make it onto vinyl at the time a tape of them playing three songs back in the summer of 1966 survived and their very loose version of Van Morrison's Gloria found its way onto Highs In The Mid Sixties, Vol. 20 (LP). Danny now lives in Oregon and plays with The Miracle Workers. Scott plays in Top 40 bands in Venice (not far from L.A). Brad lives in Hawaii - he's now a born again Christian and plays in Top 40 bands; Gary is a construction worker in Simi Valley (outside L.A.) and Mike, well he kind of vanished and the others haven't heard of him in several years. This southern California outfit (from Azusa) is preaching the gospel using a hard-rock format and musically it's pretty good too. Fred Caban was the brain behind the project - he wrote the lyrics, music and supplies the vocals on all the tracks. The opening cut on the first album Blind is pretty bluesy, there's plenty of fuzz on tracks like Trust and a good echoed guitar on Freedom. The magnum opus is the final track, Rejoice, which deals with the end of the world and the coming of Christ. Imaginative, maybe even psychedelic, this track in particular is well worth a listen. Their second album is more laid-back than the first but both are equally sought-after. There's a Hendrix feel to the guitar work and tracks like King Of Kings stand out.

There was also an eight-track live recording from a California college gig that included extended versions of cuts from their two earlier studio albums and the title track, which was new. The CD release by Hidden Vision adds five bonus tracks, which aren't as good and messes with the order. Still, it contains 70 minutes of music.

In The Light (by a pre-Agape line-up) and Rejoice have both been compiled on Holy Fuzz (LP). (VJ)

45: (Your Love Is Like A) Magnet/
I'm A Free Man (Ascot 2230) 1967

Teen garage quintet The Age Of Reason came from the Bronx, New York City. Their sole single became a sought-after item many years later after Magnet, a brooding punk-popper, was included on the 1983 compilation album Ear-Piercing Punk (reissued on CD in 1996).

Larry Russell recalls: "Our original name was The Loose Ends but, when we recorded Magnet on 9/8/66, our manager decided to change our name (that night) because there had been another band with the same name that had a record deal before us."

"On that day we recorded four songs, the other two besides the single were (It's A) Dirty Shame, which was going to be our follow-up single, and Pride, written by our producer and which, in our opinion, sucked. I have copies of all of those recordings."

Their single did well enough to make the national charts and the band found themselves opening for top division acts like The Four Tops, Drifters, Box Tops and Young Rascals. However the big push from the label did not materialise and the follow-up never happened. The band called it a day in the spring of 1968. 35 years on Dirty Shame has finally been unveiled, on Psychedelic States: New York Vol. 1 (CD). It's a catchy swinger that harks back to upfront 1964-era Merseybeat shouters, punctuated with "yeah"s aplenty.

Larry Russell was 16 when the record was cut. He went on to tour with Billy Joel, Gary U.S. Bonds, Mary Travers, and Robert Gordon. In the late nineties he was the percussionist for superstar Bryan Adams. (MW/MM/JLh/LR)

45: Sunshine Superman/Maharishi (LHI 1209) 1968

The album sounds like a studio project. It's atmospheric, psychedelic mood music and includes some mellow instrumentals with Eastern moves, flute passages and dreamy arrangements. This is ideal music to unwind by. At times it's reminiscent of The Electric Prunes Mass In F Minor period, especially on White Light, with its cathedral choir sound. On the down-side there are some brassy arrangements that creep in too often and concocted lyrics and vocals which are occasionally rather lame. The City Of Toys And Games is sort of swing-era melody pop update - the toilet flush at the end eloquently sums it up. Life's Light makes amends though. It commands pretty high prices but musically has limited appeal.

Recording on Lee Hazlewood's LHI label probably places this as a Los Angeles-based project. Two of their tracks have been compiled: You Lied To Me on Quagmire Vol. 2 (CD) and Candlestick Stomp on Wyld Sydes Volume 3 (CD). (MW)

A privately pressed Nevada album of rural/hard-rock recorded live on 31st October 1973. No date is designated, but 1974 would be a best guess on the year of release. It's a primitive recording with fuzzy acid-guitar and a dark basement feel. It was released in miniscule quantities. Goulard wrote and produced all 10 tracks (the liner notes actually listed four songs, though two of the titles consisted of multipart medleys). Feeling Down and Strange are among the better tracks, but the album suffers from the lack of a lead guitarist. ALBUM: 1 HEAVY, HEAVY, HEAVY (Crown CST 600) 1969 SC

On the same budget exploito label as the The Firebirds and The 31 Flavors comes another anonymous assortment. Though the title might encourage hopes of more proto-grunge, 'heavy' this is NOT. The vocalist sounds like a gruffer version of Creedence Clearwater Revival's John Fogerty, and the bulk of the material is in similar bluesy rock'n'boogie territory. The rest is country-rock and big ballads with piano to the fore. (MW)

45: No Reason To Complain/Yeah! (Awake No. 107) 1966

In 1983 Tim Warren unleashed Back From The Grave, Vol. 1 on a moribund world and awoke both a new and an older generation to some of the rawest, crudest sonic assaults from the mid-sixties. Amongst his first selection was both sides of a killer garage-punk single with superbly snotty Jaggeresque vocals, by this little known group from Ohio. Cover versions by eighties garage bands followed: Yeah by Thee Fourgiven (on the Battle Of The Garages Vol. III comp, 1984) and Italy's Sick Rose (The Exploding Underground comp, 1988); No Reason To Complain by The Lyres (Lyres Lyres LP, 1986) and Mystic Eyes (Our Time To Leave LP, 1988). With further compilation appearances of No Reason To Complain on the Acid Dreams Epitaph (CD) and Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP), and both tracks also appearing on Garage Kings (2-LP), this rare single became a holy grail for garage collectors.

So who were these guys? A brief synopsis of the comprehensive history unveiled on the Norton release follows: - Parma, a suburb of Cleveland, Ohio, in 1964; Bruce Boehm got bitten by the Beatle bug, picked up a guitar and formed The Perceptions with drummer Tim Douglas and bassist Jeff Suveges. In 1965 he left for a steady gig with another Parma group, The Night People. Nearby neighbour Mike Pierce persuaded him to start a group revelling in the wilder sounds of the Stones, Kinks, Who and Animals. With Bill Schwark on drums, the mop-top trio called themselves The Alarm Clocks. Once they began to get local gigs Boehm quit The Night People. In spring 1966 they recorded their single at a small Cleveland studio, SIR - 200 or so copies of the single eventually arrived on their personally chosen label in August 1966. They returned to SIR soon after to record gig-gettin' demos featuring raw'n'savage covers of Louie Louie, Money, It's All Over Now, Bald-Headed Woman, I'm Alright, She's About A Mover, and Route 66. When vocalist Frank Recsik joined in the summer of '67 they became known as The Purple Haze. At the end of the year Boehm quit and was replaced again by Bob Kalamasz (his successor in The Perceptions). Rick Caon (later of The Choir) joined for the last incarnation, as The Looking Glass. Subsequently Schwark and Kalamasz would team up with Bill Constable in the embryonic Damnation Of Adam Blessing.

Norton's fine 12-track retrospective Yeah! gathers the original single and the aforementioned 1966 demos, plus three basement recordings from 1965 by The Perceptions - Wipe Out, I'm A Fool and Tree Stump Theme. The latter was a tribute to local heroes The Tree Stumps whose rendition of the Kinks' All Day And All Of The Night at a local shindig in February 1965 was the inspiration for Boehm, transforming his musical aspirations and setting him on the route that wound up as The Alarm Clocks (oof!). All albums feature traditional American folk music and quirky originals by this husband and wife hippie duo from Kentucky. Though they are no longer a couple, both are still actively making music. In particular, Anne McFie, as she now is known, has become a successful (predominately country) songwriter and nationally known UFO researcher. (HS/SR)

The California Christmas Vol. 2 (LP) features a version of Hoochie Coochie Man along with an unknown track by this line-up. Pigpen was best known of course as a member of Grateful Dead. (MW/VJ)

ALBUM: 1 DETROIT 1984 (Kama Sutra KSBS 2028) 1970

Housed in a strange sleeve with a perforated silhouette of an albino gorilla, comes this album of psych-soul, with various covers: Going To A Go Go, Blues Project's Wake Me Shake Me, and at least two tracks from their main influence, the Temptations: Psychedelic Shack and Cloud Nine. ALBUM: 1(A) ALBRECHT AND ROLEY (Airborn AR 4116) 1975 SC

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Hartsong HK-5011) 1979 with a different cover.

Mike Albrecht and Scott Roley formed this outfit in September 1974, after the break-up of Aslan and Stillwaters. They journeyed around the Midwest and East Coast coffee house circuit and began to lay the foundation for the nationally known group Albrecht, Roley & Moore. The 10 songs written and sung by Mike and Scott on this album were recorded in Michigan during 1974 and 1975. The personnel details above list all the artists that appeared on the album. The opening song was composed by Jeff Trautman, a former Aslan player. The music on the album is mostly acoustic folk and folk-rock with vocal harmonies and some Christian elements. There is some electric guitar too. They made a second album, Gentle Flow Feeling in 1977, by which time they had evolved into Albrecht, Roley & Moore. (VJ)

They made two further albums: Starlighter (Spirit Records NDR 3003) 1978 and Take It To The People (Spirit Records NDR 3004) in 1980, which are both outside the time-frame of this book. (VJ)

In The Upper Room (Sir Graham HG-101/2) 1966

An excellent fuzz garage-punker from Los Angeles' East Side, that can be appreciated at last on the Rampart Records EP along with Cannibal & The Headhunters and the Atlantics (Dionysus/Bacchus BA05, 1995). Originally compiled on the 1969 double-album East Side Revue (Rampart 3303), the track was written by Chick Carlton, who had performed as Chick Carlton & The Majestics before turning to writing for other local acts including the Sunday Funnies and the Enchantments. 45s: I Didn't Even Thank Her/Malaguena (A&M 1101) 1969
The Hunchback Of Notre Dame Part 1/
Part 2 (Mercury 73146) 1970

Previously known as The Galaxies IV, this band was based in New Jersey. Their debut single is something of a period piece; I Didn't... is a melodramatic ballad reminiscent of R. Dean Taylor, with Vanilla Fudge-like neo-classical keyboard frills. Love Scupture's treatment of Sabre Dance probably inspired their 6:43 speed-freak version of the Spanish classic Malaguena, which was their most popular live song.

Their album has been sadly neglected and is an excellent melodic psych/progressive cross-over item, with some similarities to Gandalf. Recorded in New York's Associated Recording Studios, the album was co-produced by Irving Spice and Max Ellen (the eccentric Jerry Samuels (aka Napoleon XIV) engineering). In spite of the goofy title, the collection of original material (a rote cover of Otis Redding's I've Been Loving You Too Long being the one exception), was diverse and surprisingly engaging. While the extended title track bogged down in Procol Harum-meets-Tolkien art-rock mysticism (not a pretty combination), elsewhere the band displayed considerable versatility, capably polishing off nifty rockers (the scorching Goin' Down), Association-styled ballads (My Woman) and decent pop-rock (Faraway Man). While it wasn't the year's most consistent release, the fact it was so diverse was part of its charm. Well worth looking for and you can still find the album at a decent price.

Credits on the album are limited to song-writing, and as Alan Fowler left the group just prior to the album photo shoot he is not pictured on the back sleeve.

Their guitar player, Chris Holmes, later went on to form Duke Williams and The Extremes together with drummer Hank Ransom, from the Philadephia group Elizabeth and T.J. Tindall of the Edison Electric Band. They released at least two albums. Alan Fowler went on to Pickins who released an album on the Ariola America in 1978. The album was produced by T.J. Tindall with guest appearances by TJ and Chris Holmes (a.k.a. Duke Williams). Fowler is now running his new publishing company "River Towne Music". Duke Williams currently plays in The Paul Plumeri Blues Band. (VJ/FHy/SB/SR/RMh/MW)

Maybe Baby/Maybe Baby (Kapp K 967) 1967

NB: α also released on Uni (55044) 1967. They probably released other 45s.

Here's a bluesy outfit from L.A. with some psychedelic influences. Their first album was issued privately and thus fetches higher sums, but the Uni album may have a wider appeal. Both their albums were produced by Tony Cary. Charles Lamont also released a solo album in 1969, A Legend In His Own Time (Uni 73076), which consists of melodic psych/pop with orchestrations. All the songs were written by Lamont and it features a version of Love So Strong which can also be found on the Alexander's Timeless Bloozband For Sale album.

The second single was a cover of the Buddy Holly/Norman Petty classic. (VJ/CF/SR)

The Alibi (?)

45: Sunshine/Oh She Was A Beautiful Woman (Dody DO 335) 1968

Thought to be from New England, this flower-pop single may be of interest. Seen described as 'trippy pop-psych' - Sunshine is uplifting harmonious pop, with maybe just a psychy tinge. The flip is also pleasant pop with interesting time changes and warbling keyboards. Produced by Dody Sinclair, both sides were composed by Mike Christy and arranged by Tony Mazza, Dave Rossi and Mike Christy. (MW)

Recorded at Synchron Studios in Connecticut, this album was issued through the auspices of an organisation called The Alien Nation in South Carolina. Drawing heavily from the British folk scene, Larry and Myra's often tandem vocals are positively stunning, and nearly every track has remarkable melodic energy. The record seems to suffer from poor mastering, however... it's somewhat noisy even when visually mint. This one deserves a proper reissue from the master tapes! (CF/SR/VJ)

This octet from Norfolk, Virginia was strongly influenced by the "San Francisco sound", especially Jefferson Airplane. Love Someone, an up-tempo pop-rocker with Airplane-style vocals and heavy acidic guitar, is featured on Aliens, Psychos And Wild Things (CD).

The first single Come Fly With Me was a local hit. Their arrangement of Donovan's Season of The Witch adds a nightmarish atmosphere and more heavily fuzzed guitar - it lies in wait on A Fistful Of Fuzz (CD). (BHr/ST/MW)

ALIOTTA HAYNES - Music LP.

This folk-rock group recorded three albums which have yet to attract much attention from collectors, although they were a very popular band in their home of Chicago. Their Lake Shore Drive album in particular sold well locally, necessitating several pressings. In 1975, they teamed up with Harvey Mandel and became Acme Thunder.

Their occasional drummer, Denny Seiwell, went on to play with Paul McCartney in Wings and became a session man. In 1970, John Jeremiah also played organ on Message To The Young, one of the "psychedelic" albums by Howlin' Wolf. (SR)

New York City based sextet, Alive 'n Kickin' started their careers playing the city's club circuit. Their initial break came when they attracted the attention of Tommy James of Shondells fame. Impressed by the band he offered to help them record a song he'd recently written. In true indian giver form, before they could record Crystal Blue Persuasion James withdrew the offer (Tommy James and the Shondells releasing it themselves). Redeeming himself, in its place James offered the band another track titled Tighter And Tighter.

Feeling that the song was overly commercial, the band was initially reluctant to record the track. They ultimately relented recording it as a single for Roulette (James' label). With the song generating considerable attention, Roulette Records rushed the band into the studio to record a supporting album. Produced by James and Bob King, the Alive 'n Kickin' album proved a minor surprise. Anyone hearing Tighter And Tighter (let along looking at the fun-in-the-sun album cover), would have justifiably concluded these guys were little more than a Top 40 pop band. That's the wrong conclusion. Powered by Todler's tough voice (her bluesy delivery occasionally bore a startling resemblance to Joplin - check out Kentucky Fire), the set of largely original material rocked with impressive energy. While it may not have made for the year's most original set, tracks such as Junction Creek and Mississippi Mud saw the group displaying a penchant for above average blues-rock.

In 1976, Cardona, Albano and Wilson briefly reformed the band and began playing New York clubs doing Top 40 covers. Sudano reappeared as a member of Brooklyn Dreams and married disco diva Donna Summers.

Tommy James and Bob King also produced Neon. (SR/SB/MW)

This mid to late sixties instrumental band came from Hollywood, California. They specialised in doing a lot of soundtracks and there may have been a connection with Max Frost and The Troopers. In September 1967, Blues Theme, taken from the 'The Wild Angels' film soundtrack reached No 37 in the U.S. charts.

Larry Brown later played with The Moon and Tony Allwine (aka Wayne Allwine) took up the long-standing role as the third official voice for "Mickey Mouse"!

In the eighites-nineties, Davie Allan made at least three further albums: Arrow Dynamic (Arrow Dynamic Records AD 1201) 1985, Fuzz Fest (Total Energy NER 3016) 1998, and Loud Loose And Savage (Dionysus ID123368), 1999. Still an amazing guitar player, with his trademark, a rich sustaining fuzz tone sound. He was inspired particularly by Duane Eddy, The Ventures' Nokie Edwards and Henry Mancini, whose songs are nearly the only covers he includes in his recent live and recorded work.

The 2-LP and 2-CD compilations Devil's Rumble: Anthology rounds up his best singles, album tracks and rarities. A borderline inclusion - his material covers a wide variety of styles taking in early sixties sounding ballads, cabaret/club sounds, teen-beat, through straight pop and rock. His choice and most relevant cuts have been compiled - I Hope You're Proud on Psychedelic States: Georgia Vol. 1 (CD) and Kicks & Chicks (which mentions that he also put out a "Best of, 8 track") and Give Me Your Love - a good garagy-pop number which sounds more like 1966 than 1970 - on The Garage Zone Vol. 1 (LP) and The Garage Zone Box Set. Lily Of The West (Epic 9778) 1965

Produced and written/co-written by Ted Varnick, this single is swingin' beat-pop with a hint of country and plenty of attitude and swagger. Ted Varnick was based in The Bronx, New York and had a hand in the single by The Descendents, who were from Yonkers. It seems likely that The Alley Cats were from New York City too. (MW/MM)

ALBUM: 1(A) A GARLAND OF BABA SONGS (Bhaki B -1001) 197? R1

This album was recorded on a San Francisco label and is a set of folk-rock songs devoted to Meher Baba. The album features both male and female vocals and utilises flute, cello, sitar, drums, guitar and keyboards. The final track The Love Farm is the highlight. Duce and Midlin both collaborated on an earlier cosmic/easy listening album, Inquire Within (Sounds Of Hawaii SHS-2003) 1969. (VJ)

From Ruston, Louisiana both tracks have also resurfaced on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 14: The Basement (LP & CD) and Storm In The Garage (3-CD box), whilst Somewhere Can Find Me also resurfaced on Quagmire Volume 4 (CD). Allies was a Los Angeles area outfit. I'll Sell My Soul is a superb moody folk-punker, whilst the flip, Burning Flask is very Byrdsy with delightful harmonies and a swaying beat. Recommended for Byrds-spotters and Dovers fans everywhere. It has yet to be established whether the Reprise single is by the same group.

Compilation appearances have so far included: I'll Sell My Soul on Punk Classics, Vol. 3 (7" EP), Punk Classics (CD), Straight From The Garage EP Vol. 3, Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 14: The Basement (LP & CD) and Acid and Flowers (CD). (MW)

ALBUM: 1 ALL IN ONE (KPS 9360) 196? R2

This is a very obscure female folk album that is highly-regarded by some collectors. There are some pleasant female vocal harmonies, acoustic bass and hand drums. A few tracks like Errant In Time and Days Of My Life exude a West Coast psychedelic feel. This one is very hard to track down but fans of female vocals and folk should appreciate it. (VJ)

NB: α double sided promos on red vinyl exist.

An album issued to cash in the Allman Brothers Band success. It's composed of tracks recorded after the demise of Hourglass, when both brothers had returned to Florida.

The best tracks are an excellent cover of Morning Dew and I'll Change For You. Curiously, some tracks have a very poor sound and are in fact other versions of Hourglass tracks with new titles and composers (Come Down And Get Me credited to Ray Gerald is in fact Down In Texas by Eddie Hinton).

The recordings were made originally as demos with the backing by The 31st Of February, who the brothers were jamming with at the time. The band is not credited however, because they contracted to Vanguard by the time the album appeared.

Bold was a small Florida label from Hialeah, run by Steve Alaimo. (SR/NK)

After Hourglass, Duane and Gregg Allman teamed up in 1969 with Butch Trucks of The 31st Of February, Berry Oakley and Dick Betts (from Second Coming) and Jai Johanny Johanson. The Allman Brothers Band was essentially a blues-rock fusion act with some country and even classical influences. Fired by Duane Allman's inventive lead and slide guitar work, and supported by their two drummers (an idea probably inspired by the Grateful Dead), the group soon became very popular, especially in the South (they were established near Macon, Georgia).

Their first album was released in 1969 and recorded in New York by Adrian Barber. It contains five Gregg Allman originals plus a Muddy Waters cover and Don't Wan't You No More by Spencer Davis. The inside of the gatefold sleeve shows the group naked, sitting in a river.

Reinforced by Thom Doucette, a bluesy harmonica player, Idlewild South was recorded in Macon, Miami and New York and produced by Tom Dowd and Joel Dorn. All their material was original, except a version of Willie Dixon's Hoochie Coochie Man.

Their third album, the double Live At Fillmore East, is one of the greatest live sets ever and was recorded in New York in 1971. With only seven cuts, two of them over 19 minutes, there are no wasted notes and no useless jams. It helped secure the Allman Brothers Band reputation as a hot live act second only perhaps to the Grateful Dead.

The follow-up, Eat A Peach was also a double album, partly recorded live. It is notable for the 34-minute jam of Donovan's First There Is A Mountain, which takes up two sides of the album. The inside gatefold is a psychedelic drawing with magic mushrooms and various hallucinations.

Duane Allman died in 1971 and Berry Oakley in 1972, both in motorcycle accidents in the same Georgia area. The group's subsequent releases are more Southern Rock and country-oriented and are out of scope of this book. (SR)

45: α Spoonful /You Deserve Each Other (Dial 4046) 1966

NB: α 'B' side is non-LP.

Duane Allman was born in 1946 and grew up in Nashville with his brother Gregg. In 1958 the Allmans moved south to Daytona Beach, Florida. They formed several groups (the Y-Teens, the House Rockers) and finally the Allman Joys. In 1966, John D. Loudermilk, the songwriter (Tobacco Road) heard them playing live in a small Nashville club, the Briar Patch, and decided to take them into the studio to cut some sides. One of these, a psychedelic version of Willie Dixon's Spoonful, was released locally as a single on Buddy Killen's Dial label and sold well locally. They returned to the studio to record more tunes but the album was shelved when the band toured the South for several months and broke up upon the formation of Hourglass. It was eventually released in 1973 to cash in the Allman Brothers success...

The album has clear blues and R&B influences which permeate these early efforts, especially in Gregg's strong emotive vocals, but some of this material has a garagy edge to it, most notably on Gregg's own compositions: - Gotta Get Away, a spirited fuzzy thumper; You'll Learn Someday - a wistful jangley folk-rocker ala Beau Brummels; Doctor Fone Bone - a raucous rocker sounding like an early Golliwogs/Creedence. Their version of Spoonful is more up-tempo than usual and features some hot fuzz runs from Duane.

The personnel listed without parenthesis is the four-man line-up that gigged as the Allman Joys and who recorded the Dial single. The additional "members" shown appeared on studio recordings, Ronnie Wilkins, for example, was a session player who co-wrote tons of songs with John Hurley and others... just check out the Gentry Time album by The Gentrys for five Wilkins songs on one album alone!

Brian Connell later played with The Rubberband. (MW/SR/JLh)

THE ALLMAN BROTHERS BAND - Eat A Peach CD.

Both tracks on the first single were written by a pre-Velvet Underground Lou Reed and John Cale together with a guy called Vance and another called Terry Phillips. Phillips had been an early collaborator with Phil Spector, and was at this time in charge of Pickwick, who occasionally put out singles like this and The Ostrich by the Reed's The Primitives. Phillips also worked with the Hobbits and several other New York City groups.

It may be that The All Night Workers were college mates of Lou Reed, and for certain the band had a large following from fall 1966 through to spring 1967 at Syracuse University, where they used to perform with a black soul-singer as Otis and The All Night Workers. It has also been suggested that some members of The Blues Magoos were in this act. Most of them moved to New York and formed The Albert who released albums on Perception. Lloyd Baskin was later in Seatrain.

The Cameo single features the mellow tones of Otis but is billed as The All Night Workers (rather than "Otis & .."). "Supervised" by Terry Phillips, it pairs a catchy, soulful Goffin/King number (also covered by the Great Scots and Hamilton Streetcar) with an accomplished rendition of the reknowned Billie Holiday song.

Why Don't You Smile? is a very appealing song, great vocals (rather soulful) and lots of commercial appeal. It was later covered by the U.K. Downliners Sect, but you can hear the original on Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 1 (LP) and Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 1 (CD). (VJ/MW/MKk/JFr/CWs/SR)

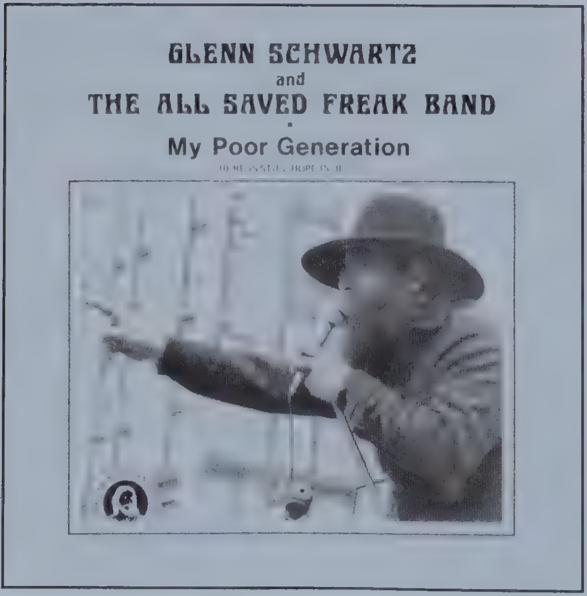
There's also Sower (War Again LH 818 8) 1980, a collection of non-LP recordings 1971-6; and a limited edition 50 copy CD Anthology 1973-81. Brainwashed/War Again (CD) (Hidden Vision AC-27/28) 2000 has been reissued as a two on one package.

The All Saved Freak Band evolved from an outfit called Preacher And The Witness Band. Formed by Larry Hill and Joe Markko, they played a mix of gospel, Christian rock, heavy blues and psychedelic folk with female vocals. Lead guitarist Glenn Schwartz was member of Pacific Gas and Electric. Their albums are sought-after by some collectors now.

Two early members Thomas Miller and Randy Markko were killed in a car crash in 1971. It was at this time that the band members moved from Kent State to a five acre farm in Orwell, Ohio.

My Poor Generation combines Jesus rock lyrics with exquisite female vocals, lovely arrangements with violin and harpsichord and fuzzy guitars. It's pretty consistent too - there are just a couple of throwaway tracks.



ALL SAVED FREAK BAND - My Poor Generation CD.

The second album is quite Anglophile in the folk and folk-rock sense. With nice female vocal harmonies this again has much to commend it, but there are a couple of less appealing gospel country-rock style tracks too.

Brainwashed was more inconsistent and many fans prefer the 1980 collection Sower with its male/female vocals, lots of guitar and organ and some solo violin. A cut from this album appeared on the Holy Fuzz (LP) compilation.

Glenn Schwartz was previously in The Pilgrims in 1964, pre-dated Joe Walsh as lead guitarist of The James Gang, and was with Pacific, Gas and Electric. He later spent some time in a mental institution, when Phil Keaggy filled in on guitar.

In the early nineties Larry Hill, Laura Markko, and Pam and Kim Massmann were still living on the farm. Glenn Schwartz still gigs regularly and is recognised as a guitar legend in Cleveland and often preaches in an evangelical style during his shows. (SR/RMh/VJ)

45: Baby Hold On/You Call It Love (MTA 123) 1967

This single by an obscure California outfit sounds rather dated for 1967. Both sides kick off with promising bombastic chords but soon switch to bouncy beat-pop, chiming guitar, and occasional swirls of organ. One suspects they'd be of less interest were it not for the supposed involvement of a certain J. Messina, who wrote the top side and co-wrote the flip. (MW) popped up on a list in 2000. The singles are less elusive - only Black Tuesday is a non-album track, though others are alternate versions.

Their sound is mellowed-out and distinct - gruff male vocals intertwine with sweet female and male harmonies over laid-back strumming and congas, with occasional flute or tambourine. Religious references and a 'back to the woods' vibe push this into the flower-children/hippie zone of the folk spectrum. (MW)

45: Degeneration Gap/

A California songwriter, pianist and producer, Tandyn Almer was in the first line-up of the Association and wrote Along Comes Mary as well as Message Of Our Love, both with the assistance of Curt Boettcher. He also penned Musty Dusty for Sagittarius. The demo showcased new songs by him and these include Alice Designs, which was later covered by Mr Lucky and The Gamblers.

Between 1966 and 1970 he produced several harmony pop and soft psychedelic acts like the Paper Fortress and Dennis Olivieri. He is also reputedly credited for the invention of a sophisticated "bong waterpipe"!

This Louisville, Kentucky quintet formed in 1965. By the time their 1967 debut appeared Alford, Heitz, and McMillan had been replaced by McDaniel, Crosby, and Lamar respectively. Both sides are decent keyboard-led garage with soulful vocals: Under My Thumb is a decent jerker with sinuous reedy runs, marred only by falsetto 'bah bah bah' backing vocals; My Little Red Book is a competent stab at Love's version and has resurfaced on Sixties Rebellion Vol. 8 (LP & CD). According to Brenda & Bill Brenda Woods' book 'Louisville's Own', this release earned them a prestigious gig at Freedom Hall, where they opened for the Beach Boys AND played as backing band for The Boxtops. Heady times indeed.

Their follow-ups moved into poppier, club-band sounds and featured more covers. All Over.: is the Jerry Corbitt song from the first Youngbloods album, also covered in 1968 by the "Unknown?" from St. Louis, Missouri. (single on Cinema 6903). Gonna Fight The War, featured on the Die Today (CD) compilation, is a Merry-Go-Round cover. Both songs were produced by Wayne Young of Soul Inc.

This punk band hailed from Bridgeport in North Texas, just northwest of Fort Worth and was for a while a popular local attraction in the area. Randy was just 15 when this single was made. Mastered on a portable reel to reel cassette and recorded in a rock constructed cafe after hours, which probably explains the echoey sound, it's hardly surprising the production sounds so crude. Only 500 copies were pressed at the time, but today, Green Fuz has become something of a cult classic. The flip was a ballad credited to R.E. Houchens. Minus Les Dale the band recorded again as Natchez.

Los Angeles' East Side has its own very special and vibrant scene, drawing on a plethora of musical styles from its wide ethnicity. In the sixties there was a wave of mainly Hispanic bands which peaked after the British Invasion hit. Adopting rock'n'roll, pop, beat and garage sounds and flavouring them with their own musical heritage they produced some fascinating and compelling results. These found an outlet on local labels like Linda, Faro, Rampart, Whittier and Chattahoochie which have been revisited in recent years by reissues, compilations and retrospectives. First division proponents of the 'East Side Sound' include Thee Midniters, Cannibal & The Head Hunters (Land of 1,000 Dances), and The Premiers (Farmer John). The lesser knowns now available on reissues and compilations include the East Side Kids, Romancers (aka Smoke Rings), Atlantics, Jaguars, Enchantments, Sunday Funnies, Blendells ... and the Ambertones, who can be heard on Rampart's 1969 2-LP compilation East Side Revue (I Need Someone, I Only Have Eyes For You) and East Side Revue, Vol. 1 (I Need Someone).

This Detroit-based group is of particular interest as its leader, Ted Nugent, later attained rock stardom. The Amboy Dukes attracted national attention when the title track of their second album Journey To The Center Of The Mind became a U.S. Top Twenty hit.

Nugent was born in Detroit, Michigan in 1948 and he started playing guitar when he was just nine. He formed his first group The Royal High Boys in 1960 and his second group The Lourdes won a 'Battle Of The Band' contest in 1962. In 1965 his family moved to Chicago and Ted soon formed a new band (line-up 'A'). He named them after a Detroit group The Amboy Dukes who he heard had just broken up. The name came from a novel about gang members and their lifestyle. Bob Lehnert was replaced as a vocalist by John (Brake) Drake who had also played with Nugent in the Lourdes at some point, but during 1967 Nugent returned to Detroit and formed a new line-up ('C'). Drummer Dave Palmer had previously been with The Galaxy Five and The Citations. The group soon became a popular live attraction thanks to Nugent's frenzied guitar playing. The number that usually closed their shows, Them's U.K. hit Baby Please Don't Go was released as a single and included on their first album. It was later featured on Lenny Kaye's Nuggets (LP) compilation.

White and Lober then left and were replaced by bassist Greg Arama (from The Gang) and Andy Soloman from The Apostles came in on keyboards. This line-up recorded Journey To The Center Of The Mind. Steve Farmer wrote the lyrics to the title track and Nugent devised the music. He has always denied the song had a drug-related theme but the title was attuned to the heady times and it climbed to No. 16 giving them their only Top 20 hit. By early 1969, John Drake was replaced on vocals by Rusty Day (who'd previously fronted his own group Rusty Day and The Midnighters). A typical punk garage band, The 'Dukes should, by rights, have faded back into obscurity post-1969. But Nugent's persistence kept them on the road and the band, having gone through various personnel changes, was still putting out largely tasteless albums into the seventies. From circa spring 1970 the band became known as Ted Nugent and the Amboy Dukes.

CALL OF THE WILD

A compilation The Best of The Amboy Dukes was also issued in the seventies, but the best compilation of their material is the double album Journeys And Migrations in 1974. Another compilation of their material was Dr Slingshot in 1974.

Greg Arama went on to form Ursa Major with Dick Wagner from Frost. Sadly, he was later killed in a motorcycle accident on 18 September 1979, aged 29. Nugent made a highly-touted solo album in 1975 which established him as an iconic guitarist, songwriter and showman. A series of successful albums followed: Free For All, Cat Scratch Fever, Double Live Gonzo, Weekend Warriors and State of Shock. In the eighties he was less successful, but he still carried on with a series of albums and he remained on the road. The nineties were more successful for Nugent as he balanced his career as a solo artist with that as a member of the successful supergroup Damn Yankees. In the new millennium he's still going strong.

Original guitarist, Steve Farmer, later collaborated with neo-psych/acid-goth band Babylonian Tiles, co-writing and playing on their Shadows On The Wall single (Saint Thomas STP 0056) 1998. Babylonian Tiles have also covered another Amboy Dukes' track: Saint Philips Friend (STP 0043) 1997.

Miami's answer to the Beatles? This outfit had already been going since the late fifties as the Ardells and the new moniker was not a bad idea to catch the latest musical craze in 1964. Unfortunately they chose a tough act to be compared to and none of their numerous singles resulted in major success. So it was time for a rethink and another name change to - the The Razor's Edge.

One of the better known Dallas bands of this era American Blues were originally known as The Warlocks and also an important stepping stone for Dusty Hill and Frank Beard before they went on to join ZZ Top. Their first album was produced by Scotty McKay and recorded at Robin Hood Brian's studio in Tyler, Texas. Side one is predominantly psychedelic and a single from it was issued the following year. Side two was in more of a heavy rock style. It did well enough to attract the interest of MCA subsidiary Uni who signed the band. The result was Do Their Thing, which was basically a blues-rock album with some psychedelic trappings. It did have its moments and You Were So Close To Me, Softly To The Sun, Just Plain Jane and Dreams are the better tracks. However, the sales were poor and Uni quietly dropped the band.

There was a second band of this name who released one single, Say So/Your Love Is True (Amy 997) during the sixties.

Compilation appearances have so far included If I Were A Carpenter and All I Saw Was You on A Journey To Tyme, Vol. 1 (LP); and If I Were A Carpenter on Reverberation IV (CD). (VJ)

(1) reissued on vinyl as a 3-sided release (Akarma 136/2) 2000 with three bonus tracks and presented in a gatefold sleeve.

This band consisted of students at Trinity College in Hartford, and they mainly played a college parties and dances in the Connecticut/ Massachusetts areas between 1968 and 1970. Aside from Burlington Letter, a sensitive 'acid' guitar ballad and Age Child, which features some pleasant recorder, their album is broadly-speaking a collection of late sixties bluesy numbers - all originals, with some great laid-back dual guitar leads. Don't let the "blues" in the band name put you off, however, as there's a Cream/Blind Faith influence on tracks like The Taker and Ode To The Lost Legs Of John Bean, and it's an album that will also appeal to fans of laid-back West Coast rock, as well as the blues. There's lots of good bluesy guitar to be heard on cuts like, On Solitude and Cold From Blues. The front cover of the album is an accurate blueprint of their stage set-up as seen from above.

This outfit formed in Chicago in 1966 and were originally known as Gary and The Night Lites and The Light Nites. They began life as a kind of top 40 frat band releasing three singles as Gary and The Night Lites and one as The Light Nites. When they signed to Acta they changed name to The American Breed. They continued the brief relationship they had with Bill Traut at Dunwich (as The Light Nites) and he became their producer for their first few Acta singles. They are most remembered for a soul-influenced pop sound best represented by Bend Me, Shape Me, which was by some way their biggest hit and their earlier psych-pop hit, Step Out Of Your Mind and Green Light, which was in a similar vein. Like many Chicago bands of this era they had quite a brassy sound. Although they were primarily a singles band their second album did make it to No 99 in the U.S. Album Charts. After several personnel changes the group evolved into Ask Rufus (who were later known as simply Rufus). Gary Loizzo was also involved in an outfit called Jamestown Massacre in the late sixties and early seventies, and later fronted Uncle Willard.

The American Breed also appeared on the soundtracks to two films: 'No Way To Treat A Lady' (1968) and 'The Brain' (1969).

Their compilation appearances to date have included: - Bend Me, Shape Me on Nuggets Vol. 5: Pop Part 111 (LP); Step Out Of Your Mind on Nuggets, Vol. 11: Pop Part Four (LP); an otherwise unreleased recording of What Now My Love? from July 1967 on the Early Chicago (LP) compilation; Partridge Weiners Radio Spot and Temperature's Rising Radio Spot on Oh Yeah! The Best Of Dunwich Records (CD); The Alone Phone Radio Spot and the previously unreleased It's Getting Harder on If You're Ready - The Best Of Dunwich... Vol. 2 (CD) and a seventies recording of Bend Me Shape Me on Psychotic Reactions (Topline) (LP).

In 1994, Varese Vintage issued a 17-track compilation Bend Me Shape Me: Best Of The American Breed which also contains an interview with Gary Loizzo. (VJ)

THE AMERICAN DREAM - Self Titled LP.

Despite the sweet harmonious vocals on the above single, this Providence, Rhode Island group sound more like The Vagrants than The Young Rascals with some wonderfully vicious and heavy fuzz. Their Lovin' Spoonful cover is more true to the original and, therefore, something of a disappointment by comparison.

About 1,000 copies of their single were sold, mostly locally. Their line-up was renewed and in 1969 Paul Payton joined them. They changed their name to Benefit Street but only recorded demos, which remain unreleased. Rob Carlson would later form Carlson and Gailmor, who released an album on Polydor in 1971. (MW/SR/PPn)

Philadelphia's American Dream recorded a pretty good debut album of heavy rock with three guitars, but what makes it stand out is the superb production job by Todd Rundgren, who also engineered the recording. It's full of good hooks and fine vocals and the final cut Raspberries is slightly psychedelic. It spent two weeks in the lower reaches of the Top 200, peaking at No. 194.

Nick Jameson would later join Foghat and Paul Butterfield. He also released a solo album in 1977 on Bearsville (MW/THd/SR)

Previously known as the Surprise Package (with Mike Rogers instead of Gene Hubbard) these guys' lineage stretches way back through numerous Pacific Northwest bands including the Viceroys, Galaxies and Rock Collection. They appear to have been based in California by this time. The album is predominantly straight-ahead riff-heavy rock with soulful vocals. The Vanilla Fudge style rework of the Moody Blues' Nights In White Satin drives that particular comparison home. Their second single features one non-album cut, a rendition of Elton John's Ballad Of A Well Known Gun. Silver Metre also took a shot at covering it the following year. (MW)

The American Revolution was a late sixties Hollywood hippie type rock band. Barcelona and Keith later played in Edge, who issued an album in 1970. The American Revolution album, produced by Harley Hatcher, is quite heavily orchestrated with pleasant vocal harmonies, particularly on In The Late Afternoon, Rainbow In The Rain and Love Has Got Me Down. Some of the songs have a psychedelic taint, but it's predominantly rather good psych-pop.

Producer Harley Hatcher was an exploitation film composer, member of Mike Curb's gang and as an army buddy of Elvis he sang in ad-hoc groups with the King. The single couples the cosy orchestrated pop of Mike Lloyd's Cold Wisconsin Nights, with a brassy soul dirge.

They also have a cut, Opus #1 on Incredible Sound Show Stories 14 (LP). (VJ/JFr/DJe/MW)

ALBUM: 1 THE AMERICAN STANDARD (2-LP)
(No label #DANS 1001-2-3-4) 1970 R1

This was a Staten Island, New York college project which blended various musical styles (jazz/blues/rock) with spoken word segments. It's an interesting period piece but like most school albums not wholly successful. (VJ)

45:	Every Day/ Just About Dead	(Magnet Productions MAG 301) 1969

Both sides of the sole single by this Rhode Island band were composed by Kevin Falvey. Every Day is a low-key dirge with pseudo-classical keyboard moves - a bit of a downer, man. The flip is altogether better - a pumping hard-rocker with wah-wah, spirited keyboards and fluid lead. (MW)

The American Way (?)

45:	Lady Dressed In Black/Me	(Sho-Boat 105) 1968

A stately ballad with psychy touches, Lady Dressed In Black graces Fuzz, Flaykes And Shakes Vol. 4 (LP & CD), which suggests Oklahoma or Kansas as their likely homeground. Mississippi has also been suggested. (MW)

	β	Back Street Thoughts/Who Am I	(Reena 116) 1967
	χ	Mr. Brotherhood/Magdalena	(Reena 1026) 1968
	δ	What Am I?/Back Street Thoughts	(Reena 1030) 1968

NB: α has two different pressings - the first on a gold generic Monarch label credited to We The People, the second on a red Monarch label credited to The People; β shown as by We The People; χ two pressings feature different versions of Mr. Brotherhood; δ What Am I is a reworking of Who Am I and Back Street Thoughts is the same recording as on β.

This fascinating teenage band came together in Crescenta Valley High School in La Crescenta, on the northern extremity of the Los Angeles conurbation. Originally known as We The People, they began playing contemporary covers at school gigs. However, when they got into the studio, they elected to put out original material only.

Their psychedelic-pop debut was released in the fall of 1967. Who Am I is a haunting angst-ridden ditty with a final minute of trippy electronic effects. They were soon made aware that there was another band called We The People, who took exception, so another pressing was done, re-credited to The People ... oops, that was taken too. Eventually the band settled on American Zoo as their new name and released two further excellent singles in 1968.

Mr. Brotherhood is unusual garagey psych with cryptic lyrical imagery and trippy effects. Two different versions appeared on Reena 1026: the original has keyboards to the fore; the second version is shorter (too short at 1:53) due to the removal of one verse, has guitar to the fore and trippier effects, which are curtailed abruptly just as they are taking off into another dimension. Their final single What Am I is a poppier reworking of Who Am I without the trippy denouement; it is backed by a re-release of Back Street Thoughts.

What is most fascinating about this unheralded band is that no less than THREE members have gone on to achieve considerable international success, awards, and acclaim in their chosen fields of arts and entertainment? Original drummer Steven Zaillian has carved out an impressive career in Hollywood as an award-winning film producer, director, writer, and screenwriter ('Schindler's List' and 'Hannibal' amongst many). Bill Bottrell is the renowned producer behind Michael Jackson, Sheryl Crow, Madonna, and many others. Oddly, his biographies do not mention his beginnings in this band at all; rather the implication is that he did not start in the music biz until the seventies. Drummer Jasun Martz moved on to a solo career alongside a string of engagements working with other artists - Frank Zappa, Far East Family Band, (Jefferson) Starship (he arranged We Built This City On Rock & Roll), before a spell playing synths and keyboards for Michael Jackson. He expanded his repertoire to become a highly successful designer, painter and sculptor; now based in New York, he runs his own websites and forum. Still active musically, in 2007 he was scheduled to release a dozen CDs.

The ANDERS & PONCIA ALBUM

ANDERS & PONCIA - The Anders & Poncia Album LP.

A surprised Jasun Martz was tracked down and was happy to recall: "I had no idea that anyone even knew about American Zoo! I haven't heard those singles in over three decades! I was the drummer in the band (still have the same drum kit). I have lost touch with the other members of the band except Bill Bottrell. I think Dave Danieli may have died a few years back.

"I was only 15 or 16 years old when we recorded those singles. We were a high school group in La Crescenta that mostly did cover songs for school dances - The Doors, Iron Butterfly, Love, Hendrix... the usual stuff. But we did write a few original songs. We played a gig at the "Teenage Fair" at the Hollywood Palladium and a woman named Elizabeth Horton who owned Reena records saw us and offered us a contract. Most of the details are fuzzy. I have no idea how many records were pressed and if we ever sold any. There was not much radio air play if any. I know we never made a penny from Reena Records.

"The band stayed together for quite a while after those singles. We recorded lots of original music but unfortunately were never able to get any of it released. Probably some gems in the vaults. I went off to college but the band may have continued.

"I do remember two versions of Mr. Brotherhood. The first was ours. The second release was not our idea. Reena wanted a shorter version of the song. They hired a producer- a guy named Del Katcher (owner of California Recording studios) edited it and added his guitar solos. I remember Bill was not happy about it at all! As I recall I thought it was pretty cool. Bill ended up becoming an audio engineer at that studio and I recorded one of my albums there - The Pillory, with members of Frank Zappa's band (I was Frank's synthesiser programmer at the time).

"I do have some great pictures of the band. I have the band's scrapbook with tour photos etc. in a suit case somewhere in my attic. Thanks so much for you interest."

Compilation appearances include: Mr. Brotherhood (longer version) on High All The Time Vol. 2 (LP); and Mr. Brotherhood (shorter version) on Psychedelic Unknowns Vol. 11 (CD) and Slowly Growing Insane (CD). (MW)

45:	Blow On/New World	(Rondequoit # unkn) 1967

Trilling male-female harmonies dominate Blow On, a 'hip' MOR pop-swinger with flute solo, where the Association meets the Fifth Dimension. Seemingly the sole release by this Irondequoit/Rochester, New York outfit. (MW)

ALBUM: 1 STEPPING STONES (Vee-Jay International VJS-7311) 1977 R1

Previously a Latin-rock band this group had once backed El Chicano and wrote material for Malo and Santana. The album blends San Francisco-style guitar-rock with folk-rock/rural-rock with fine harmonies that are usually associated with LA. The magnum opus is the finale The Clown, a ballad with lovely vocals and harpsichord that culminates in a driving fuzz guitar assault. Some collectors rate this highly. (VJ)

The Amoeba (TX)

45: Lost Love/Time Is On My Side (Orfeon 2001) 1965

Out of the McAllen, Texas came a band whose sole single appeared on a Mexican label. Lost Love is an echoey garage ballad punctuated by Ventures-inspired guitar-runs; check it out on Fuzz, Flaykes, & Shakes Vol.2 (LP/CD). It was covered by Colombia's Los Ampex, as Donde Estas Nena, which has resurfaced on the Delincuentes compilation. (VJ)

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Paradigm 06) 1998 with bonus tracks.

This is an experimental free jazz underground album that blended electronics and environmental sound with lots of tape editing. The album featured a long list of guests including Radio Rich Dalton (gtr), Rev. Tommy Gomersall (piano, vcls), Gary Jeffers (sousaphone, perc), Bill Jones (sousaphone), Rush Rankin (clarinet), Rev. Jim Rogers (kazoo), Bill Scanlan (perc, tape machine) and Sylvia Thomas (hrmnca). The album emerged from a conglomerate of eccentric bands, taped at tiny little events: Black Crack and The Sole Survivors were recorded live at the Kansas City Art Institute Foundation in 1975; Fredrik's Cosmic Spaced Out Blues Band and Orchestra played at the Second RLDS Church chili supper in 1974; and the Turtle Music tracks were recorded on top of the midget pyramid in McCoy Park Missouri in 1976. These items were compiled and released to commemorate the First Annual End of the World Celebration on 18 November 1976, and originally issued as a mono recording in an edition of 200 copies by Cavern Custom. ALBUM: 1 PETER ANDERS (Family Production FPS 2705) 1972

45: Sunrise Highway/Baby, Baby (Buddah BDA-3) 1967

Born Peter Andreoli, Peter Anders is best known for his work with Vini Poncia in The Tradewinds, The Innocence, Anders and Poncia and Map City productions.

Recorded in Los Angeles, his solo album is typical of the singer/songwriter style, with some good songs but also several duds. Its main interest is maybe the participation of several noted musicians like Hamilton Wesley Watt (Euphoria) and Mike Deasy. (SR)

Originally based on the East Coast, Vini Poncia and Peter Anders are better known for their records as The Tradewinds or The Innocence, but they also recorded several records as Anders and Poncia. After a single in 1967, they moved to Los Angeles and recorded their album with Californian session men and production by Richard Perry. It's mainly folk-rock and pop-oriented, the highlight being a decent version of Leiber/Stoller's Smoky Joe's Cafe with great slide guitar by Ry Cooder.

After 1972, Anders went solo while Poncia became friends with Ringo Starr and had a successful songwriter and production career. (SR)

ERIC ANDERSEN - More Hits From Tin Can Alley LP.

There's also a compilation, So Much On My Mind: The Eric Andersen Anthology 1969-1980 (Raven RVCD-247) 2007.

Of Norwegian origin, Eric Andersen was one of the best Greenwich Village folksingers and poet/songwriters during 1963/64, but his career has always been undermined by bad luck, poor judgement and mismanagement. After two good folk albums, his response to Dylan going electric was to re-record his best album with a rhythm section, hence the Take Two in the title.

His next effort, More Hits From Tin Can Alley, was ruined by the florid production of Al Gorgoni and features the usual New York musicians: Al Kooper, Hugh McCracken, Herb Lovelle, Bob Rafkin, Bobby Gregg, Paul Harris, Paul Griffin, plus some tasteful guitar parts of Amos Garrett. It contains one outstanding fast track, 'Mary Sunshine with McCracken (or Kooper?) doing a fantastic Bloomfield impersonation on electric guitar.

Following the collapse of the original folk scene, he pursued one fad after another, turning country and western for Country Dream and using Sgt Pepper-like orchestration for his Warner albums, which sold poorly. In 1972 he moved to Columbia and released one of his best albums, Blue River. Unfortunately the master tapes for the follow-up albums were lost and Andersen reappeared only in 1975, as a singer/songwriter in the James Taylor mould. He kept on recording for Arista and eventually returned to Norway.

In 1991 and 1994 he recorded two sympathetic albums with Rick Danko (The Band) and Jonas Fjeld. The So Much On My Mind: The Eric Andersen Anthology 1969-1980 compilation captures his mix of traditional acoustic guitar picking, vocal harmonies and electric guitar which was influential on subsequent generations.

His songs have also been sung by other groups including: Violets Of Dawn by the Robbs and the Blues Project and Think About It by Len Novy. He is sometimes credited as Eric Anderson. (SR)

Produced by Maynard Solomon and engineered by Jeff Zaraya, it offers a good humoured mix of country blues, folk and R&B numbers, all penned by Anderson except for a cover of Hank Williams' Honky Tonkin'.

ALBUM: 1(A) CHILDREN OF THE MIST (King KS 1120) 1970

Produced by Darrell Glenn and David Anderson, this little known album was recorded in Macon and Nashville. It's a folk-rock affair with some pop, country and psych influences. Anderson had a good voice, in the same style as Don Nix and several of the tracks are interesting, notably for the guitar parts, whilst others are spoilt by the production. Two songs were penned by Texas guitarist John Nitzinger and eight by the mysterious Houston and Hardy. The only cover is the title track, a Buzz Clifford composition. Not a masterpiece, but it may interest some curious readers. (SR)

Ruby was a pop hit for the First Edition (as Ruby (Don't Take Your Love To Town)) but this unknown group presumably from Michigan recorded a good sneering punky version with Dylan-like vocals and Animals style organ arrangement. The song was penned by country star Mel Tillis. The flip was a decent Jimmy Reed rip-off.

Animated Egg (CA)

ALBUM: 1 ANIMATED EGG (mono) (Somerset 32700) 1969 R1

NB: (1) reissued in stereo (Alshire SF-5104) 1969 R1. (1) reissued on CD (Walhalla WH90342) 2004. (1) reissued on CD as Guitar Freakout (Sundazed SC 11172) 2008 and as a 2-LP set (Sundazed LP 5260) 2008, both with 11 extra cuts which were originally credited to other fictitious outfits.

The Burbank, California-based Alshire label was best known for its cheapo international music (e.g. The Sounds Of Spain, The Tijuana Sound, Hawaiian Paradise) and 101 String MOR collections. In pursuit of profit rather than content, 1967 saw the label shell out some cash to have anonymous studio musicians write and record a series of psych-oriented instrumentals. Slapping a pseudo-trippy cover on the results (ignore the dazed long haired teens pictured on the cover since they certainly had nothing to do with the set), the cleverly titled Animated Egg proved surprisingly accomplished. With little at stake, the anonymous band (no performing or writing credits are provided), roared through an all-instrumental set; material such as A Love Built On Sand, I Said, She Said, Ah Cid and Sock It My Way are heavy on fuzz, feedback and swirling organ. Elsewhere, Sippin' An Trippin' offered up a nifty slice of Byrds-styled jangle rock, while Tomorrow was a blatant rip off of The Spencer Davis Group's Gimme Some Lovin'. The main man behind this project has since been revealed as well-known session man Jerry Cole (The Champs, Jerry Kole & The Strokers, The Id, Them, etc.)

To make it even more complicated, Alshire recycled some of the material (and other stuff apparently recorded at the same sessions) credited to 101 Strings - Astro Sounds From Beyond The Year 2000, with a wonderful cheesy cover, and as Bebe Bardon and 101 Strings - The Sounds Of Love.

Some of the album's better cuts have recently resurfaced on compilations. You'll find I Said, She Said, AhCid on Relics, Vol. 2 (LP) and Relics Vol's 1 & 2 (CD); whilst Sock It My Way has turned up on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 (2-LP) and Turds On A Bum Ride Vol. 1 & 2 (2-CD). Both tracks also appear on Lycergic Soap (LP). Sock It My Way also turns up on Acid And Flowers (CD) credited to Acid And Flowers and versions of I Said, She Said, AhCid and Flame credited to Black Diamonds can also be found on Stars That Play With Jimi's Dice (LP). Finally, there's Let's All Mix Together on The Arf! Arf! (El Cheapo) Sampler (2-CD).

The Everything You Always... CD also includes three cuts, credited under the Astro Sounds... moniker: Flameout, Barner X-69 and the delightfully titled A Disappointing Love Affair With A Desensitized Robot.

The Sundazed reissue reveals that guitarist Jerry Cole was the central figure behind a large number of these fictitious bands and "exploito" garage/psych album releases (Associated Soul Group, Generation Gap, Id, Projection Company, Stone Canyon Rock Group, T. Swift & The Electric Bag, 101 Strings), confirming suspicions about the subgenre that had already been voiced here - see the Associated Soul Group entry; the bonus cuts and liners also help to unravel the tangle of recycled material with alternate titles.

Jerry Cole died in Corona, California on 28 May 2008, aged 70. (VJ/CF/SB/MW)

Signed by Buddah the trio's self-titled 1970 album teamed them with producer Stan Vincent. Musically Anthem offered up a fairly entertaining mix of commercial pop (the title track) and slightly more experimental numbers (the extended Misty Morns). While it wasn't one of the year's most original offerings, all three members were gifted with decent voices and on tracks such as Florida and Queen they displayed a knack for crafting some pretty harmonies. ANT TRIP CEREMONY - 24 Hours LP.

Steve Detray, a student at Oberlin College in Ohio, took a break in 1966 and early 1967 to spend time in Logan, Utah with his brother. While out there, he formed a band which he named Ant Trip Ceremony after a suggestion from a local English professor who had seen the term in a novel. The phrase was a description of modern human society and Detray thought it an appropriate name for his band. Before he returned to Oberlin for the 1967/8 academic year, Steve disbanded the band but retained the name when he formed a new electric rock band at Oberlin. Gary Rosen, George Galt, and Mark Stein had been playing together in a blues band. Stein was a flute major at Oberlin, Roger Goodman was also a student, and the only non-college member was the drummer, Steve Williams, a 16-year-old local kid who had some jazz-drumming experience.

The band mainly played gigs at Oberlin and was noted for long improvisatory jams. Their album was recorded in two sessions, the first in February 1968 and the second some months later. Steve Detray was only present for the first session as he left the College in the spring of 1968. Technical faults affected the recording: the KLH deck used for playback had a faulty right speaker and the mix down was affected as a result with vocals sounding further back in the mix than originally intended. The producer, David Crosby, was a fellow-student at Oberlin and contrary to legend is not the David Crosby of The Byrds/CSN&Y fame. Only 300 copies of the album were pressed and sold around campus.

A blend of folk, blues, jazz and Eastern psychedelia, the album is at its best on the more meditative pieces like Pale Shades Of Gray with it's eerily beautiful snake charmer melody and What's The Matter Now which is based on a reflective "Goodbye Pork Pie-Hat" riff. Four In The Morning and Riverdawn are also in this lullingly insistent vein whilst Elaborations is a lengthy raga-ish instrumental with some very effective flute. Some of the covers like Get Out Of My Life Woman and Eric Andersen's Violets Of Dawn are no more than adequate, but their version of Hey Joe is much more exciting.

The band disbanded as the members left college. Steve, George, Gary, and Jeff still perform while Roger is retired from teaching college. Steve Williams later played with such greats as Clark Terry, Al Hall and Herb Lovette, whilst Rosen was a Bluesbander prior to his conversion to folk music. Goodman came from England originally. These two albums of acid psychedelia are highly-rated by some. Their first album is consistently good throughout and is certainly recommended. A wide range of material is held together by tight playing and some fine guitar/organ interplay. Unfortunately, the second album pales by comparison and is largely uninspired with no real highlights.

The band came from Chicago and during the mid-sixties was a popular Top 40's lounge group, going by the name of The Exceptions. After a couple of years of regurgitating the latest hits, they were getting bored and were looking for room to explore their musical talents, when producer Bill Traut (of Dunwich Records) approached them with an offer to record an album of original material. All of the group with the exception of Pete Cetera leapt at the chance, and with the bass slot now filled by Bobby Jones, they renamed themselves as Aorta.

Curiously their first album was released the same month as three other Chicago acts signed to Columbia Illinois Speed Press, The Flock, and Chicago Transit Co. (who incidentally included Pete Cetera). This was a marketing ploy to push a "Chicago" scene and all four albums entered the Billboard Top 200, with Aorta's peaking at around 168 and remaining in the chart for a respectable six weeks. Incidentally, the basic tracks and vocal tracks for the first album were recorded at Great Lakes Recording Studio in Sparta, Michigan; with one track Sprinkle Road To Cork Street referring to two roads in Kalamazoo, Michigan.

Been and the Donlinger brothers had all formerly played in The Rotary Connection, another Chicago act, and Been and Jim Dolinger were later in Lovecraft. Nyeholt also played with The Rotary Connection during a brief period between the two albums, and Billy Herman went on to play for New Colony Six. Michael Been later played with Moby Grape members Jerry Miller and Bob Mosley in Fine Wine, and is still active on the music scene.

Tom Donlinger later played drums on several Van Morrison albums. His brother dropped their last name (which they had already shortened from Dondelinger) and recorded as James Vincent, playing in a Christian jazz/fusion style.

Aorta was also the creative force behind Coven's first album. Once again it was Bill Traut who got them all together, but Jim Donlinger wrote most of the songs, arranged them, played guitar and sang back-up vocals. Jim Nyeholt also played keyboards. They were very coy in the liner notes, but Mike Been and Tom Donlinger are named (as "Practici").

The compilation Psychedelic Dream features three tracks from their first album: - What's In My Mind's Eye, a beautiful piece of orchestrated pop-psych that can also be heard on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 6 (double cassette box); Sleep Tight, a rather disjointed song which wasn't one of their finest moments but ended with some pleasant keyboards and Catalyptic, a cover of a Colours song, which is another keyboard dominated number with some occasionally scintillating guitar. The latter track has often puzzled collectors, as it fits neatly into the 'concept' of Aorta, but is pre-dated by the Colours version. In fact, Bill Traut had received a demo of the track, and suggested it to Aorta for their album, but other than that there's no direct link between the groups.

AORTA - Aorta LP.

Anyone interested in digging into Aorta's roots may be interested in the Collectables CD The Quill Records Story: The Best of Chicago Garage Bands, which includes two Exceptions singles: As Far As I Can See and Business As Usual. (VJ/BSw/SR/MPr/SMu/JNy)

45s:	We Have Lost The Way/ Do You Remember	(Apocalypse A-002) 1969
	God Is My Home/ Summer Brings Rain	(Apocalypse No.6005)1969/70

From Grand Rapids, Michigan these recordings are described as "gospel garage". We Have Lost The Way doesn't preach - it's upbeat folkie-rock. The lilting folk-ballad on the flip is more obvious in its religious message, as is the label's motto - "and ye shall sing praises unto Him". (MW)

Apokolips (IL)

45:	High Strung Woman/All Shook Up	(Varmint 45-110) 1972

On a Silvis, Illinois label and described as "70s garage" - in reality it's fifties rock'n'roll transplanted to the seventies by a hard rockin' local outfit. The top side is a boogie-rocker with harp and is backed by the Elvis rocker with a Jerry Lee impersonator on piano. Good rockin' - yeah, garage? - no way, Jose. (MW)

	β	Chained And Bound/ ?	(SAC 1001-1/2) 1967

NB: α and β shown as by The Swingin' Apolloes. β may have been issued as a one-sided 45 only.

From Atlanta, Georgia this combo was billed as The Swingin' Apolloes on their later singles. Member Jim Youmans also co-produced a single in 1967 for The Younger Brothers.

Laugh In My Face was written by Wayne White, leader of local heroes The Famen (of Crackin' Up fame). It's a dynamic Searchers inspired folk-punker punctuated with guitar and keyboard flourishes over slick drum rolls. Hey is a solid thumper, composed by Jim Youmans. He also produced Chained And Bound - composed by Chester, Lane and Freeman. The band personnel has yet to be confirmed.

Chained And Bound is a dreamy psychedelic gem: bitter-sweet vocals glide over a shifting swirl of echoing and backward guitars, Too-Much-To-Dream bass line and sympathetic cymbals. Lovelorn lyrics, with unsettling depressive imagery, enhance its fragile charm. Experience it on Psychedelic Crown Jewels, Vol. 3 (CD) which also features both sides of their debut. Chained And Bound was actually a Younger Brothers' recording onto which Jim Youmans added vocals - see that band's entry for the story behind it.

Steve Chester (of The Younger Brothers) adds "Jim Youmans can be seen around flea markets and stores in Georgia and Florida such as Walmart, playing Christian songs and selling his contemporary Christian tapes and CDs. I don't know what happened to the other Apolloes; they were a talented group. By the way, they played at the same concert with the Rolling Stones at Georgia Southern College (GSC) in Statesboro in the sixties. It was the first college campus that the Rolling Stones played in the US."

You can also find Slow Down on Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 2 (CD) and Laugh In My Face on Psychedelic States: Georgia Vol. 1 (CD) and Teen Blast #2 (CD). (MW/RM)

45s:	That's The Breaks/Country Boy	(Delta MUM 183) 1965
	Target Love/It's A Monster	(Montgomery 0011/2) 1966

From the Falls Church area of Virginia, this garage band's singles were characterised by fizzling, speedy guitar work and catchy Farfisa organ. That's The Breaks, Target Love and It's A Monster are all superb examples of the garage fuzz genre. They might have got more recognition if they'd signed for a major label, but they were turned down by MGM and are best remembered now for their two singles.

Prior to their first single the band recorded a demo EP at Edgewood Recording Studios in Washington, DC - the prize for winning a local 'Battle Of The Bands'. Two covers - the Beach Boys' Dance Dance Dance and the Videl's Mr.Lonely - were joined by debut versions of That's The Breaks and the instrumental Country Boy.

Compilation appearances have so far included: Target Love, It's A Monster and That's The Breaks on Pebbles, Vol. 13 (LP); That's The Breaks and Target Love on The Finest Hours of U.S. '60s Punk (LP) and Sixties Archive, Vol. 5 (CD); That's The Breaks on Signed, D.C. (LP); and Dirty Water and I'm Crying on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 8 (CD). For completists, however, the best source for their recordings is Washington D.C. Garage Band Greats! (LP), which features a previously unreleased alternate version of That's The Breaks, the original releases of Target Love and It's A Monster and four previously unreleased, if inferior, live recordings:- Little Latin Lupe Lu, Good Lovin', Time What Let Me and Green Onions. There Goes The Neighbourhood 3 (CD) features live versions of The In Crowd and California Girls from 1965. (VJ/MW/BE)

NB: α shown as by The Beautiful Apollo. They also recorded a fourth 45 on Barra-Donna in 1968.

This Garfield Ridge, Chicago band's first two singles are well worth investigating. Two further singles were released on Barra-Donna, one as The Beautiful Apollo. This marked a departure to a harmony-pop style - Now... is catchy and mid-tempo, Why I is more frantic and reminiscent of the Isley's Shout.

Compilation appearances have included: - Cry Me A Lie on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 4 (LP & CD) and Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 15 (LP & CD); Why Tolerate on Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 8 (2-LP); Boss - Be Good To Me is on Let's Dig 'Em Up, Vol. 3 (LP) and on The Arf! Arf (El Cheapo) (2-CD) Sampler, and Be Good To Me on the Yeah Yeah Yeah (CD). 45:	Help Me Find A Way/ Unchain My Heart	(Welhaven 125935) 1967

Also known as Thee Apostles, this outfit from Rochester, Minnesota underwent several line-up changes. In mid-1966 they won a local 'Battle Of The Bands' competition at Olmsted County Fair and with it a recording contract with Welhaven Records. After scraping their first effort, a cover of Marsha And The Vandellas' Heat Wave and an original composition, Naughty Girl, because they didn't think they were good enough, they returned to the studio in late 1966 to record the above single. The 'A' side was a classic garage effort with pounding drums, strong lead guitar and raw lead vocals. The flip was a soulful rendition of the Ray Charles hit, which was also covered by many other garage bands e.g. Starfires, Undertakers. The single has become rare and sought-after.

In the spring of 1967 the band turned psychedelic, touring the Midwest quite extensively as a psychedelic roadshow and changing name to Stormy Monday. Under this name they continued with various line-ups until 1973. (VJ/MW)

Half the tracks on the On Crusade album are instrumentals; the vocals on the rest were handled by Joe Freeman of The Torques.

Apparition (NJ)

45: Apparition/Astral Spirit (Nebula NBS 1/10971) 1974

This terrific single couples the mid-tempo organ dominated Apparition with Astral Spirit, a suitably slow-motion piece, with plenty of cosmic atmospherics and pretty stupid lyrics. It's altogether very dark and very amateurish. Both songs credit Scott Campbell and Arthur Sokoluk, and the single was produced by Campbell. Although issued in 1974, there is a lyric sheet (featuring a nice silhouetted graveyard) which identifies the publishing date as 1971.

The band was from Piscataway, New Jersey. Apparition has subsequently resurfaced on The Psychedelic Experience (CD). (SPr/MW)

45: That's Why/Shadows Falling (Calmis 45-001) 1967

Understated garage-punkers - the top side features nifty pickin' and lots of attitude. The up-tempo flip is unusual for the inclusion of piano but makes up latterly with some tasty guitar runs. Both sides were composed by Simmons & Curtis. It's unclear who these guys were, but they were apparently from somewhere in California.

As to the origins of this unique-sounding name: the Apperson Brothers built cars in Indiana and the "Apperson Jackrabbit" was a range of speedsters (available with either four, six, or eight cylinders) which they manufactured from 1907 through to the 1920s. With a jackrabbit badge on the front grille, it was a popular model and would be immortalised on TV, in cartoon form, by The Rocky & Bullwinkle Show in the 1960s. This may explain why another combo, from Ohio, chose the same name and put out a garage-pop single, Candy Cane Sound/? (Steamer RPM-001) in 1966.

That's Why can also be heard on Fuzz, Flaykes, And Shakes, Vol. 4 - Experiment In Color (LP & CD). (MW)

45: Long Live Apple Pie/Flight Path (Atlantic 2477) 1968

From Boston, this act evolved out of a garage band called C.C. and The Chasers. Richard Barnaby recalls: "As C.C. and the Chasers, we were a garage band. Jack was only 13 at the time and we rehearsed in the basement of a friend, Tom Harrington in Arlington Massachusetts, since none of our parents would have it! We covered The Byrds, and had a few originals, and when psychedelics hit, they hit us as well. We moved from Boston and lived in Greenwich Village from 1965-1969 and were the house band at the Bitter End Cafe. There we backed up a number of the groups of the day including First Edition (with Kenny Rogers), Neil Diamond, Linda Rondstadt and The Stone Poneys, Jerry Jeff Walker, Joni Mitchell, etc. Having signed to Atlantic we moved into the psychedelic venues such as Electric Circus, Cafe Au Go Go, and The Ark. With our second album we lived and played in Vermont, and toured the East Coast, and Midwest from Toronto to Miami. We also toured both as a "B" group (supporting other groups like Chambers Brothers, The Mamas & The Papas, Jefferson Airplane, Butterfield Blues Band) and in our own right."

A good rock outfit whose albums deserve CD reissue. You can check out two of their cuts, Born Under A Bad Sign and Gypsy on The Best Of Bosstown Sound (CD).

The band was also known as The Sacred Mushroom for a while, when they first relocated to New York, but adopted the Apple Pie Motherhood Band moniker after a sarcastic retort stuck. Richard: "Our manager, Marvin Laganoff got us a record deal with Atlantic, but they didn't like the Sacred Mushroom name because it was "too druggy". I remember Ted Demos (lead guitar) saying "Well how about the 'Apple Pie Motherhood Band' then" in total sarcasm, and it just stuck... all you had to do was look at us to know it was a joke."

After the band split up, Jef Labes went on to the Colwell-Winfield Blues Band, Van Morrison, Bonnie Raitt, Jesse Colin Young, and is now teaching music in elementary school in Marin County, California which he describes as "...the most rewarding work I've ever done". He's also writing satirical musicals including "Di Di Diana", a satire exploring "Who killed Diana?" Jack Bruno played with Second Coming a Jacksonville, Florida act and contempories of Allman Bros Band; then with Ted Demos he formed Shakey Legs, before becoming Tina Turner's drummer for the past 15 years. Bruce Paine went on to the lead role as "Claude" in the San Francisco based musical "Hair" for several years, whilst Michael Sorafine also took the second male lead in the same production; Ted Demos went on to become one of L.A.'s finest Art Directors and set designers for film, T.V. and commercials and both he and Bruce Paine still perform together from time to time. Who Do You Think I Am (Verve Forecast KF 5071) 1967
Lotus Flower/What A Way To Go(Verve Forecast KF 5082) 1968

A studio project from Maine spotlighting the talents of brothers John and Terry Boylan (with support from guitarist Larry Coryell and various L.A. sessions players), The Appletree Theatre survived long enough to release one of the year's more interesting collections.

Co-produced by the brothers (Pete Spargo serving as executive producer), 1968's Playback offered up a rather weird concept piece (admittedly the plotline was largely lost on us). Written by the brothers, the collection contains a bizarre collage of interlaced vocal narratives, sound effects, song fragments, balanced by an occasional pop piece (Hightower Square, the bouncy Brother Speed and the trippy You're The Biggest Thing In My Life). One personal favourite is the backward tape instrumental Lotus Flower. There was no doubt the Boylans' were talented. Anyone doubting this statement need merely check out the collision of musical genres compressed into The Sorry State Of Staying Awake - country and western, blue-eyed soul; they even find time to make mention of LSD! On the other hand, the album was simply too experimental for the normal listener - no matter how strung out they may have been. Hard to adequately describe, imagine The Association having overdosed on bad acid and you might get a rough feel for the set...

John Boylan, who wrote Brother Speed, was also a member of Hamilton Streetcar, and they too recorded the track.

After this project, which was a little ahead of its time, Terry Boylan later made three solo albums in 1969, 1977 and 1980 and John went into management and later became a producer, with Linda Ronstadt and Russ Giguere (who covered his Brother Speed) among his credits.

You're The Biggest Thing In My Life later got an airing on Soft Sounds For Gentle People (CD). (VJ/SR/KSI/SB)

The Arbors were essentially a soft pop-rock group with vocal harmonies, their material being partly based on re-arranged covers of current hits. They formed at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor. Their second album consists of psych soft-rock a lá Association, with a cover of Al Kooper's tune and some baroque arrangements.

Four of their singles charted. Their biggest and arguably best hit was a great arrangement/production of The Letter.

The CD compilation features several fascinating Dylan, Beatles, Doors and Simon & Garfunkel tunes, many of them appearing on CD for the first time. In the early seventies, the band veered away from commercial releases and embarked on a 30-year career recording advert jingles for McDonalds, Texaco, Green Giant and United Airlines.

NB: French releases as Les Irresistibles. α reissued (Arabella 101488).

This Los Angeles band relocated to France in the mid-sixties where they met with some success as Les Irresistibles, releasing several singles and an album. On their return to the US they adopted a new moniker with a distinctly French connection - Arch Of Triumph (as in L'Arc De Triomphe) but were concurrently known as the Beloved Ones, and under this name their singles were released in the UK.

The French liner notes of the My Year... single mention that Jimmy and S. McMains were twins, born on 9 July 1951 in Washington DC and T. Arena was born on 4 August 1951 in Canton, Ohio. Their unknown drummer, who was NOT William Sheller, was born on 28 May 1951 in Bethesda, Maryland. William Sheller was more a musical director/songwriter than a real member of the group. The single was produced by John Naikce.

Both US singles deliver orchestrated flower-pop with a melodramatic flair and harmonious vocals. Pick of the crop is the enchantingly wistful Lands Of Shadow which graces the Justavibration (LP) and Psychedelic Voyage Vol. 2 (LP) compilations (credited to 'Beloved Ones'). My Year Is A Day can also be found on the worthy pop-psych compilation Collecting Peppermint Clouds (CD), which must be given credit for unravelling the band's different identities and history. The compiler also mentions that they released a 1970 album on Date in the US, whose details remain elusive.

My Year Is A Day also appears on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 6 (double cassette box).

Frenchman William Sheller appears to have been their musical director; he shared some songwriting credits, co-writing My Year... with T.Arena. He became a well-known solo singer in France and remains active in music 30-odd years on. (MW/SR/PM)

45s: White Lightnin'/Farmer John (Pic One 136) 1966
Still In Love With You Baby/
Turn On Your Love Light (Jox 055) 1966

An historically interesting mid-sixties band which formed in 1961 and operated out of San Antonio, Texas. The Argyles later became The Mind's Eye and The Children. Promotional copies of their second single appeared on red vinyl, whilst their debut is wild'n'raucous waxing offering a different slant on Farmer John with one word changed - "I'm in love with your MOTHER"! An ode to the brewing of moonshine, White Lightnin' is a catchy fuzz-rocker with a novelty flavour.

Both Argyles singles are included on the CD reissue of The Children's Rebirth album (Gear Fab GF-187) 2002 along with a raft of bonus cuts. (VJ/MW/AB)

ALBUMS: 1 AUDITION (2-LP) (Arica Institute AI-1001) 1972 R1
2 HEAVEN (Just Sunshine JSS-1) 1973 SC

These albums were recorded by an obscure New York City-based meditation group named after a town in northern Chile where they originated from. The debut double album features Tibetan ritual chanting, wild jazz, funk, tabla, sitar; and the disc was mainly recorded at New York City's Electric Lady Studios. The track titles comprise: Absorption, Relaxation, Mentations, Passive In The World, Active In The World, Passive In The Cosmos, Active In The Cosmos, The Funnel (in six parts), Absorption, and the six-part Mantram, which comprises all of side four.

The second album was similar but slicker and features the following track titles which give a flavour of the meditative mood of the album: Heaven, Cloud, Lake, Wind, Ocean, Rock, Thorn, River, Candle and Utoh. It contained a wide variety of instruments: sitar, tablas, congas, flute, electric guitar and gongs. This one's for fans of the Sufi Choir or Om Shanti. (SR/VJ)

In 1962 a trio called The Limbos formed in Erie, Pennsylvania and shortly after were renamed The Arkay III. The expansion to a quartet in 1964 dictated an incrementation to Arkay IV. They survived numerous line-up changes and the sixties - their last gig was in August 1971 at a festival in Akron, Ohio.

All original releases date from 1966-1968 and there are three cuts from 1967 that were not released at the time - a Gateway acetate plus one other cut, I'll Keep On Trying.

Another album exists from 1976 that was apparently put together from tapes recorded in the first half of the seventies. As scary as that might sound initially, this record has a decidedly retro feel and is worthy of investigation. Shown as by The Weigaltown Elemental Band, Don't Hurt Yourself (Old Ridge Records W 761) is in the R1 category.

The band reformed in the eighties and released a single Feelin' Good Tonight/Every Morning (American Artists A 4857) 1985. There's also a CD available entitled When We Was Younger.

Compilation appearances have so far included: Demotion and Valley Of Conneaut Creek on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 6 (CD); the previously unreleased Little Girl on Garage Beat (5-CD); Down From #9 on Wyld Sydes Volume 9 (CD); and Girl You've Got A Lot ..To Learn on Destination Frantic Volume 3 (CD). A Los Angeles band. They did not release any singles on this label but the album is now a very minor collectable, but not yet in the scarce category.

They sound influenced by Cream on a couple of tracks and also covered Tales Of Brave Ulysses. The album, which was produced by Tom Thacker, also contains a weird cover of The Magic Song (Bibbidi Bobbidi Boo), from Disney's "Cinderella".

Mark Creamer, Jim Parker and John Stark were earlier members of The Kitchen Cinq.

Robert Ledger went on to play in Simon Stokes' Nighthawks, whilst James Parker and John Stark also played on Them's U.S.-only album In Reality. Marc Creamer played for his wife (Laura Creamer)'s band, Eve, on their Take It And Smile album, (LHI 3100) 1970 (also produced by Tom Thacker and featuring Ry Cooder, James Burton, Hal Blaine and Sneaky Pete). 	χ	Class Of '69/All My Love	(Astro 1014) 1969

NB: β and χ are a reissue of α. β coloured vinyl.

This was a Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania band. 69 is a very simplistic and largely instrumental song, which was later reissued in 1969, when someone figured they could make some money by re-dedicating it to the class of '69. More recently the track can be heard on Burghers, Vol. 1 (LP & CD) and on Grab This And Dance (LP), and Get Hip's retrospective album collects the first two singles and nine unreleased tracks from masters and acetates, all recorded in 1964 and 1965. A healthy mix of instrumentals, garage ballads, folk-rockers and proto-punkers are on offer and they stand up well against local rivals the (pre-Swamp Rats) Fantastic Dee-Jays. Vinyl fans will also be interested in a 7" reissue of 69 with a previously unreleased cut El Rondie on the flip, (Get Hip GHAS 69) 1998.

After The Arondies split, Bill Scully went on to play in a group with Herb Marshall (ex-Splendors/Isley Brothers), whilst Jim Pavlack and Gary Pittman headed for Detroit and session work for Motown and Stax. Pavlack and Pittman recruited drummer Jack O'Neill from The Oncomers, and played with Billy Sharay as Soul Congress, with whom they had a nationwide hit with Do It in 1971.

Bull Fight Song has been compiled on Terry Lee Show WMCK (LP). (MW/BSj)

Arrangement played dreamy harmony-pop with occasional psychy effects for flower-pop fans. On their first single, You is an Association-like ballad, whilst Mr.Tripper is upbeat mid-tempo pop nearer to the Turtles. Another apparently different Arrangement from Jackson, Michigan put out a 'soul-garage single Midnight Trip/Mean on Small Town (103) circa 1970. (MW)

	Open Wide/Lady Luck And Luxury	(Vanguard 35193) 197?
	Final Nickel/?	(Vanguard 35196) 197?

From Greensboro, this lot went on to become one of central North Carolina's most prolific bands in the seventies and also recorded as Greer. Black Death tended towards hard-rock a lá Black Sabbath - a sign of the times in 1969 - but it had great vocals. You'll find it on Tobacco A-Go-Go, Vol. 1 (LP).

They recorded tracks for an intended album called Night Of Dreams in 1970 that was never released, although some of them were included on the 1973 album by Michael Greer. Give Us A Break is mostly an acoustic country-folk album with decent songs and vocals and lots of bongos!

The follow-up is a much stronger effort with a successful blend of vocal harmonies, lead vocals, rural-rock, guitar-op and folk-rock. This group was apparently very popular in North Carolina in this era.

Their 1976 album is reputedly pleasant, with Open Wide being the stand-out track. Don Dixon went on to become a nationally known producer, playing a part in the 'Athens scene' producing both R.E.M. and Mitch Easter's Let's Active. (VJ/MW/SR/PPn)

The Arrogants (CA)

45:	Golden Stairs/ Look For Tomorrow	(Living Legend LL-101/2) 1965

This very obscure single from Hollywood, California features a sultry and simple Beatlesque ballad. The mid-tempo flip is the stronger with its ringing and reverbed guitars more in a Searchers/Beau Brummels vein, and both exude a tentative charm. Any impact is more in its historical significance as the first release on Kim Fowley's modestly named Living Legend label and as the vehicle for two songs by budding writers Michael Lloyd and James Greenspoon. Lloyd arranged this and Fowley produced - was this their first recorded collaboration? Michael Lloyd would of course go on to achieve cult and legendary status as the whizz-kid behind the West Coast Pop Art Experimental Band (WCPAEB) and as a writer, arranger and producer (often in cahoots with Fowley) of so much more that is documented throughout this book - e.g. A.B.Skhy, American Revolution, Fire Escape, Grains Of Sand, Laughing Wind, Rubber Band, St. John Green, and The Smoke (on Capitol/Sidewalk). He also worked in partnership with Mike Curb and went on to become the youthful vice-president of MGM records. He continues to produce and command considerable respect to this day. The recent retrospective on the early days of WCPAEB (Volume One on Sundazed) features an interview with Michael that mentions the period but not this group - apparently he was also playing with a band called The Rogues around the time which featured Shaun and Danny Harris prior to the formation of WCPAEB.

So, we have to ask, who actually were The Arrogants? (MW)

	Fields Of People/ March Of The Mad Duke's Circus	(Elektra EKM-45631) 1968

In a sometimes almost desperate search to elevate the standard of rock, many groups shared the desire to marry their music with classical compositions. Ars Nova succeed better than most in making a convincing attempt, since their brand of cross-over incorporates not only baroque instrumentation in a psychedelic environment, but also baroque composition techniques such as fugas, chorales and pavanes, often scored for brass and guitar. On their first album, produced by Paul Rothchild and Arthur Gorson, they also write lovely tunes and the whole album does, surprisingly enough, not become as pretentious as it could have been, the name of the band notwithstanding. Two of the tracks even get covered (Fields Of People by The Move and I Wrapped Her In Ribbons by Galliard, both U.K. bands!). Other highlights include March Of The Mad Duke's Circus, with vaguely renaissance-like harmonies and General Clover Ends A War, a bitter and driven satire on military affairs. Most tracks were penned by Wyatt Day, sometimes helped by Jon Pierson. Greg Copeland, a young songwriter also working with Steve Noonan and Jackson Browne, wrote the lyrics of four songs.

The formation changed after the first album and among the departing members, Maury Baker went on to play on Tim Buckley's Starsailor, Janis

ARS NOVA - Sunshine & Shadows LP.

Joplin's Kosmic Blues and Augie Meyer's Head Music albums. Bill Folwell guested on the second Insect Trust album and Jonathan Raskin appeared on Tom Rush's Circle Game.

Their second effort in a completely revised line-up still finds them in good form regarding the playing, but they seemed to have lost their interest in the subtle art of their first. Some unusual harmonies are still to be found, but nevertheless more in a conventional rock frame.

After Ars Nova, Raskin, Day, Hunt, Owens and Pierson, formed a short lived studio group called Terminal Barbershop, together with Eric Weisberg, Joe Farrell and Dick Hurwitz. They released a mediocre album, Hairstyles, in 1969. Jon Pierson became a studio musician and played with Lou Reed.

This transcendent San Mateo, California combo uncannily clones that heart-stopping Who's Sell Out sound. The band was led by vocalist Ray Columbus (Invaders) who later formed Powder. Columbus was originally from New Zealand.

The second single, Where Have You Been? is a big beat orchestrated ballad, backed by a cool crunchy garage number similar to the other Art Collection sounds.

Take David Arvedon, a bona fide sixties New England legend, add seasoned studio cats, and inflict a severe case of lyrical weirdness, aardvarks, and quality songwriting in the league of Lucia Pamela and The Shaggs. The 2-CD compilation, which includes his limited edition album, eight-track, both singles and extra unreleased material is about as contorted and convoluted as home-grown music gets. David Arvedon was with Psycho's Psychopaths aka the Psychopaths in the sixties.

This band came from Pontiac, Michigan where they were a frequent live attraction in local teen clubs between 1964 and August 1966 when their lead guitarist and drummer quit for college. So Good is a raw recording with rockabilly-style guitar, but the label name says it all.

Compilation coverage has so far included: - So Good on Back From The Grave, Vol. 6 (LP), Punk Classics, Vol. 2 (7" EP) and Michigan Mayhem Vol. 1 CD; and Who Will It Be? on Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 8 (LP & CD), Michigan Mayhem Vol. 2 (CD) and Quagmire Vol. 1 (CD). (VJ/MW/MM)

A Barrington, Rhode Island outfit who leant towards R&B and soulful sounds. Much of their output is described as "soul-garage". Their debut showcases a chunky beat number with a fratty sound, backed by a forceful slowed-down version of the Beatles song.

Rick Desilets would release a solo single, which is not recommended by Aram Heller in his New England bible 'Til The Stroke Of Dawn'. Aram also reveals that members of The Ascots would later form The Deviled Ham. (MW)

This band originally formed in Santa Monica as The Young Swingers and released two singles under this name in 1965. By 1966, they had changed name to The Ashes. The above line-up is that featured on the album. This Los Angeles band's original drummer was, of course, Spencer Dryden, before he joined Jefferson Airplane. The remaining members, aside from Taylor, later teamed up with Bill Wolff, Lance Feat and Sandi Robinson to become The Peanut Butter Conspiracy. The album blends country, folk, rock and touches of psychedelia. Although it was recorded in 1966, it was shelved and not released until 1971.

The Ashes also have four tracks (both sides of their first two singles) on the 1967 Vault compilation, West Coast Love-In (LP). Every Little Prayer, Is There Anything I Can Do?, Dark On You Now and Roses Gone are all characterised by the distinctive melodies that typified so many mid-sixties English bands like The Fortunes. They feature Sandi Robinson rather than Pat Taylor on vocals. (VJ)

Jan Ashton (CA)

One time vocalist-drummer with The Vejtables (she sang lead on their local hit I Still Love You and their cover of Tom Paxton's Last Thing On My Mind), she recorded an electro-folk track Cold Dreary Morning, which was a good platform for her vocal talents but remained unreleased until its inclusion on Nuggets, Vol. 7 (LP), after leaving The Vejtables and prior to joining The Mojo Men.

Associated Soul Group (?)

ALBUM: 1 TOP HITS OF TODAY (Contessa CON 15012) 1968

This album is one of the more celebrated and rated examples of a sub-genre which tends to go under the banner of 'exploito', which has gained interest and become more collectable in the last few years. Whilst covering many styles of music and moving into 'exotica' territory, we're only concerned here with trying to unravel those that exploited the psychedelic, garage or flower-power genres.

What is 'exploitio' - briefly it's the cash-in on the latest musical wave at minimal cost. Both the music and artists are exploited by covering or reworking (and often retitling) current hits in the latest styles. Songwriting and artist credits or identity rarely appear because the artists were just a bunch of session musicians. Occasionally a real group would be hired on the cheap who couldn't (and at the time wouldn't have wanted to) reveal their true identity (not unlike Elton John's early career as a hired hand on all those U.K. 'Top Of The Pops' albums). The music is frequently reused and recycled appearing on different albums, labels, with new arrangements and often a new title. Mike Curb of Sidewalk was already having great success in recycling music and groups - his 'house-band' were Davie Allan

& The Arrows who went under many assumed names. This was very effective in cutting down on studio and artist costs, to provide cheap music for the masses and still make big bucks.

THE LABELS: generally found on budget labels like Contessa, Crown, Alshire, Wing, Wyncote, Custom, Design (equivalents in the U.K. would include Music For Pleasure, Starline and Marble Arch, and Europa on the continent).

SLEEVES/ARTWORK: It's with psychedelia that most tried to cash in. Sleeve designs tend to be in two camps: splashes and swirls of colour in paisley or oil-slide style accompanied by San Francisco poster-style lettering, or a semi-clad leggy chick surrounded by records (as in this case). Even the album artwork got recycled too - in the case of this album the same design was used on the Electric Firebirds album.

MUSIC: The music ranges from totally naff to quite awesome: fuzz-psych extravaganzas, covering Hendrix or just trying to sound like him; fuzzy jazz-lounge instrumentals or instrumental reworkings (and renames) of recent hits; awful MOR pop or loungy ballad muzak. Unfortunately these extremes can be experienced on just one platter making the notion that it was one 'artist' unrealistic. Very few of these albums don't have at least a couple of barfers.

FAKE GROUPS: This is where confusion really starts - Some albums give the impression that it's a bona-fide group via a picture or sleeve notes but the same music may turn up elsewhere under a different artist name and sometimes track name, e.g. Animated Egg. Also rumoured to be a bogus group is the Purple Fox - Tribute To Jimi Hendrix album.

NON-GROUPS: Most of these are session musicians but even then one album will not be by one group of sessioneers - given the reappearance of the same tracks on other albums and the different styles and sounds - the name is most likely just a convenient and colourful handle for a collection of material. Examples: Associated Soul Group, Projection Company, Rajput & Sepoy Mutiny, T. Swift & The Electric Bag, The Underground. Most of these 'names' had just the one release; one exception is the conglomeration known as 101 Strings.

BONA-FIDE GROUPS: the Firebirds are thought to be a genuine group, although they seem to have also recorded as The 31 Flavors. Another example is the Chimps, who recorded the rather good Monkey Business album on Wyncote (two Monkees covers and some good garage sounds) - they would later be known as the (Thomas A.) Edison Electric Band.

These albums throw other outfits into question - the Projection Company album features three covers of Id Inner Sounds album tracks - Wild Times, Don't Think Twice and Boil The Kettle. The first two turn up on the Associated Soul Group album and are exactly the same tracks. Whilst not the same as on the Id's album, they sound close enough to question whether the bunch who recorded as the Id were behind some of the material on these two albums.

So what about the Associated Soul Group album itself? In the main it's above-par: five tracks recycled on the Projection Company album; covers include a great version of Are You Experienced (T. Swift & The Electric Bag do this too), an awful Up Up And Away (5th Dimension), Macarthur Park (Jim Webb/Richard Harris) and two Simon & Garfunkel numbers with rehashed (i.e. misheard) lyrics - Sound Of Silence and Scarborough Fair. Other tracks sound remarkably like the Animated Egg to add to the confusion.

2009 postscript: subsequently Sundazed's Animated Egg CD reissue 'Guitar Freakout' has revealed that the central figure behind many of the aforementioned "exploito" groups and creations was guitarist Jerry Cole. (MW)

NB: α promo-only release of radio show interview. Flip is the show's instrumental theme tune, by The Young Men.

Based in Los Angeles, although originally from the Midwest, The Association was a crisp, clear vocal harmony group formed in 1965. Their first two singles, Along Comes Mary and Cherish both made the US Top 10 in 1966. Their first album is full of clean, clear cut vocal harmonies from these straight graduates who usually wore suits.

Renaissance, one of the groups most varied albums, contained the track (and single choice) Pandora's Golden Heebie Geebies. Named after Pandora's Box, the infamous Sunset Strip nightclub, it was their one true foray into psychedelia. You'll find it on Nuggets Vol. 5: Pop Part 111 (LP) and Nuggets: Hallucinations (CD). The remainder of the album veered from folk-rock pop harmony sounds to bubblegum pop.

Insight Out was a slightly more adventurous album. It contained Windy and Never My Love, which reached No's 1 and 2 respectively in the singles chart in 1967. It also included P.F. Sloan's On A Quiet Night and Kirkman's rather pretentious, anti-war song Requiem For The Masses. Kirkman incidentally, could play as many as 25 instruments.

Birthday had some psychedelic influence and saw the band flirt with psych-pop. Time For Livin' was culled from it and gave them a minor hit, as was Kirkman's Everything That Touches You, a romantic number with powerful vocals and trumpet fanfares. Barefoot Gentlemen, a very strange number, is also of note. By contrast their eponymous 1970 album was rather disappointing.

Despite making the Top 100, Goodbye Columbus is the band's hardest album to find. The soundtrack album to the film which starred Richard Benjamin and Ali MacGraw contains about 50% instrumentals composed by Charles Fox. There are also a number of band originals; including the title track, Gotta Be Real; So Kind To Me and a wordless vocalised reprise of Goodbye Columbus.

THE ASSOCIATION - Birthday CD.

THE ASSOCIATION - Stop Your Motor LP.

Although it was released in 1971, their live double album was recorded on 3 April 1970 at the University of Utah. It includes untarnished versions of their hits, Dubuque Blues - an early white soul number and a fine version of Enter The Young from their first album.

Stop Your Mother was another disappointing album and the band was dropped by Warner Brothers as a consequence. They switched to Columbia at this point and Waterbeds In Trinidad was an improvement. Silent Song Through The Land was a striking opening cut and is followed by their quieter, emotive cover of John Sebastian's Darling Be Home Soon, which gives the original more than a run for its money. The jazzy Kicking The Gong Around has ambitious jazzy arrangements, there's also a fine cover of John Stewart's Little Road And A Stone To Roll and some beautiful soaring vocals on Goffin/King's Snow Queen.

Most of their albums were produced by Jim Yester's brother, Jerry, who had earlier been a member of The Lovin' Spoonful. The band is perhaps best remembered for his production and for performing some very good love songs. However, by their demise in 1972, they failed musically to keep abreast with the times. Sadly, Ralph Cole died of hepatitis in 1972.

In 1975, they signed to RCA but no releases were forthcoming. They re-emerged in 1981 on Elektra issuing just one single.

Terry Kirkman, Jules Alexander and Larry Ramos later appeared on the United States of Existence 1986 (LP) (Bam-Caruso KIRI 048) 1986.

Other compilation appearances have included: Come On In on Nuggets: Come To The Sunshine (CD); Cherish on Memory Pack (EP) and One Too Many Mornings on Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book). (VJ)

45:	First I Look At The Purse/ Bless Our Hippy Home	(Sound Spot 2224) 1967

This lot hailed from the Lansing area, around central southern Michigan. First I Look At The Purse is a pretty good cover of a Contours song, the flip's rather an unusual Farfisa-laden song with classic lyrics and effective folk-punk vocals. It's resurfaced on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 19 (LP) and on Scream Loud!! The Fenton Story (2-CD), which also features Bless Our Hippy Home. (VJ)

45:	Rosa-Lynn/Our Love Is A Rainbow	(Maverick 711) 1970

This is the sole single from a Duncanville, Texas outfit. Despite the vocalist's occasional Elvis pretensions, this mid-tempo garage-ballad has an infectious guitar refrain. Our Love is more rocky but with some solid fuzz.

Rosa-Lynn was written by a guy from Carbondale, Pennsylvania who now says that the single was not supposed to be released.

This was a New York City studio project. The concept album was conceived and written by Bernice Ross and Lor Crane and Crane also produced it with Rod McBrain and arranged and conducted it. In addition to the personnel above, there's also string, horn and woodwind sections - and in the former is Harry Lookofsky, father of the Left Banke's Michael Brown (Lookofsky). Al Gorgoni was previously one half of Just Us, with Chip Taylor. Hugh McCracken had fronted his own outfit The Funatics, and became an in-demand session player.

If orchestrated concept hippie-flower-pop is your bag (man), this should appeal. The track Accordion Pleated Mind is quite a surreal experience and the finale Overture - The Astral Scene is a fitting ending. Garageheads, on the other hand, should steer clear. (MW/SR/VJ)

NB: α not confirmed as by this Astronauts. β shown as by Sunshine Ward

For garage/psych purists with raised eyebrows at this entry, scoff ye not. Boulder's famous Astronauts may tend to be regarded as just an instrumental or surf group, but this is being grossly unfair, and I've been as guilty as many in that regard until recently. Yes, they did do instrumentals but vocals were predominant in their later material. What's more this talented bunch embraced beat, Invasion, and folk-rock styles to keep pace with the rapidly changing sounds of the times. Interested now? Read on.

Kicking off as the Stormtroopers in 1959 (line-up 'A') they changed their name to the Astronauts on releasing their first single. On winning a contract with RCA they spent much of their time based in Los Angeles to record, lap up the surf and sunshine vibes and appear in some surf movies. Baja was a sizable hit and set them fair with RCA - resulting in nine albums and a large handful of singles in just four years. When the bubble finally burst and their name and sound seemed to be a fading star at the onset of the psychedelic era, they changed their name to Sunshine Ward in an attempt to revive their fortunes. It didn't work, RCA lost interest and original mainstay Bob Demmon departed. The others tried one last relaunch after more personnel shuffles, firstly as Sunshine Ward and then after one final name change as Hardwater.

Collectables has recently reissued their albums on 2-for-1 ('twofer') CDs and the pair above might interest readers of this book. For those into the original vinyl and still to be convinced, try the Travelin' Men album (which includes covers of I Know You Rider, Midnight Hour, and the Beau Brummels' Laugh Laugh) or the more obviously Merseybeat influenced Down The Line album (the Big O's title track, Down Home Girl, Walking The Dog, Sweet Little Rock And Roller, Memphis Tennessee). The obvious weakness with their last two albums is that there are no group originals at all, unlike their earlier releases. So, although they may have adapted to playing these styles, writing them was a different proposition. However, it would be unkind to brand them a 'covers band'.

Appearances - on beat/garage/psych compilations - have been restricted to their rare debut Come Along Baby on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 18 (LP); Tomorrow's Gonna Be Another Day on Let's Dig 'Em Up, Vol. 2 - The Count Game (LP) and Let's Dig 'Em Up, Vol. 1 (CD); Baby, Please Don't Go on Out Of Sight (LP); and both Can't You See I Do and My Sin Is My Pride on Prisoners Of The Beat (LP). Can you imagine a more perfect name for a band based at a military academy in Virginia in the early seventies?

Elaine's vocal ability impresses in a Karen Carpenter kind of way, although it will disappoint most readers to learn that a substantial amount of the music on this album also walks this path. The opening cut I Want You Everyday is the hardest rocking and it's unfortunate that more of the band's repertoire doesn't match it.

To answer the obvious question: no it's not a co-ed military academy; Elaine was the daughter of a Captain at the facility.

This album is held in high regard by collectors of the genre, although the merits of such pursuits have not been calculated by the majority. Proceed with caution! (CF)

For Russell and Benno, this Los Angeles-based venture represented a largely unsuccessful journey into psychedelia. After a first single as Le Cirque, their debut album was released. This sold badly, partly because the cover featured a toilet roll, but mainly because the music was quite patchy. It's a mix of pop, R&B and psychedelia, with arrangements (especially on the second side). Smash later reissued it with a group cover. Benno and Russell wrote all the songs, with the assistance of Greg Dempsey (Daughters Of Albion), Bill Boatman, Jerry Riopelle and the mysterious Markham and Wilson, who may have played on the backing group.

Although the second album was recorded in April 1969, Mercury did not release it on their Smash subsidiary and Russell bought the tapes to release it on his own Shelter label two years later. It's bluesier than the debut and contains some good songs (notably an anti-Vietnam song Ballad To A Brother).

Russell and Benno's involvement is the main reason why collectors seek out these albums.

Born in 1947 in Dallas, Benno would later play with The Doors (on L.A. Woman), Rita Coolidge and Rick Roberts. He also released three excellent albums on A&M between 1970 and 1972, recorded with Ry Cooder, Jesse Ed Davis and Clarence White. Afterwards he disappeared only to return in 1979 with Lost In Austin (with Eric Clapton). In the nineties, he has recorded two good Texas blues albums. (VJ/SR)

All the tracks on their sole album were penned by Yeager and demonstrate the band's skill and their sense of humour: Jesus People, Dirty Sheets, Dirty Old Man and Let's Make Love are just some highlights of a very consistent album. Still working with Michael Stevens, Atlee Yeager would go on to issue another album on Chelsea in 1973.

They'd been contacted by an agency in Milwaukee after finishing second in a 'Battle Of The Bands' in Wausau. They got lost and ended up at the studios of Dave Kennedy, who passed them onto Lenny LaCour who liked what he heard, signed them, and would later come up with a new name for them - The Filet Of Soul.

AUGUST - Self Titled LP.

A trio of fresh-faced youths, said to be from New Jersey (though the album seems to have been recorded in Philadelphia). It is extremely rare and descriptions like "garage folk-rock" have generated interest and finally a reissue to satisfy curiosity.

Even the above description is somewhat optimistic and if you're expecting an undiscovered garage monster you'll be disappointed. This is muted lo-fi pop - from moody to perky - permeated by a coy charm evoked by vulnerable vocals and hesitant harmonies. The good-timey vibe of The Lovin' Spoonful is much in evidence (they cover Full Measure) and some Anglophile whimsy, via the Beatles' Eleanor Rigby.

The album was recorded, after-hours, in a restaurant. (MW/CF)

	Aum/Little Brown Hen	(Fillmore 7001) 1970

Led by singer/multi-instrumentalist Wayne Ceballos, the little know Aum stand as also-rans in the lexicon of sixties San Francisco bands. With drummer Larry Martin and bassist Ken Newell rounding out the trio, the group's initial reputation stemmed from their jam-oriented concerts.

Initially signed by the London-affiliated Sire label, as one would expect from the title, the group's 1969's Bluesvibes found them working in a distinctively blues-vein. Reflecting the band's live act, the Richard Gotthrer produced debut featured a series of seven extended jams, (the shortest song clocking in at four minutes). With Ceballos writing the majority of the material, in spite of period excesses (e.g. aimless soloing), originals such as Mississippi Mud and Chilli Woman weren't half bad. Moreover, Ceballos proved a decent singer, injecting considerable energy into his performances. Among the few short-comings, the band's ponderous cover of John Loudermilk's Tobacco Road would've been suitable for Vanilla Fudge.

One of the first acts to be signed to Bill Graham's Fillmore label, 1969's Resurrection teamed the band with producer David Rubinson. As one might have guessed from the album title (let alone the back cover which showed three crosses), their sophomore effort found the band pursuing a pseudo-religious agenda. In spite of occasionally clunky lyrics and an irritating degree of echo, Ceballos-penned material such as God Is Back In Town, the ballad Only I Know and Today And Tomorrow wasn't too bad. Boasting a nifty Ceballos guitar solo, the stately title track is the stand-out cut. Elsewhere, the driving Bye Bye Baby and Little Brown Hen recall Quicksilver Messenger Service. Certainly not likely to get Top 40 airplay, but San Francisco certainly turned out worse sounding bands. Commercially the band did nothing; the trio calling it quits shortly thereafter.

45: Parahighway/Rampant Generalities (RCA 9506) 1968

Formed in 1966 by bluegrass fanatic Thomas Donaher and multi-instrumentalist Darius Davenport, Autosalvage was one of the mid-sixties more impressive jug band outfits. Boasting an exceptionally talented line-up, including ex-Ian and Sylvia sideman Rick Turner and bassist Skip Boone (brother of the Lovin' Spoonful's Steve Boone), the band's sound melded authentic jug band moves with rock instrumentation. They exuded a sense of enthusiasm and a willingness to expand into more progressive directions.

Reportedly discovered by Frank Zappa while on a visit to New York, with Zappa's support the group was signed by RCA Victor. Their album, Autosalvage offered up one of 1968's odder musical hybrids. Exemplified by original material such as Land Of Their Dreams, Burglar Song and Rampant Generalities the collection featured a weird mixture of Byrds-styled country-rock (Rampant Generalities), blues-rock (Good Morning Blues), psychedelia (Auto Salvage) and outright pretence. What made the set truly maddening was the fact that while all four members were undeniably talented, they seldom brought those talents together. Among the few tracks worth hearing more than once were the nifty title effort and the single Parahighway/Rampant Generalities. Not to sound too damning, the band's willingness to try new things makes it oddly endearing, if not particularly commercial, or memorable. Unfortunately, it all came to little avail since the band called it quits shortly thereafter.

Boone and Davenport subsequently reappeared supporting the short-lived Bear and then as session players, including Terence Boylan's 1969 solo album. Rick Turner went on to work with Jerry Corbitt and Jeffrey Cain. He later became a well-known guitar builder/repairer (notably for Ry Cooder).

	Naturally Stoned/Honey And Gall	(Columbia 4-44590)	1968	40
	Fly With Me/ Revelations Revelations	(Columbia 4-44701)	1968	130

This band is best known for Naturally Stoned which hit the Billboard chart at No. 40. and is best described as orchestrated 'psychedelic pop' (the lyrics may be psychedelic but the music is pop) with the backing sounding like a James Bond-type movie theme. You can also find this on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 6 (double cassette box) and on Soft Sounds For Gentle People (CD). The flip side has also been compiled on Psychedelic Unknowns Vol. 8 (LP & CD) being an unusual and captivating hippie-psychedelic effort.

Yellow Beads is also dreamy acoustic hippie-pop in their unique style. Honey And Gall on the second single is a different, more commerical version with the addition of drums, string arrangements, and a few lyric alterations. The final single reverts to more standard orchestrated pop format effort on Fly With Me but is rescued by the electrified folk-pop flip.

Fowler went on to session and backing work, and played guitar and banjo for the likes of Bob Dylan, before joining Leonard Cohen's backing band. During the latter engagement he met and married Susan Musmanno, of The Groop.

All their material was composed by B. Fowler or C. Woolery, who it turns out, is none other than Chuck Woolery, who would later become one of America's top game show hosts-- he was the original emcee of "Wheel of Fortune" before adding his brand of smarminess to the matchmaking "Love Connection". In 2003 a TV reality show "Chuck Woolery: Naturally Stoned" was broadcast, named after and using the Avant Garde song as the theme tune. (MW/DDv/TTi)

	It's Hard To Hide/Open Your Eyes	(Current 109)	1966
	Strange Faces/Softly As I Leave You	(American 101)	1967

This garage outfit came from Bakersfield, California but was part of the Los Angeles club scene. Their finest moments were probably Be A Caveman, a slice of three chord arrogance and Open Your Eyes, a fine song with superb instrumentation and catchy folk-rock vocals. Shipwrecked is a Farfisa-led song with fine throaty vocals, and You Can't Hurt Me Any More has a rockin' beat with a neat choppy solo. It's Hard To Hide, is a jaunty folkish rocker, with a neat reverb effect on the organ - in stark contrast to the primitive beat displayed on Be A Caveman. The band is well worth checking out, especially for that second single.

The Avengers were managed by Bakersfield KAFY DJ Mike Lunky, and Ken Johnson also wrote I Can Read Between The Lines, the flip to Gary Lewis and The Playboys 1966 hit Green Grass. After The Avengers disbanded, Ken Johnson returned to the Bakersfield music scene and became involved in Gary Paxton's Bakersfield International studio crowd as a session player and songwriter.

Through Paxton and with fellow Bakersfield performer and songwriter Dennis Payne, they recorded a series of albums for Al Sherman's Alshire International label in the late sixties as the California Poppy Pickers. Paxton leased various other recording projects to Alshire, which may have involved Johnson.

Dugan Turner later played with The Donnybrooks, while Blake and Huestis formed the United Sons Of America.

As one might expect, The Avengers' material has been heavily compiled including: Be A Caveman on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 1 (LP), Boulders, Vol. 1 (LP), Best of Pebbles, Vol. 1 (LP & CD), Pebbles, Vol. 2 (CD) and Pebbles, Vol. 3 (ESD) (CD); Open Your Eyes on Acid Dreams Epitaph (CD), Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP), Folk Rock E.P. (7") and *Ya Gotta Have... Both singles are thought to emanate from a Philadelphia area band in the mid-to-late sixties. The Van Dyk single is awful pre-beat pop with keening female-male vocals and should be avoided. Crying All Alone is a big beat ballad with brass BUT done with garage style and sentiments plus a great fuzz and brass solo - definitely different and a pleasant surprise (though probably not for purists). The flip is a brassy pop ballad.

	Batman's Theme/Back Side Blues	(MGM 13465) 1966

From Memphis, these Avengers recorded Batarang in 1966, an excellent bluesy instrumental cut with great guitar leads and organ. Cashing in on the Batman craze, these masked marauders turned out to be none other Lawson and Four More augmented by Jim Dickinson and Lee Baker. This single appeared between their two Lawson and Four More releases on Ardent.

Lee Baker would later be in Moloch, Jim Dickinson was previously in the Jesters and would have a very prolific career, notably with Ry Cooder.

It has still to be confirmed whether the MGM single has any connection to this outfit at all - it may just have been another caped crusader cash-in by a same-name outfit ("Holy confounding coincidences, Batman").

Batarang has subsequently been compiled on It Came From Memphis (Upstart 022) 1995 and on Thank You Friends: The Ardent Story (2-CD). (SR/MW/RHI)

ALBUM: 1 GOD COME DOWN (Christos Records CS-1001) 1974 R1

A Christian group, their album tried to portrait the life of Jesus Christ in song. It's rather patchy and ranges from folk-rock to hard-rock, from acoustic tunes with flute to songs with dreamy echoed vocals and fuzz guitar. The group consists of four guys and four gals, only identified by their first names: Eve, Marilyn, Flip, Davy, Wayne, Cindy, Doug and Sam. The labels and sleeve of this obscure album have no track listing and no indication of the origin of this group. (SR)

45: Leading Citizen (Pt. 1)/(Pt. 2) (Decca 33009) 1972

Born in Los Angeles David Axelrod was a producer, arranger and songwriter, who is now mostly remembered for his work with the Electric Prunes' Mass In F Minor and Release Of An Oath. He formed Pride in 1970 and he also released several solo albums which may interest some readers looking for a mix of psychedelia with neo-classical arrangements.

In 1972 he recorded a version of Handel's Messiah with plenty of subdued funk, nice jazzy flourishes and dark orchestrations.

The Seriously Deep album blends jazz, soul and funk. There's lots of brass and strings too.

There are some compilations referenced in the discography above.

His compilation appearances so far include: The Smile on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 6 (double cassette box) and Urizen on Ah Feel Like Ahcid (CD). (SR/NK/VJ)

Hoyt Axton (CA)

ALBUMS: 1 MY GRIFFIN IS GONE (CBS 33103) 1969
(selected) 2 JOY TO THE WORLD (Capitol ST-788) 1971

Hoyt Axton was born in Duncan, Oklahoma on 25 March 1938, the son of a naval officer and his English teacher wife. Raised primarily in Jacksonville, Florida he studied classical piano as a child before switching to guitar, writing his first songs at 15. His mother was the co-writer of Elvis Presley's landmark 1956 chart-topper Heartbreak Hotel. Axton initially pursued a career in athletics at Oklahoma State University on a football scholarship before serving a stint in the navy. He then relocated to San Francisco, performing at local folk clubs and in 1962 writing his first hit, Greenback Dollar for The Kinston Trio. Subsequently his songs have been covered by Ringo Starr, Three Dog Night and many other popular acts. He was also an actor and a country singer. A multi-faceted talent, he also wrote two excellent songs dealing with the subject of drugs which were popularised by Steppenwolf: The Pusher and Snow Blind Friend (the latter also covered by Tim Williams). His song Never Been To Spain was covered by Morning.

Hoyt Axton worked with Arlo Guthrie in the early seventies, but sadly died on 26 October 1999 after a series of heart attacks at the age of 61.

45: From This Place/Hope To Save (Elco 1/2) 1971

Hailing from Citrus Heights, near Sacramento, California this outfit's now ultra-rare and sought-after album is similar in mould to Agape with religious lyrics, but not quite as good. Musically, this is a keyboard dominated progressive effort which also has some good guitar moments and melodic vocals. All the songs are penned by the band with The Prophet, From This Place and Judgement Day among the album's finer moments.

The band had previously been known as Help, but changed their name to Azitis following a conflict with the Decca band Help. After the Decca group broke up, they reverted to their original moniker to record a further single. (VJ/CF/MW)

45: I Said More/The Little Streets In My Town (Staff 194) 1967

Hailed from Gary, Indiana where they had started life in 1963 as The Valuables, a Beatles/Everly Brothers covers band. In late 1966, having developed a harsher persona, they recruited the lead singer/guitarist from The Squires, another popular Gary band, and recorded the above single. Just 100 copies were pressed for friends and family. I Said Move is a pretty powerful rocker, whilst the flip is an up-tempo effort with jangly folk-punk guitar and tambourine.

Compilation appearances have so far included: I Said Move on Back From The Grave, Vol. 4 (LP) and Back From The Grave, Vol. 2 (CD); and The Little Streets In My Town on Back From The Grave, Vol. 5 (LP). (VJ)

ALBUM: 1(A) OUT OF THE BACHS
(Roto Records PR.68-1044) 1968 R6

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Del Val 007) 1992 in a limited edition of 350 copies. (1) reissued on vinyl (Void 049) 2009. (1) pirated on CD and vinyl (Flash 43) 1997. (1) also issued on CD (Gear Fab GF-211) 2004 with one bonus live 1967 track, That's The Way It Goes.

This is a highly collectable garage-psych classic from Chicago; indeed only 100 copies were ever pressed so original copies inevitably change hands for megabucks. Apparently, it was recorded in a butcher's shop in late 1967 and released in early 1968. Some of the finest garage cuts include You're Mine, Free Fall and Minister To A Mind Diseased, whilst My Independence Day and the superb Tables Of Grass Fields are more psychedelic. Towards the end of the album there are some lovely acid ballads; Nevermore, and Answer To Yesterday. Just 350 copies of the first reissue were pressed so this album is destined to remain rare; although the more recent reissues will help collectors find copies in the short term. Of the reissues, however, only the Gear Fab one is at the correct speed. The album is essential in any US garage/psych collection. Just dig that distorted fuzz guitar on Minister To A Mind Diseased. All 12 cuts are original Allison-Peterman compositions.

The band formed in the winter of 1965 and stayed together for about three years. John Babicz: - "John Harrison and I are from Lake Forest, the others from Lake Bluff, just up the road. Harrison and Mike DeHaven had played in a high school group The Appollos."

After they split, John Babicz joined the army, where he spent the next 22 years. He and John Harrison now live in Tucson and still play golf together. Mike DeHaven is in Illinois and Blake Allison and John Peterman in Massachusetts.

They reformed to play at their 35th high school reunion party on 4 October 2003 when they played 30 of their most memorable songs to classmates and family members. There is extensive archival material of this reunion on DVD and VHF and the bonus track on the Gear Fab reissue is taken from this session.

I'm A Little Boy and Tables Of Grass Fields, from Out Of The Bachs, have also resurfaced on Incredible Sound Show Stories - A Trip On The Magic Flying Machine (LP) and you'll also find Show Me That You Want To Go Home on Today Is Just Tomorrow's Yesterday 1 (CD). (VJ/JBz)

45: Will You Love Me Tomorrow/You Go On (Tomorrow T-911) 1967

Carole King is written large across this East Coast girl group single. It's her label, her production and on the top side one of her classics - reworked in a slow, deliberate and dramatic style with forlorn female vocals. You Go On is even stronger - a brooding baroque beat-ballad written by Rick Philp and Dave Palmer of The Myddle Class (credited as "Philip Palmer"), which lends weight to a rumour that the group was heavily involved with and played on this single. 45: Evil/Corinna, Corinna (Fujimo no #) 1966

This garage band operated out of Goshen, Indiana. Evil had quite a bluesy Yardbirds influence, whilst the flip was, by comparison, a pretty lame cover of the Ray Peterson hit.

The sole single by this Avon Lake, Ohio group is rare and easily commands three-figure asking prices. I'm The Kind, accessible again on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 21 (LP), is a pretty good effort and the lyrics "I'm gonna make it now, just like I said would, I'll be big someday" reflected the optimism of the times. You can also check it out on Psychedelic States: Ohio Vol. 1 (CD) and Wyld Sydes Volume 9 (CD). (VJ/MW/GGI)

Oh Baby Please Take Me (Cenco 110) 1967

This unknown Californian band had just one known and keenly-sought single. Kickin' off with a 'Prunes-like howl, Day Breaks At Dawn is a sizzlin' fuzz-punker with awesome guitar-work. An intense, raw but powerful vocalist cranks up the testosterone levels. Quite simply - stunning.

45: Have A Nice Day/I See You (Allied Records 2001) 197?

After some personnel changes, Fenwyck changed their name to Back Pocket. They also embraced the rural-rock sound that was becoming popular on the West Coast at the turn of the decade (Grateful Dead, Byrds, Flying Burrito Bros., etc.). After signing a recording contract with producer Bob Keane/Del-Fi Records, they recorded the above album and single for his subsidiary label Allied. Upon their release, Back Pocket toured the United States and Europe for several years.

Back Pocket then signed with Joyce Records and recorded the album Buzzard Bait. All the tracks on the album were penned by Pat Robinson and were again in a rural-rock direction. By this time, only Robinson and Maroshek remained from Fenwyck, but they were augmented by an impressive line-up of talented players. Beland, Guilbeau and Maxwell were formerly with Swampwater. Maxwell was also previously with Tarantula (the band that recorded on A&M). Beland and Guilbeau recorded and toured with The Flying Burrito Bros. The cover features a white horse in the foreground of a mountainous landscape.

Pat Robinson's songwriting started gaining recognition by other well-known recording artists, so he focused his attention on writing and producing. He signed with Warner Bros./Curb Records and subsequently recorded and co-produced two albums with seasoned producer Phil Gernhard (The Bellamy Brothers, Dion). Robinson then formed the band The Mystery Brothers with his long time friends, Michael Georgiades and Dennis Dragon (see The Dragons entry), and started recording the album Hard Horse To Ride at Point Dume Studios in Malibu, California. All of them were busy with other musical projects, so the album wasn't released until 2002 on Coyote Records. Robinson then teamed up with Byrds' founder and ace songwriter Gene Clark and began a prolific period of songwriting as the Clark Robinson Band. After Robinson and Clark had written more than 30 songs together, John York joined them. This led to the formation of CRY (Clark, Robinson, York) as a spin-off group of The Byrds. CRY played in a folk/rock style with the use of acoustic guitars and three-part harmonies by Clark, Robinson and York.

Gene Clark's death on 24 May 24 1991 called time on this project and much material laid dormant until 1998 when Pat and John reformed the band and resumed work the album which was finally issued as After The Storm on Coyote Records in 2001. (VJ)

The Backseat (CA)

45: Where Is Mary/Like You Do (Linda 125) 1967

From East L.A. comes this dreamy harmony-drenched ballad coupled with up-tempo pop. Produced by Larry Tamblyn of The Standells, Like You Do is also on the 1969 double album compilation East Side Revue (Rampart 3303). (MW)

Back Street Boys (MA)

45: Back St. Blues/Money (W.J.G. no #) 1967

The enthusiasm of these Worcester, Massachusetts lads is captured for posterity on their rare release; it couples two primitive charmers, whose sound predates their 'Summer Of Love' vintage.

The original but derivative Back St. Blues seems to be on the brink of falling apart yet it captures the essence of what has come to be labelled 'garage'; check it out on New England Teen Scene Vol. 2 (LP). A shambolic cover of Money features a bass guitar, which sounds more like the 13th Floor Elevators' psychedelic jug, and concludes with fuzz and a touch of Prunes-like sustain. (MW)

Bad & Good Boys (TN)

Personnel incl: TRAVIS WAMMACK

45: Fire/We Got Soul (M.O.C. 45-668) 1968

Here's a one-off release by an outfit featuring Travis Wammack, the much-respected guitarist best known for his million-selling instrumental, Scratchy. He carved out a solo and session-work career from the late fifties; based in Memphis in the mid-sixties, he led several local post-Invasion combos and guested on many others, e.g. The Better Sweet.

Around then he formed The Travis Wammack Group with Ronnie Scaife and Mike Reeves; it's been suggested that this version of Jimi Hendrix's Fire may feature the same personnel. Scaife was also in The Us Group and Shylo.

Wammack had strong associations with Alabama's Muscle Shoals and in 1992 he appeared with The Little Richard Band at the Muscle Shoals Bands Of The '60s Reunion concert. His performances of Scratchy and Just A Little Bit were captured on the resultant CD (Alabama Music Hall Of Fame 1993-01). (MW)

45: Cry For Me/All You Can Stand (PS) (Progrezzive) 1977

This hard-rock album from a Riverside, California band features solid guitar and some progressive moves. The songwriting is rather amateurish but the band's youthful energy is a plus. The album is very rare; apparently it did not get past the test pressing stage. This is one for fans of flashy guitar. Carruth and Strum both had notable careers in heavy metal in the eighties. (VJ)

45: Love/Black Olives (Paula 254) 1966

This band was based around Frederick in Maryland, NOT Louisiana as has been assumed due to their single on the Paula label. Previously known as Billy Joe & The Continentals, they split with Billy Joe Ash in mid-65 and the trio carried on as The Bad Boys, touring widely. In 1968 they came to the attention of Columbia Records and changed name to Flavor (not to be confused with the psychedelic New York outfit of that name) and recorded three singles for Columbia.

This single is a classic - Love is a wicked catchy fuzz-punker that has been compiled on All Cops In Delerium (aka Good Roots) (LP), Louisiana Punk Vol. 2 (LP), Sixties Archives Vol. 3 (CD) and Mindrocker Vol. 13 (LP).

Written by Gary St. Clair it was covered in 1967 by the Corners Four. The uncompiled flip is a glorious mid-slow fuzzy instrumental with a bluesish tinge, keyboard and bass solos, and exploito-movie/club-a-go-go vibes that would fit right onto the Animated Egg album. (MW/BE)

45s: She's Gone/The Stream (RI 3249) 1971

Badge was based in Odenton, Maryland and had come together at the start of the seventies from the remnants of two local garage bands, The Group and Brotherhood.

The Kath I album was a private pressing not billed as by Badge (so is often listed as by "Kath") but is effectively by the band; according to the inserts on the reissue, it was a side-project by Val Rogolino supported by the rest of the band. It is a mixed-bag of seventies hard-rock and dreamy soft-rock, sometimes with fuzzed guitars, augmented occasionally by short passages of electronic and sound effects. A cosy and intimate atmosphere permeates much of the album thanks to some lo-fi production. Apart from Tell Laura I Love Her and a lilting Norwegian Wood with fuzz guitar, all the tracks appear to be originals.

The band lasted into the early eighites and there is at least another EP and single post 1975.

Haze can also be heard on Sixties Rebellion 12: Demented (LP/CD). (MW)

THE BAD SEEDS and ZAKARY THAKS - A Texas Battle Of The Bands CD.

45: Hook Nose And Wooden Leg/
Don't Take My Love Away (Scepter 12126) 1966

Houston pop outfit The Bad Habits was also known as the Alley Cats, London Teens, and Terrible Teens. Their Huey P. Meaux produced single couples male harmony-pop that has a novelty feel (screeching vocals like Pipkin's Gimme Dat Ding) with a half-decent rockin' popper. The latter has a frantic guitar break but suffers from twittering female backing vocals.

Bill Scott: "We recorded the song at Robin Hood Bryan's Studios in Tyler Texas. The group consisted of Danny Harrelson, Jerry Beach, Porter Jordan, and myself on drums and the screeching vocals you mentioned. At 59-years-old now I am certain that I can no longer hit those notes."

"Porter Jordon wrote the lyrics to Hook Nose and I wrote the lyrics to Don't Take Your Love Away and did the vocals on the record. The girl singers were hired singers from Tyler, Texas. The use of the other group names you mention was the way you did things in those days. You came out with several different names on several different records at the same time; hoping one would hit the charts. Hook Nose came out when Lloyd Thaxton pantomimed it on his nationwide television show."

"Prior to starting the Bad Habits, I had been playing on the road in the Bob Luman Show with three guys named Dean Mathis (bs), Mark Mathis (piano) and Billy Sandford (ld gtr). On a trip to Nashville to cut a session for Luman, we were introduced to Wesley Rose (publisher at Acuff-Rose Publishing Company). At a dinner with John D Loudermilt and others, Wesley Rose suggested we cut a demo tape and send it for him to listen to. We had been playing with a new version of Bye-Bye Love by the Everly Brothers with the high singing parts performed by Larry Henley. We made the tape at my home in Shreveport and sent it to Wesley. Wesley liked it and set up a recording session for Dean, Mark and Larry and used session musicians to record John D Loudermilt's new song, Bread And Butter. The success of Bread And Butter broke up our group, so I started the Bad Habits with a new manager, Jack Rhodes (Writer - Silver Threads and Golden Needles), Rhodes Publishing Company in Mineola, Texas. Jack recorded us at Robin Hood Bryans in Tyler, Texas. Then Jack and I turned the tape over to Huey Meaux and he got us released on Scepter. We started enjoying success with Hook Nose and some of the other songs were hitting around the country on independent labels. The whole thing fell through when Huey Meaux was arrested on a morals charge and that was that. I had us booked as the warm-up band for the Rolling Stones in Sacramento, California and two of the wives of the guys refused to let them go. So that was the end of that."

Jerry Beach is still playing in Shreveport. We don't know where the rest of the guys are. (MW/BSt)

	Bad Wind/Images: The City	(Paula 370) 1972
	Louie Louie/Touch The Sun	(Paula 374) 1972

Originally known as Debbie & The Lads, this Shreveport, Louisiana band is totally unconnected to the Houston-based outfit, despite the fact that some members of that band also hailed from Shreveport.

Their earlier releases include competent brassy pop-rock renditions of It's Been A Long Time Coming (Delaney & Bonnie), Born On The Bayou (Creedence Clearwater Revival), and My Baby Specializes (Hayes & Porter). Trivia time: the guitar solo on Night Owl was by Mouse & The Traps' Bugs Henderson, who was drafted in when the youthful Pershing Wells couldn't quite cut it.

After three single the band folded but manager Gene Kent owned the name and decided to carry on. The services of sax player Rick Folse were retained and Kent signed up Noel Odom and The Group, who'd just lost their frontman to the Naval Services.

The Bad Habits Mk.2 kicked off with a Noel Odom song, Thank You For The Love. Their next release, Bad Wind, is pleasant orchestrated pop but the flip Images: The City is far more interesting. It's pop with a heavy fuzz intro, before an unexpected mid-section featuring discordant trumpets and a quirky guitar solo, which hovers on the verge of avant-garde and lifts it to another level. Their final single offers up a fuzzed-out version of Louie Louie, backed by good garage-psycher Touch The Sun.

Night Owl, Born On The Bayou and I Don't Want To Discuss It are compiled on Born On The Bayou (LP). (MW/SR/MK)

THE BAGATELLE
11pm SATURDAY

THE BAGATELLE - 11pm Saturday LP.

EP:	1 THE BAD ROADS	(Sundazed SEP 143) 1999

45s:	Too Bad/Blue Girl	(JIN 210) 1966
	Till The End Of The Day/ Don't Look Back	(Rain Tyre 1000) 1967

From Lake Charles, Louisiana this outfit evolved out of the Shadows and the Avengers. Their first single with its sneering vocals and fuzztone guitar defines classic mid-sixties American punk.

Several members went on to the Lemon Blue.

The Sundazed EP brings together both singles in a neat picture sleeve annotated by Jud Cost and 'Brown Paper Sack's' Andrew Brown and with reminiscences from Danny Kimball and Briant Smith.

In the eighties Bad Girl has been covered by the Miracle Workers on the Moxie's Revenge (LP) and Too Bad by the Morlochs on their Uglier Than You'll Ever Be (CD).

Compilation appearances have so far included: Blue Girl and Too Bad on Pebbles, Vol. 9 (LP); Too Bad, Til The End Of The Day and Blue Girl on Louisiana Punk Groups From The Sixties, Vol. 2 (LP) and Sixties Archive Vol. 3 (LP); Blue Girl on Mindrocker, Vol. 4 (LP) and We Have Come For Your Children (cassette); and Blue Girl and Too Bad on Acid Visions (LP) and Acid Visions - The Complete Collection Vol. 1 (3-CD). Strangely, both Acid Visions compilations miscredit Too Bad as Outside Looking In by 'The Unknowns'. (VJ/MW)

	ROD PRINCE	gtr, vcls	A
	MIKE TAYLOR	gtr, vcls	A

ALBUM: 1(A) THE J-BECK STORY PART 1: BAD SEEDS (Eva 12034) 1983

NB: (1) also issued on CD, together with the equivalent Zakary Thaks album as A Texas Battle Of The Bands, Collectables (COL-0652) 1995.

45s:	Taste Of The Same/I'm A King Bee	(J-Beck 1002) 1965
	Zilch Pt.1/Pt.2	(J-Beck 1003) 1965
	All Night Long/Sick And Tired	(J-Beck 1005) 1966

This Corpus Christi outfit was discovered by Carl Becker, who ran the J-Beck/Cee-Be record label, playing at the Surf Club. They had formed in 1964 - Taylor had previously fronted an outfit called The Four Winds and Prince and Donaho had played together in The Titans. For a while they were the Corpus Christi act. Their first single, a punkish Stones-inspired number, attracted some local interest. They followed it up with a double-sided instrumental and the 'A' side of their third and final effort was a version of the 13th Floor Elevators' Tried To Hide, which had not been released at the time. They also appeared as the back-up band on the 'B' side of the 1966 single Down The Road I Go by Tony Joe and The Mojos.

Rod Prince later played in the New Seeds and Bubble Puppy.

Eva/Collectables' posthumous release features their three singles, two other J-Beck singles Mike Taylor recorded under the name Michael after The Bad Seeds split and two previously unreleased cuts: Checkerboard and Arkansas. Other compilation appearances include: - All Night Long on Off The Wall, Vol. 1 (LP); A Taste Of The Same on Son Of The Gathering Of The Tribe (LP), Garage Beat '66 5 (CD) and Garage Music For Psych-Heads Vol. 1 (cassette); I'm A King Bee on Garage Beat '66 7 (CD) and both A Taste Of The Same and I'm A King Bee on Green Crystal Ties Vol. 1 (CD); (VJ/MW/SR/MM)

The Bad Seeds (KY)

45:	King Of The Soap Box/He's Lying	(Columbia 4-43670) 1966

From Erlanger, Kentucky. This outfit's sole known single is full-blown jingle-jangle ala-Byrds-via-Dylan on the 'A' side, which can be heard on

Mindrocker, Vol. 7 (LP). The flip is equally jangley but is more in the Searchers/Beau Brummels mould. (MW/MM)

Down And Out/Up In The Morning (Decca 32409) 1968

Red Purple And Blue (Decca 32463) 1969

A 'psychedelic soul' group that came from the same New York-based blue-eyed soul scene as The (Young) Rascals and The Soul Survivors. Jimmy Curtiss produced their album and co-wrote two songs for it.

Of the single cuts: Nickels 'n' Dimes has an acid flavour thanks to some good fuzz; the rest delve into funky, brassy or orchestrated soul-rock. (VJ/MW/SR)

ALBUM: 1(A) 11 PM SATURDAY (ABC ABCS-646) 1968

45: Such A Fuss About Sunday/
What Can I Do (ABC Paramount 11063) 1968

This integrated soul/rock group's album was produced by Tom Wilson. Notable for featuring Willie "Loco" Alexander and Lee Mason (both ex-Lost), it may interest the fans of psych/soul in the Chamber Brothers' mode, although it's not as good.

Compilation appearances include: Back On The Farm on Tom's Touch, a compilation of Tom Wilson productions; Everybody Knows and Back On The Farm on The Best Of Bosstown Sound (2-CD); and Everybody Knows on Family Circle - Family Tree (CD). (SR)

Johnimah Bahlu (CA)

45: Other People/Come Cry On My Shoulder (Acta 812) 1967

Like a hippie version of Bob Lind, Johnimah's Other People adds sitar and a spoken section to lilting, orchestrated folk-pop to produce mildly interesting results. This Los Angeles-based artist would become more familiar a few years later with his beautiful-people band The Lite Storm. (MW)

ALBUM: 1 COSMIC REMEMBRANCE
(World Pacific WPS 21875) 1967 SC

45: Lonely Teardrops/
The Yogi Tripper (Terra Records DM 1001/2) 196?

NB: Canadian release.

BALDWIN AND LEPS - Self Titled LP.

The album features cosmic droning sitar, fronted by shrill spoken vocals that soon start to irritate. This is a rambling cosmic hippie journey of philosophy into whimsical fantasy, so garage-niks should keep well clear. It comprises four meandering tracks - Cosmic Remembrance, A Game Called Who Am I, How Can I Tell My Guru, and A Cosmic Telephone Call From The Angel Liesle And The Buddha eloquently describe where this is coming from. Mellow meditation music or cosmic twaddle? Well, you'll also find How Can I Tell My Guru on Electric Psychedelic Guitar Sitar Headswirlers 5 (LP).

The single, presumably released prior to the album and perhaps better than any of her subsequent work, was released on a Victoria, British Columbia record label, suggesting that Bahlu may have been Canadian.

Kali Bahlu later turned up in Lite Storm. (MW/MMs)

45: I'm A Man Part 1/Part 2 (Largo 5002) 1967

From Lancaster, Pennsylvania their extended version of Bo Diddley's classic song really is very impressive indeed - some superb guitar work and lots of sound effects. Well worth a listen it has been compiled on Pebbles, Vol. 14 (LP) and The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 2 (2-CD). They also have another cut, It Don't Mean Nothing on Gravel Volume 4 (CD). (VJ/MW)

ALBUM: 1(A) BALDWIN AND LEPS (Vanguard VSD 6567) 1971

NB: (1) reissued on CD and LP (Vanguard VMD 6567) 2001.

This rarely seen album was recorded by an unusual duo violin/guitar outfit and released in 1971. It's notable for the side-long Calamandatine Brown with his five parts (Hannah, Headin' West, Spirit, The Dealer and Bella Donna). The lyrics are interesting, tackling subjects such as drug dealing, people going to Canada to run from the draft, prostitution, teenagers leaving New York City for California etc. The music has some haunting moments.

Recorded in New York, the album was produced by Lor Crane and all their material was written by Michael Baldwin. (SR)

From Framingham, Maine their Cori single contains a cool harmony beat-ballad that could only come from New England, backed with an okay version of High Flying Bird. Unfortunately their Seven Seas single contains club/cabaret-type male-female harmony vocal pop and is best avoided. (MW/MM)

Luther Rabb and Jim Walters began recording together in 1965 with Emergency Exit, and Rabb had also a brief spell with Calliope. Billy McPherson was formerly with The Regents, who started out in Tacoma - Lakewood, Washington.

An East Coast band who were probably based in New York City (although Florida has also been mooted as their home). A Question Of Temperature, an excellent psychedelic punk effort, has been heavily compiled and is well worth checking out. It was also a minor hit.

Some of the above-mentioned personnel later reappeared in The Huck Finn.

45:	Spinning, Spinning, Spinning/ Baby Please Don't Go	(Warner Brothers 7027) 1967

At long last Curt Boettcher has started to achieve deserved recognition. His Millennium and Sagittarius exploits are reasonably documented and have seen reissues over the last decade. But his earlier projects and one-offs as creator, arranger and producer have remained legend only amongst a handful of specialist collectors. Now thankfully, Rev-Ola has started a series that should see his star shine again. The Ballroom CD kicks off with 22 tracks that document his post-Goldebriars period, centred around Ballroom and Summers Children, and includes demos that were to mature with Millennium and Sagittarius. It's a treasure trove for lovers of creative dream-pop and the soft underbelly of psychedelia, complete with a fascinating and informative booklet by Dawn Eden.

Ballroom's sole single is one of the many highlights of the CD. Spinning is much akin to the rather twee and harmony-drenched styles of Sagittarius and Millennium, but Baby Please Don't Go is not to be missed, his amazing interpretation is totally different to the usual garage-punk ravers that had gone before - a psychedelic rain-dance that eventually reels off into chaotic effects - wow!

ALBUM: 1(A) BAMBOO (Elektra EKS-74048) 1969

This Minnesota group was led by Dave Ray, who was previously part of the blues/folk trio Koerner, Ray and Glover. Produced by Allan Emig and recorded on the Feather River in Keddle, California their only album contains a mix of folk, blues, rock and country highlighted by four excellent tracks: Girl Of The Seasons, Blak Bati Chari Blooz, Sok Mi Toot Tru Luv, all with inventive organ and guitar parts and Keep What Makes You Feel Nice, a progressive blues song in the style of Butterfield Blues Band. All their material was original and the use of strange instruments (rocksichord, Leslie guitar, tack piano) provide some unusual effects. As usual with Elektra, the sound quality is excellent.

Dave Ray later released solo albums and Sanford "Sandy" Konikoff, who had previously played with Gentle Soul, became a session drummer, notably working with Leon Russell, Grinder's Switch and Ben Sidran. Brendan Harkin later played in Papa Nebo, Free Beer and Starz.

Girl Of The Seasons has subsequently resurfaced on From Burbank To The Bay Area (CD). (SR)

Back In The USA/Back In The USA (mono) (Raccoon 11/Warner WB 7626) 1972

This is an excellent addition to The Youngbloods discography. The only solo album of Lowell "Banana" Levinger, backed by the other Youngbloods (sans Jesse Colin Young) and the renowned jazz bass player Steve Swallow. The album recorded whilst he was in California, contains a mix of rock, folk, bluegrass and more experimental tracks. The singles are from the album. In 1973, Levinger took part in the production of the A Euphonious Wail album and then apparently vanished from the music scene.

Banana was also in charge of The Youngbloods' record label, Raccoon, and as such produced the albums of Michael Hurley, High Country, Joe Bauer and Kenny Gill. He later re-emerged playing on Here Goes Nothin' (1987), by Zero, a Bay Area group featuring John Cipollina, Steve Kimock and Martin Fierro.

The singles are from the album. (SR)

This band, along with Sir Lord Baltimore, Yesterday's Children et. al. were among the East Coast's premier heavy blasters of the post-psychedelic era. Massachusetts and New York have both been suggested as home bases for this band. Check out I Just Don't Know and Evolmia from their amazing first album on Atlantic. The second album has longer, less structured cuts with seemingly endless guitar soloing... nevertheless, both are recommended.

The first album was produced by Warren Schatz and Stephen Schlaks.

At the end of the year, Chicago Express splintered again with Dave Baroh switching to bass, and Russ Kammerer joining with John Soltero to form a power trio called The Punch. In March of 1968 Pat Gossan was added on keyboards, but The Punch split in August 1968 with David Baroh (and later John Soltero) going on to Bluebird. Day-Time.. is a cool jangley swirly folk-punker with sultry Byrds' harmonies that has been included on the excellent Fuzz Flaykes & Shakes Vol. 1 (LP & CD), whose liners give their location as Los Angeles.

The single was originally released as by the F.B.I. (Four Boys Incorporated) with identical titles, label and number. Perhaps they were 'encouraged' to change their name by some bureau heavies?! Both sides of a demo, credited to F.B.I., resurfaced on The Cicadelic 60s Vol. 3 (CD). (MW/CF)

45s:	Turn On Your Lovelight/Perfect Girl	(Tower 246) 1966
	Theme From Thunder Alley/Time After Time	(Sidewalk 913) 1967

The Band Without A Name was managed by Casey Kasem and they played at two clubs on the Sunset Strip as the house band during 1965-66. David Marks had previously played with The Beach Boys and both he and Eddie Haddad were in Dave and The Marksmen, until they broke up in 1965. Marks then formed The Band Without A Name, with Mark Groseclose (Affectionately known as 'Goosegrease' by their fans). Mark was a great drummer, and had played live with the Beach Boys for a month in 1962 when Dennis hurt his hand. Mark had also drummed for The Survivors, a short-lived side project of Brian Wilson who released one single, Pamela Jean, and did session work for The Honeys.

They ended up backing Sonny and Cher (who were still Caesar and Cleo at the time), played with Bobby Fuller and also with the post-Spector Teddy Bears.

Their first single, Turn On Your Lovelight received some airplay on KRLA and the band got to open for acts like Thee Midniters and Monte and The Crystals, as well as playing 'The Teenage Fair' in 1965 and '66.

Their second single came from the "Thunder Alley" soundtrack and was thought to have possibly been Davie Allan and The Arrows in disguise. However Davie Allan, Mark Groseclose and David Marks don't remember doing the track, so it could just as easily be the work of another band/session musicians and issued as The Band Without A Name by their record company.

The real Band Without A Name did cut a version of Fats Domino's Whole Lotta Lovin', a song called Tavelin' that we assume was an original and a cover of I'm Blue without vocals. None of these have been released.

The band is thought to have been from the San Fernando Valley or Hawthorne area.

David Marks later played with The Moon and also did session work for Buzz Clifford, The Full Treatment, Danny Brooks, Delany and Bonnie amongst many others. (BCr/SR/EG)

Formed by Tony D'Iorio, this high-energy hard-rock band band was thought to be from Florida, but this is not the case. Bang did in fact come from Pennsylvania, but played in Florida quite a lot. Some of this confusion is no doubt because there was a Florida act called the Bangles (also known as the Bangs) that by 1971 was calling itself Sun Country. The musical offering comprises straight forward seventies rock and roll.

Produced by Jeffrey Cheen and John Palladino, recorded in Miami and L.A, their second album is a kind of concept album, with distinct "Mother" and "Bow To The King" sides, label presentation and cover art. All the material was written by Cheen, Ferrara and D'Iorio (who had then chosen to leave the group but continued to write lyrics for them) with the exception of a cover of Randy Bachman's No Sugar Tonight. Four of its eight tracks were featured on singles and the album is rather good, full of energetic songs.

They also have one cut The Queen on Up All Night (CD). (RBc/SR/JLh/MW)

A Chicago band, whose Project Blue was a head-banging assault on the senses with some superb guitar riffs and is considered one of the city's classic recordings. If you hear it - you'll know why. The band was also known as The Fugitives and later The Prophets, whilst Pete Sheldon had earlier played in the U.K. group Tornados.

Smead now runs a New York bar, Rouse became a lumberjack, Bucaro became a priest and Lito relocated to Texas. Project Blue was also covered by The Endd who operated out of La Porte, Indiana.

Banshees formed at Mills High School in Burlingame, in the South Bay area of San Francisco as an instrumental combo called The Black Knights in 1962. Later in 1964 vocals were added and they changed name to The Banshees. They Prefer Blondes is a sort of wailing Kingsmen-style punk song. In 1967 they changed their name again to Ariel.

Compilation appearances have included: They Prefer Blondes on Boulders, Vol. 4 (LP), Back From The Grave, Vol. 2 (LP) and Garage Kings (2-LP); and Take A Ride With Me on Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 11 (LP & CD). (VJ/MW/AP)

Both have a loose'n'live feel - but club sounds rather than garage. Just A Little Bit (also covered by the Zombies, Tommy Burk and The Counts and Aussie acts Tony Worsley and The Blue Jays, Chosen Few and Purple Hearts) is the stronger thanks to some neat guitar solos. Her obscure second album came in a black and white cover with gothic lettering. This is a folk-rock album credited to the National Youth Pro-Life Coalition. The material is stronger than on her first effort. There are some lovely harmonies and arrangements and a stunning version of The Hollies' He Ain't Heavy? (SR/VJ)

Barbara was a pretty young black woman, while Ernie was a white male in his forties (and looking extremely tired on the front cover!) which makes this a rather weird but interesting duo. A soft psych/jazz hybrid, their album contains several interesting tracks, notably a long and spacey cover of the Airplane's Somebody To Love and Listen With Your Heart with sitar, which is the stand-out track. The album features guest appearances from jazz musicians Keith Jarrett and Joe Beck. (SR/VJ)

From Provincetown, Massachusetts this punk band who were once regulars on 'Shindig', are best known for their 1965 single Are You A Boy Or Are You A Girl? and Moulty, the story of how their drummer lost his hand (in a fireworks accident when he was 14)! Their album, which has been reissued a number of times, has several cover versions but failed to chart. They played with energy and passion though and Moulty's raw vocals will appeal to some. Their pre-album single is well worth a listen.

After they split up, remaining members Bernie Fieldings, Jerry Causi and Bruce Benson went to San Francisco in 1967 and formed Black Pearl. Moulty went into the cleaning business in Abington, Massachusetts as the Moulton Cleaning Co. In 1995, he reformed the band as Moulty and the Barbarians with his sons, Tory and Eric, and twins Ken and Karl Olson.

Barber Green (OR)

45:	Life/Gliding Ride	(F-Empire GRS 1106) 1968

On a very obscure label out of Eugene, Oregon Barber Green was the work of five teens from Brownsville, who were managed by Jack Richardson. The band took their name from a road paving machine (a' la Buffalo Springfield) and mostly played local dances, with one show in Eugene.

Life is pleasant acoustic folk-pop. The flip, Gliding Ride, kicks off innocuously enough but one is suddenly woken by a brief fuzzy outburst before a return to the sparse'n'simple theme. The next verse ends with another burst, then an all-too-short bridge where the guitarist is allowed his head, and a denouement wrapped in some fine lead. So it ends, with potential unfulfilled - this could have been so good if only they'd let rip.

Gliding Ride has also been included on Psychedelic Experience Vol. 4 (CD). (MW/MM/GGI)

The Bar Boys formed in Paragould, Arkansas in 1967. Their version of Hit The Road Jack starts in unpromising fashion with a brassy intro but it improves as the vocalist warms to his task, finally erupting into a great fuzzy guitar break immediately followed by a brief flute interlude. You can also check it out on Psychedelic States: Arkansas Vol. 1 (CD). The flip is classy booming keyboard-led pop with a crisp Motown-influenced swing in the rhythm section.

Ron Hall's book, 'Playing For A Piece Of The Door', provides the personnel above and reveals that the single was recorded at Sonic studios in Memphis, Tennessee. (MW)

NB: α was originally scheduled for release as Panorama 46 but was never released. β Not released. χ as Moses Lake. δ as "The Bards featuring Bob Galloway".

The Bards operated out of Moses Lake, Washington between 1961-69. They evolved out of a school teen combo called The Fabulous Continentals, who were a late fifties and early sixties covers outfit. They took their new name, The Bards from Roget's Thesaurus - the word 'Bard' meaning 'a travelling English minstrel, poet ...' they were a travelling group of musicians and the reference to England clinched it because they wanted to sound like The Beatles. They even became a foursome when John Draney, their lead vocalist, left to join the army.

Their big break came when Never Too Much Love, an original arrangement of an old Curtis Mayfield tune, made it to No 67 nationally in the Cash Box Top 100, although it seems not to have figured in the Billboard charts. It created the opportunity for them to tour with big name acts like The Turtles, The Dave Clark Five and Paul Revere and The Raiders. During 1967 Mardi Sheridan left the band for a while to head for San Francisco and was temporarily replaced by virtuoso guitarists known as Apple Andy and Mark Chelson, who joined from George Washington and the Cherry Bombs. When Sheridan returned they headed for L.A. to find a producer.

In Hollywood they met Curt Boettcher and Keith Olsen and in 1968 under their production recorded an unreleased album, although this resulted in the break-up of the band. After its completion Curt Boettcher wanted to go back to the Northwest to sing with the band which delighted Mike and Mardi but not Bob and Chuck who wanted to get back on their old gig circuit and preserve their autonomy. So the split came when Mike and Mardi left and ultimately headed to L.A. to pursue writing and recording careers, although Bob and Chuck regrouped and carried on with the name for a while. For their Boettcher/Olsen period, they renamed themselves Moses Lake and a single was released under that moniker on Together Records.

In 2002 Gear Fab released the Moses Lake album containing the material that had been produced by Boettcher and Olsen. It's a pot-pourri of late sixties sounds, from bouncy pop to acidic rock, with an underground vibe - decidedly ambitious and uncommercial. Not the usual dreamy, harmony pop associated with Boettcher although his influence is clear in the harmonies and multi-layered arrangements. It comprises seven tracks including the Together single pairing and The Creation, a religious seven-movement 20-minute mini-rock-opera.

In the late seventies and early eighties Jerry Dennon released the History Of Northwest Rock series on the Great Northwest label, plus a slew of retrospective albums on the First American and Piccadilly labels. Many of the latter are hard to find, amongst them the Bards' retrospective, of which band members were unaware. Ten tracks were selected: seven single cuts (My Generation, The Owl And The Pussycat, Light Of Love, Never Too Much Love, The Jabberwocky, Goodtime Charlie's Got The Blues and Tunesmith) and three unreleased tracks (By The Time I Get to Phoenix, I Kissed Her Feet and Be Happy).

Michael Balzotti later played in a duo with Seattle singer/songwriter Michael Langdon called The Michaels. Mardi Sheridan now works in advertising; Chuck Warren manages an irrigation company in Moses Lake; Bob Galloway raises show horses and Mike Balzotti owns a real estate company in Seattle.

Compilation appearances have so far included: Freedom Catcher on The History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 3 (CD); Light Of Love on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 - Flash And Crash (LP); Light Of Love and The Owl and The Pussycat on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 - Flash And Crash (CD); My Generation on Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 2 (LP), Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 2 - Knock You Flat! (LP & CD), Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 2 (CD) and The History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 3 (LP); The Owl and The Pussycat on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 (CD), Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 (LP), History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 2 (CD) and The History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 2 (LP); Never Too Much Love and Tunesmith on The History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 1 (LP); and Goodtime Charley's Got The Blues on History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 6 (cassette). ALBUM:	1(A)	THE MOTHER OF US ALL	(Tetragrammaton T-123) 1969

Despite his name, the Steve Baron Quartet didn't just play jazz but an intriguing mix of rock and folk, with strong jazz influences prevalent especially on the guitar parts. The 'Quartet were formed in 1967 in New York City by Steve Baron who had earlier participated in the Greenwich Village folk revival of the early sixties. Helped by session drummers, they released only one album in 1969, for the small Californian label Tetragrammaton. (This label also released Joshua Fox, Ivory and Quatrain and was partly owned by Bill Cosby). Produced by Mike Berniker and arranged by Manny Albam, the best tracks are Bertha Was The Mother Of Us All, Don't You Hate The Feeling and the 11 minute Shadow Man. These are extremely gentle, intimate and sensitive songs set to uncommon accompaniments. The fragile nature of the music may offend rock fanatics, but makes great late night fodder. Some of the other tracks, however, suffer from the addition of strings.

Curiously Pete Townshend penned the enthusiastic liner notes "all the sounds spontaneously and simultaneously imploding and exploding. Just like nature! The Quartet make Natural Music. Jai Baba!"

In 1970, Bill Davidson joined Gas Mask for Their First Album (and last!). (SR/MK)

	Don't Burn It/I Hope I Please You	(Brownfield 1035) 1966

Here's a different act which formed at Haltom High School in Fort Worth, also in Texas. All four singles were written by John Nitzinger who later formed his own band in the seventies and then went on to play for Alice Cooper in the early eighties. Live And Die was a good folk-rocker, but their best effort was Don't Burn It, an anti-draft folk protest song. 	Reach For The Sky/Colors Of Love	(Tener T1021) 1967/8

From Orlando, Florida this band lasted through many personnel changes, after the original line-up detailed above, right up to 1977 - quite a feat. Drawbridge is a cool power-punker with a killer fuzz riff throughout, right up with the likes of The Del-Vetts' Last Time Around. Lovin' Man harks back to a 1964-5 R&B-influenced U.K. beat style. Reach For The Sky is a cool Raiders' like fuzzed pop-punker.

Compilation appearances include: Drawbridge on Yeah Yeah Yeah (CD) and Psychedelic Crown Jewels Vol. 2 (CD & 2-LP); Drawbridge and Lovin' Man on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 5: The Cave (LP); You Must Believe Me on the sought-after Bee Jay Demo, Vol. 2 1967 (LP); Colors Of Love on the equally rare Bee Jay Video Soundtrack (LP); More Today Than Yesterday and Spinning Wheel on Bee Jay Sampler, Vol. 1 (LP); both Vehicle and 25 Or 6 To 4 on Bee Jay Sampler (LP); and Reach For The Sky on Psychedelic States - Florida Vol. 2 (CD). 45:	I'll Be Lonely/ You Are Your Only Mystery	(Ironbeat HR 1167) 1968

A latter-day one-off moniker for The Jaguars of Columbus, Ohio who formed around 1964 whilst students at the Bexley and Eastmoor high schools. You Are Your Only Mystery, which Dan Masys says was influenced by the Beatles' Eleanor Rigby and the Left Banke's Walk Away Renee, is a soft-baroque-rock charmer with horns and piano and a vaguely hippie aura - but don't let that put you off, it's highly rated by many. Save a fortune, and judge for yourself by checking it out on Psychedelic Crown Jewels Vol. 2 (CD & 2-LP). There is also a different version on Psychedelic States: Ohio Vol. 2 (CD).

Prior to this The Jaguars had a single that made it to the acetate stage in 1964/5, Two Can Play/The Day You're Mine. The former is also on Psychedelic Crown Jewels Vol. 2.

In 1999 Dan Masys is Associate Clinical Professor of Medicine in California, Sampson is an engineer for Lockheed Martin, Kelly a gymnastics teacher in New Jersey, Rickley lives in Indiana and Edelstein's whereabouts are unknown. (MW/GGI/RM)

ALBUM:	1(A)	BAROQUES (mono/stereo)	(Chess 1516) 1967 R1

NB: (1) was counterfeited and released in Greece (Chess 1516) 198? with two bonus tracks. (1) later reissued on vinyl (Sweet Dandelion SWDDL 709) 2007 in a limited edition of 500 with a superb cover.

There are also two retrospective compilations: The Baroques Are In (Baroque Records DRP-9005) 1989 on vinyl and Purple Day (Distortions no #) 1996 on CD.

45s:	Mary Jane/Iowa, A Girl's Name	(Chess 2001) 1967
	I Will Not Touch/Remember	(Baroque 4553/4) 1968

The Baroques came from Milwaukee, Wisconsin and were one of the first psychedelic bands in the area - their album was recorded in March and released in June 1967. Their original album Baroques is excellent and also includes their best track, Musical Tribute To The Oscar Weiner Wagon, which starts slowly, culminating in a kaleidoscopic interplay of guitar and drums. A consistently high standard is also maintained throughout almost all the album with Rose Colored Glasses, In Silver Light and Purple Day featuring fine guitar interplay which captures the band at its best.

Originally known as The Complete Unknowns they dressed in baroque costumes and always played with a white pot-bellied stove on stage which contained the controls for their light show. After the first album Chess wanted them to record material like Chippie, The Hippie From Mississippi which the band refused to do. They were subsequently released from their Chess contract and released their own single I Will Not Touch You in April, 1968. The band split some six months later.

Wayne Will, an original member, was drafted in August 1966. Jay stayed in music business, Jacques is now a communications professor at University of Colorado, Dean an art professor at Massachusetts College of Art and Rich is a travelling salesman.

Anyone interested in finding out more should take their pick between two retrospective compilations. The vinyl The Baroques Are In put out by the band on their own label, contains some of their finer tracks from their original album (Mary Jane, Musical Tribute To The Oscar Weiner Wagon, Iowa, A Girls Name and Bicycle), otherwise the material is all new. Sunflowers and At The Garden Gate, both from February 1968, are more in a progressive vein with lots of extended instrumentation. Still, quite interesting though. The CD, Purple Day covers similar ground with rarities and "best of" material alike.

Not surprisingly their material has also been heavily compiled. You can find Mary Jane on Psychedelic Crown Jewels, Vol. 1 (CD & 2-LP); Musical Tribute To The Oscar Weiner Wagon on Mindrocker, Vol. 6 (LP); I Will Not Touch You and Remember, on Glimpses, Vol. 2 (LP) and Glimpses, Vol. 1 & 2 (CD); I Will Not Touch You on Gone, Vol. 1 (LP); Nothing Left To Do But Cry on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 15 (LP), Wyld Sydes Volume Six (CD) and Psychedelic Archives Vol. 7 (double cassette box); Iowa, A Girl's Name on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 2 (2-LP) and Turds On A Bum Ride Vol.'s 1 & 2 (CD); and finally, Remember on the vinyl version of The Psychedelic Experience, Vol. 1 (LP). Highland Springs just to the east of Richmond, Virginia, (not Winston-Salem in North Carolina as was stated on the Tobacco-A-Go-Go compilation) was this band's home. They formed in late 1964 as a six-piece but soon solidified into the five-piece listed above in early 1965. Donnie Thurston's dad became their manager and they took part in various 'Battle Of The Bands' during 1965. Their first single in 1966 comprised an unimpressive folk-rocker on the 'A' side and an instrumental cover on the flip. They put it out on their own Cuda label. The same session also produced I'll Never Fall Again, their best original, and a bizarre medley of Gloria, Baby Please Don't Go, which remains unreleased.

In 1967, they recorded an album for Justice Records of Winston-Salem, North Carolina. Besides two originals:- I Can't Believe and I'll Never Fall Again, the album comprised sloppy teenage versions of Blue Feeling, Feel A Whole Lot Better, Not Fade Away, I Call Your Name, Shotgun and I'm A Man, which were so faithfully rendered and devoid of fuzz that they sound more U.K. than U.S.. Clearly The Rolling Stones were their inspiration. One of the better tracks was I'm A Lover Not A Fighter, a frat-rocker from the Kinks' second album but Shotgun, in particular, was a pitiful attempt at exploiting sixties soul music. Nevertheless the album sold over 700 copies and the band became popular on the college frat-rock circuit.

By 1968 they had progressed into a Hendrix/Cream-type heavy jam sound, but surprisingly their final single in 1969 was a folk-rocker. They quit in late 1969. Their album is now quite a big collectors' item but it's really overrated.

From Bunkie, Louisiana and originally known as the Pickles, their story is revealed in Andrew Brown's 'Brown Paper Sack #1', thanks to Mark Prellberg. Their screamin' raver was unleashed on the world in April 1965 and graces Back From The Grave, Vol. 6 (LP), coming on like a younger and speeded-up version of the Pretty Things. The flip was a slower Stones-style effort.

They disbanded in 1967 with John and Tommy forming Nobody's Children - no known releases and not to be confused with at least half-a-dozen same name outfits. John Haas was tempted away to lend his vocal talents to Jimmy & The Offbeats, who then renamed themselves as John Eric & The Isosceles Popsicles who recorded I'm Not Nice on the USA label. 45: Never Existed/Taste Of A Kiss (Senate 2109) 1967

This fairly atypical garage punk band hailed from Baton Rouge, the State Capital and petrochemical industry centre in Louisiana. Perhaps they played in Texas a lot because they certainly seem to have been connected with the Lone Star State. Texas Punk, Vol. 8 (LP) and Acid Visions - Complete Collection, Vol. 3 (3-CD) captures a live recording of the band at the Act III in 1967. It's pretty raw stuff as they work their way through versions of Louie Louie, We Ain't Got Nothing Yet, Hungry, Double Shot Of My Baby's Love, Like A Rolling Stone and The Basement Exit.

Never Existed, their stab at immortality, can also be heard on Relics, Vol. 1 (LP), Relics Vol's 1 & 2 (CD) and Boulders, Vol. 10 (LP). The Cicadelic 60's, Vol. 4 (LP) also contains an alternate take of the song. Ronnie Weiss (Mouse And The Traps) was on hand in the studio to wield lead guitar on this master-piece.

George Ratzlaff went on to form Pot Liquor, who recorded three albums of respectable blues-rock for Janus between 1970-73.

The retrospective on Cicadelic/Collectables may be a reissue of their original album on Senate, if indeed it was ever officially released. Many collectors are very dubious of its existence. Also of interest is Vol. 2/There Goes The Neighbourhood (COL-CD-0541), which contains 18 tracks, mainly covers of classic mid-sixties tunes.

Other compilation appearances have included: - Everything, I'm Not That Slow and Never Existed on The Cicadelic 60's, Vol. 2 (CD); Never Existed and You on Green Crystal Ties Vol. 2 (CD); Teenybopper on Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers 1 (LP); both Louie Louie and We Ain't Got Nothing Yet on Green Crystal Ties Vol. 7 (CD) and The Basement Exit, No Matter What Shape Your Stomach.. and We Ain't Got Nothing Yet also figure on Acid Visions Vol. 7 (CD). Discovered by John Fahey who signed him to his Takoma label, Robbie Basho was a singer and acoustic guitar player combining his folk and country roots with Native American, Arabic, Persian and Indian music. His work can be compared to Sandy Bull or Peter Walker and may also interest fans of Kaleidoscope or John Berberian, even if it's more meditative than the latter. NB: α shown as by The Tulu Babies. β initially released as The Tulu Babies and subsequently as The Baskerville Hounds. χ is a bootleg of α, miscredited as The Talula Babies. δ reissued 1967 prior to being leased to Dot.

This Cleveland, Ohio band was originally known as The Tulu Babies. The inclusion of their first single on Eva's Florida Punk From The '60s, where it states that they weren't a Florida band in the liner notes, has nonetheless caused much confusion. The title of the flip to their first single, as The Baskerville Hounds served only to add to this. Hold Me, incidentally, was the P.J. Proby song. It gave them their only hit peaking at No. 88. Neither a garage or a psychedelic outfit as such, The Tulu Babies/Baskerville Hounds dabbled in both at times. The Hurtin' Kind was probably their finest moment and later resurfaced on Everywhere Interferences (LP). Space Rock Part 2, which also got a further airing on Pride Of Cleveland Past (LP), is an organ-driven instrumental. By no means outstanding it is probably the pick of the crop on a disappointing album which includes reasonable covers of Penny Lane, Never On Sunday and I'm A Believer and some rather average originals. Apparently they were also known for not being the best looking bunch around!

The Baskerville Hounds later released a new CD, Look At Us Now, which contained new versions of Hurtin' Kind, Mine Forever, and Space Rock as well as 10 new original songs. The band also resumed live performances.

THE BASKERVILLE HOUNDS - Featuring Space Rock, Part 2 LP.

This Birmingham, Alabama band began as an instrumental quartet, The Church Keys, in high school in 1962. In short order they were joined by Charlie Feldman who took on the role of lead vocalist. They gigged regularly, performing covers of the latest hits. Come graduation year, and following a couple of personnel changes, they'd become the Bassmen and put out a single, recorded at Boutwell's studios.

Further graduations generated more personnel changes and in 1967 they switched to a more hip name, Candy Store Prophets, and released a single on the Cougar label. Strangely, copies also appeared, with identical titles and label #s, credited to Rising Suns.

I Need You is a quintessential slice of cool southern teen garage-beat, popular with compilers since the eighites. You can find it on The Garage Zone Vol. 2 (LP, reissued in 1990 as The Garage Zone (4-LP box-set), A Journey To Tyme Vol. 4 (LP), *Ya Gotta Have... 45: Nothing At All/Big Bright Eyes (HBR 445) 1965

An obscure outfit offers this evocative folk-rock single, with some Moody Blues type vocal 'ooos' on the tragic 'A' side, that graces Moxie's Folk Rock E.P. (7"), whilst Big Bright Eyes is a more upbeat strummed affair. This act may have just been a studio aggregation, featuring Danny Hutton (and possibly Larry Goldberg). Hutton issued several solo singles (including what may be a different version of Big Bright Eyes on HBR 453), before joining Cory Wells and The Enemys. He and Cory would later team up with Chuck Negron to become Three Dog Night.

Incidentally, the brooding Nothing At All was covered by the Love Exchange on their eponymous album in 1967. (VJ/MW)

A Connecticut band, who dug The Young Rascals, tackle J.J. Jackson's popular soul-popper But It's Alright (also covered by Them, The Red Dogs, Morning Reign and Canoise). This is a lively rendition with swirling keyboards, a little fuzz, and latterly brassy fanfares.

The flip is not a Stones' cover but a pulsating keyboard-led club dance instrumental with background vocal taunts and a great fuzz break. It ain't garage, rather a blood brother to that fave-rave of "Northern soul" circles - Footsee by the Chosen Few. (MW)

Singer, bassist and songwriter, Skip Battin (or Battyn) began his long career in the fifties in the pop duo Skip and Flip (Flip was Gary Paxton). Skip Battyn & The Groop's version of Night Time Girl is excellent Middle Eastern tinged folk-rock, very similar to the exotic, lilting version by The Modern Folk Quartet.

A long time friend of Kim Fowley, in 1969 he formed the Evergreen Blueshoes and played with both Armageddon and Gene Vincent. In 1970, he joined the Byrds in time for their Untitled album. He also played on Zevon's Wanted Dead Or Alive album.

His 1972 album is essentially country-pop but may interest some readers as all the songs were co-written by Battin and Fowley and the backing group comprised two Byrds (McGuinn and White), one ex-Mothers and Rhinoceros member (Billy Mundi) plus Spanky McFarlane from Spanky and Our Gang. Some tracks (Undercover Man, Cobras, Captain Video, Four Legs Are Better Than Two) are interesting if you appreciate Battin's nasal voice.

Battin later joined the New Riders Of The Purple Sage and the Flying Burrito Brothers and kept on recording with various country-rock formations in the seventies and eighties. He released a second solo album, Navigator (Appaloosa IT 014) in 1981. (SR/HS/MW)

Hailing from southeast Kansas this outfit travelled to Cavern Studios in Independence, Missouri to record this single, a pleasing organ-dominated pop offering. There's also rumoured to have been a second fuzz-drenched single, but I don't have details of this.

Don't Come Around Today can also be found on Monsters Of The Midwest, Vol. III (LP). (MW)

I Can't Get Her Out Of My Mind (Atlantic 2431) 1967
Without You/I Will Wait (Atlantic 2520) 1968

From Bay Ridge in Brooklyn, New York this quintet was originally known as The Chosen Few. Both singles have a garagy feel but also lean more towards Vanilla Fudge-styled R&B/soul-tinged vocals and keyboards. On the plus side there is some strong guitar work and good use of fuzz on Without Her and I Can't Get Her Out Of My Mind is reasonable garagy-pop. Their best effort however is I Will Wait - a good garagy workout and a song that actually is "One Chord", which the group modulates up to a higher key at the end.

Joey Carbone became music director for the long-running TV talent show 'Star Search'; in 2002 he was producing and composing for popular Japanese singers. Ritchie Zito would play guitar for Elton John before becoming a very successful producer for the likes of Cher, Heart, Cheap Trick, Bad English and Eddie Money; he was named No. 1 American producer in Billboard magazine in 1990.

I Can't Get Her Out Of Mind has turned up again on Psychedelic States: New York, Vol. 1 (CD); Without You can also be heard on Who Needs Tomorrow Vol. 2 (CD) and I Will Wait has resurfaced on Shadows Falling (CD). (MW/MM/VJ)

		Waiting For You/Such A Fool (PS)	(Belfast 67-1001) 1967

NB: α not released.

A cleverly named bunch from San Leandro, California. Waiting For You is a pleasant pop song whose chord progression features an open or suspended chord where the ears would expect a full major. The flip side, Such A Fool is a Beau Brummels derived gem with a mesmerizing guitar figure and a plaintive spine-tingling chorus. It's the perfect song of lost love when the fog rolls in over Frisco's moody landscape. It's got an old-style almost gold-rush aura about it.

All four cuts can be found on the Nuggets From The Golden State: You Got Yours! (CD). (SH/MW)

NB: α was also later released on X 301 and Candix 301. β was the first single release of the Hite Morgan recording of Surfer Girl. χ This was the first single release of the Hite Morgan version of Surfin' Safari.

Formed in Los Angeles in 1961 by the Wilson brothers, Love and Jardine, The Beach Boys were earlier known as Carl and The Passions, Kennny and The Cadets and The Pendletones. The Wilson brothers came from a middle class California district called Hawthorne.

Dennis was mad on surfing and Brian Wilson and Mike Love wrote a song on just that subject for him. Surfin', a simple 12-bar rock'n'roll number, was released on the small Candix label on 8 October 1961. It reached #76 and the group made its concert debut at the New Year's Eve Richie Valens Memorial Concert at the Long Beach Municipal Auditorium. On their ensuing tour in the summer of 1962, Wilson's neighbour David L. Marks replaced Al Jardine, whilst the latter attended dental college, although he returned later. When Candix folded, the Wilson's father Murry took a demo tape, which included Surfin' Safari, Surfin' USA and 409 to Nick Venet of Capitol who purchased the masters.

In June 1962 Capitol released Surfin' Safari as a single and it climbed to #14. The flip side was written by Brian Wilson and Gary Usher about Usher's Chevrolet 409. They repeated the success with Surfin' USA and then Surfer Girl became their third national surfing/drag car hit. America seemed to be going surfing and car mad and The Beach Boys were capitalising on it.

However, at this point they decided to abandon such a close association with surfing and cars, widening their lyrical content to encompass the good life enjoyed by California's youth, whilst their harmonies still reflected sun, sand, surf and cars. A string of hits followed: Fun Fun Fun, I Get Around, Barbara Ann, Dance Dance Dance, Do You Want To Dance, Help Me Rhonda and California Girls were perhaps their best known soungs of this era that lasted from 1962-5 and their first 11 albums were also of this period.

By early 1965, the pressures had taken their toll on Brian Wilson. He suffered a nervour breakdown, decided to stop touring with the band and was replaced briefly by Glen Campbell and then by Bruce Johnston (the later producer and co-owner with Terry Melcher of Equinox). Brian Wilson also became influenced by Van Dyke Parks (who would later write lyrics for the band) and introduced him to acid.

It's really the period of their career heralded by Pet Sounds that is of prime relevance to this book. The album retained their intricate vocal harmonies but matched them to more ambitiously structured songs. It also used a much more diverse range of instrumentation than the band had used before. Among the tracks on the album were Wouldn't It Be Nice, which dealt with the pleasures of sleeping together, the beautiful God Only Knows and Sloop John B, which were all hits. Pet Sounds was acknowledged by Paul McCartney as the catalyst for The Beatles' Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band. Although well received by the critics, the album did not sell well. Capitol were not pleased about their change of style and there was a serious rift between the band and their label. So the band decided to leave Capitol and form its own label - Brother Records, but first they had to work out their contract for Capitol.

Meanwhile Brian and Van Dyke Parks began work on an album, which was to be called Smile and the band's magnum opus. Whilst they were immersed in this project, Good Vibrations which had taken six months to make, was released. This complex revolutionary recording is arguably one of the finest pop singles of all time - there is so much going on in this song. It became their biggest ever hit and their first million selling single.

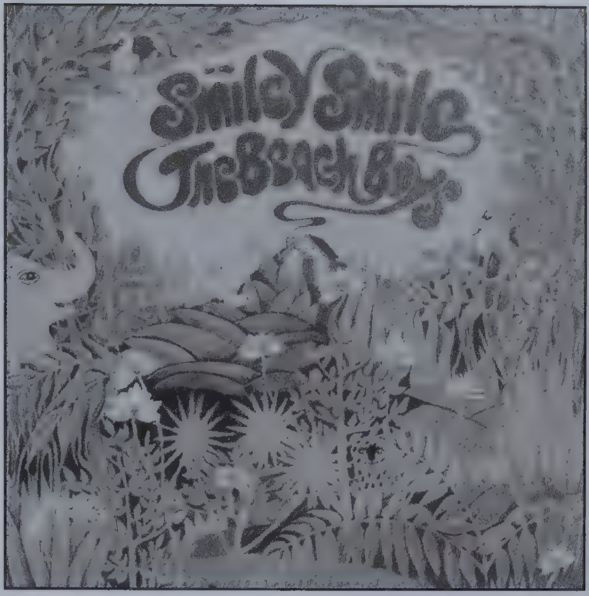
When the band returned from a European tour, they rejected the Smile material arguing that such complex orchestrated material could not be reproduced on stage. One track Heroes and Villains was released as a single and proved a very successful follow-up to Good Vibrations. After The Beatles issued Sgt Pepper in the spring of 1967 to wide acclaim, Wilson, perhaps realising that Smile could become second best to Sgt Pepper, agreed to scrap the project. However Vegetable, Wonderful and Wind Chimes (all intended for Smile) later appeared on Smiley Smile; Surf's Up appeared on the album of the same name and Cabinessence was included on 20/20.

The Smile saga seemed to mark a check on Wilson's influence over the group for 10 of the 11 tracks on Wild Honey were co-written by Brian Wilson and Mike Love. The album contained three masterpieces: the title track, Country Air and Darlin' and two of them delivered further hits. Overall, though, the harmonies on this album are simple and the backing was sparse, making Wild Honey the antithesis of Wilson's earlier quest for complexity.

Brian Wilson's diminished influence is also reflected on Friends. The title track was a strong song and Do It Again provided them with another hit, but much of the remaining material was a pale imitation of the band at its best. 20/20 and Sunflower (their first album for Reprise) also captured the band at its lowest ebb, despite 20/20 containing Cabinessence, which had been intended for the abortive Smile project. When Sunflower sold poorly, Brian became a recluse, experimenting with hallucinogens and toiling fitfully while the rest of the group went on to produce several strong but modest-selling albums in the early seventies.

By 1970 the band had become unstable. Brian was suffering from a hearing defect as well as living as a recluse. Dennis Wilson was recovering from a broken marriage and became involved with the notorious Charles Manson. Mike Love, meanwhile, had been getting into transcendental meditation.

Then, their fortunes took an upturn following a successful appearance at a Monterey Festival in 1970 and a series of benefit gigs for the ecology movement. This new interest was reflected in Surf's Up, which dealt with the issue of water and environmental pollution. The album also marked Brian's first collaboration with Jack Rieley (a former reporter for NBC news) who co-wrote A Day In The Life Of A Tree with Brian and sang lead on it. It also marked Brian's demise as the band's leading songwriter and producer - he was reduced to just three songwriting credits on the album.



THE BEACH BOYS - Smiley Smile CD.

Just when they seemed restored again among one of the world's leading rock bands, their internal structure disintegrated. Johnston departed and Dennis damaged his right hand in an accident and couldn't play drums anymore. Fataar and Chaplin (both South Africans) joined to fill out the stage sound. Carl and The Passions/So Tough was probably their worst album ever. Holland was an improvement (although it was apparently at one time in danger of rejection by Reprise). It included Sail On Sailor, which was another product of Brian's collaboration with Van Dyke Parks and Funky Pretty. Brian also wrote the seven-inch record Mount Vernon and Fairway, which was enclosed with the album. In Concert followed a series of successful live gigs in southern California and included material from throughout the band's career. The departure of Fataar and Chaplin in 1973 meant that the band reverted again to its original 1961 line-up.

In mid-1974, Capitol Records issued a repackaged hits collection, Endless Summer. Both band and label watched, dumbfounded, as the double album hit No. 1, spent almost three years on the charts, and went gold. The album capitalised on a growing fascination with oldies rock and 'Rolling Stone' named The Beach Boys its 'Band of the Year' at the end of the year. Another collection, Spirit Of America, hit the Top 10 in 1974, and The Beach Boys were hustled into the studio to begin new recordings.

Three years elapsed before another album of original material surfaced. 15 Big Ones titled to celebrate the fact it was 15 years since the band's initial recording success in 1961 was not wholly convincing, but it did capture Brian Wilson singing, writing and directing the band again. The Beach Boys Love You was a stronger album and not only was Brian Wilson involved in writing all the songs - he also produced the album.

By 1977 Dennis Wilson was doing solo work and Brian was partly involved with the band and partly at odds with Al Jardine. In 1979 Dennis Wilson quit to do solo work and in December 1983 he tragically drowned.

Despite the many quarrels, The Beach Boys kept touring during the early nineties, and Mike and Brian began writing songs together again in 1995. Instead of a new album though, the band issued Star and Stripes Vol. 1, a collection of remade hits with country stars singing lead and the group adding backing vocals. Also, a Brian Wilson documentary titled 'I Just Wasn't Made for These Times' was broadcast on the Disney Channel, with an accompanying soundtrack featuring spare renditions of Beach Boys classics by Brian himself. Then, disaster struck, as the band was getting it together for a new studio album Carl died of cancer in 1998. Later that year The Beach Boys released Endless Harmony, a rarities collection culled from an acclaimed television documentary on the group.

By early 1999, there were three Beach Boys-connected units touring the country - a Brian Wilson solo tour, the so-called "official" Beach Boys led by Mike Love, and the "Beach Boys Family" led by Al Jardine. In 2000, Capitol reissued the group's long out of print seventies albums.

The Beach Boys were one of the most durable bands in the history of rock and one of the most significant and successful to appear in this book. (VJ)

Formed in 1961 in Aberdeen, Washington (home of Kurt Cobain) they played the entire Northwest region until 1968. They did shows with The Wailers, Sonics, Viceroys, Bootmen, etc and played all the great dance halls including Parkers, Pearls, Target Ballroom, etc.

The Beachcombers recorded for Jerden Records, home of the Kingsmen, Dave Lewis, Ian Whitcomb, and others. The band had several instrumentals that received big airplay on Northwest radio. In 1989 the original members of the band got together again to play for their high school class reunion. They had so much fun that they decided to play a limited number of dates each year. Currently billed as "The Legendary Beachcombers", the band plays about ten dates a year... car shows, class reunions, corporate functions, country club, sixties nites, etc. In 1997, the band released a live CD titled The Legendary Beachcombers Live in the Great Northwest. Songs covered on this CD include Lucille, Green Onions, Let The Good Times Roll, Twist And Shout, I'm A Hog For You Baby, Gimme Some Lovin' and Louie Louie. It really captures the flavour of the era, the teen dance halls and concerts.

Dave Reed also played a part in influencing the nineties generation; he became a father figure to future Nirvana frontman Curt Cobain and provided him with a place to stay during his homeless periods.

Compilation appearances include: a previously unreleased version of Farmer John on Northwest Battle Of The Bands Vol. 3 (CD) and History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 2 (CD); The Wheeley on History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 5 (cassette), History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 2 (CD) and The Northwest Killers Vol. 3 (CD); the previously uinreleased Help Yourself on Northwest Killers Vol. 3 (CD) and Northwest Battle Of The Bands Vol. 4 (CD); All To Pieces on Battle Of The Bands Vol. 3 (CD); and an alternative previously unreleased version of the song can be heard on The Northwest Killers Vol. 3 (CD).

BEACON STREET UNION - The Clown Died In Marvin Gardens LP.

Formed in 1962, this Virginia Beach bunch started out playing surf music. In 1965 they released their debut single as The Heart Attacks although they continued to be known as The Beachnuts. Mike Johnson got his draft papers at the end of 1965. On his return in late 1967 the group reformed and lasted till the end of the decade, releasing one more single in 1968.

Babba Diddy Baby, an infectious frat-stomp with what sounds like steel drums, was first compiled on Boulders, Vol. 10 (LP) in the eighties and makes a welcome re-appearance on Aliens, Psychos And Wild Things (LP & CD) - a professional compilation of the Tidewater sixties scene. The CD includes an unreleased, slightly extended version of What's Gone Wrong (under the original master-tape title of What Makes You Think) - cool '68 pop-rock with neat tempo changes and spiralling guitar solos. The other side of the Tiki platter is catchy frat-pop with a soulful swagger.

Babba Diddy Baby can also be found on Ya Gotta Have Moxie, Vol. 2 (2-CD). (BHr/ST/MW)

This group, part of the 'Bosstown Sound', was energetically promoted in 1968. Their debut album, though often pretentious, was a mini-psychedelic masterpiece. The material, a mixture of acid-rock, blues, and ballads, was usually original and often interesting. The album is recommended if you are able to obtain a copy. Their second effort continued in a similar vein, but contained the orchestrated Clown's Overture and Angus Of Aberdeen. Also of note on the album were a 16 minute version of Baby Please Don't Go, a most unusual track entitled May I Light Your Cigarette? and a version of the Carl Perkin's classic Blue Suede Shoes. The back cover of this album pictures the band walking on top of a cloud and their strange music was undoubtedly largely drug-induced. Either or both albums are well worth checking out and both met with some commercial success.

Wright, Ulaky and Rhodes all played in Eagle, who issued an album on Janus Records. Then in 1977, John Lincoln Wright released a country music album titled Takin' Old Route One. Wright has pursued a career as a country singer and remains a popular entertainer today in the New England area.

Compilation appearances have included Four-O-Five on Garagelands Volume Two (CD) and Blue Avenue on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 7 (double cassette box). (VJ/SPr/MW/SR)

45: Sweet Medusa/Country Girls (Avco Embassy 4539) 1970

From Cambridge, Massachusetts their debut album's stand-out cuts are the opening track Punchin Judy, Mora and Country Girl a very pleasant slow number. All the cuts on the album were written by the band and some contain pretty good fuzztone guitar.

The band also appeared in a so-so suburban melodrama, 'The People Next Door', performing the amazing theme song and one other number. Rather than hunt down this scarce film, fans should locate the soundtrack album on Avco Embassy. The whole band was apparently also part of Freedom Express who released Easy Ridin' (Mercury) 1970, a horn-rock album notable for fine guitar and organ work.

Baptism was apparently recorded at Natural Sound in Mayward, Massachusetts in 1970, before they signed to Avco-Embassy and it has a very laid-back vibe. While occasionally a bit rough, none of the 11 tracks comes anywhere close to psych. Material such as Water Boy, 20 Dollars Bill and Mr. Sorry are mainstream pop-rock. Elsewhere, tracks such as BEAD GAME - Baptism LP.

Steamballin' and What A Day opted for a mild country-rock flavour. It's a nice, but forgettable collection. John Sheldon recalls: "I was the last person to work on that project, doing final mixes in 1971. We couldn't find a label who would release it, so as far as I know, the master tapes were simply left at the studio."

Jim Hodder went on to play with Steely Dan on their first two albums. Prior to Bead Game, John Sheldon was Van Morisson's guitarist for the spring and summer of 1968. John: "We rehearsed in the basement of my house, and he was writing a lot there and in my back yard. Currently, I am a composer and song writer." (VJ/SB/MMs/JSN)

45: Don't Say A Word/Greetings (Verve Folkways 5096) 1968

Bear were part of Boston's music scene in the late sixties. Originally known as Children Of Paradise, they also recorded the theme music for an early Brian De Palma film 'Greetings', with Robert De Niro... Hence their album title! The Children Of Paradise had included brothers Happy & Artie Traum plus Kaz and bassist Marc Silber. The latter duo had played together beforehand on Pat Kilroy's 1966 album.

The album is worth investigating. Two of its better tracks include, What Difference? a laid-back, jazzy number and It's Getting Very Cold Outside. The group was helped out by Steve Soles and Darius Davenport from Autosalvage.

Eric Kaz played in The Blues Magoos during 1969 and 1970, and in Mud Acres (during 1972) with Artie Traum. All three members became session musicians during the seventies. (VJ/NK/MW)

Based in Denver, Colorado Beast played Eastern-influenced, mostly instrumental, music. Their first album, Beast, is the more melodic and mellow of the two, with sophisticated arrangements dominated by the flute and trumpet. A couple of songs have soul influences. The best tracks are: the hypnotic Floating and When We Rise, which features some good guitar work. Their second album is more diverse with no trumpet. The material ranges from good-time music (two short tracks) to heavy rock (Move Mountain). There are also melodic and jazzy moments and the highlights are Communication and I Am.

Bob Yeazel had previously been with the Denver group The Super Band and during a short stint in Los Angeles had played on the third West Coast Pop Art Experimental Band album.

Their albums were recorded at Norman Petty's studios in Clovis, New Mexico.

THE ELECTRONIC HOLE

THE BEAT OF THE EARTH - The Electronic Hole LP.

The Beat Of The Earth was a southern California band assembled by Phil Pearlman, who had earlier released a surf/hot rod single Chrome Reversed Rails (shown as by Phil and The Flakes, on the Fink label). One of the earliest known electric experimental bands, The Beat Of The Earth sound very similar to their East Coast counterparts The Velvet Underground on albums (1) and (3) listed above. These two records were recorded live in the studio during the summer of 1967 and consist of long, unstructured jams using a myriad of acoustic and electric instruments. This early incarnation of the band is the one most familiar to collectors and copies of the first album have been changing hands for hundred of dollars since the mid-eighties. The music the band produced during this period is not for everybody (compare to the long tracks on the first two Velvet Underground albums), but their debut remains an unusual and rare item of significance from the California rock scene.

During 1968-9 the line-up of the band was in constant flux and The Beat Of The Earth made no known "proper" recordings, but Pearlman continued to add to his own collection of demos using local studios in off-hours via his friendship with the engineer Joe Sidore. At the end of 1969, Pearlman assembled The Electronic Hole strictly for personal use - specifically, to draft musicians for his new band. Several names are listed on the sleeve but I believe this is actually very close to being a Phil Pearlman solo project. The album is entirely different stylistically from the earlier one in that it abandons the freeform improvisational approach in favour of 'compositions' including a wild cover of Zappa's Trouble Comin' Every Day. None of the tracks are given titles on the album which complicates singling any out for commentary, but there are real highlights and the raw, unpolished feel only serves to make it utterly magical. Pearlman plays sitar on one track to great effect, and another has the thickest wall of fuzz guitars imaginable - an effect he created by running his Fender amplifier into the amp circuit of a child's chord organ ("sounded great for about two weeks, then it blew up!"). There are few albums I known of that have such an eclectic yet appealing sound.

Had the story ended here it would have been a real tragedy, as Pearlman's finest hour was yet to come. Six years later (with who knows what in between), recording commenced on the majestic Relatively Clean Rivers album with an entirely new band and musical vision.

Our Standard Three-Minute Tune is a collection of previously unreleased 1967 recordings from the first album sessions. The liner notes mention a 1967 live gig, but that is not featured on this album. (CF/SR)

Compilations of their material have included: From The Vaults (Rhino RNLP-104) 1982 and Good Time Music (Line OLLP 5275) 1982. There's also a 26-track rarities 2-CD, Autumn Of Their Years (Big Beat CDWIKD 127) 1994, which contained 16 previously unreleased tracks and demos. San Fran Sessions (Sundazed SC 11033) 1996, is a 60-track 3-CD box set with demos, alternate versions, cuts from the never-released third Autumn album and lots more. Their first European release, Don't Talk To Strangers has been reissued on vinyl (Get Back GET 581) 2000. Live! (CD) (Dig Music DIG MUSIC 102) 2000 was recorded at the band's 1974 reunion gig. It features the original line-up and includes all of the band's Top 40 hits alongside 10 unreleased songs. There are also two later vinyl compilations; North Beach Legends (Sundazed LP 5088) 2001 and Gentle Wandering Ways (Sundazed LP 5089) 2001. Finally, there's Magic Hollow (4-CD box) (Rhino Handmade 77892) 2005, which features 113 tracks.

While they only had two big hits, The Beau Brummels were one of the most important and underrated American groups of the sixties. They were the first U.S. unit of any sort to successfully respond to the British Invasion. They were arguably the first folk-rock group, even predating The Byrds, and also anticipated some key elements of the San Francisco psychedelic sound with their soaring harmonies and exuberant melodies. Before their demise, they were also among the first bands to record country-rock in the late sixties.

The key axis of the band was formed by guitarist/songwriter Ron Elliott, who penned most of the Brummels' moody and melodious material, and singer Sal Valentino, owner of one of the finest voices in mid-sixties rock. Spotted by local DJ Tom Donahue in a club in San Mateo (just south of San Francisco), the group was signed to Donahue's small San Francisco-based label Autumn Records in 1964. With Sly Stewart (later Sly Stone) in the producer's chair, they made the Top 20 right off the bat with Laugh, Laugh. The melancholy, minor-key original sounded so much like the British bands inundating the airwaves that many listeners initially mistook the Brummels for an English act. The follow-up single, Just A Little, was another excellent, melancholy number that became their biggest hit, making the Top 10.

The Beau Brummels made a couple of fine albums in 1965, dominated by strong original material and featuring the band's ringing guitars and multi-part, mournful harmonies. The best of their early work is nearly as fine as The Byrds' first recordings, yet the band was losing ground commercially, partially because Autumn, being such a small label, lacked promotional muscle. You Tell Me Why was their only other Top 40 hit, though Sad Little Girl and The Byrds knockoff Don't Talk To Strangers were excellent singles. The band also shuffled personnel a few times, and Ron Elliott was unable to stay on the road because of diabetes. Autumn was sold in 1966 to Warners, who made the dumb move of forcing the band to record an entire album of Top 40 covers - ignoring the fact that original material was one of Brummels' primary fortes.

THE BEAU BRUMMELS - San Fran Sessions 3-CD.

Regrouping as a trio, the group recorded the critically acclaimed, more experimental album Triangle, in 1967. Their last Warners album, Bradley's Barn, found the group branching into country-rock, a year or so before it became fashionable.

1973 saw the release of The Beau Brummels Sing, while Original Hits was issued in 1975 (both contain material from their Autumn days).

The Beau Brummels did reform for an unimpressive reunion album in 1975, Although surprisingly it made the Album Chart. Ron Elliott and Sal Valentino continued to make music and work on various low-profile projects of their own, they've never made records on par with the Brummels' vintage work. Ron Elliott later played in Joyous Noise (Musical Ensemble).

There have been a number of compilations of their material, many of which are detailed in the discography above. Especially worth mentioning is the 4-CD, 113-track Magic Hollow, which is an excellent overview of their sixties career (nothing is included from their post-sixties reunions). There's a good balance between their most familiar material (including all of their hits) and rarities, with 42 tracks appearing the first time (though some of those are alternate versions). True, some of the Triangle album is missing, as is most of Bradley's Barn and there are a wealth of missing unreleased-in-the-'60s tracks that have shown up on other Beau Brummels compilations. However, contained over four CDs, this is a near definitive journey of their evolution from the first truly fine American British Invasion-inspired band to folk-rock and country-rock innovators.

Compilation appearances have so far included: Laugh, Laugh on Nuggets Box (4-CD); Laugh, Laugh and Just A Little on Nuggets (CD) and Nuggets, Vol. 7 (LP); Magic Hollow on Psychedelic Visions (CD); Laugh, Laugh, Stick Like Glue, If You Want Me To, Don't Talk To Strangers, Sad Little Girl and Still In Love With You Baby on San Francisco Roots (LP); When It Comes To Your Love on Sundazed Sampler, Vol. 2 (CD); The Jerk and Sad Little Girl on The Autumn Records Story (LP); Don't Talk To Strangers and Two Days 'Til Tomorrow on Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD book) and finally Don't Talk To Strangers can also be heard on Microdelia (CD).

This entry has been compiled with much help from Richie Unterberger. (RU/MW/SR/VJ)

45s: My Lovin' Baby/Shenandoah (Mustang 3015) 1965
α What Have They Done With The Rain/
A Field Of Yellow Daisies (Scarlet 502) 1966

NB: α shown as by The Tree Toppers.

This was a Los Angeles vocal folk-rock group. Their debut presented My Lovin' Baby, a protest song of sorts in Byrdsian 12-string-jangle mode. The lyrics were essentially a draftee's love-letter to his girl, explaining his reluctance to go off to fight his government's fight in Vietnam ("they have called on me to go and die").

The band managed to get on the bill for some high profile shows, including opening for The Byrds, Love, The Standells, and The Seeds at The Trip, It's Boss, and Whisky A-Go-Go.

Upon discovering that there was a band called the Bo-Shay Men, Bob Keane changed their name to The Tree Toppers for the next single, released in January 1966. The melodious harmony-popper A Field Of Yellow Daisies has a lush, multi-harmonious peace-love vibe reminiscent of The Association and The Mamas and Papas. Amazingly, the band didn't find out about the name change, until after the single was pressed!

On both singles, Bob Keane brought in his usual group of great L.A. session players to assist the band on the folk-rock 'A' sides, although the 'B' sides were recorded by the band alone.

Two more tracks were recorded in January 1966 but, because the band had changed their sound considerably, Good Enough For Me and What Have They Done were not released.

Original Beauchemins songwriter/lead vocalist Paul Marshall later joined The Strawberry Alarm Clock, circa '69, around the time of their final UNI album, Good Morning Starshine. He also appeared during a party scene in Russ Meyers' 'Beyond The Valley Of The Dolls' (he can seen singing his self-penned Girl From The City). (MW/BTs)

Akron, Ohio was home to this mob. Over an incessant fuzztone riff the singer tells of a lousy date... how he watched an awful movie and ended up taking home a girl that was 'downright ugly'! Quite a little gem Straight Home later turned up on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 21 (LP) and on Riot City! (LP); whilst both sides of the single figure on Psychedelic States: Ohio Vol. 1 (CD).

Originally from Satellite Beach in Florida the band had broken up after Jaeger moved to Janesville, Wisonsin to join Sam McCue's Legends. Other members had followed him there, and they reformed in 1966, releasing a single on the local Feature label the following year. Further recordings were done with Bill Traut at Dunwich but they never saw the light of day until Black Cat Blues was exhumed on If You're Ready: The Best Of Dunwich Records Vol. 2 (CD).

Kilmer joined Norman Greenbaum; Jaeger went on to A.B. Skhy, then Crowfoot and numerous others. For full details see Gary Myers' book 'On That Wisconsin Beat'. (VJ/MW)

45: Call Off Life/Peyote Peyote Lowding (Co-op 520) 1969

Here's a pretty strange psychy single with strange titles from New Haven, Connecticut. Call Off Life is an anti-Nam protest dirge with the odd gun effect and military-style drumming. The flip is even weirder - a slowed-down take of the Shake Rattle And Roll melody with nonsensical lyrics. (MW)

Fergusion & Hendricks and recorded at Western Sound Recorders in L.A. on 4th April 1968 by this previously unknown southern Californian combo. It's psychy West Coast soft-rock with a haunting quality, gentle acidic guitar, and fine dual male harmonies. There's plenty of fuzzy guitar, lots of melodies and interesting lyrics and tracks like Is Tomorrow Thursday? and Blue Violins will appeal to fans of psychedelia. The CD has better sound quality. Beauregarde, a professional wrestler who toured the USA in the late sixties and early seventies, recorded the album at Sound Productions in Portland with young area musicians. Greg Sage and Dave Kolpel later figured prominently in The Wipers, another Oregon band. The album is crude bluesy rock with Beauregarde's heavy-handed, occasionally humorous vocals to the fore. For the earlier single, Beauregarde had tagged another bunch of Portland talent, The Phantoms (of Hallucinogenic Odyssey fame). (CF/MW)

John Greek, formerly of The Wailers, played on and co-wrote this awesome two-sider, released on a Hollywood-based label in the latter half of 1967. Co-writer S.Firth may have been a band member but no other info on this band's line-up has come to light, if indeed it was a real band outside of the studio. At that time, Greek was in demand as a session player in L.A. (notably for the Seeds and Weeds/Lollipop Shoppe) and as a backing musician on the road, for the likes of the Fifth Dimension. He was in at least one famously fake band, The Sacred Cows, alongside Ben Benay and Jerry Scheff; they appeared in the 'Groovy Guru' episode of the TV comedy-spy series 'Get Smart'.

You'll find both sides of the single on Acid Dreams, Vol. 1 (LP), Acid Trip From The Psychedelic Sixties (LP), High All The Time, Vol. 1 (LP) and Sixties Archive Vol. 8 (CD); Part 2 on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 6 (LP & CD) and Everything You Always Wanted To Know... (CD); and Part 1 on Acid Trip From The Psychedelic Sixties., Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 4 (LP & CD), Pebbles Vol. 3 (CD) and Great Pebbles (CD). 45: She Was Mine/Trouble Baby (Sound Of The Screen 2162) 1967

Formed at high school in Grand Ledge, a small town about 15 miles west of Lansing (Michigan's State Capital), in March 1966, The Beaux Jens soon became a local teen attraction. The above single was the quartet's sole stab for stardom. It was recorded at the Great Lakes/Fenton studios in Sparta, Michigan and released by The Screen, a local teen club, on its own label (a Fenton subsidiary). Gordy Garris went on to work with Dick Wagner & The Frost and Whipeye.

She Was Mine is a good organ-led mid-sixties punker on which the band sing about their 'little girl with lovely blue eyes'. You'll find it on Acid Dreams Epitaph (CD), Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP), Back From The Grave, Vol. 6 (LP), Boulders, Vol. 3 (LP), *Let 'Em Have It! BEAUREGARDE - Self Titled CD.

Paul Beaver was born in Ohio in 1926 and Bernie Krause was born in Detroit, Michigan on 8 December 1938. They probably had more to do with introducing the synthesizer into rock music than anyone else. Beaver was a veteran of the Hollywood studio system, known as a sound effects man but, in fact, something of an innovator in electronic music. Krause, a dozen years younger, had moved from Detroit to Cambridge to L.A. to San Francisco, working as a guitar player, folk singer, and session man, and was becoming interested in electronic music. Beaver and Krause are credited on countless records between 1965 and 1975: Doors, Byrds, Neil Young, Beach Boys as well as several soundtracks including "Rosemary's Baby", "Candy", "Performance" etc. They also provided the electronic effects to the Zodiac: Cosmic Sounds album that Mort Garson was arranging.

They also recorded four albums of synthesizers, moogs, flutes, tablas, guitars and various sound effects (live voices, birds, monkeys, sea...), creating a kind of "musical trip", a little like Don Robertson's albums.

Gandharva, which is probably their best album, also features Mike Bloomfield, Ronnie Montrose, Howard Roberts and Gerry Mulligan.

Paul Beaver died in L.A. in 1975 aged just 50. Bernie Krause has also released an entire album of songs called Fish Wrap on which ALL the sounds are sampled animal or fish sounds, as a Nature Conservancy fundraiser. (SR/VJ)

Richard Correll who played "Richard" in 'Leave It To Beaver' may also have been in the band. The flip side has turned up on Boulders, Vol. 10 (LP) and Hipsville 29 B.C. (LP). (VJ/AB/CVr/MW)

45: ESP/Just Like A Lady (Columbia 4-44139) 1967

This very obscure band from Hollywood, Florida was produced by Richard Gottehrer. They reworked The Pretty Things LSD as ESP, slowing it down in the process. A fine psychedelic punk number with some infectious fuzztone guitar playing, it is their only known recording and you'll also find it on Pebbles, Vol. 11 (LP), Boulders, Vol. 4 (LP) and Ya Gotta Have... Moxie, Vol. 1 (2-CD).

The same ESP song was later recorded by Big Brother featuring Ernie Joseph and an earlier/faster/punkier version was issued by Rain. (VJ/MW/LP)

BEAVER & KRAUSE - Gandharva CD.

At the early age of 18 Joe Beck left his home town Philadelphia and headed to New York, where due to his extraordinary talent he soon became co-artist with famous jazz musicians (such as Paul Winter, Charles Lloyd, Gary McFarland and Chico Hamilton). Miles Davis took him on as the first "electric guitarist". In late 1966 he recorded the Rock Encounter album with Sabicas, one of the world's greatest flamenco guitarists. The recordings on this album earned him a record deal with MGM/Verve, and in 1967/68 Nature Boy was recorded.

The Nature Boy album is an attempt at mixing psych, rock and jazz with some classical influences. Joe Beck was a very gifted guitar player who composed, arranged, conducted and produced this album in 1969. He was briefly the guitarist in Tim Hardin's Band. Six of the nine tracks are over five minutes long and give Beck the opportunity to show his remarkable guitar skills, obviously influenced by the likes Hendrix and Eric Clapton. The best moments are probably No More Blues, Rapid Disintegration Of A Chamber Orchestra, Ain't No Use In Talkin and the title track (written by Eden Ahbez). The guitar, bass and drums parts are constantly good but some arrangements may sound a bit dated now. Danny Whitten (Rockets, Crazy Horse) plays on two tracks including his own Let Me Go. Donald McDonald had earlier been in Jeremy and The Satyrs.

Beck recorded a second album with famous Flamenco guitarist Sabicas. It's similar to John Berberian's Middle Eastern rock ensemble mixing acid rock with a traditional ethnic music style to stunning effect. There's lots of tasty guitar work on the album. The CD reissue is digitally remastered and comes with informative booklet.

Joe Beck also issued several jazz albums in the late seventies. (SR/CF)

The work of an L.A. outfit, this single was 'directed' by Capitol (and Beach Boys) studio legend Nick Venet. Despite being picked up by A&M the single sank without trace.

You'll also find both sides on A Journey To Tyme, Vol. 1 (LP) and No Correspondence, which featured some great reverb, on Pebbles, Vol. 9 (LP), Pebbles Vol. 8 (CD), Garagelands, Vol. 1 (LP), Garagelands, Vol. 1 & 2 (CD), The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 1 (2-CD) and for some reason on Eva's Swamp Rats vs. Unrelated Segments (LP) compilation. The 'A' side was a nice folk-rock version of Dylan's Baby Blue. (VJ/EW)

45:	A World Through A Tear/ Girl, Go Run Away	(RCA Victor 47-9068) 1967

A quartet from Rockville and Silver Spring, Maryland whose original composition Girl, Go Run Away is superb - catchy garage-beat with drivin' organ, great hooks and harmonies and rippin' guitar. The compilers of Mindrocker Vol. 9 (LP) and Fuzz, Flaykes, And Shakes Vol. 3 (LP/CD) agree.

So why on earth was this not the PLUG side? This has all the hallmarks of a major-label cock-up. Presumably the band won their contract on the basis of demos of the likes of Girl.. , yet A World.. is lame harmony-pop, probably imposed on the band (it's not written by them), with terrible lyrics and an impossible-to-recall melody due to too many awkward chord changes. If only DJs had bothered to flip it over, this might not have been their sole legacy. (VJ/MW/MM/BE)

	Beautiful (Takes A Trip)/ Release Me	(Executive Productions 21) 1969

Originally formed in Wenatchee, Washington, this outfit relocated to Nevada, where they spent most of their time as a show band and regular attraction in Reno and Las Vegas. Over their long history this band changes with the times covering early sixties sounds, garage, folk-rock, protest, ballads. If they could be said to have a sound it's of a pop group with strong vocals, harmonies and melodramatic arrangements. Their latest material would've suited Gene Pitney or the Walker Brothers! Garage collectors need look no further than the compilations: - The Mystic One can also be heard on History Of Northwest Rock 7 (cassette); See The Little Girl figures on Wyld Sydes Volume 9 (CD); Double Whammy has resurfaced on Highs In The Mid-Sixties Vol. 7 and Teen Blast Volume #1 (CD); I Want You To Know can be found on Highs In The Mid-Sixties Vol. 7; Glimmer Sunshine has re-emerged on Quagmire Volume 8 (CD); you can check out Rapunzel on Highs In The Mid-Sixties Vol. 14 and Wyld Sydes Volume Eight (CD); Glimmer Glimmer gets another airing on Let's Dig 'Em Up #2 (LP); and I Used To Feel Bad is also on Destination Frantic Volume 2 (CD).

Walter Hanna recalls: "I became the first additional member, as organist for the Chessmen in the mid-sixties, rounding out the group to five members. This followed their first Washington state to central California club successes with the original members: Jack - barely able to play rhythm guitar - a fantastic voice, as the centerpiece; Bill Britt on steady 6-string bass, backing vocals and some lead, plus comedy; Kevin Woods on fair lead, good rhythm guitar, backing vocals, plus comedy; and Jewel Hendricks on drums, at the time I joined."

"I was playing a Wurlitzer electric piano with a small home-style Lowrey organ at a pizza parlor in Belmont, California, near S.F. This was a local group doing fifties-sixties Top 40, R&B, with new Beach Boys surf music, Buffalo Springfield, Ray Charles, etc. The Chessmen "discovered" me playing there while they were checking out the local scene, ready to start an engagement at a nearby Redwood City club. We exchanged numbers; they told me to come see them, pretty much offered me a job 'on the spot'. I followed up, went to see them play: with steady good-paying work lined up and a repeat offer, I joined up. I think the hurried addition of an organist was their manager's suggestion with upcoming better bookings in Nevada hotels."

"As it turned out, this was the beginning of Jack Bedient and The Chessmen's first real big-money success, mainly in Nevada, changing gradually from a dance-club band into more of a 'Vegas show group' act which worked great at first, as the local radio station picked up on the song singles. As I joined and went to Nevada with them, 'instant local stardom' continued for nearly two years. This was unfortunately followed by a slow decline, neglecting new songs and funny bits. So, poor and intermittent bookings into the wrong venues that didn't fit the band which was now part-dance, part-show, some Jack Bedient standards that went over well - but no longer really good at just one thing. It was a tired performance, singing the same not-too danceable, but not-too listenable songs, repeating the same copycat comedy bits, most of which were picked up watching the singing duo, Gaylord and Holiday. They worked for years after their two 45 hits in the fifties ("at the shoemakers shop... shoes that kept her feet a dancing, a dancing, all the livelong day..." another I can't recall - something with a clock?). These two guys were wise - since they couldn't survive on the strength of two old singles that weren't dance songs, but novelties, they got funny, learned newer songs they could sing to a sit-down audience, continually updated music and comedy, paid writers for funny bits to add to their show, and remained a viable name act for years, easily bookable for big bucks on the Nevada casino and nationwide big hotel circuits."

JOE BECK - Nature Boy LP.

"As the Chessmen had become more popular, Jack, with our Reno manager Bob Dee's urging, was trying to 'secretly' slip away and become a single big-name artist, like Roy Orbison, Jimmy Rogers, Andy Williams, etc. They made a fair effort to keep this a secret (duh - lots of resentment) and keep the band intact in the meantime, in case his solo career didn't work out well. I didn't follow his career after I left, but think he finally fizzled out, though he had some local popularity here and there. Reliable gossip I heard years later said he was working as a solo act with his guitar at Harold's club in Reno hotel in one of their in-house bars."

"But back to better days: I became a member; Bob Dee had the Chessmen lined up with good Nevada bookings: the Golden Hotel in Reno, the Silver Nugget nearby in Carson City, and Harvey's Hotel and Casino just up the hill at Lake Tahoe. We soon were headlining at the Golden Hotel (later to become Harrah's Club), soon with around-the-block audience lines to see us. Jack and The Chessmen moved from the backstage bar at Harvey's, Lake Tahoe, to opening act status for Sarah Vaughan, then Rowan and Martin, later appearing with them at the Riviera in Vegas. During the Reno/Carson/Tahoe era, we had four No. 1 "Top-40" hits on the local Reno radio station, one of which reached No. 16 in Sacramento. This was around the time of the Beatles vs Rolling Stones English invasion, Animals, Yardbirds - for most American groups, pre-psychedelia."

"The drug scene in Nevada consisted of the casino pit bosses making easily available a steady supply of Dexamil Spansules, a great, 'tiny-time-pill' combination of the 'upper' Dexadrine and 'downer' Miltown (Mother's Little Helper) which kept you wide awake without being 'wired' for 12-24 hours. If you weren't near a 'cool' casino, the constant stream of truckers through everywhere always had something 'speedy' on hand. A user could stay up for days, gambling, drinking, 'making out', etc. My fun-filled, idiotic, but surprising, 'speed-run' record was five days without sleep (plus three different groupies in 24 hours - oh the shame). This event ended when the noise and shaking of my car woke me up in time to survive, as I ran straight off a curve of the main highway between Reno and Carson city into the sagebrush of the Nevada desert."

"The Chessmen's popularity was not able to break out of the local area, though we did follow Question Mark and The Mysterians into a popular Sacramento night club booking on one occasion, and recorded a few more singles and an album while I was a member. I wrote the song, Drummer Boy (Please Play Us A Song) on one side of a single we released that got some airplay, and Waltz Tune on another record, possibly Live At Harvey's, that we recorded during a Lake Tahoe engagment. One interesting note: the original four Top-40 Reno hits were on Fantasy Records, a small, unknown studio in San Francisco - before they signed Creedence Clearwater Revival, who already had their own local following! Prior to Creedence, one of the few one-hit artists Fantasy had was Vince Giraldi of Cast Your Fate To The Wind."

"The 'Long Decline': Time passed quickly and popularity faded. Following a dreary dinner plus music/entertainment booking at a dead Bakersfield eatery, Bob Dee actually booked us into the Playboy Club (I keep thinking the "Tiger-A-Go-Go" disco?) at the S.F. airport. Jack had grown gradually worse at playing guitar and singing in rhythm with the band after a couple of classy bookings when part of the show was Jack Bedient backed by the house orchestra - his dream come true. Jack's attitude towards 'his' musicians reflected this - we got 'no respect', especially drummer Jewel and I, and later Jewel's replacement. With Bob Dee and Jack's maneuvering to get him in the solo limelight, 'The Chessmen' were cut to a trio of Jack with Bill and Kevin - drummer and keyboard as sidemen with a cut in pay! As front-men Bill and Kevin might potentially have survived if Jack's solo career didn't go big-time. I think Jack had a 'Plan B' similar to Gaylord and Holiday's "Vegas show group" set-up. They got the big money, a couple of regulars got a reasonable 'retainer' rate of pay; otherwise local union musicians were hired as needed, and paid scale."

BEDLAM FOUR - No One Left To Love (45 PS).

"So, Jewel, the original drummer was relegated to sideman status with a cut in pay, and so was I, just before we did the Live At Harvey's album. Jewel quit soon after, moved to L.A. and went to work for his girlfriend's brother, the guy who had just designed, patented, and begun to manufacture the original helicopter camera mounts used in almost every big action movie on the big screen for years. Jewel was replaced by Art - can't recall the last name - and I stayed as a sideman for a while, needing the money, which was still pretty good, and enjoying the life-style. It's an old story in music 'show-biz' - one person in a successful group is willing to dump the others, despite their hard work on the way up. That's a different situation than being in a dead-end band moving from one subsistence gig to another. And, it's a different situation from a long-term success combination deciding to call it quits and go their own ways - some then on to personal star status. Jack had the voice, absolutely beautiful - but, lacking strong musicianship, he needed musicians with him that knew his weaknesses and could compensate."

"As The Chessmen began to slip little by little nearing a couple of years of local stardom, he developed an arrogant, 'it's a privilege to play for me' attitude. The Playboy Club (Tiger-a-Go-Go?) turned into the last straw for me. About four nights into the gig, we were playing Black Is Black, I Want My Baby Back, with the cool turn-around beat the Four Tops made famous. Jack lost the beat and was playing and singing a beat behind, then turned around and yelled at me and Art something like, 'get with it!', loud enough for the customers to hear. The new drummer and I had already had a couple of arguments with him on previous gigs about this. On the break, I called him aside with the drummer in tow, and told him he had to stop pulling this stunt. Jack said something like, 'If you don't like it, why don't you quit?' Coincidence made it payday and next day off! I came and got my gear while Art was getting his. Art took off; I headed for Los Angeles into a long career of fun garage and original bands, a few 'almost-made-it' big rock 'n' roll bands, and many better-to-forget traveling club bands, always with Hollywood as home base."

"Except for the great studio and concert tour drummer, Richard Crooks, who I played with in our high school rock'n roll band, The Rhythm Rockers, (Gilroy, California, class of '60!), the best group talent I played with and closest I came to fame was with a four-member group, Unicorn, based in L.A. It was probably 1971 through '72 when we had a run of popularity playing the local beach cities and Hawaii. We were a three-part harmony C.S.N. and similar cover group: me on keybass - imitation Ray Manzarek - Hammond organ with Hohner electric piano on top - Leslie plus Sunn bass amps, tenor vocals and some lead; Danny on drums; Pamela on soprano vocals (plus good tambourine); and - just beginning to write originals - our lead guitarist, Cecelio Rodriguez from Santa Barbara, playing a Les Paul (Junior?) without a pick into a Marshall, singing most lead vocals. We had about a two year run, did really well at the Coral Reef Hotel in Hawaii, in a huge Red Noodle restaurant with an all-night cabaret license, big dance floor and stage. We played the 'Festival of the Sun' concert in Diamond Head Crater, an all-day event with Santana headlining, and Quicksilver Messenger Service, a few other well-known groups and some lesser-known Hawaiian rock bands. When Unicorn broke up, I stayed in L.A., Pam went home to Washington state. Cecelio? He went to Hawaii to get together with his new friend, Henry Kapono - Cecelio and Kapono, 'ya know..."

Came out of Minneapolis, Minnesota and are best known for the bizarre and completely 'over the top' Hydrogen Atom. They were previously known as The Echomen. Back in 1967 they also had a cut on Money Music (LP), a compilation of some of the best Minnesota sixties bands which had a very limited pressing. The Hydrogen Atom single is also very sought-after and expensive.

The Caped Crusader release is a fabulous package featuring pictures and information on the band plus two previously unreleased tracks. No One Left To Love is a garage raver and Psychedelic Mantra consists of almost five minutes of fuzzy Eastern psychedelia. This is a must-have for any collection of garage/psychedelic rock.

You can also find Hydrogen Atom on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 11 (LP & CD), Changes (LP), The Magic Cube (Flexi & CD), Pebbles, Vol. 2 (ESD) (CD), Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 3 (LP) and Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 2 (CD). In addition, there's a previouly unreleased version of I Just Want To Make Love To You on Quagmire Volume 5 (CD) and another previously unreleased cut, My Baby Is Gone can be sourced on Wyld Sydes Volume Eight (CD). 45s:	I Don't Believe You/Hate	(Deltron 813) 1966
	Quiet!/I Gotta Fight	(Tea 2577) 1968

Bay City, Michigan was home to this band. Their debut, on Saginaw's Deltron label, featured a competent version of one of Dylan's less well known songs backed by an acid-tainted instrumental.

In 1967 they went the way of many other bands and headed for San Francisco. By early 1968 they were back home, recording their follow-up in an upstairs room of a local record shop. Quiet! isn't - it's a raucous jerky rocker with a nifty fuzz break and outro - it was composed by F. Dash; the flip, composed by J. Light, is another riff-heavy rocker with larynx-wrenching vocals ala Blue Cheer.

Compilation appearances have included: Hate on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 6 (LP); Quiet! on Psychedelic Crown Jewels Vol. 3 (CD) and I Gotta Fight on Scream Loud!!! The Fenton Story (2-CD). (VJ/KBn/MW/MM)

45s:	The Break Of Dawn/Love Isn't Dead	(Corby CR 230) 1970
	Somebody To Love/Chest Fever	(Oracle 29002) 1971

Here's a psychedelic outfit worth investigating. Both singles were on California labels and the band is thought to have been from Los Angeles, possibly Pomona. The cover of Jefferson Airplane's Somebody To Love was good.

Compilation coverage has included: - Somebody To Love, Chest Fever and Love Isn't Dead on Brain Shadows, Vol. 1 (LP & CD); The Break Of Dawn on Fuzz Flaykes & Shakes Vol. 1 (LP & CD) and Love Isn't Dead can also be found on Pebbles Vol. 11: Northern California (CD).

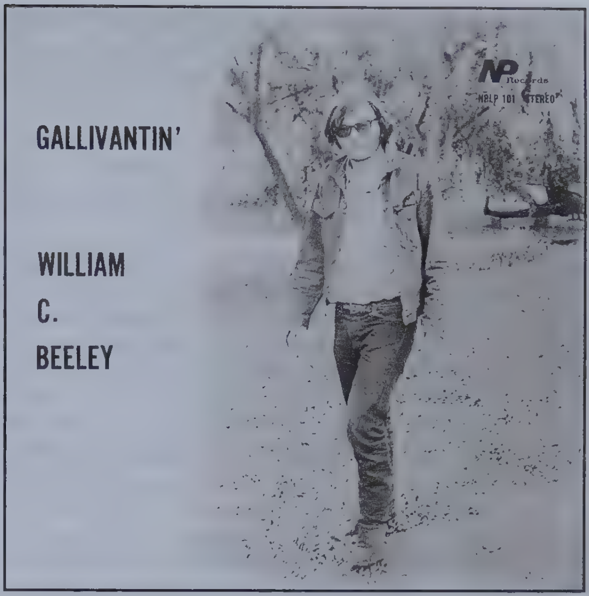
The Break Of Dawn, has also been covered by the Wicked Ones in 1991. (VJ/MW)

Beech-Nuts (NY)

45:	My Iconoclastic Life/Nature's Company	(Showcase 6602) 1967

My Iconoclastic Life has lots of mouth harp and really classic growling punk vocals and really maladjusted lyrics like "My life is nil, I just take pills, sit for hours watching the flowers, I'm so alone I scream and moan without you". You can check it out on What A Way To Die (LP), Hang It Out To Dry (CD) or I Was A Teenage Caveman (LP). Apparently, the band came from Brooklyn, New York and was committed to a mental institution en bloc after the record's release!



WILLIAM C. BEELEY - Gallivantin' LP.

Rumours of Lou Reed's involvement with this act are incorrect. (VJ/MW/MM)

The Beeds (?)

45s:	Run To Her/You Don't Have To	(Team 519) 1968
	Love Hurts/You're Wrong	(Buddah 210) 1971

The Beeds was almost certainly a studio project for the Team label, a sub-division of Buddah. Run To Her is a classic of its genre - an up-tempo melodic rock song, with Merseybeat harmonies, chiming guitars and reedy organ. It can also be found on Mindrocker, Vol. 8 (LP).

Produced by Jim Calvert and Norman Marsano, previously producers/composers with The Cats Meow, the later single on Buddah in 1971 was written by Buddy Vidal, Steve Couto and Ritchie Mann and may of course be by an entirely different outfit. (VJ/SR/MW)

L.A.-based, Clark, McGuinn and Crosby had previously played with another L.A. band, The Jet Set and Chris Hillman had been with The Hillmen. In addition to the single, both sides of which can be heard on Elektrock The Sixties (4-LP), they recorded a four-track EP and then evolved into The Byrds. They also have two reviously unreleased cuts, The Only Girl and You Movin' on Early L. A. (LP). (VJ/MW)

The Beefeaters (TX)

45:	Don't Hurt Me/Change My Mind	(N/K) 1966

From Dallas, Don't Hurt Me is influenced by the 13th Floor Elevators, whilst the flip is notable for its 12-string Rickenbacker guitar. It seems very likely that these tracks were never released back in '66.

Both sides can also be found on Acid Visions - Complete Collection, Vol. 2 (3-CD), Texas Punk: 1966, Vol. 1 (LP), Green Crystal Ties Vol. 3 (CD) and Don't Hurt Me has also resurfaced on Garage Beat '66 (5-CD). (VJ/MW)

William C. Beeley (TX)

ALBUM: 1 GALLIVANTIN' (North Park Records NPLP-101) 1970 R4

A fine local Texas folk album, very simple and unencumbered, just acoustic guitar and Beeley's confident, purposeful vocal. He is effectively portrayed as a rambler on the cover; three evocative B&W photos of him in rough travelling clothes, unshaven, hair too long, you can almost see the cops escorting him to the county line! The highlight of the album is a 10-minute version of Buffy Sainte Marie's Little Wheel Spin And Spin/Codine medley that is just remarkably dark and creepy. Not for all, but a major landmark for collectors of the genre that the likes of Bob Dylan, Davy Graham and Perry Leopold occupy. (CF)

	Watermelon Man/Don't Run	(Audio Dynamics 152) 1966

This band formed in Worcester, an industrial metropolis and college town in Massachusetts, in 1962. They set out as an instrumental surfin' quintet doing covers of The Ventures and other surfing hits. By 1963 they had adapted to the British invasion by adding vocals and by the time of their first single they were a popular local attraction. True Love Knows was a typical teen beat effort that can also be heard on Back From The Grave, Vol. 7 (LP) and Shiftin' Gears a pounding surf-instrumental resurfaced on Strummin' Mental, Vol. 5 (LP). In 1966 they hired an organ player and became a seven-piece recording their second single, which was in an Animals soulish vein. There was also a third single, which I don't have details of, in 1969 and it wasn't until 1973, after 11 years together that they finally downed their instruments. The Watermelon Man single may actually have only been released on Audio Dynamics. (VJ)

	Forget Me Girl/Baby Let Me Follow You Down	(Mira 210) 1966

A Los Angeles outfit who'll appeal to fans of garagy folk-rock. Their first single is in this vein with Robert Zinner's (not the Zombies') Leave Me Be, compiled on Moxie's Folk Rock E.P. (7") and Ya Gotta Have Moxie, Vol. 1 (2-CD). It's backed by Bob Dylan's She Belongs To Me. The second single also features a Dylan cover on the flip side. The top side, Forget Me Girl, graces Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 20 (LP).

After the band split in early-to-mid 1966 Caldwell and Zinner teamed up with guitarist Richard Fortunato, fresh ex-Vejtable and former Preacher, in the W.C. Fields Memorial Electric String Band, later known as ESB. Cary Slavin went on to play with The Factory and John York went on to join The Byrds in 1968 and have a prolific career as a session musician. A friend of Kaleidoscope's Chris Darrow, he is featured on several of his solos albums and finally released a solo album, The Claremont Dragon in 1999. (VJ/MW/SR)

The Bees (CA, La Verne)

45:	Voices Green And Purple/ Trip To New Orleans (PS)	(Liverpool LIV 62225) 1966

From La Verne near Los Angeles, California and often confused with San Francisco's Bees, this band is often cited as a classic example of the influence of LSD on a teenage rock band. They produced the remarkable Voices Green And Purple with lyrics that recount a bum LSD trip culminating in echoes screaming over a demented 'Riot On Sunset Strip' beat.

A garage-psych classic, it was first compiled on Pebbles, Vol. 3 (LP) and has since appeared on Pebbles Vol. 3 (CD), Pebbles, Vol. 2 (ESD) (CD), Best of Pebbles, Vol. 1 (LP & CD), Great Pebbles (CD), Nuggets Box (4-CD), Trash Box (5-CD) and Songs We Taught The Fuzztones (LP & CD), who covered it in 1984 on their Leave Your Mind At Home (LP). Trip To New Orleans, a more routine folk-blues number a-la Rolling Stones, can also be heard on Highs In The Mid-Sixties Vol. 2 (LP) and Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 9 (LP & CD). 45:	Tobacco Road/Cat Squirrel	(In FI-11M 67102) 1967

On a subsidiary of Rochester, New York's Fine label alongside the Young Tyrants, Beethoven's Dream Group was from nearby Batavia, New York. Their guitar-laden cover of Tobacco Road is different to the norm and all the better for it; it has a West Coast folk-rock vibe, like early Jefferson Airplane without the female lead. Cat Squirrel is a rock rework of an old blues standard with feedback and a chilled vibe. Surprisingly, neither has been compiled to-date. (VJ)

Joey Hall and Donnie Smith first formed as The Pyramids in Tifton, Georgia with Duane Lovett on drums and Joey's brother Jimmy on bass. When the latter was drafted Hayward Fowler came in as a replacement and they became the Beethoven 4, although they'd expanded to a quintet with Bobby Hill on keyboard (and so were sometimes known as The Beethovens).

Sets My Soul On Fire can be found on Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 8 (LP) and Psychedelic States: Georgia Vol. 1 (CD). It's a rowdy reedy fuzz-punker that sounds more like 1966 than from the summer of 1968. Don't Call On Me has resurfaced on Quagmire Vol. 1 (CD).

The band lasted into the seventies going through several personnel changes. They held a 30 year reunion and in 2002 there were plans for a reunion album to be recorded at the 82 Studio in Tifton, owned by Joey Hall. (MW)

Iris Bell Adventure (MI)

ALBUM: 1 IRIS BELL ADVENTURE (Rubiiyat) 1969 R1

2 POP GOES THE ELECTRIC SITAR
(Decca DL 74938) 1967
3 GOOD MORNING STARSHINE (Decca DL 75138) 1970

Beware of opportunist '(exploito) psych' tags, they are way off the mark here. The sleevenotes to Pop Goes The Electric Sitar state that Bell was a virtuoso, a musician's musician amongst professional guitarists, and a consultant for Danelectro, with whom he created a 12-string christened the "Bellzouki" and the Coral Electric Sitar showcased here. However, little virtuosity is on display - this is an instrumental album where the electric sitar simply plays the melody line of well-known pop and film songs, backed by a full orchestra and oooo'ing female choir - imagine an MOR/muzak version of Lord Sitar.

Tracks that suffer this treatment include Goin' Out Of My Head, Eleanor Rigby, You Don't Have To Say You Love Me, More (theme from 'Mondo Cane') and Lara's Theme from 'Dr. Zhivago'. Ravi Shankar would be horrified, I suspect, to hear what could only be a curio for fans of sitar music.

Vincent "Vinnie" Bell was an active session man from the New York area and is featured on guitar or sitar on hundreds of albums. He was often used by Alan Lorber for his projects. In the seventies, Bell would release several albums of instrumental covers of hits or soundtracks. One 1968 gig in New York City included playing with The Portraits (Gary Myers' band) on their 'Schaeffer Beer' commercial. (MW/SR/GM)

45s: La Bamba/Sleep Walk (Tiara 703) 1965

Miami, Florida was home to this all girl garage band. After a rather lame debut disc they took the tune to Van Morrison's Gloria and converted it into Melvin - their tribute to Melvin Bucci, lead singer of The Vandals. It's become something of a girl punk classic. The flip, is similarly a rather thrashy garage number.

ALBUM: 1(A) DENNY BELLINE AND THE RICH KIDS

45s: Money Isn't Everything/Summer Girl (RCA Victor 8883) 1966
Outside The City/Grey City Day (RCA Victor 9041) 1966

This Long Island, New York combo was fronted by Perry Como's nephew (Denny Belline)! Definitely not a garage outfit but they did produce some decent covers in the style of Young Rascals/Vagrants. Indeed they were RCA's answer to The Young Rascals. Their album contains mostly R&B, pop and frat covers. These mostly up-tempo ravers were recorded in front of a dancing teen crowd at the Shore Club in Sayville, Long Island. The album includes a nice slowed down cover of The Beatles' Rain to which the band add a harpsichord. Other tracks include: Mickey's Monkey, Mustang Sally, Good Lovin', Any Day Now, and Do You Feel It. In 1968, The Rich Kids were involved in a notorious drug bust when S.W.A.T. teams descended on The Barge and caught them with 1/4 oz. of pot. Their concert attendence subsequently boomed. Previously known as Denny Belline & the Dwellers, Denny went solo and the Rich Kids renamed themselves Man, which resulted in Swansea's Man being known as Manpower stateside for a couple of years. Related singles are set out below, but also see the separate entry for Man:-

Denny Belline & Dwellers:

Little Lonely Girl (RCA Victor 8665) 1965

Denny Belline solo:

Rosemary Blue/? (RCA JH-10171) 1975

Money Isn't Everything has been compiled on Boulders, Vol. 5 (LP) and Gone, Vol. 2 (LP). (VJ)

From Bellingham, Washington this act had earlier recorded two singles as The Accents with Ron Peterson. Laurie Vitt: - "Kathi McDonald started with us when she was 13 and we were still The Accents. Eventually Ron Peterson quit and was replaced by Bill Capp and we picked up Doug Ling on bass and changed the name to The Bellingham Accents."

After a change of drummer and bass players they became (Kathi McDonald and) The Unusuals.

45: She'll Be Back/The Wicked Old Witch (Dicto 1003) 1965

This Saginaw, Michigan sextet hooked up with Dick Wagner in 1965 for their debut recording. The Wagner-penned She'll Be Back has immediate appeal and snarling fuzz guitar, which has ensured its popularity on compilations including Highs In The Mid-Sixties Vol.19 (LP), Killer Cuts (LP), and Gravel Vol. 4 (CD).

At the time, however, it made no impression and the band moved on, changing their name to Cherry Slush.

A cut called Rich Man's Woman on Thee Unheard Of (LP) compilation is supposedly by this band. However that release was a con; the "compiler" had selected obscure single tracks then renamed the artist and/or song, to give the impression that they were unknown/unreleased tracks on acetates. 45: Can't Tame Me/Got Me Down (Big Sound 815N3006) 1966

This quartet was formed by students at Stout University in Marinette, Wisconsin on the Michigan border and some distance east of Wausau, where the Big Sound label was based.

Can't Tame Me has appealing vocals and a frantic beat and there's lots of fuzz guitar work. It's featured on The Midwest Vs. The Rest (LP), Back From The Grave, Vol. 8 (2-LP) and Back From The Grave, Vol. 8 (CD), whilst both sides of the single can be heard on Storm In The Garage (3-CD box set).

Gerry Cain later turned up in The Why Four who cut the punker Hard Life. Paul Barry returned to Milwaukee and formed oldies-band Barry's Truckers in 1970. He ran his own studio and started the Lulu label to promote local talent. (VJ/KBn/GM/MW)

45: If It's All The Same To You (Rebel 103) 1966

This one track was the sole vinyl output by this Pennsylvania band. It appeared as the flip side of an easy-listening tune by a guy called Smokey. ALBUM: 1(A) BENGALI BAULS AT BIG PINK (Buddha BDS-5050) 1970

Coming from Calcutta, India, the Bengali Bauls were a group of street musicians who arrived in the USA in 1967. They played the Fillmore with The Byrds and the New York Town Hall with The Butterfield Blues Band and were invited by Albert Grossman, Bob Dylan's manager, to stay at the Band's house, Big Pink, near Woodstock.

Garth Hudson of The Band recorded and produced their album in December 1967, which was then shelved and eventually released in 1970 on Buddah. The music is "India's Soul Music" with vocals and should appeal to the tabla fans. The album is also a curiosity for collectors of The Band. Purna and Luxman Das also appeared with Bob Dylan on the front sleeve of his John Wesley Harding album. The Bengali Bauls returned to Calcutta in 1969. (SR)

ALBUMS: 1( ) BEETHOVEN BITTERSWEET (SSS International SSS-15) 1971
2(A) CHURCH BACH (SSS International SSS-17) 1971

NB: According to Osborne's 'Rockin Records' there's another LP, title unknown, on the Plantation label. It also lists the artist as Benninghoff's Bad Rock Blues Band but both SSS LPs are credited to Benninghoff.

EP: 1 FREE! Special Bonus Single! (PS) (SSS-PB-1) 1971

NB: (1) is a promo EP on blue wax that showcases tracks from LPs (1) and (2) plus a track apiece from LPs by Arnold Bean and H.Y. Sledge.

R.J. Benninghoff was previously with The Berkeley Kites, who'd released at least four poppy singles between '67 and '69 on Minaret (a divisional label of SSS). He was arranger and composer of Wayward One on another Minaret release by Jacksonville's Tiffany System.

The promo EP proclaims "With a degree in education and a major in medieval history, Benninghoff plays almost all instruments, sings and composes. His music skills exhibit a delightfull (their spelling) fusion of the past and present for universal acceptance by contemporary listeners." Harumph... what you get is literally 'baroque' rock, i.e. covers of classical works on harpsichord in a rock setting.

Church Bach, for example, reworks Bach classics with some good wild fuzz guitar but, alas, a lame harpsichord. (SR/MW)

Jay Bentley and The Jet Set (?CA)

45s: Watusi '64/I'll Get You (GNP Crescendo 332) 1964
Come On-On/Everybody's Got A Dancin Partner But Me (GNP Crescendo 347) 1965

NB: All four tracks were also compiled on a French EP (Vogue 18006) 1965.

This band, possibly from the Los Angeles area, married beat sounds to a US dance-club vibe to produce some great party poppers. Watusi '64 gets the toes tappin', Come On-On gets every limb a-shakin'. Both flips switch down several gears to last-dance territory. The singles were produced by Buzz Cason and Tommy Allsup.

The involvement of Buzz Cason indicates a possible Nashville connection. (MW)

45: Now It's Gone/Night Time In The City (Devlet 443/4) 1966

Previously thought to be from Allentown, Mike Kuzmin's Pennsylvania discography 'Sounds From The Woods' reveals that they were from Stroudsberg, Pennsylvania and were previously known as the Devils, releasing one fratty single in 1964 - The Devil Dance/Just Like That (Devlet 393).

Now It's Gone is a dynamic teen pop-punker brimming with commercial potential - echoes of Merseybeat, a soupcon of the Big O in the lead vocals, cool harmonies, topped off with rattlin' tambourine, restrained fuzz and a great stop-start outro.

This classy nugget can be found on Pennsylvania Unknowns (LP), The Night Is So Dark (LP) and The Cicadelic 60's, Vol. 4 (CD). (MW)

ALBUM: 1 TOO LATE TO TURN BACK NOW (Crown CST-632) 197? R1/R2

Not the usual exploitation release from this label; this album has some pretty interesting progressive hard-rock tracks and is worth a listen. The project's leader Keith Gravenhorst was originally from Chicago and recorded some singles in the sixties as Keith Everett. He was apparently based in Los Angeles for some time, producing records (including this) for Crown and Kent, including the Utopia album. Crown and Kent were both owned by the Bahari brothers who also ran the very low-budget Modern and RPM labels. (VJ/SR)

Middle East ethnicity from New York City, more than two decades before the rather hyped "World Music" movement. John Berberian, an accomplished oud player and a student in Business Studies at Columbia University in the mid-sixties, gathered around him a troop of skilled musicians to perform the music of his forefathers.

With a foundation of traditional music from Turkey, Armenia, Greece, Arabia and North Africa, they created a captivating blend of exotic rhythms, melodies and improvisations on the first two albums, transporting the listener to bustling bazaars and scorched sands.

Oud Artistry is an album of infinite beauty and one of the best fusion albums ever made. Every track is a winner. The music radiates warmth, spirituality and tension, while blending Arabian, Armenian and Turkish material with ease and grace. Most strongly recommended!

The pricey and much-sought Music Of The Middle East ups the swing'n'swirl factor with some frantic whirling-dervish workouts. The flamenco-like flourishes in Oud Solo are irresistible. This truly uplifting selection has thankfully been reissued.

Music And Gibran is a collaboration with Rosko, a DJ at WNEW-FM. Subtitled 'A Contemporary Interpretation Of The Author Of "The Prophet" ', this is a predominantly-spoken mystical journey through the works of Kahlil Gibran, a Lebanese poet who died in 1931. One of Gibran's books, The Broken Wings, was made into a film at the time of the album and won an award at the Sorrento Film Festival.

Middle Eastern Rock is Berberian's most accessible album for the curious. There is lots of variety on these extended seven tracks where oud and guitar interplay. Berberian successfully fuses Middle Eastern vibes with Western rock to produce some fascinating results - check out The Oud And The Fuzz on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 2 (2-LP) or Turds On A Bum Ride Vol. 5 (CD).

NB: α also issued in the U.K. by Polydor (56742 and 56770 in 1968/9 respectively).

Pop group Berkeley Kites flirted with toytown pop-psych and Pet-Sounds-inspired harmony sunshine-pop. Alice In Wonderland is in Rubble territory and has a cool vibe, with flute, muted brass, and fuzz chords low in the mix. The flip has better fuzzwork but this is subjugated by awful brass work that includes a really naff 'big top' refrain. The Mary Go Round single is tame bouncy harmony-pop with brass, whilst their final single is another fluffy pop-psych offering with Willow Run being the stronger cut.

Both Alice In Wonderland and Willow Run singles were produced by Finlay Duncan. Alice In Wonderland has been compiled on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 6 (double cassette box).

R.J. Benninghoff wrote their material. He went solo and, as Benninghoff, released two albums on SSS in 1971 - Beethoven Bittersweet (SSS-15) and Church Bach (SSS-17). Literally 'baroque-rock', these reworked classical pieces by Beethoven and Bach via harpsichord doodlings in a rock setting.

Minaret was one of the numerous labels managed by Shelby Singleton, the man behind SSS, Amazon, Plantation and Double Bayou.

There is speculation that the band was based in Florida. (SPr/MW/SR)

BERMUDA TRIANGLE - Self Titled CD.

One track from this album, Good Trip Lollipop - An Antihystahymn, has resurfaced on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 2 (2-LP) and Turds On A Bum Ride Vol. 1 & 2 (2-CD). It's very psychedelic. They are thought to have come from California and Andy Newmark was later in Sly and The Family Stone. Produced by Andy Denno the album is a schizophrenic affair - one side comprises interesting, if gimmicky psych, the other uninteresting soul. Good Trip Lollipop is certainly the most psychedelic track with acid-drenched keyboards and crunching guitar. ALBUM: 1 BERMUDA TRIANGLE (Winter Solstice SR 3338) 1977 R2

NB: (1) reissued on CD by the band (Winter Solstice SR 3338) 2007 with six bonus tracks. (1) reissued on CD (Radioactive RRCD143) 2006. (1) reissued as a 12" single (Anazitisi Records) 2008. The Missing Tapes (CD) (Winter Solstice) 2007 contains previously unreleased material.

From Long Island, New York in 1975 Bermuda Triangle was a mellow folk-psych duo with spacey female vocals. They performed at thousands of shows at colleges across the country as well as at all the New York City clubs. Their album contains bizarre loungy covers of Aerosmith's Dream On and The Moody Blues' Nights In White Satin. The male/female vocals blend well with the fiddle-style violins and autoharp which accompany much of the remaining material. One of the best tracks in this format is Right Track and it's one of five penned by Roger Penney. Wendy Penney has a beautiful folk-like voice, with considerable range in her singing. The album concludes with a unique version of the Circus Maximus song Wind, which is the most psychedelic cut on the album with with an ethereal folk voice, moody electric piano and bass. This album is definitely worth investigation, but you'll need to play it a few times.

The Missing Tapes CD contains psych-folk tracks of theirs from the seventies that had been missing for years. Of the 13 songs, eight are from live performances but were never released before on disc. A number of them had been completely lost with no known existing copies until they were unearthed in a long time friend's collection of live tapes, and in the archives of a radio station .

An earlier album in similar style exists, shown as by Roger & Wendy. (SR/VJ)

45: I've Been Looking/Baby, That's All (IGL 133) 1967

From Des Moines, Iowa they were originally known as The Coachmen, but changed their name after learning about the Lincoln, Nebraska Coachmen. Baby That's All is an irresistibly melodic fresh'n'breezy pop-harmony number. The flip, a Hollies cover, is laced with ringing 12-string hook-lines.

Compilation coverage has included: - Baby, That's All on Monsters Of The Midwest, Vol. IV (LP); I've Been Looking and Baby, That's All on The IGL Rock Story: Part Two (1967 - 68) (CD) and The Best of IGL Folk Rock (LP). Berry, previously with garage outfit 4th Street Exit, recorded this private album in his San Jose, California home studio in the early seventies. Full rock band backing throughout, but Bob sings and plays all the instruments on seven of the 10 tracks. His vocal style is laid-back and soulful which suits this West Coast progressive album. Just 100 copies of the record were pressed and the covers were handmade. Red And Blue (from the single) also appeared on the Heavy Berry album but the flipside, a short jazzy instrumental, is non-album. Berry later led the AOR/progressive group Hush who released two private albums (the first was re-issued on the ASI label in 1977), these were followed by a second private Bob Berry solo album Back To Back in 1984, after which Bob formed the progressive trio 3 with ex-ELP members Keith Emerson and Carl Palmer. The Best (?NJ)

ALBUM:	1	MORE OF THE BEST	(Recorded Publications Company RPC 69852) 1966 R4

NB: (1) no cover is known to exist for this LP.

Here's a rare garage album on the well-known Camden, New Jersey vanity label. The Best was an unknown local combo who run through a bevy of typical garage covers in a 'prep rock' style. Tracks include Mercy Mercy, Route '66 and Well Respected Man. This is very basic - no fuzz, no off-the-wall ravers - just honest and workman-like attempts that may sometimes sound flat and far from inspiring. But then that's what is so appealing about this genre and why serious collectors will pay a fortune for an original.

While the album has not been reissued in its entirety, half of the tracks appear on a split album reissue entitled The Best/The Gents with each group showcasing tracks from their respective RPC label albums. This limited edition album appeared in 1996.

One track from the album You Meant Nothing To Me can also be found on Oil Stains, Vol. 2 (LP) and Quagmire Vol. 1 (CD); When You Dance has resurfaced on Quagmire Vol. 2 (CD); and Yeah, She Was Mine can also be heard on Destination Frantic Volume 3 (CD). (MW/VJ)

	Ring My Bell/?	(Ampex 11041)	1971

This band's two albums are worth a listen with the first album being the better of the two. It contains lots of jazzy instrumentation and the better tracks are Sea Rider (which has lots of good piano work), Sailboat Ride (which features some nice sax and flute) and Earth (which also has some good flute pieces and jazzy piano). The final cut It's About starts with some rather discordant guitar work. The first single was taken from this album but consisted of the two most commercial but least interesting tracks. There's more of a country influence on the second album, particularly to the vocals - a good example of this would be Ring My Bell, which was also issued as a single. Also of note are Blind Man's Buff, which is quite bluesy and has some good flute pieces and Tales From The Citadel for its spacey introduction which soon gives way to the sort of jazzy instrumentation that characterises both albums.

They originated from the Clearwater/Tampa area in Florida although they toured extensively all around the South and had a good live reputation and were often double-billed with The Allman Brothers.

Buddy Helm (ex-Those Five) went on to play briefly with Frank Zappa and then Tim Buckley. Charles Dechant later played with Hall & Oates, with whom he has spent the last 20 or more years. The guitarist/vocalist Danny Finley went on to the Kinky Friedman and the Texas Jewboys band and co-wrote many songs over several albums. Christian Ghandi's whereabouts are unknown. Jim Neiman is now deceased. (VJ/PLn)

45:	Walk Me Out/Blues Concerning My Girl	(Jabberwock 110)	1966

This single, which is sought-after by collectors, was the work of a Bay Area band that operated between 1966 and 1970. They are thought to have been from Walnut Creek, an East Bay suburb. At least one member, Peter Saltzbach, was later in the New Delhi River Band, a seven-piece San Francisco outfit whose break-up resulted in the formation of two new groups, New Riders Of The Purple Sage and Shango. Chicago blues was the inspiration for Walk Me Out, a mutation of what was originally a Jimmy Reed song.

Compilation coverage has included: Blues Concerning My Girl on Pebbles, Vol. 21 (LP), Pebbles Box (5-LP), Trash Box (5-CD) and Pebbles Vol. 11: Northern California (CD); and both Walk Me Out and Blues Concerning My Girl on California Halloween (LP). (VJ/MW/Rich Strauss)

45:	Good Lovin/City Song	(Chatim 1777/8)	c1969

Late sixties/early seventies soul-infused pop-rock seen described as 'garage'. Well it ain't - Good Lovin is funky rock though it isn't the James Brown song.

The band formed in Baltimore in 1969; it's not recalled whether the original bassist was Whitney or Thompson. Westerfield left in 1970 and was replaced by Doug Lewis, former leader of another Baltimore group, The Peppermint Rainbow, who had split after some success in 1968-9 with at least five singles and an album on Decca. 45:	I'm Gonna Leave You/ I Could Have Loved Her	(U-Doe 105)	1966

This outfit came together in New Orleans in 1965 as The Forces Of Evil, a name which didn't endear them in some quarters, so they became The Avantis... only to switch name again to the Better Half-Dozen in the summer of 1966 when U-Doe label boss Frank Uddo took an interest.

It's a typical punk single with lots of organ. The top side is definitely the stronger of the two with a pulsating beat throughout. Both sides can also be heard on Eva's Louisiana Punk From The Sixties (LP) and Sixties Archive Vol. 3 (CD).

A second single was recorded but not released. Sklamba departed in mid-1967 and the band continued on into 1968 as The Better Half. Frank Bua, drummer with The Palace Guards, also spent time in this group. (VJ/AB/MW)

45:	I Can't Do It By Myself/Like The Flowers	(M.O.C. 667)	1967

The top side of this single is gruff R'n'B-infused pop, rather like early Wildweeds. It's the Comisky-composed flip, Like The Flowers, that's the attraction here - a catchy garage-pop effort.

Producer (and 'A' side composer) Argel Reynolds recalls that the group featured singer John Comisky and a girl drummer called Rita. They were from New Jersey but were going to college in McKenzie, Tennessee. They cut the record at Royal in Memphis with Travis Wammack guesting on lead guitar. It was their sole release. Comisky would return to New Jersey.

BETTY - Handful LP.

About the same time that Reynolds was producing this band, he went to England and Germany and wrote and cut two sides with a UK band called The Fleets, which became the first release on the Hip label in 1966. Apparently the girlfriends of the band didn't want them to come over to the US to promote it so the record died. No UK release can be traced.... resulting in confusion amongst collectors over the band's origins ever since.

You'll also find Like The Flowers on Glimpses, Vol. 2 (LP), Glimpses, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD), Bad Vibrations, Vol. 3 (LP), Turds On A Bum Ride Vol. 3 (CD) and Trip In Tyme Volume 3 (CD). (MW/RHI)

ALBUM: 1(A) HANDFUL (Thin Man Records AFP-703) 1971 R5

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Shadoks 019) 2001.

Here's a hideously rare bluesy hard-rocker from Los Angeles, California. Try to imagine Dragonfly merging with Canned Heat and you'll be close. As only 200 copies were pressed and sold by the band at gigs, this record is very rare! If you like crude, powerful heavy rock, this one is not to be missed... and if you don't, then you can be content in the knowledge that the band members have since disowned it.

Handful is actually the second album the band recorded - their first remains unheard. (CF)

From Clevelend, this decent mix of breezy folk and psychedelia went totally unnoticed at the time. ALBUM: 1(A) B.F. TRIKE (w/insert) (Rockadelic RRLP 1.5) 1989 R2

NB: (1) recorded 1971 but unissued originally. Rockadelic issue comes with insert. (1) also issued on CD (Rockadelic no#) 1997. (1) reissued on vinyl (Atlas 179 117) 2000.

Originally from Evansville, Indiana and known as Hickory Wind with the same line-up, this trio went to Nashville early in 1971 and laid down tracks for a proposed RCA album. It didn't happen. Eventually Rockadelic issued it - you'll need deep pockets for the limited vinyl version which disappeared all too quickly, so get the CD if this genre is to your tastes.

Musically it's quite varied but right 'in' with the heavy rock/psych school of the time. Launched by the fuzz-psych rework of Time And Changes it continues with some brisk and catchy rockers, characterised by excellent not-too-heavy drumming that swings rather than just being solid or pedestrian. Fluid fuzzed leads (the outstanding Lovely Lady), the odd lighter moment (Sunshine), and an irresistible cool boogie-rocker Six O'Clock Sleeper, absolutely tailor-made for Z.Z.Top, provide contrast and demonstrate their versatility. With perhaps the exception of the sentiments in Be Free, it has stood the test of time remarkably well and Mike McGuyer is totally justified in standing proudly by it. A shame on you, RCA! Heartily recommended. (MW)

Bhagavad Gita (OH)

45: Long Hair Soulful/
Long Hair Soulful (Instr.) (Philips 40485) 1967

This strange single came with a picture sleeve and an explanation of the subject matter - a painting by Paul Klee. Stoned psych; one side features cool vocals with hip oblique lyrics, the other is an instrumental version. Arranged by Roger Karshner, with Chuck Mangione, I guess this is 'art-rock'. He continued this theme as National Gallery, presumably with the same nameless Cleveland musicians. You'll also find the instrumental on Beyond The Calico Wall (CD) and the vocal version on Psychedelic Minds Vol. 1 (CD). (MW)

NB: (1) was issued in a gatefold sleeve and reissued on CD (Dharmaware) 2002 with a bonus CD-R. There is also a single LP pressing from 1978 which is sides 2 and 3 from the double album. (2) was credited to Bhagavan Das (and Amazing Grace) and issued in a gatefold sleeve and reissued on CD (Dharmaware) 200?

The guy behind this project Bhagavan Das was an ex-surfer from Laguna Beach, California. The first album consists mainly of spiritual Indian chanting. The rarer second album is also deeply influenced by Eastern religions, but is more Western influenced with sitar, tablas, tamboura, guitar and slide guitar and songs like Mountain Sita Ram, Dancing In My Heart, Ring Song, Just Can't Keep From Crying and Jesus Gonna Make Up My Dyin' Bed. Still the larger proportion of it comprises of Indian chanting. The records came in a colourful blue/red/orange gatefold sleeve with inserts and the second one was partly recorded live at Winterland Arena in San Francisco. (SR/VJ)

The mercurial figure in this group was undoubtedly singer Janis Joplin, born in Port Arthur, Texas in 1943. She was very much out of place in this quiet Texan community, considered 'way out' by her school mates because she dressed differently and held different values and, therefore, grew up as rather a loner. Until now, neither she nor her family had exhibited any musical talent, but at the age of 17 she discovered the blues, idolizing the songs of Leadbelly and Bessie Smith. She sang locally as a blues singer in Austin, Texas before dropping out of college and heading for San Francisco with Chet Helms, one of her few friends at the time. Janis arrived in Frisco at the beginning of the whole flower-power era - acid was becoming a big thing and underground clubs were beginning to open up all over the city. Chet Helms was organising the first hippie dances at the Avalon in San Francisco. One of the early groups trying to establish themselves were Big Brother & The Holding Company, who had begun gigging in the basement at 1090 Page Street. They were originally known as The Blue Yard Hill and also nearly called themselves Tom Swift and His Electric Grandmother. Helms became their manager, but the group felt they needed another singer. Realising Janis' potential Helms had sent Travis Rivers, a friend of his, to Texas to fetch her. He was just in time for she was about to join the 13th Floor Elevators. Big Brother was born....

In their early days they gigged regularly around the underground clubs alongside The Jefferson Airplane, The Grateful Dead and the many other exponents of the San Francisco Sound. Joplin's talent as the vocalist was immense. Her raucous gutbucket vocals complemented the strength of the band's electric music. Her roots were in the blues and she was at her best singing bluesy numbers which caused many to think she was the greatest female white blues singer. On stage, too, she was a powerful spectacle - appearing to be wild and working herself into a frenzy.

Undoubtedly, Big Brother was one of the most popular San Francisco groups at this time. Inevitably, they were soon offered a recording contract, first by Mainstream, a small Chicago label. They recorded an album which the record company did not release until after their appearance at the Monterey Festival in 1967. Prior to this festival the band was practically unknown outside of San Francisco. The festival launched them nationwide and Janis demolished the hippies with her screaming, mourning bluesy voice and her sexual act - she became a star overnight.

Mainstream then released their debut album Big Brother and The Holding Company. However, the band, feeling they had improved vastly since recording it, fought vainly to block it. The opening track Bye Bye Baby demonstrated the raucousness of Joplin's amazing voice. In another track Light Is Faster Than Sound she blends effectively with the group's other vocalists. Call On Me was an equally effective slower number. However, some of the material on the album was comparatively weaker. For example, Women Is Losers once again featured Joplin's vocal gymnastics but over a rather unimaginative I'm A Man style guitar riff. Tracks like Blindman where other group members took the vocal lead were understandably inferior. On the final track All Is Loneliness, a strange sounding affair, the group come nearest to achieving Airplane-like harmonies. The original Mainstream label pressings of the album have only 10 tracks. Later editions on Columbia add two previously non-album 45 sides, Coo Coo and The Last Time.

Their follow-up album Cheap Thrills was released on Columbia, who had rejected the original title 'Dope, Sex and Cheap Thrills' and a photograph chosen of the band featuring them in bed. Instrumentally, the band had improved. Opening track Combination Of The Two was a fine illustration of their driving rock and Joplin's gutbucket vocals. 'We're gonna knock you, rock you, sock it you now' she growled. The slower I Need A Man To Love and Summertime also saw her in fine form. Oh Sweet Mary opens with an acid guitar intro and once again captures the band at their more harmonious. However, the prominent tracks on the album were Piece of My Heart and Ball and Chain. The former showed the group at their best and was a hit in the U.S. and also in the UK, where the group never attained the popularity they enjoyed in their homeland. The song possessed a catchy chorus and Janis growled in the opening verse and chorus, whilst Ball and Chain was a longer, bluesier number executed in a similar vein.

Joplin probably realized the instrumental limitations of the Holding Company, which certainly lacked subtlety. She left the band in 1968 and performed with various backing bands prior to the release of her first solo effort I Got Dem Ol' Kosmic Blues Again, Mama!. She then found a new backing group, The Full Tilt Boogie Band (John Till: guitar, Richard Bell: piano, Brad Campbell: bass, Ken Pearson: organ and Clark Pierson: drums). With this line-up she started recording Pearl. Tragically she died accidentally of a heroin overdose on 4th October 1970 in a Hollywood motel room before the album was complete. The strains and stresses of overnight stardom had taken their toll. At first she had resorted to booze, but the loneliness of her life in contrast to her stardom on stage had driven her to narcotics. The album was completed and issued after her death. Among the material was her only U.S. No. 1 Me and Bobby McGee. Also on the album were Get It While You Can, a song which described her own live-for-today approach to life and two of her own compositions Mercedes Benz and Move Over. All subsequent releases are compilations, which ironically out-number her original recordings.

Meanwhile, Big Brother struggled on. Nick Gravenites and Kathi McDonald (ex-Unusuals) joined up as vocalist and they recorded Be A Brother and How Hard It Is, which were inevitably inferior in quality to their material with Joplin. They finally split up in 1972. The first two albums are recommended and in particular Cheap Thrills remains a fine example of the bluesy side of San Francisco music at that time.

In 1984 Edsel issued a compilation album Cheaper Thrills, which includes previously unissued material from a live concert at California Hill on 28th July 1966. It gives a good insight into the band's music in their early days. Different pressings of this album have been issued by Made To Last and Rhino in the US. Also in 1985 Joseph's Coat emerged.

Big Brother reformed in 1987 with all the original members, they are still playing gigs today.

Columbia's 1999 Box Of Pearls is a beautifully packaged 5-CD box set, which contains all of Janis Joplin's solo work and Big Brother albums and adds a number of previously unavailable recordings to each remastered disc. In addition, there's a five-track bonus disc of unreleased material from the Cheap Thrills sessions.

Farewell Song collects some of her rarities and obscurities - nine tracks in all recorded between 1967 and 1970. The vinyl release is accompanied with cover notes from Country Joe McDonald.

Compilation appearances have included: Ball And Chain on Psychedelic Perceptions (CD); a live version of Down On Me (from July 1966) on Microdelia (CD) and one from February 1968 on Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD book). (VJ)

Like many of the All American projects recently put out by Akarma, it's not clear to what extent South East Tour and An All American Emperor (shown as by Ernie Joseph) were issued originally, or if they ever existed at the time at all. These may have seen test-pressing-only releases in the sixties, like Indescribably Delicious, but even that possibility remains unconfirmed. This late sixties/early seventies southern California-based rock/horn-rock outfit is arguably of peripheral relevance to this book, although their album is a very minor collectable. They certainly had pedigree. Art Munson had been with The Righteous Brothers, Beckhorn went on to The Ritchie Furay Band, Earnshaw to The Wackers and Garland later played with Bobby And The Midnights.

Dave Garland and Virgil Beckham later played on a privately released album, Fred Field And Friends (Maranatha HS 031) 1976, which is reputedly quite pleasant later seventies hippie-rock. (VJ/MW)

ALBUM: 1(A) BIG LOST RAINBOW (No label XPL-1051) 1973 R1

NB: (1) has been reissued officially on CD (Gear Fab GF 118) 1998 (with four bonus tracks) and on vinyl (Akarma AK 078) 2000 with an insert.

This private press album was recorded at Sheffield Recording Studios in Timonium, Maryland and Dynamic Sound Studios, New Haven, Connecticut in August and September 1973. Only 200 copies were pressed which explains its rarity. The band was originally from Connecticut and had begun jamming informally in the Pomfret School, Pomfret, Connecticut back in back in 1970. Their first show was at Hartford's Earth Day Festival before an audience of 10,000 in spring 1971.

Musically the album certainly isn't psychedelic or garage - most tracks are pleasant acoustic folk with lots of guitar and flutes. Of particular note is Brothers because it's different from the rest with lots of jazzy piano. Most of the tracks are written by Rid Pearson and the standard is consistently good. There is some exquisitely beautiful music on this album.

Pearson is now a major thriller-writer and plays bass for the Rockbottom Remainders, a band made up of writers like Stephen King and Dave Barry who play music for a hobby.

Sail can also be heard on Gear Fab's Psychedelic Sampler (CD). (VJ/LP)

BIG LOST RAINBOW - Self Titled LP.

Big Sir (?CA)

45: Heart Teaser, Crowd Pleaser/ New Day Sunshine (GRT 10) 1969

Possibly from California, Big Sir was an obscure psychedelic rock group that utilised organ and guitar. Heart Teaser.. is the 1968 Flavor song, co-written with Scott English, which has reappeared on a couple of compilations credited erroneously to "Flower". It was covered again in 1970 by The Skunks. (SR/MW)

Big Sounds (TX)

45: Whang Dang/Go Ahead And Cry (San Dun 003/4) 1965

This garage band came from Dallas, Texas. Go Ahead And Cry is a reasonable beat number, with a vocalist that sounds like he's smoked too many Marlboro's... Check it out on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 2: The Barn (LP) and Sixties Rebellion Vol's 1 & 2 (CD). (VJ)

Big Star formed in Memphis, Tennessee in 1971 and was led by Alex Chilton the boy genius who had previously found fame as the 17-year-old vocalist with The Box Tops who enjoyed million selling hits with The Letter (1967) and Cry Like A Baby (1969).

Born in Memphis in December 1950 Chilton was recruited to local band The Devilles after his impressive vocal performance at a Memphis Central High School talent contest. The band soon renamed themselves The Box Tops. Chilton split with them in 1970 after most of the original members had departed. He started to write and record his own songs but, after attempting a solo folk career in New York City, returned to Memphis. There he teamed up with singer/songwriter Chris Bell who was leading an outfit called Icewater that included drummer Jody Stephens and bassist Andy Hummell. Bell and Chilton began writing songs together and were signed by the re-activated Ardent label, which was a rock subsidiary of Stax. They named themselves after a branch of the Big Star Food Market that was across the road from their recording studio.

#1 Record is usually heralded as a prime example of power pop. It's simple, light pop with sweet harmonies and jangly guitars. It was critically acclaimed but Stax's distribution fell short of the mark, the album didn't get into the shops and stalled. Big Star split for a while but then regrouped to record Radio City. Friction within the group meant that Bell left early in these sessions but like its predecessor was critically praised but failed to sell. Radio City was noted for its ragged and raw guitar pop infused with remarkable intensity and spontaneity. It also contained what is probably perhaps their best-known song, cult classic September Gurls. Another highlight was Back Of A Car, which bore Chris Bell's imprint. Tracks like September Gurls influenced the likes of R.E.M. and a host of subsequent artists and the album was hailed as a timeless landmark in subsequent years. Chilton and Stephens continued the band with different personnel and recorded the harrowing Third that remained unreleased until 1978. That same year that Bell was killed in a car crash.

Variously titled Third and/or Sister Lovers, this harrowing pop album received further unauthorised releases that contained neither the complete session nor the proper sequencing. Still, the record earned the band a significant cult following over the years.

Chilton was beset by drink and drug problems in the seventies and moved back to New York, releasing a solo single Bangkok in 1978. In New York he became friendly with The Cramps and produced their Gravest Hits (EP) and Songs The Lord Taught Us (LP).

Chilton moved to New Orleans in the early eighties and pursued various ventures encompassing jazz, soul and country. In 1993 he reformed Big Star with Jon Auer and Ken Stringfellow standing in for Hummel and the deceased Bell.

Big Star Live draws from the strongest material from their first two albums. There's a cover of Loudon Wainwright's Motel Blues as well as some of their best songs like The Ballad of El Goodo, O My Soul, Thirteen and September Gurls.

Columbia: Live At Missouri University was recorded by the reformed line-up with Jon Auer and Ken Stringfellow. All four get at least one vocal on this album. Whilst the focus is on originals from their first two albums they also cover T. Rex's Baby Strange and Todd Rundgren's Slut.

Come the noughties and there were reformed Box Tops and Big Star line-ups on the road. Chilton, Stephens, Auer and Stringfellow recorded a Big Star album of new material, In Space in 2005. Any hope of a long-lasting renaissance was thwarted though when Chilton died at a New Orleans hospital on 17 March 2010 of a heart attack.

There is a plethora of reissued and repackaged Big Star releases that are detailed in the discography, along with their retrospective compilations. The definitive one is Keep An Eye On The Sky, a 4-CD box set containing every song the band cut in the seventies, and it also contains some solo cuts by Chris Bell and Alex Chilton as well as a few pre-Big Star cuts by Icewater and Rock City. It's full of rarities and 55 of its 98 tracks were previously unreleased. (VJ)

Their first single, The Banjo Song was an old folk tune that is notable Rose's powerful arrangement. Later, Shocking Blue would re-use the tune, almost note for note, for their smash hit Venus. (SR/EW)

From Philadelphia, this black psychedelic soul group utilised lots of fuzz guitars on these albums. The first blends soul-funk and rock in a guitar and keyboard-driven format. Dance Of Survival is the better of the two, this is more keyboard-driven than the previous effort and it works well. This long-lived group from West Palm Beach, Florida produced mainly highly-derivative beat/pop fare, though enjoyable nonetheless. They recorded under several other assumed names, including two singles with Duane Allman as The New Rock Band.

The 1980 retrospective album collects most of their singles from 1965 to 1967. The version of Mary Mary here is a different version to the single. There's also two cuts - Hey Schroeder and Can I Do It - which the compilers imply were not released, but these could be the unconfirmed single No. 10 above. It is very hard to find nowadays, partly because only a 1,000 copies were pressed.

Some copies of Mary Mary come with a paste-over label where the title is given as It's To You That I Belong. Ordered by a Miami radio station because of perceived marijuana connotations, this single variant is known as a "WQAM copy".

A Bobby Puccetti composition, Heard You Went Away, was recorded by the Proctor Amusement Company.

Joey Murcia went on to join Magic whose rare album Enclosed has seen a reissue. Spirit fanatics should note the cover of Mr. Skin on the Geminix single.

Sam Hall, who joined the band in 1966, was previously in The Mor-Loks and The Trolls. He became a Christian in the late sixties or early seventies and later toured as Sammy Hall and The Sammy Hall Singers. Jerry Schills was previously with Milwaukee's Legends.

The 39-track 2-CD retrospective brings together just about everything the band put out, beginning with a pair of singles by The Apollos and working its way through the alter-ego releases (Security Blankets, Glass Bubble, New Rock Band, and Moustrap) as well as Sammy Hall's solo effort Drug Talk.

ALBUM: 1(A) A MESSAGE FROM BIRMINGHAM SUNDAY
(All American AA 5718) 1968 R4/5

NB: (1) reissued officially on vinyl and CD (Akarma AK 014) 1998.

This was a local California album recorded by a local Nevada group in December 1967. Only a handful of original copies of this record have surfaced, despite being on a "real" label, and produced by Strawberry Alarm Clock guru Bill Holmes. According to the band, however, a few hundred copies were pressed at the time.

On offer is a pleasant 'summer of love' flower-pop with occasional outbursts of acidic guitar. This should appeal to fans of the Peanut Butter Conspiracy, The Yankee Dollar, The Neighb'rhood Childr'n, etc.. All 10 tracks are originals, mostly penned (or co-written) by Joe LaChew.

As the master tapes were sadly not available for the reissue, it was mastered from vinyl, with a great deal of digital noise reduction employed. (CF/MW)

A remarkably 'Dead - sounding group of young country-rock musicians. A very good album in the hippie-rock mould! Bob Thiele Junior produced the album which was issued on his father's Amsterdam label. Bob Thiele Senior was a well-known jazz producer. The album is housed in a nice psychedelic gatefold sleeve and contains a surprising long cover of Gasoline Alley (Rod Stewart/Ron Wood) plus a cover of Another Saturday Night (Sam Cooke). This band was from the Plainedge and Massapequa area of Nassau County, Long Island, New York. The sleeve is one of the best points about their album, which apart from a couple of tracks, Travel and A Second Time is not recommended, although it has some interesting sound effects and phasing. Their cover of Out Of Sight, Out Of Mind, which is not on the album, is worth hearing and can be found on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 4 (LP & CD), Sixties Choice, Vol. 2 (LP) and The 60's Choice Collection Vol's 1 And 2 (CD). Their album track Speak Softly has reappeared on Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers, Vol. 7 (CD).

This was an all girl garage band from Cleveland, Ohio. The Hurtin' Kind is a nice folk-rocker with pleasant harmonies which can be heard on Girls In The Garage, Vol. 1 (LP & CD). The song was a hit around the Cleveland area for the Tulu Babies the same year (aka The Baskerville Hounds). (VJ)

45: Bigger Fool/A Girl Like You (Pixie 0081) 1966

The origins of this band lie in The Chandells, who were formed in early 1964 and inspired by The Beatles. They soon became one of the most popular bands in southern Ohio. They played all the top venues of the era, usually opening with a medley of the day's top hits and then moving on to Rob Hegel's original material. In early 1966, retaining the same line-up, they changed name to Bittervetch.

BITTERVETCH
Formerly Known As The Chandells
MASTERS & DEMOS
Chapter One (1964 - 1966)

BITTERVETCH - Masters & Demos 1964 - 1966 CD.

After graduation from high school they continued to perform for a while, but with Rob's family moving to Chicago and the members heading off to different colleges the writing was on the wall. They played their farewell concert, headlining with The McCoys at Dayton's Forest Park Arena on 23 July 1966.

In addition to both sides of their single, the Gear Fab CD features 18 previously unreleased tracks by this US sixties band and their earlier incarnation The Chandells recorded between 1964-66. On offer is sixties garage, ballads and fuzz-rock. Much of it is very influenced by the British Invasion sound but Rob Hegel was clearly a competent songwriter and the material is very accessible.

Rob Hegel continued to write music, including his RCA cult classic Tommy Judy and Me, Do It For Our Country for 'Grease 2' and he co-wrote (with Dick Wagner) Air Supply's Top 20 hit Just As I Am. He also co-wrote a novel 'Tuxedo Bob' with Susan Hegel.

This band's Bigger Fool got a further airing on Psychedelic States Ohio, Vol. 2 (CD). They also have another track, A Girl Like You on Psychedelic States Ohio, Vol. 3 (CD). (VJ/Roger Maglio)

ALBUM: 1 ODE TO QUETZALCOATL (D-24 700320) 197? R4

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl and CD (Guerssen GUESS 058) 2009.

This is a religious loner folk album from Michigan. After being involved in sixties Michigan folk and garage-rock bands such as The Shillelaghs and Peter & The Prophets, Dave Bixby started playing acoustic guitar and experimenting with LSD. Bixby's story is detailed on the back cover of this album - how he destroyed his life with substance abuse (recounted in Drug Song) and found salvation in Christ. Ode To Quetzalcoatl contains 12 post-conversion songs with titles like Free Indeed, I Have Seen Him, Morning Sun, Open Doors, 666 and Waiting For The Rains. The lyrics get quite weird on Prayer and Peace features a spacey flute whilst Secret Forest contains harmonica. Fans of this genre should like this album of moody, depressive and sparse acid-folk. Bixby recorded a second album with additional musicians; this was issued under the name Harbinger. (VJ)

Candy Castles/Midsumer Night's Dream (Talun TUS-0715) 1969

A short hop northeast of Indianapolis, Anderson was home to this band.

Their debut is a bruising fuzz attack, with Bye Bye Baby delivering a Diddleyesque pounding. Disappointingly for the garage contingent, their sound had softened considerably to flower-pop candy (ala Strawberry Alarm Clock) on their 1969 follow-up.

Bob McDonald penned all their songs solo except Bye Bye Baby, where he gets secondary credit to G.Kopko. Bye Bye Baby is a very appealing Mona/Who Do You Love? style song.

Compilation appearances have included: Come To Me and Bye Bye Baby on The Finest Hours of U.S. '60s Punk (LP) and Sixties Archive, Vol. 5 (CD); and Come To Me on Trash Box (5-CD) and Psychedelic States: Indiana Vol. 1 (CD). (VJ/KBn/JY/MW w/thanks to Kip Brown & Jason Yoder)

45s: Stranger In A Strange Land/
Uptown-Downtown (Verve VK-10478) 1967
Time/Postwar Baby (Verve VK-10563) 1967

One of the first wave of San Francisco bands, they formed in 1966 recording these two fine singles the following year. They were due to release an album for Verve in April 1968 but it never appeared and apparently they had cuts on an ultra-rare four record box set compilation of bands/songwriters signed to San Francisco's Trident Productions, which would now be virtually impossible to obtain. Still, you can find Stranger In A Strange Land on Sounds Of The Sixties San Francisco, Vol. 1 (LP).

Jeff Blackburn went on to play for a number of California outfits including Jesse, Wolff & Whings (early seventies), Silver Wings (1972/73), and Moby Grape (in the mid-seventies). Sherri Snow played briefly with Dan Hicks And His Hot Licks (in the late sixties) and Chicken Hirsch drummed for The Cleanliness And Godliness Skiffle Band (late sixties) and then the seminal Country Joe And The Fish (during the late sixties). He later owned a 'head' shop in San Francisco.

The Big Beat retrospective CD collects 20 tracks from their 1966 period at Trident Productions, also the home of the Mystery Trend, The Sons Of Champlin, and The Chambers Brothers. Blackburn and Snow's forte was dramatic or dreamy chiming electrified folk-rock with confident strident vocals, brimming with the bright-eyed innocence and self-belief of the hippie generation. The vocals especially epitomise the emerging "San Francisco sound"... comparisons to early Jefferson Airplane or Jan Ashton-period Vejtables are inevitable. Both Verve singles are included and turn out to be just the tip of the iceberg; hidden gems are revealed which justify a reappraisal - Yes Today, Takin' It Easy and Do You Realize are quite simply stunning. With comprehensive notes from Alec Palao, this is a must for any West Coast aficionado.

An alternative and previously unreleased version of It's So Hard (from June 1966), an earlier unreleased demo of Stranger In A Strange Land, the unreleased backing track to See More Tomorrow, and their two single 'A' sides (Stranger In A Strange Land and Time) have all been compiled on Sing Me A Rainbow (2-CD). You'll also find Stranger In A Strange Land on Sounds Of The Sixties: SFO Part 1 (LP) and Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD plus book). (VJ/SR/MW)

This group was originally from Columbus, Ohio. They started out as a combination of two local groups, The Ebb Tides and Tree. They continued as Tree and won a recording deal from Mercury as a prize in a local band competition. The resulting single (which has become a collector's item due to the burning hard-rock of Epitaph For A Head) generated enough interest that the label optioned an album from the band.

The Ultimate Prophecy is arguably the best rock album ever from Ohio. Craig Fuller was added to the line-up just before recording and his country/folk influence dominates the music on side one of the album. Angel and We Can Try are particularly good, the latter being one of the earliest heavy-rock-meets-country songs extant; a style that later dominated the American music scene when groups like The Eagles and Linda Ronstadt homogenised and neutered it. These tracks have edge and power, though - and should not be overlooked. Side two of the album was taken up with the Ultimate Prophecy suite, an engaging life-cycle mini-opera that plays out its theme of birth-death-reincarnation against a backdrop of some truly stunning hard-rock music. Despite its 20-minute plus running time, the whole of this side became an instant FM underground classic across the Midwest and its popularity stretched into the eighties. Most of the music on this side was composed by guitarist and original Tree member Jeff Whitlock, with lyrics by J.D. Blackfoot and drummer Dan Waldron. The album itself has always been scarce, but it was fetching serious money even in the seventies in places like Chicago, Detroit, and St. Louis where it was a late-night FM staple. It remains an essential American rock record with wide appeal, and is highly recommended.

The album credits two people who don't actually play on it - Phil Stokes on bass (the actual bass player was Kenny May - he was replaced after the recording), and Sterling Smith (ex-Grayps) on keyboards (also joining after the recording, there are no keyboards on the album!). The line-up with Phil and Sterling did however record some unreleased material.

In September 1970, J.D. Blackfoot left the group and most of the rest of the band continued to play as Osiris. (Osiris in turn would later metamorphosise into two other groups, one being the Load, who recorded a keyboard driven progressive rock album Praise The Load in '77.)

In 1972, J.D. and his wife went to New Zealand for a month's holiday and liked it so much they spent most of the next two years there! Indeed, his The Song Of Crazy Horse album was assembled largely from recordings made at Auckland's Stebbing Studio with local luminaries such as Billy Kristian and Frank Gibson. The disc won New Zealand's 'Best Album Of The Year Award' in 1974 and the original New Zealand pressing with booklet and poster are highly sought-after. The 18-minute title track was inspired by the Indian story of "Bury My Heart At Wounded Knee".

Back in the US, J.D. assembled a new group with some of the musicians from other sixties Columbus area bands like The Four O'Clock Balloon and The Myrchents. They recorded Southbound And Gone at Fantasy's Studios in Berkeley, California. The title cut Southbound And Gone was co-written by Blackfoot and Mobley, and the album also included We Can Try, an old Blackfoot/Fuller collaboration. Four tracks are mentioned as being taken from the obscure rock opera "Space And Mary Jane" and two songs were released as a single.

After leaving the band Craig Fuller and Phil Stokes co-founded Pure Prairie League. Fuller was later a member of American Flyer together with Doug Yule (Velvet Underground), Eric Kaz (Blue Magoos) and Steve Katz (Blues Project). They released two albums for United Artists in 1975 and 1976 of average country-rock produced by George Martin. Later still, Craig Fuller became lead singer for the reformed Little Feat in the early nineties.

1998's Footprints contains previously unreleased material and five tracks from Southbound And Gone, which has never been reissued on CD. Ultimate Years is a 2-CD "best of" J.D. Blackfoot from the years 1969/1999. It contains the original studio versions of both The Ultimate Prophecy and The Song Of Crazy Horse plus 24 other tracks from the first 30 years of J.D.'s career.

Blackfoot, who changed his name to Van Dervort in 1970, sold the worldwide rights to his Fantasy label recordings some years ago, but retained exclusive rights to the New Zealand market. Currently living in Columbus, Ohio he still makes recordings.

You can also hear Epitaph For A Head on Songs We Taught The Fuzztones (LP & CD), Trash Box (5-CD) and High All The Time, Vol. 2 (LP). (GGI/VJ/SR/CBe/CF/PSs/SS)

NB: There's also a French 45, with picture sleeve: Prophet/Cynthy-Ruth (Chess 169556L) 1970.

This black outfit operated out of Mississippi but recorded in Chicago. The 1996 reissue describes the group as "folk rock funkateeers" (sic) and their music is a rather interesting combination of blues, rock and soul with loads of guitar parts clearly inspired by Hendrix. Cynthy-Ruth is the most commercial cut and was also included on the funk/psych compilation Chains And Black Exhaust. The album's vocals are a weak point, but its better moments include Over And Over, a bluesy instrumental; Reality, a laid-back effort with some nice bluesy guitar work and Windsong, a slow instrumental, very similar to Fleetwood Mac's Albatross. The first album was recorded in the winter of 1970 and produced by the enigmatic "Swan". As Blak-Mer-Da they also produced at least one single by Fuji.

The band was latterly known as Mer-da and their 1972 album is a decent sort of psychedelic/blues, with quite strong guitar. The songwriting is stronger on this album, but the vocals are flat. (VJ/SR/MW/MJ)

This limited private pressing was originally issued in a plain white sleeve, made for fans and friends of the band. The music is jamming instrumental hard-rock with long guitar solos. The band was formed by John Wherle and Robin Trowbridge in Charleston, West Virginia in 1970 and they recorded the album in John Wherle's basement studio.

Robb Trowbridge: "A friend, Jack Griffith told me that John Wherle was looking for a drummer for a two man band. I took my drums over to his house and after months of practice, and I mean months, we had Black Orchids. We had to perfect a type of sound because we were just a two man band with guitar and drums. John developed a style he called sub-harmonics, which used a type of dreamy open string chords. Joe Stevens came along when we played the Earth Day Festival in 1970, at Kanawha State Forest with many other bands. John and I felt we could get a bigger sound with the added bass. All our songs were written by ourselves except a cover of Yellow Cab Man by Gun and they were all instrumentals". (SR/RTe)

When Moulty, The Barbarians' drummer left the band, the remaining members (Benson, Causi and Morris) moved from Boston to San Francisco and with the addition of fellow Bostonians Fieldings, Molcahy and O'Connor formed Black Pearl in 1967.

The band's three guitar line-up helped to create one of the first heavy psych groups, with strong R&B roots. Their first album was produced by Lee Kiefer and Richard Moore. It contained nine short tracks, with titles like Crazy Chicken, White Devil and Mr. Soul Satisfaction. Its cover was designed by Eve Babitz.

The second album was recorded live at the Fillmore West in September 1968 and contained an 11-minute version of James Brown's Cold Sweat.

Named after the Tyrone Power movie, Black Swan was formed out of the exodus of kids heading off to San Francisco in the late sixties. Tom Bright was one of a bunch of kids from Austin, Texas who, fed up with red-neck aggression, dropped out of University to head west, but when his "get rich quick" band broke up on arrival, he answered an ad and joined a couple of musicians by the name of Bruce Good and Jeff Cohen.

With the addition of Saul on bass, they secured a three month residency at a bar and moved to a farm in Sonoma, north of the Golden Gate Bridge.

Under the wing of Matthew Katz, they recorded a couple of tunes, Lady Blonde and She Encircles Me for his now legendary compilation San Francisco Sound - Fifth Pipedream Vol. I (LP & CD). Both are quite commercially orientated tunes, with sprinklings of brass, and harmony vocals in a John Sebastian/Lovin' Spoonful vein. She Encircles Me is particularly memorable for its waltz feel, although both songs were really at odds with the long extended jams coming from all other corners of San Francisco at the time.

Black Voy Alley

BLACK VOY ALLEY - Self Titled LP.

Katz then arranged for Black Swan to move en-masse to Seattle, but after a month or so of playing the Encore Ballroom to "thin crowds and little cash", Tom quit and moved back to California, finding himself learning to do light shows... He recalls: "I muffed it bad at Matthew's faux-Moby Grape's first appearance (made up of a number of the 17-year-old staff musicians). I accidentally threw white light on the boys before the crowd had been acclimatised to them singing familiar songs in the dark - their covers were only 60% close - and it was immediately obvious that bouncing, live-wire Skip Spence was NOT onstage, nor was even a single other actual Grape. The crowd rather effectively rebelled and stormed the box office."

Prior to leaving Texas, Bright also played on Gilbert Shelton's sole single, as well as playing with local notables such as Powell St. John, Steve Miller, Mance Lipscomb and John Lee Hooker.

Bruce Good now sells cruise ship berths out of San Francisco and Jeff Cohen lives in Mill Valley and records TV ad music. Bassist Saul Chait was last heard of selling Mazdas in Petaluma, California, whilst drummer Tom Bright went on to race motorbikes professionally and is now a print broker, industrial consultant, and political candidate in Sacramento, California. ALBUM: 1(A) BLACK VOY ALLEY
(Black Voy Alley Records BVA 82172) 1972 R2

Hard partyin' El Paso, Texas bunch Black Voy Alley recorded at Audio Recorders in Phoenix. Their rare album is (sadly) made up entirely of cover songs from the era... sad because they play pretty well and an album of original material could well have been a real monster.

While this band deserves public ridicule for its disturbing fixation with Three Dog Night (three covers!), these boys rack up serious bonus points for including Stairway To The Stars by the (then) rather obscure Blue Oyster Cult! Add a Who tune and a couple of Deep Purple covers and the overall vibe is one of drunken teens at backyard parties in the suburbs while the parents are out of town. Plenty of bands did the same across the USA but few were this proficient - and even fewer made enough money at it to record professionally and press records. (CF)

Dale Menton was involved in several Mankato and Minneapolis-based sixties bands including The Gestures, The Best Things and The Madhatters. He was the writer and architect of this rock concept album, which was recorded in Chicago, although the artists responsible for it were mostly from Minneapolis. Craswell was earlier with The Castaways and later played for the Chicago band Crow, who moved to Minnesota. Pedalty was a session man and Greg Maland one of Minnesota's best keyboard players.

Greg Maland is perhaps best remembered as Gregory Dee (of Gregory Dee and The Avanties fame). He was also in the Castaways with Libby and Craswell, from 1966 until 1969. (VJ/MW)

	Love Her And Cherish Her/Pageant	(Jubilee 5662) 1969
	It Isn't Easy/My Someone	(Fine FI-57027) 1970

The Jubilee singles are mainly summery harmony-pop. One highlight is a cover of the Peter Sellers film title-track I Love You Alice B.Toklas (also recorded by Harpers Bizarre). The Blades' version is noteworthy for vocal phasing and psychy effect-laden intro and outro. The Way You'll Never Be is a cover of label mates the Fifth Estate. For their single on Fine, this Rochester, New York State combo turned to heavier garage-pop sounds - It Isn't Easy in particular features some great fuzz breaks.

Their album has an amusing title, but is may be disappointing for 'psych' fans. 12 short tracks are included with emphasis on harmony singing which at times take on a mild psychedelic tinge. A few unexciting covers of songs like Help! and Walk Away Renee give the album an uneven quality. On the positive side there are innocent sunshine pop tracks like Just Ah, Or Is It The Rain and the best cut Just Another Face with its inventive orchestration and fine harmonies. Still, on the whole, this is too boyish and bland to convince.

The Rev-Ola CD is an 18-track collection of their Jubilee singles and album. No mention is made of the Fine single, both sides of which were composed by J. Donnelly and B. Lawler. It begs the question - was that a different Rochester, New York outfit?

Compilation appearances have included: It Isn't Easy on Seeds Turn To Flowers Turn To Dust (LP & CD); and Just Another Face on Bring Flowers To U.S. (LP). (SR/MW/MK)

Hal Blaine was one of the best American drummers and can be found on literally thousands of albums recorded in the Los Angeles studios from the late fifties to the eighties. His Psychedelic Percussion album was an attempt to cash in the psych movement but it flopped. Recorded with Paul Beaver and Emil Richards, it features a lot of unusual instruments (Bean Bags, Buggy Whip, Celeste, Vibra-Fuzz Tone, Wobble Board, Beaver Electric Modulation Apparatus...) and tracks like Love-In, Trippin' Out, Freaky, Wiggy, Kaleidoscope and Tune In-Turn On...

You can also find his Secret Agent Man on Penny Arcade, Dunhill Folk Rock Vol. 2 (LP) the instrumental Love-In (December) on Everything You Always Wanted To Know... (CD); and Wiggy (November) on Buzz Buzz Buzzzzzz Vol. 2 (CD). (SR/MW)

This California (Hollywood?) band's forte was raucous guitar and sax instrumentals - e.g. Beaver Patrol on Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 6 (LP). The 1963 Battle Of The Beat (LP) features two Blazers tracks - Mag Wheels and Money (the latter "with vocals"). Strummin Mental Vol. 3 (LP) features a Blazers with an instrumental called Poison which may be this group.

A predominantly instrumental/surf group, their inclusion here is thus marginal. No known connection to other Blazers... (VJ/MW)

From Kansas City, Missouri I Don't Need You (composed by D. Hord) is catchy garagy-beat with haunting electric piano. The Halter-composed flip is derivative saxy rockin' pop with echoes of DC5's version of Berry Gordy's Do You Love Me.

The remaining material includes a couple of Stones and Young Rascals numbers along with some standard sixties fayre like Mustang Sally and Summertime. The range of material is wide covering blue-eyed soul, beach, ballads and some unadventurous instrumentals and the vocals are quite strong, but overall the album is pretty average. (VJ)

BLESSED

BLESSED END - Movin' On LP.

This band came from Philadelphia and their album is excellent Doors-influenced psychedelia with similar keyboards and a vocalist who sounds like Jim Morrison. Consistently good throughout, this is recommended. All 10 tracks were self-penned and arranged by the band. The album was produced by Carl Sandell and recorded at "The New Sound" studios in Springfield, Pennsylvania. Teti's vocals are excellent and reach their peak on tracks like Sometimes You've Got To Be Strong and Dead Man. The album's finest moments include Nightime Rider and Movin' On, which both feature superb keyboard work.

Steve Quinzi adds: "Mike, Jim, Ken and myself were from Ridley Park, a suburb of Philadelphia, whilst Doug was from Springfield. We are all from more or less working class backgrounds. We met in high school (Ridley High) and the band had already been together about a year when I joined in the fall of 1970. Up until that that time they had two guitars. The other guitarist - Lenny Perchowsky - had left the band to go off to medical school. The first time we played together we hit it off both musically and personally, Mike and I became best friends and remain so to this day."

"We played at school dances, pep rallies, 'Battle Of The Bands', splash parties, and coffee houses around town. It was a wonderful time. As we became more familiar with each other, Jim and I began writing songs together. We got the idea to record the album when a local recording studio owner called me and asked if I'd be willing to loan him my farfisa organ (for use at a recording session) in exchange for recording time. Needless to say I accepted his offer. Over a period of about three months, Jim and I worked up what we felt were our 10 best songs, and the band started rehearsing them. We recorded the whole album in one day (summer '71). Like a Godsend, three very good paying gigs came up in one week, and we used the proceeds to finance the pressing of the albums. Ken designed the cover."

"Shortly after recording the album, Ken left the band to join the navy. This, as I was later to realise, was the beginning of the end for the band. The only other recording we did was a remake of Can't Be Without Her that we did with a sub bass player."

"Ken's replacement was Rick Swanson. Rick and Jim did not get along, so sometime later Jim left and was replaced by Ernie Fletsig. The band took on more a hard-rock edge and began to play frat parties at the numerous fraternity houses in Philadelphia. We also played some cheesy clubs. Ernie suffered a mental breakdown brought on by a drug problem and had to leave the band. He was replaced by Lou Grieco who did not get along with Mike. By this time (winter '73) I was sick of what things had become and left to join a Top 40 band playing nightclubs full-time. Blessed End was formally disbanded. A few months later Doug joined me in the new group, but a year later was fired after a bitter dispute with the other members. I never saw him again."

"I believe that Doug went to medical school. Mike became an auto mechanic. Ken and Jim worked in sheet metal fabrication at the Boeing helicopter plant in Ridley Park. Ken passed away from cancer a few years ago."

"I'm the only one who continued in music. I moved to Miami, Florida in '78, where I now do music production for advertising and corporate presentations. I am also a new age artist with three albums out (The Pond, Vanishing Rainforest and Rhythm Of The World)".

Gear Fab has re-released Movin' On on CD. The title cut is also on Gear Fab's Psychedelic Sampler (CD). (VJ/CF/SQ/JSu)

ALBUM: 1(A) SUNSET PAINTER (Epic BN 26488) 1969

Originally from Cicero, Indiana Lynn Blessing was a talented vibes and harmonica player who had previously played in The Advancement and Cosmic Brotherhood. His sole solo album is an instrumental mix of jazz, rock, folk and country, produced by the jazz flautist Paul Horn. The material contains five covers (Beatles's Mother's Nature Son, Byrds' Child Of The Universe, Dylan's Country Pie, a Judy Sill song and a surprising version of Pinball Wizard) plus some originals penned by Blessing, Hirth or Melz (Cosmic Cowboy, Anacalypsis and the only track with vocals, Where There Is Grass). The album begins with these words: "Just sit back, relax and take off your shoes".

The backing musicians were all Hollywood sessionmen, equally at ease with jazz, psychedelia, rock or pop. John Beck also released a solo album and Wolfgang Melz went on to play with Gabor Szabo. (SR)

45s: The New Recruit/
A Journey With Michael Blessing (Colpix 787) 1966
Until It's Time For You To Go/
What Seems To Be The Trouble Officer (Colpix 792) 1966

Michael Blessing was in fact Mike Nesmith before he joined the Monkees. He was obviously searching for some direction, as these two singles manage to display four different styles! He was born in Houston, Texas but was part of L.A.'s folk circuit when he recorded these. The New Recruit is a folk-rock novelty about a new Army recruit wishing to learn how to kill his enemies, whilst the flip is an excellent instrumental acid raga with lots of echo. The second single, Until It's Time For You To Go is an awful orchestrated ballad while the flip side is a funny protest song similar to Bob Dylan, complete with harmonica.

These two singles are now sought-after. (SR)

ALBUM: 1(A) SOUL SESSION - AT HIS PLACE
(Creative Sound CSS 15308) 1970 SC

NB: (1) reissued on CD (CSD 1530), available via sonrisemusic.com.

An extremely strange album, between stoned-on Jesus folk-rock and anti-drug propaganda, housed in a great psychedelic cover with a strange logo combining a cross and a peace sign, rock musicians and a portrait of Blessitt. Arthur Blessitt, a preacher "Minister to Sunset Strip", "tells it like it is" on two long tracks: Soul Session (14'23") and White Slavery, Black Panthers And The Hell's Angels (16'19"), O.J Peterson sings Glory Hallelujah and Jim McPheeters Tell It To Jesus and God's Love.

The liner notes explain that Blessitt has an all-night psychedelic Gospel Club at 8428 Sunset Strip in L.A., that his congregation is composed of acid heads, speed freaks, bikers, prostitutes, hippies, pushers, Black Panthers, Hell's Angels and that Blessitt is a preacher who cares enough to dare enter the strip joints, hippie pads, topless bars and love-ins with the message of Jesus Christ! 45: Ride The Ship Of Fools/Gangster Of Love (Canyon #34) c1970

This Mesa, Arizona trio first came together in folk-punkers The Sect, whose unreleased 1966 recordings were exhumed on a retrospective EP - The Sect (Bacchus Archives BA1189) 2003.

BLISS - Self Titled LP.

Bliss was formed in 1968, soon after The Sect split up. They recorded at Audio Recorders in Phoenix. Their single showcased two tracks from their album, which was typical late sixties hard-rock-trio fare but had nothing outstanding that'd grab the listener, with the possible exception of Ship Of Fools. The lack of memorable riffs or hooks and decidedly uncommercial arrangements condemned it to the also-ran league.

A second album was recorded but, unsurpisingly, failed to get a release at the time. Again, it's decent, workmanlike hard-rock, lacking only the special ingredient that would make it stand out from the crowd.

Despite having a similar catalogue numbering system, this label seems to be unrelated to the New Mexico-based Canyon Records that issued the Xit albums. (VJ/CF)

From Fort Worth, Texas this band evolved out of Crowd + 1 and despite quite a prolific output, met with little success. Probably their best known track is D.O.A. from their second album, which is a heavy organ-based threatening piece with police sirens, and is very much in the anti-war, anti-space race, anti-everything vein of the era. Another notable cut Breach Of Lease off their third album is intense, starting slowly and building up to an amazingly heavy climax. The live version is also particularly hot, whilst the humorous Melvin Laid An Egg from the debut is another musical high point.

BLOODROCK - Self Titled CD.

Actually, Cobb didn't play on the debut album; Rutledge played drums on it and early on, John Nitzinger too was considered (somewhat) a member of the band and wrote or co-wrote many of the songs.

After the live album, Rutledge and Pickens left and Warren Ham joined as a vocalist and woodwind player for the last two albums. For their final album (Whirlwind Tongues), Cobb left and was replaced by drummer Randy Reeder who had previously played in John Nitzinger's band and later played with a group called Alexis. Warren Ham later went on to form the Ham Brothers and released an album as such in 1977. Later still, he went on to play in former Kansas guitarist/keyboardist Kerry Livgren's Christian rock group AD for, we believe, two albums - Time Line and Art Of The State. In the eighties Warren was also in Black Rose.

Producer Terry Knight was involved in the first three albums after which the band did the production themselves or co-produced (Peter Granet and Ed Grundy on the last two albums; with John Palladino on USA). (CS/HH/RBc/MPo)

BLOODROCK - 2 CD.

When the Blues Project disintegrated in 1968, Kooper and Katz formed Blood, Sweat and Tears with Jim Fielder and several jazz musicians. Their new project was extremely ambitious and mixed rock, jazz and classical influences, with the use of various keyboards and impressive horn and string sections to produce "bigger sounds".

They appeared on the Sunday at the Woodstock festival and were miffed for many years that they didn't make it onto the movie, but You've Made Me So Very Happy features on Rhino's Woodstock 40 box set.

The first album was produced by John Simon and benefited from an intensive promotion campaign from Columbia who launched them as an "art rock" group. Housed in an amusing cover (each musician was pictured with a look-a-like child seated on his knees), it combines songs written by Kooper with covers of Tim Buckley (Morning Glory), Randy Newman, Harry Nilsson (Without Her) and Carole King-Gerry Goffin (So Much Love). Steve Katz wrote the good Meagan's Gypsy Eyes and the album is definitely interesting, if not for everybody's taste. It really blended psychedelia, jazz and R&B with classical arrangements.

The line-up changed for the next album, with Kooper being replaced by the Canadian shouter David Clayton-Thomas. Blood, Sweat and Tears then became commercially successful with hits like Spinning Wheel and Lucretia McEvil but most of the initial inventiveness had disappeared and the group became, along with Chicago, an example of these competent but lifeless groups with horns, sounding more like a big band than a rock group.

New Blood features So Long Dixie and arguably one of David Clayton-Thomas' finest moments, Maiden Voyage. New City features Ride Captain Ride and their over-the-top version of The Beatles' Got To Get You Into My Life.

Founding members Jim Fielder and Steve Katz left the band with Katz going onto work with Lou Reed. Blood, Sweat & Tears continued performing with a new line-up and recorded a new album No Sweat that climbed to no 72. The follow-up Mirror Image fared less well, only managing no 149. The band was also plagued by numerous line-up changes in this era. Just when it was on its knees the band was given a new lease of life by the return of David Clayton-Thomas and re-launched as Blood, Sweat & Tears Featuring David Clayton-Thomas. With this line-up they released a reasonably successful comeback album, New City in 1975. Tracks included covers of Allen Toussant's Life and Randy Newman's Naked Man. Clayton-Thomas' performances met with good reviews and the album included a rare venture into acoustic guitar blues with a version of John Lee Hooker's One Room Country Shack. The accompanying single, a cover of The Beatles' Got To Get You Into My Life failed to make the Top 40, but the album sales were good enough to lead to an ambitious tour that yielded a double concert album, Live And Improvised, that initially only got a European release.

More Than Ever was the last studio effort by the re-formed, reconstituted Blood, Sweat & Tears, with David Clayton-Thomas back in the line-up and the whole group was invigorated after coming off of a successful international tour. For the first time since its second album, the group (with only drummer Bobby Colomby left from the original line-up and Bob James producing) sounds bold and positive in its approach. The sound is a little more R&B oriented and less rocking than the older line-up. It's a smooth mix of R&B, jazz, and gospel influences coupled with the larger-than-life sound of the production (the ten-man band is joined by 13 guest musicians and eight back-up singers, among them Patti Austin and Gwen Guthrie). The highlights include: I Love You More Than Ever, You're The One, They and the soaring, haunting Heavy Blue. Still Columbia dropped the group in 1976, and they switched briefly to ABC with no success.

The group found itself trapped between their former Columbia rivals Chicago, who continued to get airplay and chart regularly with new releases, and the purer jazz outfits like Return To Forever and Weather Report who became the vogue among jazz fans in this era.

The compilation, You've Made Me So Very Happy is a budget priced hits collection containing songs like Spinning Wheel, God Bless The Child, Fire And Rain and I Can't Quit Her. The Memory compilation is a Dutch release covering very similar material.

Compilation appearances include: More And More on Rock Machine I Love You (LP) and Pop Revolution From The Underground (LP); My Days Are Numbered on The Rock Machine Turns You On (2-LP) and That's Underground (LP); I Can't Quit Her on Heavy Hits! (LP) and Classic Rock - Rock Renaissance III (CD); Smiling Phases on Fill Your Head With Rock (2-LP) and Superb Super Pop Session No. 2 (2-LP); God Bless The Child on Heavy Sounds (LP), Starburst (2-LP) and Top Of The Rock (2-LP); Spinning Wheel on 10 More Rock Super Hits (LP), 24 Golden Greats Of The 60's (LP), The Greatest Hits Of The World (LP), 20 American Top Hits (LP), World Star Festival (LP), Remember The 60's (Volume 2) (LP), Rockin' Sixties (LP), Baby Boomer Classics - Rockin' Sixties (LP), Keep On Rockin' (4-LP), The Golden Era Of Pop Music - Volume 1 (CD), The Original Music From The 60's (Volume 3) (2-LP), The Rock Collection: Rock Groups (2-CD), Out Of Our Heads, The Underground Sound 1965-1970 (2-CD); The Platinum Collection - All The Best Of (2-CD); Woodstock Memories (CD), Rock Songs (2-CD), Rock The Classics (2-CD), Generation Woodstock (2-CD), Classic Rock - 1969: The Beat Goes On (CD), Rock Classics Of The 60's (CD) and K-Tel's 40 Super Greats (2-LP); You've Made Me So Very Happy on The Greatest Hits Of The World - 2 (LP), 20 Rock Legends (LP), Good Morning America (LP), Remember The 60's (Volume 8) (2-LP), The Rock Collection - Raised On Rock (CD), Back To The US of A (4-CD) and Woodstock 40 (6-CD box); And When I Die on Sound (LP), Rock On (2-LP), Rock'N'Soul (LP), Remember The 60's (Volume 4) (2-LP), Tour Of Duty (LP) and 22 Dynamic Hits - Vol. II (LP); Lucretia Mac Evil on Big Sur Festival - One Hand Clapping (LP) and Mojo Music Guide Vol. 2 : Roots Of Hip Hop (CD); Go Down Gamblin' on The Music People (LP), 20 Original Hits (LP) and Good Vibrations (LP); Hi-De-Ho on The Blues Story (LP), Radio Saigon Volume 1 (CD), The Rock Collection: Legendary Rock (2-CD) and American Pop Festival (2-LP); and Just One Smile on Rock (LP) and Great Stars Great Songs (LP). ALBUM: 1 BLOODY MARY (Family Productions FPS 2707) 1974 R1

Solid New York area guitar/organ heavy rock band, their album is sought-after by genre fans and is becoming difficult to find. Sir Lord Baltimore drummer John Garner has been linked to this group and is known to have contributed to the recording sessions. (CF)

3 LIVE AT BILL GRAHAM'S FILLMORE WEST (Columbia CS 9883) 1969 -
4 IT'S NOT KILLING ME (Columbia CS 9883) 1970 127

NB: (1) has been reissued as a 180 gram pressing (Columbia CS 9701). There's also an album of 1964-5 material including previously unreleased material, I'm Cutting Out (Sundazed LP 5105) 2001. Mill Valley Bunch Casting Pearls (CD) (Universal UV087) 2003 extends the original seven-track album to include the original 16-track session, which is presented in a quad-fold mini-LP style sleeve.

Born in Chicago in 1943 into a wealthy family, Mike Bloomfield began recording in 1963 with blues musicians such as Yank Rachell, Sleepy John Estes and Big Joe Williams.

In 1965, he joined the Paul Butterfield Blues Band playing on their first two albums. Arguably the first American guitar hero, playing with Bob Dylan at the Newport Folk Festival and on Highway 61 Revisited, he also recorded two singles with Barry Goldberg as The Chicago Loop. In 1967, he formed The Electric Flag and began guesting on albums of Mother Earth, Moby Grape, Nick Gravenites, Janis Joplin, Barry Goldberg, Tim Davis...

Bloomfield's solo career was first linked to the former Blues Project member Al Kooper, who he'd met during the sessions with Dylan. He then teamed up with Nick Gravenites for the Live At Fillmore West and It's Not Killing Me albums, both recorded with Mark Naftalin and members of Southern Comfort. In the early seventies, he was involved with the Bay Area studio group The Mill Valley Bunch. In 1973, Bloomfield recorded the bluesy Triumvirate with John Hammond and Dr. John. In 1975, after the lacklustre reunion of the Electric Flag, he formed the "supergroup" KGB with Goldberg, Ray Kennedy (ex-Group Therapy), Rick Grech (ex-Family/Blind Faith) and the former Vanilla Fudge drummer Carmine Appice. KGB was in fact a total failure.

Bloomfield went on to release several other solo albums, which fall out of the time-frame of this book. He sadly died in 1981 of an accidental overdose.

Mill Valley Bunch Casting Pearls (CD) extends the original seven-track album to include the original 16-track session. Most of the songs found here are Bloomfield originals, but there are also a few tribute versions, including Janis Joplin's Young Girl's Blues.

As well as an artist, Bloomfield was also a producer, often working with Nick Gravenites or Norman Dayron. His credits are mainly on blues albums by the likes of Otis Rush, Sam Lay and James Cotton etc..

NB: for contractual reasons, Mike Bloomfield is sometimes credited as Makal Blumfeld, Fast Fingers Finkelstein, etc.

Formed by students at the University of Wisconsin, in Waukesha, Bloomsbury People's debut single is orchestrated baroque-rock/pop with progressive moves and switches and tasty guitar flourishes. You can also check it out on Realistic Patterns 2: Wednesday Morning Dew (CD). The second takes one of the more memorable album tracks and the non-album Witch Hellen, a catchy hard-rocker with fluid guitar also appears on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 5 (LP & CD).

45s:	The Way I'm Gonna Be/ Say Those Magic Words	(Solar 235) 1967
	Hangin' Out/Everyday's Gonna Be Fun	(Solar 237) 1967

This outfit hailed from Houston in Texas. The brainchild behind them was Fred Carroll, who'd started the International Artists label but later sold the name to Lelan Rogers. Carroll produced both singles and the band actually recorded material for International Artists although nothing was published.

Say Those Magic Words was a Strangeloves/Pomus-Schuman composition. The Way I'm Gonna Be is bouncy pop with a keyboard motif that brings to mind The Beach Boys' California Girls. Hangin' Out, an atypical sixties garage punk number with a short psychedelic interlude, can also be heard on Flashback, Vol. 3 (LP), Texas Flashback Vol. 3 (LP & CD), and Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 23 (LP). The Way I'm Gonna Be has been compiled on Wyld Sydes Volume 1 (CD). This frat-rock band from Hammond, Indiana began as a Polka trio before discovering rock and roll. They put out three singles on a subsidiary of Chicago's Cha Cha label and were known for their colour co-ordination - blue shoes, blue clothes, and blue hair!

ALBUMS:	1(A)	NO MORE NO LESS	(Mercury SRMI 0666) 1973

A Youngstown-area Ohio band who were active from the late sixties through to the late seventies. They played a kind of Beatle-influenced melodic power-pop. (VJ)

The Blue Banana (KS)

45:	Spicks And Specks/ My Luv (some PS)	(Kanwic Records HFCS-152) 1968

You'll find both sides of this Kansas band's single, which originally came out in a picture sleeve, on A Journey To Tyme, Vol. 5 (LP). They were a four-piece from the Wichita area.

Their cover of the Bee Gees' Spicks And Specks adds resonant keyboards and a chorus of Turtlesque bah-bah-bah as a finale. My Luv is heavier keyboard-led pop with waspish fuzz and a great solo that buzzes around in an Easterly direction. (VJ/MW)

The Bluebeards (?OH)

45:	Come On - A My House/I'm Home	(Date 2-1547) 1967

Ohio has been suggested as a likely source of this bunch. Ross Bagdasarian appears to have had a hand in this whirling dervish of a neo-Eastern pop-psych ditty. They look back to a Beatles 1964 take-off on the flip, complete with mop-top shakin' falsetto 'ooo's. (MW)

	α	Born In Chicago/ I Can't Get Close (To Her At All)	(Columbia 4-44098) 1967

NB: Flip to α is a re-recorded version of the flip to β.

A classy Invasion-influenced outfit from Danbury, Connecticut who produced some quality singles with commercial potential - except that they seemed to be running at least a year behind the latest sounds.

Extra Girl, a Lee-Drake composition, is chunky Invasion beat with a Beatlesque charmer on the flip, composed by Lee and Robbins. Their superb R'n'B cover of Nick Gravenites' Born In Chicago is also given a '65 Yardbirds-style treatment with reverbed harmonica and Fender wall of sound. The Lee-Drake composed flip is minor-mood Merseybeat (Searchers-style but without the 12-string jangle). Both Columbia singles were produced by Bob Wyld and Art Polhemus, who also handled the Blues Magoos.

After a change of personnel and name they released one last excellent haunting pop single in July 1967, as the No. 1 - The Collector/Cracks In The Sidewalk (Kapp K-824).

Then in 1968 a single appeared, credited to 'The All Night Workers' - The Collector/Misery (Mercury 72833). To these ears The Collector is exactly the same track as the Kapp single but with different (slightly weaker) lead vocals. There are no obvious connections other than writer Sonny Curtis; even the publishing house is different. The Mercury single was "imagineered by: Joey and Steve with Bill at Syncron '68".

Compilation appearances have included: Extra Girl on New England Teen Scene, Vol. 2 (LP); Born In Chicago on Psychotic Reactions (LP); and I Can't Get Close (To Her At All) on Gravel Volume 4 (CD). (MW/MM)

	What Ever Happened To Rock & Roll/ Goin' Down To New Orleans	(Sea-West 110) 1972
	Needles And Pins/ Goin' Down To New Orleans	(Sea-West 112) 1973

This band came from Mercer Island, Washington. Modessa is a Byrdsian folk-rock ballad reminiscent of Chesnut Mare and about a ship wreck. The flip is a much rockier upfront affair, though still with good harmonies and some excellent ringing guitars. The first two singles and six other tracks were also assembled onto the Country Boy Blues album. Three members of Bluebird reputedly recorded the Grand Theft album, on which David Baroh recalls: "We kept this a closely guarded secret for years, but with the release of the new Grand Theft CD Hiking Into Eternity, we decided to come clean with the truth!"

Compilation appearances have included Modessa and Goin' Down on The History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 3 (CD) and Billy Drake on History of Northwest Rock, Vol. 5 (LP). (MW/DR)

ALBUM: 1(A) YOUR MIND'S MOVING TOO FAST (Vee LC 10259) 2001

This teenage garage band seems not to have released a single in their lifetime. One track, Black Candles, resurfaced on the Euro CD version of The Magic Cube in 1999, not long before the retrospective album appeared on a German label.

Unless there's an insert missing, no historical background is provided except for a list of personnel against each track. From this it can be gleaned that they recorded these demos between 1967 and 1970 with a fluid line-up featuring several different combinations of the above in two's three's and four's. They were built around guitarist/vocalist Roman Oles, who appears on all cuts except the sole cover, Love's Signed D.C..

Their repertoire runs from surfy garage instrumentals through folk-punk and on to psychy-garage. I'd guess this band to be from southern California: - there's a strong Byrds flavour in the minor-mood material and especially in the closing Jam #1, which could be uncharitably described as someone attempting Eight Miles High after a few pints too many; a nod in the direction of The Electric Prunes with some siren-like sustain and feedback; and the excellent People Looking At Me has a whiff of Love in the belligerent strumming and hispanic flavour. This San Francisco-based heavy rock group specialised in high volume rock. They were popular around the Bay Area but never caught on nationally or internationally. They were named after a brand of LSD. Their debut album is best remembered for its heavy electrified version of Eddie Cochran's Summertime Blues, which became a No. 14 U.S. hit in the summer of 1968. It also contained a powerful version of Rock Me Baby and four other compositions all played with characteristic energy and volume. For many their second album with Paul Whaley's excellent heavy rock drumming was their best, but Original Human Being was their most psychedelic, particularly on songs like Babaji. The band operated originally between 1967-71 but reformed in 1975, 1978 and 1985. On the final occasion they recorded an album comprised of new recordings and reworks of old classics like Summertime Blues, Babylon, Parchment Farm and Out Of Focus.

Prior to Blue Cheer, Paul Whaley's phenomenal drumming had ventured forth with The Oxford Circle, whose stunning single pointed towards the sonic-assault territory that Blue Cheer would claim. Whaley's fellow pioneers included pre-Kak members Dehner Patten and Gary Yoder (the latter would feature in the 1970 Blue Cheer line-up). Whaley's circle of influence did not end there. He inspired cousin Randy Hammon to start his own garage band ventures, whose trail led to the Savage Resurrection. Dick Peterson had recorded a brace of singles before Blue Cheer - with brother Jerri and Danny Mihm, later of the Flamin' Groovies, in Sacramento's Group "B".

Band offshots included Pilot (with Bruce and Leigh Stephens, Micky Waller and Martin Quittenton (ex-Steamhammer)), Silver Metre and Mint Tattoo. After Pilot, Bruce Stephens recorded two solo albums: Bruce Stephens (World) 1978 and Watch That First Step (Strawberry) 1981.

Leigh Stephens also recorded a solo album entitled Red Weather (Philips PHS 600.294) 1969 R1. It's an excellent psychedelic record in the vein of Quicksilver and was recorded at London's Trident studios with help of such notables as Nicky Hopkins, Kevin Westlake, Micky Waller and Eric Albrona. It also had a U.K. release (Philips SBL 7897) 1969 R2, and has recently been counterfeited on CD. Leigh also recorded a rare promo-only single, Red Weather/Saki Zwadoo (Philips 40628) 1969, which may have been a promotional-only release and had a non-album 'B' side. He recorded a second solo album in 1971, And A Cast Of Thousands (Charisma CAS 1040), however, despite a cover of Jumpin' Jack Flash it is marred by too many background singers and horns.

Norman Mayell had previously played with Sopwith Camel.

The recently issued Live And Unreleased Vol. 1 CD contains live recordings from 1968 and an unreleased demo from 1974 which was produced by Kim Fowley. In addition Vol. 2 also contains live recordings from San Jose in 1968 and some rare studio cuts. Both CDs were issued in Japan. In 1986, Rhino issued Louder Than God, a best of compilation. More recently, a CD of new recordings called What Doesn't Kill You has emerged.

Blue Cheer founder Dickie Peterson passed away on 12 October, 2009 in Germany.

Compilation appearances have included: Summertime Blues on Nuggets, Vol. 1 (LP), Highs Of The Sixties and Best Of 6O's Psychedelic Rock (CD); Summertime Blues and Out Of Focus on Electric Food (LP) and California Christmas Vol. 2 (LP); Summertime Blues and Out Of Focus on California Easter (LP); The Red House on California New Year (LP); Summertime Blues and Fool on Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD book); and Fighting Star on Today Is Just Tomorrow's Yesterday 1 (CD). 45: Where/Keep Looking For Love (Roaring 804) 1967

High school band Blue Chips from Rego Park, New York formed in 1964 after seeing The Beatles on the Ed Sullivan Show. Three years later they got to release their sole single, produced by Pete Antell, who was also involved with The Wild Ones.

Where is a ringing, raucous stomper; it has reappeared on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 7: Backyard Patio (CD & LP) and Psychedelic States: New York, Vol. 1 (CD). (MW/MM)

Until Need A Friend resurfaced on A Deadly Dose Of Wylde Psych (CD), this single on a Camden-On-Gauley, Virginia label was almost completely unknown. Supposedly 1,000 copies were pressed but the very few that have resurfaced in recent years fetch 'silly money' ...even without the picture sleeve.

It's gruff-voiced, stoned post-Blue Cheer biker-rock, or an acid-fried version of Johnny Orvis' Smoke (another bunch of bikers). The flip is almost as good and was due to appear on Volume 3 of Aliens, Psychos, & Wild Things but for reasons unknown didn't. (MW)

NB: α later issued on Lawn (L-225) a subsidiary of Swan and later reissued on Lost Nite and Itzy (11). β Most copies destroyed - roughly 12 copies known to exist.

From Worcester, Massachusetts this outfit got together at Worcester Polytechnic Institute and are notable for including pre-Orpheus bassist Eric

BLUE CHEER - Oh Pleasant Hope LP.

Gulliksen. Their first single, originally issued on Tom Zagryn's Bristol label, was a local hit - significant enough to be picked up by Swan. Eric recalls: "If you listen hard, you can hear Tom Collins' bass drum pedal squeaking throughout".

The group's name came from their use of home-built tape-delay echo units. Eric: "..we used the echo units on vocals and guitars. I played electric 12-string and doubled on bass guitar. Our initial 'claim to fame' was that we were playing a New York style of R&R-cum-R&B called 'shake' with a beat typified on Tiger Talk - nobody else in the area could play this stuff".

Local station WORC-AM, known to the industry for sniffing out future trends and hits, picked up on Blue Bell Bounce. It reached No. 5 on their charts and generated much label interest. The group signed with Swan who issued it on their Lawn subsidiary. "Unfortunately it was released on the day that JFK was shot and, as you may know, for several weeks no radio station played any R&R at all, so the record died".

For the second single, the Bristol label was renamed BEP ('Blue Echo Productions'). Incidentally Tom Zagryn also produced Squires' Going All The Way single, but sold the rights, when they signed to Atco. He also produced their earlier single as The Rogues.

Eric adds: - "How in the name of all of the gods of music did you ever come up with the 'Respectable' single? When we recorded it we went to a different pressing plant than the one we had been using, to try to save money (mistake no. 1). Unfortunately this company went into bankruptcy before we received product (we'd already paid for it). We screamed and yelled and threatened lawsuit, and finally received product. However, they had rushed it so much that they had evidently applied the labels before the ink was dry; they were all smudged, print had transferred from one to another, etc. The sound wasn't too bad, but nothing to write home about. Anyway, at the end of the day, we never released this record, and destroyed most of the copies (mistake no. 2). There may be as many as a dozen copies in existence (Tom and I each have one), but there wouldn't be any more than that. The record numbers on Bristol and BEP are sequential (B-101 through B-104). B-102 was a record which Tom and I wrote and produced - Andromeda/Swamp Rat - by a group from Gardner, MA, named Kenny and the Night Riders. It was a good record, sold very well in Gardner, but never went anywhere else".

Gulliksen had also previously worked with a few folk groups of various names. One of these, including Jack McKenes had a Kennedy Tribute single, The Man as The College Boys. He played concurrently with The Blue Echoes and Wanderers until the fall of 1963, resigning from the latter as The Blue Echoes' popularity and commitments were increasing and they were about to release their debut single.

Compilation coverage has so far included: Tiger Talk on Scum Of The Earth, Vol. 1 (2nd Edition LP), Scum Of The Earth, Vol. 2 (LP) and Scum Of The Earth - The Complete Story (2-CD); and Blue Bell Bounce on Oldies I Forgot To Buy (CD). (MW/EGn)

45: Tell Her No/And My Baby's Gone (Night Owl J-6861) 1968

A local Sheboygan, Wisconsin act who made a valiant stab at the Zombies' Tell Her No. A difficult one to tackle given the class of the original; the lead vocalist is no Colin Blunstone and the timing is tricky... there's a couple of awkward moments. Give 'em 7 out of 10 for effort. Their upbeat Moody Blues cover (also done by The Jynx and Stillroven) is an easier task and comes off fine.

Tommy Raml was previously with The Matadors. (MW/GM)

Despite an intriguingly colourful name and opportunistic claims by specialist dealers, this is not a psych band. What's on offer here is folkie fare, more sunshine pop than rock, with male vocals and female backing. Their debut features a waltzing folk ballad with military tattoo drumming, to drive home the battle theme, and a folk-pop swinger with a couple of brassy fanfares. (MW)

The Original Human Being

BLUE CHEER - The Original Human Being LP.

45:	Yellow's Dream/Marianne	(Atco 6770) 1970

NB: Marianne is a non-LP cut.

A short-lived California band who came into existence in July 1969, when Dewey Martin left New Buffalo. The remaining band members were left with a recording deal struck on the strength of Martin's previous connections with Buffalo Springfield, so following the addition of Joey Newman (ex-Don and The Goodtimes/Touch) and a name change, they set about recording their album.

Produced by Bill Halverson and recorded in L.A. in August and December 1969, the album will interest guitar lovers. The highlight and opening track, Love Is Here, is a memorable guitar-driven heavy rocker and others like Feel Like A Bandit, Loveless Lives and the more mellow Yellow's Dream feature more good guitar work. Others exhibit more than a touch of country influence and the album becomes a bit flat in places on side two. All the songs were written by group members, except Trivial Sum, a Terry Furlong/Richard Bowen composition.

In 1970 Blue Mountain Eagle played on bills with Love, Eric Burdon and War, Pink Floyd and Jimi Hendrix. Fuller left in May 1970 to join Dewey Martin's Medicine Ball and the band split in late 1970 after Poncher left to (briefly) join Love.

Randy Fuller was Bobby Fuller's brother and later had his own band. David Price, Bob Jones and Don Poncher went on to work with Augie Meyer (Sir Douglas Quintet) for his Western Head Music album in 1973. Don Poncher became a successful session man, working with Bobby Whitlock, Jim Price, Chris Jagger, Joe Cocker and also Arthur Lee (on his Vindicator album, 1972).

Loveless Lives has been compiled on White Lace & Strange (CD). (VJ/SR/NW)

A Mt. Airy, North Carolina group who rose from the ashes of The Nomads (of Thoughts Of A Madman fame). A highlight on An Overdose Of Heavy Psych (CD), Plastic Year "features some killer fuzz/wah wah and lurking organ. From the opening chord to the final chorus, this is a prime example of four-star late sixties psychedelia. Lyrically the song tells of one heck of a screwed-up chick..." Willowgreen is a mellow pop song with harpischord and wah-wah guitar. This establishes a link to another Nomads-associated outfit, Willow Green who released a cheesy fuzzy-pop single composed by Evans-Deatherage - Fields Of Peppermint/Fields Of Peppermint (Instr) (Whiz #619) 1968/9. This is a local New York release. Only 100 copies were pressed, according to a band member and the album comes in a generic nature scene cover with a blank back. Blue Sandelwood Soap hailed from Minneapolis. Max Waller drew the single to my attention. Friends I Haven't Met Yet is a mellow psychedelic ballad with a catchy instrumental refrain - keyboard dominated with brass that's not too intrusive. The flip features nonsensical psychedelic lyrics and is somewhat fragmented - a strange trip (shades of the West Coast Pop Art Experimental Band?).

Harley Toberman, also produced some of T.C. Atlantic's material and wrote material for them under his nickname "Toby". (VJ/MW/JSz)

BLUE SANDELWOOD SOAP - Loring Park Love-Ins CD.

A late sixties outfit from Bay City, Michigan they had earlier released a single Life Has Been So Good To Us/Playthings 5X5 under the name Ides of March. The single had no label name and is extremely rare! They changed their name after hearing about Chicago's Ides of March.

Their first single, Experiment In Color, is a killer acid-tinged freak-out with lots of wah-wah guitars, backed by She's Gone, with its haughty vocals and fine driving guitars. The final follow-up, Love Machine features a fuzzy freak-out and is almost as good as the debut.

Compilation appearances have included: Experiment in Color on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 5 (LP), Let 'Em Have It! Vol. 1 (CD), Fuzz, Flaykes, And Shakes, Vol. 4 (LP & CD) and *Scream Loud!!! Blues Image who came from Miami/Tampa, Florida played an energetic mix of blues, rock and hard-rock. They enjoyed a Top 5 hit with Ride Captain Ride in 1970. Their guitarist, Mike Pinera, would leave in 1970 to join Iron Butterfly and later Ramatam. He was replaced by Kent Henry (ex-Charity and Genesis). The group presumably disbanded when Henry later joined Steppenwolf. Joe Lala became a studio percussion player and Manuel Bertematti would team up again with Pinera for the sole album by the New Cactus Band in 1973 on Atlantic.

They went on to record five lesser known albums: Something To Say, Leavin' My Troubles Behind, Ride Captain Ride and Can't You Believe In Forever and Clean Love (all R1) for the Illusion label that Pinera set up as a tax scam. Some of these albums contain different versions of songs that previously appeared on the earlier Blues Image albums.

In the eighties Kent Henry relocated to Portland, Oregon and he played with The Paul DeLay Band and worked as a technician at the Apple Music store. He died in Portland on 18 March 2009, aged 60.

The Sundazed reissue came with new liner notes and includes interviews with members Mike Pinera and Joe Lala. (SR/TI/VJ)

45: I Can't Live With You/7 And 7 Is (United Audio 6001) 1968

Here's an above-par soulful punker with screaming lead guitar from a Warren, Ohio band on a Youngstown label. Composer M.P. Soffos was presumably a band member, certainly a confused teenager who couldn't make up his mind - Chris Hardy delivers the punch line "I can't live without you" yet the title on the label is I Can't Live WITH You. The stronger cut is the heavy, lo-fi cover of Love's classic.

Tim Burks was later in Glass Harp.

I Can't Live With You appears on Psychedelic States: Ohio Vol. 1 (CD); 7 And 7 Is can be found on A Deadly Dose Of Wylde Psych (CD) and Psychedelic States: Ohio Vol. 3 (CD).

Other Blues Inc. outfits include: one of unknown origin, with a single from 1971 - Out Of The Darkness/I Can't .. (Power no #); and a Blues, Inc. (note the comma) from Fort Wayne, Indiana with a summer 1966 release on a collectable label - Get Off My Back/Tell Me Girl (Phalanx 1025); and another Blues, Inc. single described as blue-eyed soul - Not Yet/Lawdy Miss Clawdy (Discotech 1007) from late 1967, maybe the previous bunch or from Ohio.

Tell Me Girl was compiled on Hoosier Hotshots (LP) and you'll also find Get Off My Back on Let Em Have It Vol. 1 (CD), Quagmire Vol. 2 (CD) and Psychedelic States: Indiana Vol. 1 (CD). (MW)

This group came from New York City's Bronx area, were originally known as Bloos Magoos and gigged regularly around Greenwich Village before Mercury offered them a recording contract in 1966. Their title is misleading, for they specialised in quasi-psychedelic electrical music rather than the blues.

Their best moments are on their early albums and (We Ain't Got) Nothing Yet from their first album was a U.S. No. 5 in 1966. It also contained a fine version of J. D. Loudermilk's Tobacco Road.

The second album contained a thin comic book full of all sorts of offers to turn you on whilst you played the album. Musically it was their magnum opus. The opening cut, Pipe Dream, had a good garage organ sound; There's A Chance We Can Make It featured some fine psychedelic guitar work; Life Is Just A Cher O'Bowlies had a gorgeous beginning followed by more guitar mayhem and side one also contained a discordant, extended cover of Van Morrison's Gloria. Side two was more restrained, although Take My Love was an up-tempo song with catchy organ work and the penultimate track, Rush Hour, included a storming electric guitar extravaganza.

Basic Blues Magoos contains highlights like President's Council On Psychedelic Fitness, Subliminal Sonic Laxative and a cool cover of The Move's I Can Hear The Grass Grow.

On stage they appeared in Vidal Sassoon hairstyles and specially designed 'electric' suits. The fifth album, made with a changed personnel, marked a downward turn however, which was not arrested by subsequent studio efforts. In their final days, however, Joey Stec from The Millenium joined the band which coincided with a resurgence as a live attraction.

When the group disbanded, Eric Kaz went solo and recorded two lame seventies pop rock albums. In 1976, he also formed American Flyer, a country-pop group produced by George Martin, with Craig Fuller (ex-J.D. Blackfoot and Pure Prairie League), Steve Katz (ex-Blues Project and Blood, Sweat and Tears) and Doug Yule (ex-Velvet Underground). He kept on working with Fuller in Fuller/Kaz (CBS, 1978). Cooker Lo Presti went on to play with Ringo Starr.

In 1967 (We Ain't Got) Nothing Yet was covered by England's Spectres who soon became Status Quo.

This white blues-band simply burst onto the New York music scene between 1965 and 1966. Founder Danny Kalb had contributed two acoustic guitar tracks to a 1964 Elektra blues-folk compilation album The Blues Project. After hearing Tim Hardin playing electric guitar in Greenwich Village he decided soon after to form his own band to play a similar combination of jazz, blues, R&B, and rock. Roy Blumenfeld was the first to join and soon after Andy Kulberg was enlisted. Artie Traum was the fourth member in what was at first called The Danny Kalb Quartet. The band gigged extensively in Greenwich Village between April and June 1965 but Danny left to go to England for the summer. He only returned when the possibility of a recording contract was broached but Artie Traum had left in the meantime and a new rhythm guitarist was needed. Steve Katz, previously with the Even Dozen Jug Band, was recruited at around the same time as Flanders, who'd been in the Boston-based Trolls, joined.

They were originally going to record for Columbia and recorded a couple of tracks (Violets Of Dawn and Back Door Man) in September/October which were later released as their first single for Verve records. The session man on piano was Al Kooper who was offered a permanent gig with the band. In his early days, Al Kooper had been a Tin Pan Alley/Brill Building production writer (This Diamond Ring, Who Wears Short Shorts, etc.) and was with Bob Dylan on Highway 61 Revisited and Blonde On Blonde, playing the organ in a way that would influence many American and English groups. Kooper kept on doing sessions with New York-based singers during his stay with the group.

In October 1965, the band was offered a residency at the Cafe A Go Go in Greenwich Village where they began to get a huge following. Here, their first 'live' album was recorded and highly acclaimed. The band was one of the city's main live attractions playing three concerts in Central Park in the same year. In January 1966, Flanders left after an argument and signed with Verve as a solo artist. The vocals were now to be shared, with Danny doing the blues numbers, Steve the folk, and Al the R&B and rock tunes. The Live At The Au Go Go album was released soon after with most of the material recorded after Flanders' departure. It sold over 20,000 copies in its first month of release. The CD reissue includes six bonus tracks of songs recorded in the same session.

They expanded their horizons from New York City and toured the country; eventually headlining San Francisco's newly opened Avalon Ballroom and causing a sensation (Grace Slick for example becoming thoroughly dissatisfied with her band, The Great Society, after witnessing the Project in action).

Their deliberate attempt to get a hit single with the Rascals-style number Where There's Smoke There's Fire (which Danny hated) failed and they proceeded to record the classic Projections album which contained great studio versions of some of their concert favourites, like the 11-minute Two Trains Running and the jazzy Flute Thing as well as folk ballads and full-pelt rock. Their next attempt at a hit, No Time Like The Right Time actually had some chart success but unfortunately Danny was beginning to show signs of mental collapse and Al, who was unwell also, left the band after a dispute over his wish to add horns to the band. John McDuffy joined as replacement and played with them at the Monterey Festival and on the Lost In The Shuffle single (which he wrote).

However the band had virtually disintegrated by this time and Verve released the Live At The Town Hall album, which was actually only partially live, many of the tracks being unused studio cuts with overdubbed fake applause. Meanwhile Danny was hospitalised after a two-week acid trip but even so the band played a final series of gigs at the Au Go Go in September 1967 (with Danny's brother Jonathan playing in his place). Immediately after, Al and Steve formed Blood, Sweat and Tears and Andy and Roy moved to San Francisco while waiting for Danny to recover before starting a new version of The Blues Project. As Danny failed to get better they recruited violinist Richard Greene, guitarist John Gregory, and bassist Don Kretmar to record another album, Planned Obsolescence, in fulfillment of their Verve contract. The new band, however, soon took the name Seatrain (in fact, Planned Obsolescence had included one track entitled Niart Aes Hornpipe - "Seatrain" backwards).

1971 saw Kalb and Blumenfeld reviving the group with Kretmar. This trio recorded the under-rated Lazarus in London; under the nominal guidance of Shel Talmy (although Roy and Danny say his contribution was minimal). Following this, David Cohen (ex-Country Joe and The Fish), ex-member Flanders, and guitarist Bill Lussenden were added for the Blues Project album. The band eventually split in 1972, but were reunited in early 1973 for a one-off gig in Central Park which MCA recorded and released on an album.

THE BLUES PROJECT - Projections LP.

The Blues Project is usually considered one of New York's finest bands and their first three albums (two of which capture their exciting 'live' sound) are recommended. Their second album Projections is a fine slab of psychedelic rock with excellent guitar and keyboards whose highlights include I Can't Keep From Crying and Flute Thing.

Tommy Flanders left the Blues Project at the request of Verve Records, who wanted him to pursue his career as a solo artist, but dropped him after his first recording, the splendid Moonstone (Verve Forecast FTS-3075) 1969. After the group finally disbanded, he moved to California and left the music business to pursue a career as a male model for catalogues and later worked for an advertising agency.

In 1969, Danny Kalb issued an excellent blues album with another ex-Even Dozen Jug Band member, Stefan Grossman, Crosscurrents (Cotillion SD 9007) and also backed the blues singer Jimmy Witherspoon on his Bluesway albums. Of fragile health (apparently reinforced by an involuntary "chemically induced" nervous breakdown in 1967), Kalb did not perform for nearly two years. He stopped recording between 1973 and 1993, until the release of an acoustic blues album in France on Legend Records.

Roy Blumenfeld kept on doing sessions with Mark Spoelstra and many others. He is still recording with Nick Gravenites (Don't Feed The Animals, 1994).

Andy Kulberg teamed up with Chris Michie (Mendelbaum, Lamb, Van Morrison) and the pair wrote music for television and movies for many years. Andy passed away in January, 2002.

Compilation appearances include No Time Like The Right Time on Nuggets - Original Artyfacts From The First Psychedelic Era 1965-1968 (2-LP), Nuggets, Vol. 11: Pop Part Four (LP) and Nuggets Box (4-CD); You Can't Catch Me on The Core Of Rock (LP) and The Core Of Rock Vol. 2 (LP); and Flute Thing on The Core Of Rock (LP). NB: α shown as by The Blue Boys.

From Hays in a sedate college town in rural West Kansas came The Blue Things, who were one of the best acts to come out of the Midwest in the sixties. They formed in 1964 as The Blue Boys cutting the three acetate singles listed above, before changing names in 1965. Starting out very much in the folk-rock and Merseybeat mould, they recorded two singles for Ruff, which led to them mistakenly being considered a Texas band. They then switched to RCA and their La Do Da Da was a drivin' rework of an old Dale Hawkins rocker. The follow-up Doll House was quite a strong folk-rock ballad later included on their first album. The late summer of 1966 marked an important turning point in the band's career. Now influenced by the wave of psychedelia sweeping the world and the enormously influential Revolver album by The Beatles, their live concerts at this time were legendary and included a fair splattering of Beatles' songs. The Orange Rooftop Of Your Mind single exemplified their new sound and marked the zenith of their recording career. The song is about a girl caught up in the rat race, but she can't take the pace so her mind is slowly snapping. The flip concerned a psychiatrist whose only hold on sanity came from his patients. Both songs were characterised by an East Indian sound with a Middle East organ and guitars tuned and played like sitars. After the release of the single Val left the group, suffered a nervous breakdown and was hospitalised. He was replaced by Larry Burton and early in 1967 the band returned to the studio and cut two originals - Caroline and You Took The Fight, which can be heard on The Bluethings Story, Vol. 3, along with a number of covers of popular songs like Talk, Talk. In May 1967 they released another great psychedelic single. You Can Live In Our Tree - an ecological protest song, interesting for its sound effects and rhythmical diversity - which had been recorded back in September 1966 and still featured Val on vocals. The flip - a rather interesting version of The Isley Brothers' Twist And Shout - was by the new band. They made their final recording foray in September 1967 with a fine cover of The Spencer Davis Group's song Somebody Help Me backed by Yes, My Friend, another group original, before eventually fading away.

Their album, released at the zenith of their career in 1966 is recommended, but if you can't find this the three record series issued by Cicadelic Records in 1987 (which Stoecklein helped compile) and it's equivalent two volume CD is more accessible. Vol. 3 of the vinyl is essential to connoisseurs of psychedelia. It includes five previously unreleased Stoecklein compositions from spring 1966:- It Ain't No Big Thing, Babe, You Can't Say We Never Tried, High Life, Now's The Time and Take Seven (co-written with Mike Chapman); The Coney Island Of Your Mind (an early version of Orange Rooftop written by Val and recorded by him and Mike alone); both sides of The Orange Rooftop and Tree singles and the later band's two originals from early 1967.

The band also made a plethora of posthumous compilation appearances including: The Orange Rooftop Of Your Mind on Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 1 (LP), Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 1 (CD) and Psychotic Moose And The Soul Searchers (LP); The Orange Rooftop Of Your Mind, Doll House, La Do Da Da, Twist And Shout and You Can Live In Our Tree on Mindrocker, Vol. 9 (LP); Somebody Help Me on Midwest Garage Band Series - Kansas (LP); Your Turn To Cry on Monsters Of The Midwest, Vol. III (LP); Ain't That Lovin' You Baby and Twist And Shout on Texas Punk Groups From The Sixties (LP) and Sixties Archive, Vol. 2 (CD); Twist And Shout on Flashback, Vol. 2 (LP) and Texas Flashbacks, Vol. 2 (LP); The Orange Rooftop Of Your Mind, Pretty Thing - Oh and Twist And Shout on Monsters Of The Midwest, Vol. 1; You Can't Say We Never Tried and Pennies on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 2 (CD); Waiting For Changes and Hollow on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 5 (CD); and Talk, Talk on I Wanna Come Back From The World Of LSD (CD).

This late sixties Michigan band came from the Rochester, a small town 30 miles from Detroit. They formed in late 1969 (using the name Anvil), played their first gig on 30 January 1970 and recorded an album on 7 March 1970 at Northwest studios in Detroit that remained unreleased as only a few acetates were made of the session. They went their separate ways but decided to reform for another album in 1971. This one was recorded live in a Tupperware warehouse in Auburn Heights, Michigan on a two-track tape machine owned by Brian's parents. If anyone made a mistake they had to record the whole track again!

Their album released by the band on 20 May 1971 as a limited edition private pressing (500 copies). They once again broke up. The small pressing and lack of promotion inevitably made it rare and the quality of the music ensured it was sought-after. Quite a varied album, it is well worth searching out. The opening cut, Never Come Back, which features some fine keyboard and guitar work, sounds similar to The Doors and Blessed End. Hard-rockers, like the title track and I Think I Been Had, which include competent guitar work, appear alongside gentle, keyboard dominated ballads and soft-rockers like You Tell Me You Love Me, Don't Go Away and Angelisa, the finest track on the album which boasts some unusual piano work.

Ted Burris went on to play bass in concerts with oldies outfits like The Tokens, Bobby Lewis and Little Eva. Richard Allen was named the best drummer in Michigan in a 1995 competition and the same year teamed up with Ted to record a CD of Ted's new material. Bob Makedon went on to play keyboards in a country band. Brian Walton works for Disney and Paul Manning changed his name to Paul James and split from the scene.

Wrong Road has been compiled on Gear Fab's Psychedelic Sampler (CD). (VJ/Roger Maglio)

Following Jon Keliehor's departure from The Daily Flash in June 1967, he briefly worked with an old Seattle friend and former Kingsmen bass player Kerry Magness in Pam Polland's band, Gentle Soul. Only a demo of one song was recorded before the project fell apart. The pair soon got picked up by Paul Rothchild who was auditioning musicians for what would become Rhinoceros. Also involved in the auditions was ex-Fantastic Zoo singer/guitarist Eric Karl. The threesome opted out of the auditions early on and met up with Lalor (who had disbanded The Daily Flash by this point) and David Brooks, who had met Lalor in San Francisco. The quintet decided to form a new band in early 1968 initially called Popcorn.

The group were active mainly in the Northwest and in early 1969 changed name to Bodine. Signed to MGM, the band recorded an album which has some fine moments. Produced by Bill Cowsill, he was obviously influenced by George Martin's work with The Beatles because the album contains some tracks that have a distinctive Beatle sound. Eric Karl was the main songwriter/singer although Magness and Lalor also contributed. Karl however, produced the strongest material. The highlights include the rockers, Short Time Woman and Into My Life. (NW)

NB: There is also a 12" acetate of Ashbury Wednesday from the "Psych Out" soundtrack in existence.

From Colorado, this act later migrated to Los Angeles. Their first single was produced by Frank Slay and was a No. 1 hit in Colorado. The 'B' side is a cover of the Beau Brummels song, but both songs are basically horn dominated pop.

Boenzee Cryque also has one track, Ashbury Wednesday, featured in the classic cult hippie film "Psych Out", and on the associated Psych Out soundtrack (LP). The track is featured in the movie where Jack Nicholson's Band "Mumblin Jim" is performing on some ballroom stage complete with oil lights a throbbin! It features an inverted Purple Haze riff and is a exploito-classic.

George Grantham and Rusty Young went on to form Pogo which later became Poco. Sam Bush was later in New Grass Revival and had a solo career.

Two previously unreleased tracks; Candy Coated Lady and I've Never Known A Girl has been compiled on Psychedelic States: Colorado (2-CD). (SR/VJ/PPe/MW/BC/MDo/JRe)

Also relevant is California Music (CD) (Poptones MC5037CD) 2002 a mid to late seventies production which also involved Brian Johnston, Terry Melcher and (allegedly) Brian Wilson.

45s:	Share With Me/Sometimes	(Together 117) 1969
	I Love You More Each Day/Such A Day	(Elektra 45834) 1973

An important figure of the Los Angeles scene, Curt Boettcher began in the early sixties with a folk group, The Goldebriars and then became a prolific songwriter, arranger and producer, founding Ballroom, The Millenium and Sagittarius; and working with The Association, Lyme and Cybelle, Your Gang, Friar Tuck, Michele, Eternity's Children and many many more.

His productions are generally characterised by their inventive multi-layered harmonies and imaginative arrangements. His only solo album is in the same vein and, if his sales were low, it is now beginning to be sought-after by collectors of soft psych and Californian sophisticated folk-rock with harmonies, indeed as are all the records bearing his name.

Curt Boettcher died in 1987, when still only 43.

Misty Mirage is a retrospective CD, comprising unreleased session tracks from 1969, together with demos, outtakes and radio ads. California Music mixes summery paisley pop sounds with the burgeoning disco sound.

CURT BOETTCHER

CURT BOETTCHER - Misty Mirage CD.

After his solo album, Curt was involved in California (Music), a fluid project which involved the cream of L.A's (and the world's) harmony-pop maestros - Gary Usher, Bruce Johnston, Terry Melcher, Jan & Dean, and of course Brian Wilson. They released several singles in the mid-to-late seventies, reworking Beach Boys and other classics, often combined with the emergent funk and disco sounds. Poptones have gathered this eclectic mix on their California Music retrospective CD. (SR/VJ/MW)

Boffalongo was a New York area band. The first album is essentially progressive rock and features some pretty good guitar work and keyboards. Their second album, however, is not as good. Both were produced by Steve and Eric Nathanson, who also worked with Omnibus and Music Asylum.

BO GRUMPUS - Before The War LP.

This band's album was produced by the late Felix Pappalardi and includes N.D. Smart (of The Remains) on drums. Sparrow Time and Think Twice have good fuzz guitar but it's predominantly a soft folk-rock album. Mottau, Colegrove and Blake went on to form the rockier Jolliver Arkansaw.

Jim Colegrove was originally from Springfield, Ohio and was co-founder of Teddy and The Rough Riders, a rock'n'roll outfit who made three singles and an album for Tilt/Huron/Mega City labels in the early sixties. In 1966, he was with the intriguingly named Thee Rubber Band, and the same year moved to New York to play with The Hobbitts (whether the same act as The Hobbits... is unknown). Later, in 1967 he switched from guitar to bass, and joined Bo Grumpus. Subsequently, he's recorded with Hungry Chuck, and The Juke Jumpers. Jim's story also sees him play alongside Canadian act Ian and Sylvia, as part of their backing group Great Speckled Bird (also with N.D. Smart), Todd Rundgren, Paul Butterfield and Allen Ginsberg amongst many others.

Ed Mottau later played with Elliot Murphy, David Peel and John Lennon on his Walls And Bridges and Rock & Roll albums. (VJ/SR)

This Long Island, New York City band issued just the one album, which is now a rare collectors' item. Prior to this they'd recorded the above single on United Artists, which is very highly-rated. Their album contains some fine and often demented acid-rock, particularly on All Kinds Of Highs and the superb Paradox City. There's also an interesting psychedelic version of Satisfaction, although the slowed-down cover of The House of The Rising Sun is a little tedious. If you're into psychedelic guitar you should enjoy this album - it's full of great guitar-work and also has good songs.

Nick Manzi had earlier played with Faine Jade in a band called The Rustics and Bohemian Vendetta later backed him on the classic

BOHEMIAN VENDETTA - Self Titled LP.

Introspection album. Richard Martinez, guitarist in an early line-up, left around 1966 to join The Cats Meow.

The classic All Kinds Of Highs can also be found on the top-drawer Psychedelic Crown Jewels, Vol. 1 (2-LP & CD), whilst the non-album cut Enough has resurfaced on Ear-Piercing Punk (LP & CD), The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 1 (2-CD) and Enough has resurfaced on Filling The Gap (4-LP), Best of Pebbles, Vol. 2 (LP & CD) and Pebbles, Vol. 1 (ESD) (CD) compilations. Another track, Paradox City, which has a catchy verse and nightmarish refrain with plenty of organ and raunchy fuzz guitar, can also be heard on Beyond The Calico Wall (LP & CD).

Fans of the band will also want to check out Distortions' collection of rarities, acetates and non-album cuts, entitled Enough! Released on both vinyl and CD, the CD contains extra material.

Nick Manzi later played with Dust Bowl Clementine, who had an eponymous album on Roulette (2SR-42058) 1970. (VJ/MW/SR)

A folk-rock singer/troubadour who recorded three albums on three big labels in three different continents! His first album was released on the Australian Festival subsidiary, and coincided with a feature story in 'TIME' magazine, entitled "Troubadours" (Feb. 8th 1963). His second was released on the same label as Mason Proffit, Ecology and Aorta, suggesting Illinois was his base at the time.

He then moved to Deep Purple's Purple/EMI label in the UK and Capitol in the US for his third album. Produced in London by Jerry Lordan (composer of The Shadows Apache!), this was recorded with a full orchestral backing and contains several dreamy, drifting songs (Picallilli Lady, Reflecting Butterfly and Curious Yellow). One track, Vermouth Rondo, became an international radio hit, the royalties from which later built Buddy a beach house in Bodega Bay, California.

Buddy has made further recordings to those shown above, including five albums/CDs on the Budwick label as "Moro" (his real middle name). (SR)

	α	So Glad/I've Enjoyed As Much Of You As I Can Stand	(Panther PAN-5)1968

NB: α may have been withdrawn shortly after release. Don't Look Back It's The Bojax is a 10" album (Misty Lane MISTY 69) that in addition to the title track contianed all their singles, outtakes and a bonus track sung by leader Bobby Holliday. It's housed in a fabulous sleeve with liner notes and previously unseen photos.

Formed in 1964 as The Knights, this garage-punk quartet from Greenville, South Carolina took their unique name from a garage pictured on the box of a Big Daddy model car. Their debut single was produced by Rudy Wyatt of The Wyld and he played on their follow-up. Bobby Holiday returned the favour by lending his voice to The Wyld's Know A Lot About Love.

The Bojax released three cool garage singles in 1967-8 in a raunchy style that owed as much to The Remains (underlined by their version of Don't Look Back) as the Stones. In 1970 they changed their name to William Goat.

The 10" Misty Lane album has many photos, an interview with Bobby Holiday, and gathers their singles together with the aforementioned Know A Lot About Love by The Wyld and an unreleased William Goat track, Quicksand.

Their debut single is a cool Kinks-inspired punker with a slab of attitude and samples some phrasing and melody of Dylan's Like A Rolling Stone. Hippie Times is a driving up-tempo belter. Fast Life is a hypnotic garage-swinger stuffed with power-chords and searing leads. The flip is a too-faithful rendition of The Remains' Don't Look Back and lacks bite. Don't Look Back charted locally.

The excellent Go Ahead And Go has resurfaced on Back From The Grave, Vol. 8 (CD & 2-LP). Other compilation appearances include: Fast Life on Quagmire Vol. 1 (CD) and Hippie Times on Wyld Sydes Volume Eight (CD) and Today Is Just Tomorrow's Yesterday (CD). (VJ/MW/JWs/TW/AB)

NB: α shown as by Steve Walker and The Bold. No 45s, LP or non-LP, can be traced on the ABC label.

Hailing from the Springfield area of Massachusetts the band formed out of an outfit called The Esquires and also operated under the moniker Steve Walker and The Bold.

The album was a Bill Szymczyk production recorded at "Hit Factory". It's a decent experimental soft-rock album with a nice blend of covers (All I Really Want To Do, For What Its Worth and It's All Over Now Baby Blue) given the group's own unique re-interpretation and originals. Among the better originals are Free Fugue, Child Of Love, Words Don't Make It and Friendly Smile, which has some nice organ work. It's certainly worth a listen.

Gotta Get Some with its raw vocals and driving beat is a fine punker, also featured on Pebbles, Vol. 9 (LP), Pebbles Vol. 10 (CD), Pebbles, Vol. 1 (ESD) (CD), Mindrocker, Vol. 11 (LP) and Garage Beat '66 2 (CD). It became a fave with The Fuzztones and duly appeared on their Lysergic Emanations LP - latterly compiled again on Songs We Taught The Fuzztones (2-LP & 2- CD). Their superb rendition of Train Kept A Rollin' can be enjoyed on Pebbles, Vol. 10 (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 10 (CD) and Today Is Just Tomorrow's Yesterday 1 (CD), preferably at full volume. It's a very loose version delivered at breakneck speed. Other groups to cover the song included The Cynics, Precious Few, The Rogues, and The Scotty McKay Quintet.

The Bold was an important act locally and actually quite popular. Many of their fans thought the production on the ABC album was weak, and so refused to buy it at the time. They were apparently a way better band live than any of their recordings, although very 'East Coast' in their sound. Bob La Palm and Timothy Griffin went on to found a band called Clean Living whose records are worth checking out if you can find copies. Tim Griffin also played drums in James Taylor's road band very briefly.

The Misty Lane EP compiles both singles and comes in a neat picture sleeve with insert, on which Steve Walker recounts the history of his band. He moved to Lake Tahoe, California in the seventies and is still playing 35 years on, fronting his Steve Walker Band nightly on the 'Tahoe Queen' cruise boat. (VJ/JSr/SR/MW)

This outfit formed in Fort Lauderdale, Florida in the summer of 1969. They played a sort of heavy rock music in the Black Sabbath/Alice Cooper vein and had a spectacular live show, opening for many 'big name' acts. The above album was recorded in just four hours and pressed in limited quantities (500 copies) for distribution to local fans. Just when major labels were beginning to show an interest John Anderson and Ron Reffett were drafted leading to the band's demise.

The album's reissues on Rockadelic and Void have brought it to a wider audience because the original release is obviously ultra-rare. If you're into heavy rock you'll like this. Rock On and Breakthrough have a great beat and driving guitar, whilst BRTCD featured some fine fuzz guitar work. Dead Meat shows they were willing to experiment, it's very heavy, quite imaginative and espoused the revolutionary lyrics which were common from bands in this era. From Durham, the home of Duke University in North Carolina, The Bondsmen won three 'Battle Of The Bands' competitions in Raleigh in the sixties and were perhaps Durham's best band. Tobacco A-Go-Go, Vol. 1 (LP) features their competent cover of The Five American's hit and the more interesting 'B' side - which opens with a compelling drum beat followed by a very heavy guitar riff leading into a psychedelic frenzy. A promising effort, only the vocals let it down.

45: Naughty Girl/Tell Me (Pyramid 6536) 1966

Another Justice rarity is dusted off by Collectables to reveal a sextet from Salisbury, North Carolina. Not completely obscured by time in this case, since their Naughty Girl graced the eighties Tarheel compilation Tobacco A Go Go, Vol. II (LP) - a slice of garagy frat-rock punctuated throughout by honking sax. Like many of the other Justice albums, it is predominantly covers of soul, R&B, blues and ballads (Stand By Me, Monkey Time, My Girl, Midnight Hour, Under The Boardwalk) in a competent but uninspiring club style with no real bite and little variation - even their cover of 96 Tears is rather flat, although they do try to belt it with a more raucous vocal style on Bring It On Home To Me. Once more with this series, curiosity is satisfied but the buzz factor is absent.

Produced, composed and "sung" by Sonny Bono (from Sonny and Cher), Inner Views was his "psychedelic" album. It has the reputation of being of the worst albums of the sixties, and in fact it's a strange listening experience: Bono's voice is not exactly easy to like, the tracks are too long (I Just Sit There is a freak-out that lasts 12'15") and the lyrics are "groovy" ("She started smoking pot just to keep herself from flipping but it wasn't strong enough so she graduated to tripping" from Pammie's On A Bummer). He was also a friend of the Jefferson Airplane, who let him release an album of original material on their label. Unfortunately, although he was a decent sax player, he was barely able to sing and this album is a real disaster, full of mid-tempo tracks with awful vocals. Ain't It The Truth, Babe (Riverton 104) 1966

NB: α On this 45, Dave Roland (Wailers) played on the 'A' side and Dean Whitbeck played drums on the flip.

The Bootmen evolved out of a Puget Sound high school group called The Solitudes. They got their big break when Ron Gardner, a part-time member of The Wailers introduced them to the owners of Etiquette Records, Kent Morrill and Buck Ormsby, who insisted on a name change to The Bootmen.

They soon became a popular Northwest dancehall attraction operating out of Tacoma in Washington. Their grungy garage sound was typified by Ain't It The Truth, Babe a track you can check out on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 7 (LP), which described it as a mixture between Mitch Ryder and Paul Revere and The Raiders. You'll also find seven of their cuts: 1 2 3 4, Black Widow, Love You All I Can, Ain't It The Truth, Wherever You Arrive, Off The Hook and You Can Be Replaced on Required Etiquette (CD).

Neil Anderson later joined The Wailers, whilst Fred Dickerson and Duane McCaslin went on to Cotton Mouth. (VJ/MW)

ALBUM: 1(-) BORN AGAIN PAGAN (Rockadelic RRLP 42) 2001

NB: A handful were pressed on clear vinyl. 600 copies were pressed in all. (1) reissued on CD (Shadoks 073) 2005.

Originally from Marin County in northern California and calling themselves Red Mountain, a demo tape they recorded at Sierra Sound Labs in Berkeley attracted the attention of producer Roger Dollarhide (Randy California's Kapt. Kopter And The Fabulous Twirly Birds) who invited them to relocate to Los Angeles. In late 1969 and early 1970, several recording sessions took place at SunWest Studios in Hollywood that appear for the first time on the Rockadelic collection, which is presented in a nice gatefold cover. In addition, guitarist Larry Otis contributed music to an original movie soundtrack in 1970, The Velvet Vampire, and a piece from this movie also figures on the Born Again Pagan collection. The album concludes with three demo tracks from 1971 by the 'C' line-up, recorded in San Francisco.

While the music produced by the various line-ups of the group varies enough in style as to defy categorisation, there are no weak moments on this album. Sullivan's snarling lead vocal technique will appeal to fans of both sixties and seventies music, and no one will find fault with Otis' remarkable command of the guitar (Dollarhide introduced Otis to Ike Turner

BOOT TURN THE OTHER CHEEK!

BOOT - Turn The Other Cheek! LP.

as "the best rock guitar player in the world", and Turner apparently agreed - hiring Otis for the Ike and Tina Turner Revue in 1974).

Otis worked extensively as a session guitarist in Los Angeles beyond the time-span of this book. In 1992 he recorded an album of rock 'n' roll music with his friend Rúnar Júlíusson of Thor's Hammer (Rúnar And Otis (Geimsteinn Records GSK 156)), and the Icelandic label has also released an album of his instrumental guitar works that may appeal to readers (New Beginnings GSCD 197). Even though it's now known that the band came from Hewlett and Lynbrook, Long Island and the single was recorded in New York the primitive punk effort was released on Detroit's Impact label. It was produced by Dickie Goodman although he isn't credited on the label.

Please Mr President, a punk, novelty number, can also be heard on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 4 (LP & CD); You Cheat Too Much, another raw punker, has resurfaced on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 5 (LP). Both sides of the single also feature on The Best Of Impact Records (CD). (VJ/KBn/MW/MM)

NB: α is not on the Texas 'Soft' label, and was apparently also issued on Beck 112.

This Saginaw, Michigan quartet is notable for including Dick Wagner, who would become a key character on the rock scene in northern Michigan; a prolific writer his name turns up as writer and producer for numerous other acts - Bells Of Rhymney, Cherry Slush, Sand, Terry Knight and The Pack, and The Wanderers to mention just a few.

In 1967 he formed Dick Wagner and The Frosts with Don Hartman (guitar), Jack Smolinski (bass), and Bob Rigg (drums). They soon switched to the snappier moniker Frost, released several singles and three hard-rock albums on Vanguard. Wagner went on to play with Lou Reed and in 1974 joined the revamped Alice Cooper band.

The 1995 CD collection features all the singles above plus three of the earliest Frost tracks - A Rainy Day, Sunshine, and Little Girl.

35 or more years on Dick Wagner was still active on the Saginaw scene, inspiring a new generation of musicians.

Three previously unreleased tracks: Listen My Girl, Easy Way Out and I Cannot Stop You are all compiled on A-Square (Of Course) (CD). (VJ/MW)

NB: These 45s may not be in correct sequence and it has yet to be confirmed that α is by the same band.

Originally from Texas, these Bossmen relocated to Chicago. The Score and Busy Bee labels were owned by Lenny LaCour. He would later be involved in the Milwaukee scene, which had led to the erroneous assumption that this group hailed from there.

Some of their singles are powerful rockers and two examples, I'm Ready and Fever Of Love, can also be heard on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 5 (LP) and Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 6 (LP) respectively.

Several other Bossmen were around in the sixties: a Colorado outfit circa 1962, with no known releases; a Missouri band with the 'soul-garage' Gonna Lose My Mind (Burdland 8635); and another of unknown origins with a 1964 release - Apologies/Take It Easy (Vim 72). (GM/MW/VJ)

The band also had cuts on the original Soundtrack of the movie Cycle Savages. Their drummer, Novogroski, went on to play for The Edge, while Mike Stevens later fronted the highly-rated heavy-rock band Highway Robbery, who issued an album, For Love Or Money (RCA Victor LSP-4735) 1972.

These guys certainly ran around. They were from Tucson, Arizona but went to Phoenix to record their debut. This is one of those interesting albums that linked the psychedelic and progressive eras. It's an album of imagination, variety and different moods. It's not all good - some cuts are plain bad - but others are superb. The opening track, Electric Star, is an exquisite slice of floating, melodic psychedelia, which occasionally lapses into dementia. Watch veers towards acid-rock with some fine guitar licks. Another Face has a haunting keyboard introduction but then picks up tempo with lots of fuzz guitar. This is acid-rock at its finest. Those three tracks are the highlight. A few songs are bluesy but often contain unpredictable mood changes and the final track, Steve's Jam, contains lots of good fuzz guitar. This album is horrendously rare, so pick up the Sundazed reissue if you can. The band was from Fayetteville, North Carolina.

Compilation coverage has so far included: Watch on Psychedelic Crown Jewels, Vol. 1 (2-LP & CD) and Gear Fab's Psychedelic Sampler (CD); Electric Star on The Psychedelic Experience, Vol. 1 (LP); and Another Face on Relics, Vol. 2 (LP) and Relics Vol's 1 & 2 (CD). (VJ)

The Box Tops were one of America's top blue-eyed soul groups in the sixties, best remembered for their smash hits The Letter and Cry Like A Baby, but also for launching the career of Alex Chilton who later fronted the cult power pop outfit Big Star.

THE BOX TOPS - The Letter/Neon Rainbow CD.

Forming in Memphis in 1966, The Box Tops had originally started out as The Devilles, a white R&B group in 1963. They were briefly known as Ronnie and The Devilles but soon reverted back to The Devilles. Chilton was recruited to The Devilles after his impressive vocal performance at a Memphis Central High School talent contest. The band soon caught the eye of songwriters/producers Chips Moman and Dan Penn who were seeking a Stevie Winwood-type white soul singer and, of course, Alex Chilton (born on 28 December 1950 in Memphis) was their man. The other members were all Memphis-born too. To avoid confusion with another Devilles, they renamed themselves The Box Tops in 1967. Shortly after, they signed to Bell and started recording at Moman's studio in Memphis. Their first single The Letter, which showcased 16-year-old Chilton's gritty vocal style, climbed quickly to No. 1 where it stayed for four weeks. It sold over four million copies, received two Grammy Awards nominations and was awarded a gold disc. After their hit Penn began to exercise far more control over the group.

It seems that much of the Box Tops' output - with the exception of (ironically) The Letter - was recorded by session men. Their debut album The Letter/Neon Rainbow has no Chilton songs and bears all the hallmarks of being assembled hastily after The Letter was propelled to No. 1. Most of the other songs on the album were penned by Wayne Carson Thompson (who wrote The Letter) and the Dan Penn/Spooner Oldham team, but none of the other blue-eyed soul tracks on the album are in the same class, except perhaps Neon Rainbow. The Sundazed reissue adds four bonus tracks: the mono single versions of The Letter and Neon Rainbow, the 1969 non-album single Turn On A Dream, and the previously unreleased Georgia Farm Boy - this country-soul tune is credited to "Newbury", presumably Mickey Newbury.

Penn's frequent use of session musicians (sometimes he replaced the whole band and on other occasions just individual members) frustrated Evans and Smythe who left to return to school in early 1968 to avoid the draft. Rick Allen (ex-Gentrys), who was born in Little Rock, Arkansas on 28 January 1946, and Tom Boggs, born 16 July 1947 in Wynne, Arkansas replaced them.

Cry Like A Baby gave them a US No. 2 and was another million selling release that has subsequently been covered by the Hacienda Brothers and Kim Carnes. Again the title track Cry Like A Baby dominates their second album, which lacks the grit of The Letter and veers in a more pop-oriented direction. The 2000 Sundazed reissue contains five bonus tracks: the mono single version of Cry Like A Baby, three non-album tracks from singles, and the previously unreleased Take Me To Your Heart.

Non-Stop contains more blue-eyed soul with Penn/Spooner Oldham's I Met Her In Church probably the pick of a mediocre bunch. Choo Choo Train and Rock Me Baby are bluesy and Rollin' In My Sleep veers towards pop. The album also includes a Chilton composition, I Can Dig It, which showcases his gravelly voice on an average mid-tempo white soul cut. Also of note is the delicious ballad Sandman (the track was penned by Wayne Carson Thompson who'd written The Letter). The Sundazed reissue contains five bonus tracks: two of them mono single versions (of Choo Choo Train and I Met Her in Church), the others are from non-album single cuts: a cover of Randy Newman's Let Me Go, another of Chilton's earliest compositions, the soul-pop ballad Since I Been Gone and Got To Hold On To You.

Their Super Hits album included The Letter, Cry Like A Baby, later singles I Met Her In Church, Choo Choo Train and Neon Rainbow, along with covers of hits of the day like You Keep Me Hangin' On, A Whiter Shade Of Pale, Trains And Boats And Planes and I'm Your Puppet.

Dan Penn was not involved on their final album Dimensions as either producer or songwriter. It contained three Chilton songs; I Must Be The Devil a blues/soul ballad in the style of the mid-sixties Animals; (The) Happy Song a wistful Dylanesque tune and Together. The remainder of the album is mostly mediocre soul-pop, but Wayne Carson Thompson's Soul Deep did provide the band with its last big hit. The Sundazed reissue features five bonus tracks, including the mono single versions of Soul Deep and Sweet Cream Ladies, Forward March, as well as two non-album singles cuts, Chilton's I See Only Sunshine, King's Highway and the previously unissued cut, Lay Your Shine On Me.

Bill Cunningham left The Box Tops in August 1969 to return to school and was replaced on bass by Harold Cloud. By February 1970 Chilton and Talley wanted to disband the group and move on, but Bell continued to release singles from material they had recorded earlier through to King's Highway in spring 1971.

In 1972 a new studio group was formed using The Box Tops' name but with none of the original members. Two singles by this unknown line-up (although the vocalist sang in a similar style to Chilton) were released on Willie Mitchell's Hi Records label. Then a final single Willobee And Dale was released on Stax, but as none of the releases achieved much airplay the project was terminated.

Alex Chilton went on to front Big Star. Gary Talley worked as a session guitarist in Memphis, Nashville and Atlanta. Bill Cunningham played in the White House Orchestra. John Evans played for a few Memphis bands before becoming a computer network administrator. Danny Smythe played in various Memphis blues and soul groups over the years.

The band reformed in 1989 for a concert at the Ace Of Clubs in Nashville. For this Chilton, Evans, Talley, Cloud and Gene Houston (drms) were supplemented by Tracy Nelson, Kim Morrison, Jomell Mosser and a horn section. There was a later reunion of the original line-up in 1996. This line-up produced an album Tear Off that included a new recording of The Letter, a cover of The Gentry's Keep On Dancing and a new song Last Laugh by Gary Talley. By 2000 Nashville session man Barry Walsh replaced John Evans in the band. They toured Germany in 2003 and continued to tour the US periodically but Alex Chilton's death from a heart attack on 17 March 2010 put pay to the reunion project. Thomas Boggs (from line-up 'B') had died on 5 May 2008.

There are a number of compilations of their material. Rhino's Greatest Hits include all their singles, from the hits The Letter and Cry Like A Baby to less successful but still well loved blue-eyed soul gems like Soul Deep and Neon Rainbow. There's also a good selection of flip sides, including psych-soul nugget Sweet Cream Ladies Forward March and the gospel-tinged shouter I Met Her In Church. Warner Bros 15-track Ultimate Box Tops covers similar ground as do the others which are detailed in the discography above.

Boy Blues hailed from Chico, California. Coming Down To You is a catchy number reminiscent of the 'Batman' theme with a great fuzz-lead break. John Palmer had previously played with The Boys and The Plague; he later moved on to Lincoln's Promise and Savage Resurrection.

NB: There's also a French EP with PS: Out And About/In The Night/Sometimes She's A Little Girl/I Should Be Going Home (A&M EAM 1001) 1966.

This duo came from California and and both previously had solo careers. They were better known as songwriters, most notably for The Monkees, although they also enjoyed some chart success. They returned in the seventies as part of Dolenz, Jones, Boyce and Hart - a kind of seventies Monkees doing old material much of it written by Boyce and Hart. Boyce also recorded a solo album in 1967. Their third album, It's All Happening On The Inside included a cover of Jumpin' Jack Flash.

Tommy Boyce committed suicide in Nashville in 1995. He was just 55 years old. He had also released a solo album in 1967 entitled A Twofold Talent (Camden CAL/S-2202).

The compilation I Wonder What She's Doing Tonight: The Best Of draws from their three albums and several singles for A&M in the late sixties, including the title track. It has been remastered, and is beautifully packaged with rare photos and notes and quotes from Monkees' expert Andrew Sandoval as well as the late Boyce and Hart (the latter is still going strong).

I Wonder What She's Doing Tonight, an appealing pop song with a strong beat, can be heard on Nuggets, Vol. 3: Pop (LP) and More Nuggets (CD); and the previously unreleased Words from 1965 has been compiled on Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book). (VJ/SR)

ALBUM: 1(A) ALIAS BOONA (Verve Forecast FTS-3070) 1969

Released shortly after the Boylan brothers' Appletree Theatre, Alias Boona was musically totally different. Clearly a singer/songwriter project, it will probably disappoint those expecting to find a sequel to Appletree Theatre. All the songs were written and produced by Boylan, except for a cover of Dylan's Subterranean Homesick Blues (an obvious influence), and are a bit lacklustre, with the few electric guitar solos being interesting but very brief.

However, this album is now sought-after, mainly for the presence of Becker and Fagen who would later form Steely Dan. One of the drummers, Darius Davenport, had been in Autosalvage. Terry Boylan would release two other albums, Terence Boylan (1977) and Suzi (1980) on Elektra/Asylum. Recorded with several members of the Eagles, both were carefully produced but rather boring. (SR)

ALBUM: 1 KENT HARRISON BOYLES (No label RI 3696) 1974 R2

Boyles was from Maryland and this is a cheaply produced loner acid-folk private pressing, which is said to have been limited to 500. That said its sparse arrangements and lovely harmonies have a certain appeal and the material is quite strong too. It's presented in a black and white art cover. (VJ/MW)

Amos Boynton and The ABC's (TX)

From Houston, Texas this act featured Edgar and Johnny Winter. They were later known as The Great Believers. An unreleased recording, The Ballad Of Bertha Glutz, has resurfaced on Acid Visions (LP) and Acid Visions - The Complete Collection Vol. 1 (3-CD). It is actually a different version of The Great Believers' Comin Up Fast with different lyrics, vocals and a much heavier fuzz guitar line. It was recorded in Tyler, Texas. (VJ)

Both sides of this single are on the 2003 retrospective CD by Mouse And The Boys - Mousetracks (North Shore Soundworks 013) and also on Just For Kicks Vol.1 (CD) alongside three other cuts by their alter-egos. (MW/JLh)

NB: α shown as by the Four Wheels.

Not for the garage and psych clan, but sixties pop fans read on... This clean-cut quintet from Indianapolis was obviously influenced by The Beach Boys, for whom they opened on several occasions, right down to the striped shirts. Initially adopting the surf/hot-rod sound, their debut single was re-credited to the Four Wheels, deemed to be a more suitable handle.

Thereafter they followed their heroes (and villains?) towards California's smooth moody harmony-pop in the mode of Pet Sounds, adding other influences to produce some fine mid-sixties pop pastiches: Begone Girl successfully takes on The Association; There Is No Greater Sin sounds like The Beach Boys covering Dylan and adds baroque flourishes; and See The Way She's Mine adds a Midwest horn flavour to the recipe.

To their credit, whilst highly derivative, much of their material was self-penned, mainly by Koss and Lester. Of the covers:- three tracks (the final single and the unreleased Lorali) were written for them and produced by smooth balladeer Bobby Goldsboro, for whom they'd performed backing duties; Why Be Proud came from The Gestures' Dale Menten.

The CD comprises all their releases, including four tracks as the Four Wheels, radio spots, one live and several unreleased cuts. A detailed history and interview with Steve Lester by Jeff Jarema rounds off yet another quality retrospective from Sundazed.

Compilation appearances have included: Suddenly She Was Gone on Bad Vibrations, Vol. 1 (LP) and Soma Records Story, Vol. 1 (LP); and Why Be Proud on Soma Records Story, Vol. 2 (LP) and The Big Hits Of Mid-America - The Soma Records Story (LP). (MW)

	The Laugh's On Me/Charlotte	(Kiderian 45130) 1975

These Chicago Boyz were a seventies rock/power-pop band, strictly outside the remit of this project and included only because of same-name confusions and grief they've caused collectors and researchers ever since:-

a) by releasing an EP as 'The Huns' in 1977 - Fun With The Huns (False Hopes SS-32402-1); and, no, there are no known connections to the sixties Huns from Arlington Heights and b) because some sources claim that they evolved out of the Boyz (from Joliet, above) and that the band included Rick Nielsen (of the Phaetons, who went on to the Grim Reapers, Fuse, and Cheap Trick etc.). Nielsen may have been in a band called Boys/Boyz but there's NO proof, or confirmation from the man himself, that he was in The Boyz with the singles on Destination.

What is fact is that these Boyz from Chicago got one side of the Kiderian sampler album Goodbye Dolores to themselves; side two featured other Kiderian acts although the title track was the Boyz again, under another alter-ego of Plenty. Paul Mahalek also released a couple of solo singles on Kiderian. (MW)

From Baltimore, Maryland area, they had a regional hit with Everybody's Goin To The Love-In. They also played around the Washington area a lot and were very popular there for a number of years. By the early seventies Brady was with a group called Energy, who released at least one single, in 1973.

They were a little more on the soul side than many garage bands. Interested readers should be aware of his offshoot groups Pen Lucy, and Coyote. Both released records, most notably the eponymous Coyote (Chariot 500) album in the mid-seventies. (JPr/MW/JV)

45: You Got Me/I've Got The Urge To Move (MGM 13663) 1967

This very unusual album features a fusion between the steel drum sound with heavy progressive music. The leader, Victor Brady, plays wild improvisations with his instrument on self-composed rock tunes. The guitar is always present, with dense rhythm, sometimes clean, sometimes heavy and fuzzy. Brady sings on all tracks with his loud voice.

There are severe dissonant, fuzz solos, many steel drum pyrotechnics and an inclination towards long tracks (greatly so on the opening Glass House). On the other side there is psych-pop on Hallucinodream, hypnotic tribal chaos on Soul Fungi and a kind of weird R&B combined with Asian effects on Once Upon A Candle. The title cut of more than 11-minutes starts with a heavy fuzz riff over a Chinese harmonic pattern, but turns out to be hard-rock askew, like a more psyched-out version of Eric Burdon with traces of Blue Cheer. Only the closing cut It's A Cold World Outside tramples the same ground over and over. It's very uncommon and thus recommended. (PM/MK)

45s: Grey Day/Free Fall (Pete 703) 1968
Long Way Home/Long Way Home (Pete 704) 1968

NB: There is said to be another 45 featuring a different (and better) version of Some Kind Of Change.

An appealing album by a California folkie that mixed electric and acoustic folk; it is quite varied and in many ways ahead of its time. Much of it has a country/folk vibe with some fine orchestration, but the title track is quite a heavy rock song with loads of echo and prominent use of an oscillator. The closing track Silver Cord is a long, trippy guitar instrumental. Free Fall is another trippy, droning affair which also made it onto a single.

All songs were written by Braheny and also include the beautiful ballad December Dream which was covered by the Linda Ronstadt's Stone Poneys on their second album Evergreen Vol. 2. A version also crops up on the recent Fred Neil 2-CD Many Sides Of compilation where the song is wrongly hailed as a lost composition by that great songwriter!

Musicians on the album included Rick Cunha of Hearts and Flowers.

John Braheny went on to run the Los Angeles Songwriters Showcase and has written a well-known book about songwriting. (SR/GM/TF/MW)

45: World Of Wax/Smoking At Windsor Hill (Head X 2002/3) 1969

The Brain Police was one of San Diego, California's most popular late-sixties groups. Rick Randle had been in The Other Four/The Man-Dells and Tony Johnson and Frank Mannix came from Sandi and The Accents, two bands that had been local phenomenons. In 1967, Norman Lombardo (The Other Four) and Sid Smith, a local drummer who had led a group called The Roosters who issued a single on A&M Records of Shake A Tail Feather/Rooster Walk (A&M 746) 1964, (Sid plays drums and sings lead vocals on this!) replaced Johnson and Mannix. This was the magical line-up that recorded the demo album in 1968. Recorded on a primitive four-track machine, the record displays a degree of talent seldom seen in a teenage band. Through a unique combination of pop songs and heavy rock (all original material, written by Rick and Norman) The Brain Police created a remarkable document of American rock's transitionary period between flower-power and the guitar-led heavy rock that dominated the scene by 1969. The original demo album was pressed for promo use and the copies were sent to club owners and record labels - it is impossibly rare - the Rockadelic reissue is highly recommended, providing, of course, that you can find it! The reissue included a reprint of the letter included in the original and a fistful of psychedelic posters from the groups 1967-1968 tenure as San Diego's top draw.

Norman and Sid left San Diego in 1969, relocating to the San Francisco Bay Area and along with Norman's old friend Larry Grant (The Other Four/The Man-Dells) recorded the single, using session musicians from the Bay area who remain unknown. World Of Wax is radically different from the version on the 1968 demo album, and, as well, the 'B' side reveals that this band had little in common with the San Diego Brain Police. Within the next few months, Sid accepted an offer to record and tour with Roy Head. Rick Randle hooked up with the legendary Framework just as they were disintegrating, and then he and their drummer Carl Spiron played together in a two-man band (ala Lee Michaels/Frosty) that never recorded but played a few well-received live shows as The Rick Randle Band. Sometime in 1969, Rick journeyed up to the Bay Area to join Norman and the two formed a short-lived group called The Dry Creek Road Band who recorded an album for Grunt records (produced by Paul Kantner of The Jefferson Airplane!) that remains unreleased, and played live in the area, including a gig at the Fillmore West. At about this time, the pair was asked to play in The Dudes, a top-notch band being assembled to back the up and coming singer Rita Coolidge. This band also included Spooner Oldham, Chris Ethridge and Randy Bishop - three musicians whose list of credits would fill this entire page. Rick then joined two hard-rock outfits, Bighorn and Child, recording and touring with each, and then formed the Seattle-based Randle-Rosburg Band, which became Striker, who released a highly-rated heavy rock album (Arista 4165) in 1978.

The Brain Police had a most remarkable lineage for an "unknown" group - talent most exemplified by Rick Randle who is well remembered by all who came in contact with him as one of the true "naturals", a born singer/musician/performer who is ranked by many as one of the greatest the West Coast has ever produced.

You can also find I'll Be On The Inside, If I Can on Love, Peace And Poetry: American Psychedelic Music (LP & CD); and the album version of My World Of Wax on The Shadoks Music Sampler (CD). (CF/MW)

45:	Black Roses/Me	(Titan FF-1738) 1967

The full story of this band has finally been revealed thanks to Lee Joseph's compilation Take The Brain Train To The Third Eye (LP & CD), annotated by Mike Stax. The theme of this recommended retrospective is the artists and releases in the hands of Bud Mathis, a boxer-turned-music-entrepreneur based on the Sunset Strip in the sixties.

Originally known as Garnerfield Sanitarium (line-up 'A') with an unusual double-drummer configuration, this local L.A. group was heard and picked up by Bud Mathis in 1966. Through him they acquired bassist Doug Lubahn but lost Wanda Watkins (who'd join another Mathis act The Joint Effort) and were rechristened The Brain Train (line-up 'B').

In late '66/early '67 they laid down Black Roses (written by Wolfgang Dios, a songwriter signed by Mathis) and Me. Mathis took these on the label trail and managed to get the group a contract with Elektra. At that point he was persuaded by Elektra to let Paul Rothchild take over as the group's manager. This triggered the band's final stage of metamorphosis into the venerated Clear Light - losing Robbie Robison and gaining Cliff DeYoung (vcls) and Ralph Schuckett (keyb'ds).

In September 1967 Clear Light's first single was released - She's Ready To Be Free/Black Roses (Elektra 45622). Bud Mathis had retained the rights to the Brain Train material, and as this wasn't going to be used, he leased out the original recordings to Titan, who put out the excellent and sought-after Brain Train single the following month.

Black Roses is very similar to the finished Elektra product, where Byrdsy-jangle confronts Yardbirds-style-rave-ups. Me veers towards sheer dementia with crashing distorted guitars, demonic drumming (ala 7 And 7 Is) and a chorus of eerie chants, reminiscent again of The Yardbirds (Still I'm Sad).

Both sides of the Titan single and an unreleased instrumental take of Me appear on Take The Brain Train To The Third Eye (LP & CD). Other compilation appearances include: - Black Roses and Me on Scarey Business (CD); and Me on The Chosen Few, Vol. 2 (LP), Chosen Few Vol's 1 & 2 (CD) and 30 Seconds Before The Calico Wall (CD). 45:	I Can Only Give You Everything/ Take The Time, Be Yourself	(Kayden 400) 1967

NB: also released in the U.K. on Stateside (SS 2020).

Formed in spring of 1966, Bram Rigg Set's members came from North Haven and Wallingford, Connecticut. The group got their moniker when a few of the guys spotted the name 'Bram Rigg' on a gravestone in the local cemetery, and decided to go with it. Their version of I Can Only Give You Everything and the original Take The Time Be Yourself were recorded at Syncron Studios in Wallingford.

The single came out on a New Jersey owned and operated label, and after a few months, received regional airplay in Albany, New York State, Orlando Florida, and the Washington D.C. area. The Bram Rigg Set played every weekend in the state and when the single caught on elsewhere, travelled up and down the East Coast. They also appeared on a D.C. Teen bandstand show, and were set to lip-sync their single, but before they could go on, the single was misplaced by the studio engineer. The band wanted to lip - sync to the Wildweeds' No Good To Cry which was also popular at the time in the area, but the station manager wouldn't let them do it.

The Bram Rigg Set also appeared in the film 'A Show With A Very Long Title' which was a conceptual idea of teen bands and teen fashion that was shot in the New Haven area in 1966. The Shags appear in the film, while the Bram Rigg Set lip-sync I Can Only Give You Everything on the platform at the New Haven train station.

Bobby Schlosser (stage name Damon Robey) was involved with a local radio station as a DJ, and decided to quit the band in mid-1967. Local recording engineer and manager Doc Cavalier took some of the guys from the Bram Rigg Set and some from The Shags to form a 'real' musical group he dubbed Pulse. Subsequently The Shags split up in the fall of 1967.

Compilation appearances have included: I Can Only Give You Everything and Take The Time - Be Yourself on Psychotic Moose And The Soul Searchers (LP); I Can Only Give You Everything on Ear-Piercing Punk (CD); and Take The Time, Be Yourself on Fuzz, Flaykes, And Shakes, Vol. 5 (LP & CD), Garage Music For Psych Heads, Vol. 1. (cassette), Don't Press Your Luck (2-LP & CD) and Best Of Kayden & Merben Records (CD). They also have two previously unreleased cuts, I Can't Explain and You Don't Love Me on Don't Press Your Luck (2-LP & CD). (VJ/MW/MM)

ALBUM: 1 WHEN THE MUSIC'S ON (Scold SMP-1009) 197? R2

This is an obscure religious folk-rock album with male/female vocals, thought to be from California. (VJ)

Marc Brandt (TX)

ALBUM: 1 BACK TO BETTER DAYS (No label 1201) 1973 R2

This obscure very rare privately-pressed folk-rock album was recorded by a 16-year-old from Dallas, Texas. All 10 cuts are originals and he wrote all of the music and most of the lyrics. He sings on most tracks - three songs also have female vocals - and he also plays guitar and piano. Not a masterpiece but it has a certain appeal in Brandt's youth and relative innocence. (VJ)

45: Come On Home/
Stop! In The Name Of Love (Steel Breeze STM-3786/7) 1970

Heavy rock served with lashings of fuzz by a mystery band from Gary, Indiana. Why they had to follow the Vanilla Fudge trail and fudgify Motown songs is a mystery since Come On Home is the winner by far. (MW)

ALBUM: 1 AGED (Brunswick BL 754171) 1969

This obscure rock quartet utilised flashy guitar and strong harmonies. Their material ranged from hard-rock to mellow songs.

Their frontman Ed Stasium later became a famed producer and engineer who worked with the likes of The Ramones, Mick Jagger, Motorhead and Julian Cope. (SR/VJ)

The Brass Button (?)

45: Before My Time/same (mono) (Bell 876) 1969

Although it was produced by Dale Hawkins and written by Ronnie Weiss and David Stanley (both from Mouse and The Traps), this single is in fact best avoided as it's a lame pop song with rich string arrangements by Al Gorgoni. (SR)

45: My Song/Hell Will Take Care Of Her (Cotillion 44013) 1968

Hell Will Take Care Of Her, unearthed on Nuggets: Hallucinations (CD), is as scornful as the title suggest. This Rochester, New York band secured a release on a major subsidiary thanks to the involvement of the Rascals' Gene Cornish, who lived in the area; he produced their sole single in late '68. They belie their name, coming across like an embittered teen garage-band circa 1966, although it turns out that their choice was inspired by attire rather than instrumentation. The photo in the CD booklet shows an unexpectedly mature-looking sextet, some decked out in Sgt.Pepper jackets, others sporting beards. (MW)

Brass Monkey (?)

ALBUM: 1 BRASS MONKEY (Rare Earth RS-523) 1971

From Orange, Texas this end-of-decade/seventies 'psych' is highly-rated by some. It's a bit too gruff and serious to get one high though, with In The Back Of My Mind also having an orchestrated feel. Check it out for yourself on Psychedelic Experience (CD). (MW)

This band was previously known as The Jackals and was gigging in the San Diego area at least as far back as 1968, when they opened a show headlined by Framework and Kaleidoscope. The six cuts on the Brat demo album include covers of The Nazz Are Blue and The Kids Are Alright, plus originals in a rural/hard-rock/Neil Young style. Brubaker still performs with his band The Roosters, the group he's been in since the late seventies... and he's known today as Ritchie Rooster. From Seattle, Guilmet, Kennedy and Molvik had all played at various times during 1964-5 in Mr. Clean and The Cleansers. Mr. Clean (a black vocalist, sax-player and band leader) used non-black sidemen so he could perform for both predominantly black inner-city Seattle clubs and general high school/college audiences. Mr. Clean blended traditional blues, R&B and Motown with The Rolling Stones and similar material by miscellaneous American groups after the British invasion. Paul Trousdale knew members of The Daily Flash and The Crome Syrcus, two primary sources of the Seattle/San Francisco psychedelic sound. He wrote songs, mixing this genre with blues, which the three former members of Mr. Clean supported with their heavy R&B background.

Mike Beck blended both traditions. He'd played with Kennedy and Guilmet during 1963-4 in The Newports, the first Seattle group Guilmet had led. Tom Blessing of Tom Thumb And The Casuals was the sax player and sometimes lead singer in the group. The Newports played much material from the early Northwest sound. When Guilmet formed what was later to become Brave New World in 1966, it was on Beck's suggestion that Trousdale should be auditioned as lead singer - they both attended the same high school, and had played together in The Bodrockers.

Brave New World played at the first major psychedelic rock concert in Seattle at the Eagles Auditorium in the spring of 1967 (the Trips Festival named after its promoter Trips Lansing). They lasted as a more-or-less continuous band in various forms until 1973. By then Molvik and Guilmet had become the band's songwriters and lead vocalists. Beck was the other original member at this time.

Epic paid for a series of recording sessions of the band after It's Tomorrow was released, although it is uncertain whether the tapes still exist. Live tapes from 1972 definitely do, as does an early '67 astonishing rendition of Signed D.C. recorded for Jerry Dennon. Incidentally, another version of their single was released on Epic 10123 with the flip-side entitled Don't You Know You Better Love Me, though it is the same track as Cried. Another song by the group, I See, was first published on Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 2 (LP). They only recorded three songs in 1966. Jerry Dennon of Jerden first bought all three but then sold two to Epic, keeping I See for this and other Northwest collections.

Paul Trousdale would next appear in the 1969 line-up of Indian Puddin' & Pipe.

Retrospective compilation appearances include: a previously unreleased version of Signed D.C. on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 (CD); Cried on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 9 (CD); It's Tomorrow on Boulders, Vol. 10 (LP), History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 5 (cassette), History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 3 (LP), Northwest Battle Of The Bands (2-CD) and Ya Gotta Have Moxie, Vol. 1 (2-CD); I See on The History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 3 (LP) and Northwest Battle Of The Bands (2-CD); a previously unreleased version of Train Kept A Rollin' on The Northwest Battle Of The Bands 3: I'm Walkin' Babe (LP) and Northwest Battle Of The Bands Vol 3 (CD); and another unreleased cut Fine Girl got an airing on Northwest Battle Of The Bands Vol 4 (CD).

45:	Don't Send Me No Flowers, I Ain't Dead Yet/ Love Of My Life	(Amy 938) 1966

This garage/punk outfit came from Memphis, Tennessee and Don't Send Me No Flowers, I Ain't Dead Yet, a classic 'pleading' ballad with fine fuzztone guitar, was written by Donna Weiss, a Nashville songwriter who years later won a Grammy for her composition Bette Davis Eyes. The Breakers were all high school mates aged 15-22, and their sole stab at stardom came when they caught the ear of Charlie Rich's manager, Sy Rosenburg. Stewart Lewis remembers: "He drove us to Nashville to record the song and although it only reached No. 25 in Memphis we heard that it did well in the Santa Barbara, California area. We didn't release any other records however. We just played locally and did the occasional 'Battle Of The Bands' contest against local bands like The Gentrys and The Boxtops. They won, naturally."

"After a few years of garage band fun, everyone drifted away to college, other bands, and real work. Playing in the band launched a couple of music-related careers. Tom Keckler went on to develop quite a reputation making custom-made guitars for the rich and famous and Gary Johns made a career out of music locally, ending up playing in a band with Duck Dunn and Steve Cropper, two noted Memphis studio musicians".

You can also check out Don't Send Me No Flowers (I Ain't Dead Yet) on Pebbles, Vol. 12 (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 10 (CD), Pebbles, Vol. 3 (ESD) (CD), The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 1 (2-CD) and History Of Garage and Frat Bands In Memphis 2 (LP and CD). (VJ/MW/JCs)

Brelyn (real name Bob Konecnik) was actually a late sixties Chicago-based pop artist, but Hanna a rather Dylanesque punk song with some good guitar has been included on Pebbles, Vol. 16 (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 7: Chicago 2 (CD), Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 6 (LP & CD) and Boulders, Vol. 11 (LP). It was rather out of character with his other releases, with I Know I'll Cry Tomorrow being a country and western ballad and Bits & Pieces being described as "fuzz with slight horns". (BM/MW/VJ)

This New York City rock group utilised good guitar and organ work and a rather "funky" sound on some album tracks. Their second album contains original material and three covers: a long version of Dr. John's Loop Garoo, The Sun And The Moon by Mark Klingman and Freedom Blues penned by E. Reeder. Well played, but nothing outstanding. The four members later became active session men during the seventies and eighties. (SR)

45:	New Day/Heather	(Ruda Bega #0001) 1972

Touted as 'psych' by some dealers, New Day is actually decent, early seventies hard-rock with a fine line in intertwining lead guitars; it's backed by a weary country-rock-ballad. Of origins unknown, the line-up appears to have included Breland, McNease, Turner, and Conn. (MW)

This was the work of an obscure California quintet who may have spent time in Texas too. It's rumoured that a few of them were at some point members of Impala Syndrome. The bluesy Latin garage-rock album contains some interesting guitar work.

The band members later formed Yaqui, who released one album Yaqui (Playboy Records) 1973, which was dedicated to Don Juan and Carlos Castaneda. Musically, it sounded similar to Santana.

From Kansas, Brewer and Shipley were primarily a hippie duet with strong country-rock roots. They would be beyond the scope of this book if it wasn't for their lyrics, which often deal with drugs (One Toke Over The Line, Oh Mommy, Back To The Farm ...), their hippie values (People Love Each Other, Fifty States Of Freedom..) and for their numerous links with the Bay Area musical scene.

The pair first met at the Blind Owl coffeehouse in Kent, Ohio during 1964, however they didn't get togther until mid-1967. In the interim Shipley (born 1942 in Mineral Ridge, Ohio) spent some time working the Toronto folk circuit. Brewer (born 1944, Oklahoma City), meanwhile travelled to L.A. in late 1965 with partner Tom Mastin and formed Mastin & Brewer. After Brewer's brother Keith replaced Mastin in late 1966, the Brewer brothers continued to write until mid-1967, when Mike landed a songwriting job with Good Sam Music, an affiliation of A&M. Here he arranged for Shipley to also be recruited, and during the summer, they began recording their debut album. This was partially recorded at Leon Russell's house.

During 1967 they wrote songs individually for The Nitty Gritty Dirt Band and The Poor amongst others. H.P. Lovecraft also covered the collaboration Keeper Of The Keys, which appeared on the duo's debut album.

Their first album was produced by Allen Stanton (who also worked with The Byrds and Mort Garson) and Jerry Riopelle. Down In L.A. defined their style: short, well structured songs with harmonies, good lyrics and the use of excellent musicians: Russell Bridges (better known as Leon Russell), Lance Wakely (pre-Joyous Noise), Jim Messina (Buffalo Springfield/Poco), plus the usual L.A. sessionmen.

Brewer and Shipley then decided to move to Kansas (they would return to California only to record) and signed a new contract with Kama Sutra. Their first two albums for their new label were produced by Nick Gravenites. Some of the best musicians of the San Francisco scene play on these albums, including: Richard Greene (Seatrain), Mark Naftalin (Butterfield Blues Band, Mother Earth, Quicksilver), Michael Bloomfield, Bob Jones (We Five, Southern Comfort), Jerry Garcia, John Cipollina, David La Flamme (It's A Beautiful Day), Spencer Dryden (Jefferson Airplane)...

Not surprisingly, all their albums offer some good guitar solos. However Weeds and Shake Off The Demon are probably the best. The former contains a superb elongated cover of Witchi Tai To, the Indian hymn penned by Jim Pepper (ex-Free Spirits), whilst Shake Off The Demon, with its title track, Working On The Well and Natural Child (with the electric violin of David La Flamme) being excellent.

Brewer and Shipley kept on recording for Kama Sutra and Capitol after 1972 but these albums are more conventional and not relevant to this book. A seventies re-recording of One Toke Over The Line has been compiled on Psychotic Reactions (Topline) (LP). (SR/NW)

45s:	The Life Of A Day/A Beautiful Day	(Co-op 519) 1969
	Love Is There/Gotta Get Back	(Roulette R-7081) 1970

Their first single used to be picked up fairly easily, but nowadays this New Haven, Connecticut outfit's late mid-tempo psych ballad is quite hard to obtain. Solid-backing with moody mellotron and some burning guitar backed with a straight pop-rocker. The later single is dramatic mid-tempo pop-rock with some searing guitar on one side and a harp solo on the other.

Brigade formed in North Portland, Oregon during the summer of 1966. They won the KLSN Radio Portland Teen Fair 'Battle Of The Bands' on 9th June 1968 and received a 1954 custom purple Cadillac Hearse as a prize! By now they were a top local attraction and the same year they signed to the American Record Company and recorded a demo which received a lot of local airplay. They went on to record an album for the Band 'N Vocal label in 1970 but split up before it was released. Consequently it received little airplay and flopped. The band all went on to college or further education. Today the album is exceedingly rare and even the limited edition reissue on Shadoks, which has been restricted to just 350 copies, seems destined to become the same before long. Musically, it consists of keyboard-dominated progressive rock and pretty uninspired progressive rock at that on side one. The second side is much better, with some exhilarating keyboard playing on Self-Made God the highlight. (VJ)

Five Minutes To Train Time (Belinda Acetate) 196?

This band formed in 1965 in Forest Hills, New York. The flip side to their single, (Would I Still Be) Her Big Man, is a song about a guy working himself into the ground to pay for his girlfriend's expensive habits. It was written and produced by Arthur and Kris Resnick of Third Rail fame and is pretty good, with sharp lyrics and typical garage instrumentation.

Johnny, Caesar and Elliot were students at Forest Hills High School, and Sam went to Stuyvesant High School. Johnny, Caesar, and Elliot had begun jamming together and recruited Sam to sit in on drums for a gig they had in a building basement. The Brigands gigged at school dances and opened at alcohol-free night clubs.

Johnny Hartman lived in the same apartment building as song writers Artie and Kris Resnick. Artie arranged for the band to record a demo and then took it from studio to studio, trying to get a deal. Epic bit the hook, and at a meeting at Johnny's house, their parents signed five-year contracts with the label.

Patient Man was pick hit of the week on WJET in Erie, Pennsylvania.

In addition to the single, two uncredited Belinda acetates have been unearthed in the UK, featuring both tracks from the Epic single. As a result Her Big Man has been compiled on Purple Heart Surgery, Vol. 2 (LP) and My Closest Living Relative on Incredible Sound Show Stories, Vol. 10 (LP). Coincidentally Five Minutes... is exactly the same title as a song by the Opus IV.

(Would I Still Be) Her Big Man has been compiled on Nuggets Box (4-CD), Sixties Punk Ballads Sampler (LP), Sixties Archive, Vol. 5 (CD) and Back From The Grave, Vol. 2 (LP). (VJ/MW/KM)

This is an album of folk-tinged psychedelic rock, from a Danville, Pennsylvania band, although some dealers have previously listed them as Canadian. Not a particularly memorable album, but quite pleasant. Hey Mister is the best track, in a hippie style folk/progressive format.

BRIGG - Self Titled CD.

After Brigg broke up, Rusty Foulke (who later changed his name to Galen Toye Foulke) and Jeff Willoughby formed The Hybrid Ice Company. This group later shortened the name to Hybrid Ice and lasted from 1973 until the mid-nineties, releasing two albums: Hybrid Ice (A Street Records LP 1211) 1982 and No Rules (Pilot Records PR-8809) 1987.

The Brigg album was actually issued after Brigg had broken up and Hybrid Ice had formed; it was Brigg's only album release, and there were no singles. The three record labels used by Brigg and Hybrid Ice (SSP, A Street, and Pilot) were all based out of Susquehanna Sound Productions in Northumberland, Pennsylvania where all three albums were recorded.

A Rusty Foulke song called Magdalene from the first Hybrid Ice album was later recorded by Boston for their Third Stage album. (JPu/VJ)

JUNGLE ROT
GEORGE BRIGMAN

GEORGE BRIGMAN - Jungle Rot LP.

This was a local Baltimore, Maryland group. Jungle Rot is full of Stooges-like raw electric punk, superb psychedelic guitar and is very hard to find now. The album contains elements of psych, hard-rock and seventies punk and whilst the recording quality is crude it suits the savage vocal style. More accessible and in similar vein is Human Scrawl Vagabond (Resonance 33-8602) 1987 - a Dutch release. This includes material from his obscure I Can Hear The Ants Dancing 1982 cassette and a five-track EP Silent Bones (from 1985, which he originally recorded for Bona Fide) together with six previously unreleased tracks and is full of fuzztone guitar.

I Can Hear The Ants Dancin' has also been reissued on vinyl by OR records and more recently on one CD with Jungle Rot. There's also been a recent CD of previously unreleased material called Rags In Skull (Bona Fide BONA 003) 2007. This contains previously unreleased material and blends psychedelia and hard-rock. Originally known as The Embers when they formed at Texas Tech early in 1965, this band relocated to Dallas in the summer of that year and renamed themselves The Briks. Their first single, which was preceded by an acetate, sold around 5,000 copies and was a hit locally. Foolish Baby was a pounding punk number, later compiled on Flashback, Vol. 5 (LP); Texas Flashbacks, Vol. 5 (LP) and Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 13 (LP). The single was leased to Dot for nationwide distribution but did not become the big hit the band hoped for. Their progress was further interrupted when Cotton, Martin and their manager Reggie Lange were drafted in the summer of 1966 although Cotton later rejoined the band in January 1967 when his original replacement Paul Ray left to join The Cobras. Later in 1967 a live tape was made of the band at The Northwood Country Club and this can be heard on side two of Texas Punk, Vol. 8. They also recorded a second single, a rather weak cover of The Cream song NSU which flopped. Having failed to achieve success they disintegrated during 1968, but Richard Bergens later turned up on a single by The Truth and Cecil Cotton later moved to San Francisco where he played in The Snakes with Steve Karnavas (ex-Chapparals).

BRIMSTONE - Paper Winged Dreams LP.

The Briks have been extensively covered in Cicadelic's Texas Punk series. Apart from occupying one side of Texas Punk, Vol. 8, they have six tracks on Texas Punk, Vol. 7. In addition to Can You See Me?, Foolish Baby and N.S.U, there are three previously unreleased tracks: the cover version of The Animals' Baby, Let Me Take You Home as performed by the band on the 'Sump 'N' Else' TV Show; and Over You, a folk-rock melody and Keep Down with Paul Ray on vocals. Texas Punk, Vol. 6 - Dallas, 1966 features It Won't Be Wrong and It's Your Choice - two previously unreleased tracks the last of which had been recorded along with I'm Losing early in 1966 prior to the first single. All of the tracks included on the Cicadelic vinyl compilation series, also appear on the Collectables CD box set Acid Visions - Complete Collection, Vol. 3 (3-CD). In addition, a previously uneleased version of It's Your Choice appears on Unissued Sixties Garage Acetates Volume 2 (CD) and there are live versions of It's Not Easy and Let's Spend The Night Together on There Goes The Neighbourhood 3 (CD). 45: Home Cooking/Visions Of Autumn (Langco 3122/3) 1973

The album is melodic, early seventies progressive rock, with the title track probably the pick of side one, which contains short structured songs. Side two is a complex suite in five movements. Each movement, except the last is symbolic of something. The first, an instrumental composition on a childhood fantasy, symbolises the Crown of Creation. The second is symbolic of the Resurrection. It features some nice solo vocals complimented by intermingled harmonies. The third is symbolic of The Conception of Life and culminates in lots of instrumentation and percussion. The fourth is the most melodic part of the suite. Lyrics dominate the music but there's some nice guitar work and counter-pointing vocals. Given what has gone before the epilogue is a little disappointing but overall this is worth investigation. It was recorded in Youngstown, Ohio although the band came from Cleveland, Ohio. NB: α recorded by Bobby Howard with Nashville session players. β shown as by Mr. Dynamite. χ recorded by Bobby Howard, Larry Kidwell and Chartbusters members.

Originally a Virginia outfit called Bobby Howard and The Hi-Boys (line-up 'A'). Bobby Howard had already established himself on the scene with Link Wray's band, the Wraymen, and continued to record with Wray and as a solo artist.

Bitten by the Invasion bug, they changed to an Anglophile name and style and soon became a big attraction on the Washington, D.C. scene alongside The English Setters, Fallen Angels, Chartbusters and Telstars. Their name was actually taken from a shoebox.

The debut single reflects the Liverpool influence - a Beatlesque pop ballad backed by a driving Bo Diddley beat-stomper with harmonica. It was written and produced by Roy Buchanan. The follow-up employed the same formula - a tender Searchers-styled ballad backed by a rousing beat version of Bobby Troup's Girl Can't Help It. Watch Yourself, written by Bobby Howard and Link Wray, looks to Bo Diddley again for the shufflin' rhythm with a nod to the Rolling Stones for moody attitude, then adds some cool slippery-smooth guitar runs - one of the class cuts on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 16 (LP & CD). Bad Lightnin', notable for more great harmonica and raw vocals, is on the Signed, D.C. (LP) compilation. Bob Embrey reveals in his fanzine, "D.C. Monuments", that the Manchester singles were recorded in Nashville by Bobby Howard with session musicians.

Shake is one of the more accomplished cover versions and can also be heard on A Journey To Tyme, Vol. 4 (LP) and Who Needs Tomorrow? (CD) - it features excellent R&B vocals, a great rhythm section and an unexpected fuzz solo. The flip is an orchestrated beat ballad. Bob Embrey notes that this single was actually recorded in New York City by Bobby Howard with members of The Chartbusters and Larry Kidwell of Lawrence & The Arabians on keyboards.

Bobby Howard left soon after in 1967 and joined The Mad Hatters briefly before forming the Sweet, a blue-eyed soul group who put out a couple of singles on Smash. He'd team with Link Wray again in the early seventies and release a solo album as Mordicai Jones.

The British Walkers strolled on through many line-ups but never recorded again and finally folded in 1969. Bobby Howard was the only member to play on all their recordings.

Amongst a host of local heroes that passed through their ranks the most famous is original guitarist Roy Buchanan, already a seasoned and in-demand player at the time. He would move on through a succession of other bands (Outcasts, Fourmost, Uncalled Four) and famous artists before a solo career that came to prominence in the early seventies with the sublime instrumental Sweet Dreams.

Mike Zack, who replaced Steve Lacey, was from Lawrence & The Arabians and would go on to many other outfits including Wild Honey, Reasons Why, Puzzle, Cherry People and Nils Lofgren's band.

Jimmy Carter moved on to the Telstars and was reunited with Zack in Wild Honey. Steve Lacey also joined the Telstars and would move on to Smalltalk, Puzzle and Tractor.

Hall and Speleos teamed up with Boston emigres Barbara Keith and ex-Remains drummer N.D.Smart to form Kangaroo. John Hall would find greater success in the mid-seventies with Orleans.

Thanks to Bob Embrey and his "D.C. Monuments" fanzine (issue #2 is devoted to The British Walkers) for straightening out the personnel details.

The British Walkers Are Coming CD compiles many of their single cuts, some tracks that Bobby Howard recorded with session men in Nashville in March 1966, including a beat version of The Story Of My Life that included Robbie Robertson, Rick Danko, Kenny Buttrey and Charlie McCoy. The CD also features a recent one-hour TV show plugging the band's recent reunion and has a detailed eight-page booklet with full band history and rare pictures..

Although The Brogues' lifespan extended a mere nine months, and their recorded output was limited to just two singles, they are remembered as one of the best sixties punk bands - and as a precursor to Quicksilver Messenger Service.

The Brogues formed towards the end of 1964, playing their first gig on New Year's Eve that year and quickly gathering a following in their home town of Merced, California. It wasn't long before they cut a couple of demo tracks at a studio in Fresno, and the Hush label picked up on the stronger of them, Someday. (The other track, Journey is reputedly a poor instrumental which sounds like a TV theme tune). They were quickly signed up by Hush who prompted them to re-record the track at Coast Recorders, San Francisco for their first single. Although Someday wasn't typically representative of the band's sound - being more of a folk-rocker, it's still pretty decent and the flip is more akin to their Brit-Invasion influences.

The single was a local hit around Bakersfield and Fresno, and they even got to play alongside bands such as the Zombies and plug the single on an L.A. TV show. It was also around this time that they recruited (pinched) Gary Grubb from another local group The Ratz, his vocal style fitting The Brogues penchant for "American music with a British accent", i.e. Brit Invasion styled R&B revved up with passion and ferocity.

Someday was licensed by major indie Challenge, and the new label took them to L.A. to record a follow-up - Miracle Worker being selected from a pile of demo acetates and Don't Shoot Me Down being written by the band almost on the spot.

This epic punk single should have burned up the charts, but unfortunately The Brogues were in the hands of bigger forces... within a few weeks Eddie and Rick had received draft notices and had no option but to quit. With the heart torn out of the band, auditions were held, but it was quickly realised that the magic could not be re-constructed, and they decided to disband. Greg and Gary decided to stay in San Francisco, forming Quicksilver Messenger Service, whilst Bill went on to Family Tree, together with ex-Ratz member Bob Segarini.

Compilation coverage has so far included both sides of both their singles plus the demo version of Someday on The Hush Records Story; both sides of their first single on Sound Of The Sixties: San Francisco Part 2 (LP); both sides of their second 45 on Psychedelic Microdots, Vol. 1 (CD) and I Turned Into A Helium Balloon (CD); Don't Shoot Me Down on Garage Music For Psych Heads (cassette) and Pebbles, Vol. 10 (LP); and I Ain't No Miracle Worker has resurfaced on Mindrocker, Vol. 1 (LP), Nuggets, Vol. 6 (LP), Nuggets Box (4-CD), Trash Box (5-CD), Excerpts From Nuggets (CD), Best of Pebbles, Vol. 1 (LP & CD) and Sundazed Sampler, Vol. 1 (CD).

This heavy Orlando, Florida-based seventies psychedelic rock outfit is worthy of investigation. All of the material is written (or in one case co-written), arranged, directed and produced by Terry Brooks, and pretty mindblowing some of it is too.

The stand-out track on the first album is Ruler Of The Universe, which is full of psychedelic guitar and sound effects. The Kiss Of A Butterfly is full of fuzz guitar and Lost is more laid-back in style.

RAW POWER
STRANGE

TERRY BROOKS AND STRANGE - Raw Power LP.

On Raw Power, Fields And Fields Of People and Love Me are quite strong vocal numbers, Are You My Friend? and To The Far Side Of Time are space rock and the title track, a powerful psychedelic haze. The whole of side two is taken up by the 19-minute long Life Jam, which sounds largely improvised and not wholly successful.

The first albums are only recommended to connoisseurs of space-rock and psychedelic freak-outs, but the third is really psychedelic hard-rock and Bottom Line, Woman and Mister Strange are all strong songs. This album should have a much wider appeal.

You'll also find Ruler Of The Universe on Endless Journey - Phase Three (LP) and Endless Journey - Phase I & II (2-CD). (VJ/MW)

Broth (NY)

ALBUM:	1	BROTH	(Mercury SR 61298) 1970 SC

NB: (1) also released in Germany (Mercury 6338 032).

This heavy progressive group thought to have come from New York City with eight members (including horns and Latin percussions) released an album which is now a very minor collectable. One of its cuts, I'm A King, was also included on Mercury's 1970 Dimension Of Miracles (LP) compilation. (VJ/RRf/SR)

45: Electric Chair/Steel Dog Man (Capitol 2940) 1970

This band also recorded as The Traits. Their album is pretty varied but a couple of tracks, To Your Dreams and Mr. Sleepy, veered towards psychedelia. Bartlett had previously been with The Profets, who didn't make it onto vinyl and The Front Page Review, who recorded an album for Big Mouth in 1967, which was never released. He played in The Fools in 1980. His involvement certainly places them in New England, almost certainly Boston. Both albums are identical, the first being released privately.

Tom Belliveau is the same 'Ducky' Belliveau involved with Pugsley Munion. One cut, Steel Dog Man has resurfaced on White Lace & Strange (CD). (VJ/MW)

45: Box Guitar/Jump Out The Window (RCA Victor 47-9621) 1968

Formed by Levin, Volk and Smith after their exit from Paul Revere and The Raiders, and cultivating a similar pop territory. The first album contains strident pop with some heavier sounds than their predecessors but also adds some unwelcome brass and orchestration. One immediate stand-out is Doin' The Right Thing (The Way), a dramatic, sitar-influenced power-popper straight out of the Paul Revere And The Raiders school. Otherwise it is fairly undistinguished pop and ballads.

They also recorded as Friendsound and were based in California. (MW/CF)

ORACLE

BROTHER FOX AND THE TAR BABY - Self Titled LP.

From Ohio, this Brotherhood (unconnected to the ex-Raiders bunch), played an interesting mix of psych and prog-rock with some Latin influences, a roaring organ, a strong guitar and an electrified flute. Only 200 copies of this private-pressed album were made. The two bonus tracks on the 1995 bootleg were bizarrely taken from the UK Psychedelic Salvage Company compilation! (SR/NK)

Brotherhood Of Peace (NC)

ALBUM: 1 CUTTIN' LOOSE (Avanti AV12-003) 1975 R1

This was a mainstream seventies rock band from North Carolina. The album's crude production (it was one of Don Dixon's earliest projects) may appeal to garage-niks and there are a couple of hard-rock cuts. Mostly, though, we're talking straightforward seventies rock. (VJ)

The Brotherhood of Soul (NY)

45: The Morning After/Save Me (Goldbug no #) 1967

This single had escaped the attention of all but the most curious garage/psych collectors, until now. Recorded at Abtone Studios in 1967, it's assumed that the band was from New York City (or New York State), so you'll find their dreamy, psychy instrumental The Morning After on Psychedelic States: New York Vol. 2 (CD). This Texas band, originally known as Brother Love Congregation, issued their first single under this name. Bringing Me Down can also be heard on The Cicadelic 60's, Vol. 2 (LP) and The Cicadelic 60's, Vol. 4 (CD), whilst She's Gonna Lose That Boy has resurfaced on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 2: The Barn (LP) and Sixties Rebellion Vol's 1 & 2 (CD). They followed this with a pretty good psychedelic single I Don't Want To Go (credited to BLC) which later appeared on Acid Visions Vol. 2 (LP) and Acid Visions - The Complete Collection Vol. 1 (3-CD).

Apparently the same group may also have recorded as Jeremiah one single:- Jeremiah/Forever Never Comes (Kumquat 2) around 1969. (VJ)

The Girl's Alright/ Love Story (White Whale WW 255) 1967

Probably a studio group, this California act similar to Association released two pop singles. These were produced by Ted Glasser and arranged by Mike Rubini for Feigin and Lasseff Production. The first offers two songs written by Vern McIntire and Dorlee, the second is slightly better, with Warren Zevon and Randy Newman songs.

Zevon may have played with The Brothers for a while. (SR)

Their second album was released on a local Tennessee label. (SR)

45: To Say Goodbye/Wishing (Mother Bear MB #538) 1968

The wittily-named Brougham Closet (first word is pronounced "Broom") emerged from a cupboard in Woodland, Washington in 1966 although it wasn't until they won a 'Battle of The Bands' in the summer of 1968 that they got the chance to record. Their sole and rarely seen single showcases a pair of Mike Knight compositions, both of which are soft-rock with a West Coast vibe. To Say Goodbye is a dreamy lament; Wishing is more immediately impressive - pounding pop-rock with throbbing Hammond and shades of Clear Light.

Producer Rick Keefer had recorded as Secret Agents Of The Vice Squad in Los Angeles in 1965 before relocating to Portland, Oregon where he started the Ridon label. His other production credits around that time include New Tweedy Bros!, Phantoms, Stone Garden, United Travel Service, and Wallflowers.

The band split in 1969. (MW)

Both albums are interesting, although very similar in style: dreamy vocals, some melancholic long tracks (Icarus, Light Of Children Come, Seek The Sun), with a competent backing group.

(2) copies say "Send $6.25" on the back. (3) was his last known album. Copies say "Send $8.50" on the back.

This multi-instrumentalist from Sacramento, California uses a wide range of homemade instruments on these three albums. Musically, they could be described as psychedelic folk and at their better moments a mystical atmosphere is achieved. Sadly, however, on some occasions (particularly Mambo Che Chay on the first) Bobby Brown sounds extremely like Rolf Harris! They were released on his own label and the original pressings have become minor collectors' items. Bobby Brown performed his one-man-band act extensively up and down the West Coast through the eighties and sold his records out of his van. ALBUM: 1(A) TETON TEA PARTY (Broadside BR 305) 1966 SC

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Folkways Records 5305).

Born Charles Edward Artman and son of a Methodist minister in northern Iowa, Charlie Brown was, according to the extensive liner notes of his only album "a mystic, poet, folksinger, baker of bread, builder of tepees and prophet of The New Age Of Consciousness". After moving to California and experimenting with various religions, "often with the help of certain chemical catalysts", Brown adopted an identity with the Indian and chose to live in tepees and organized Indian Ceremonies, which got him arrested for possession of peyote. He also attracted the attention of the local police for building up his tepee on various sites (University of California, military bases etc.).

Housed in a superb sleeve which shows him like a kind of new Messiah (bearded, long-haired, surrounded by fire, shining cross, masks, mountains etc.), the album sadly doesn't live up to expectations. Produced by Anthony Kent and recorded in New York in 1966 with some local folk musicians, it consists of traditional folk, the best track being the long Ballad Of Earl Durand, the story of a man "Born too late a mountain man, he was shot down in the Tetons, by the Law's bloodthirsty band". It may interest fans of the first Holy Modal Rounders albums. (SR)

From Detroit, Michigan here's an obscure single by the former Omens leader and future member of Beach Bums and Bob Seger And The Last Heard. He had numerous other soul/blues singles, solo and fronting bands, from the early sixties onwards which are way outside the scope of this project.

Compilation appearances include First Girl on Best Of The Hideouts (LP); and there are three cuts credited to Doug Brown and The Omens on Friday At The Hideout (CD) - Thank Goodness It's Friday, Youth and Experience (originally issued as a flexi) and a radio spot Norwest Lounge. Recorded in Los Angeles and produced by Al Schmitt, Russell Schmitt and Jerry Hudgins, this album should interest West Coast fans with its powerful female vocals and good guitar work a la Fear Itself. Al Schmitt, who had previously worked with the Jefferson Airplane and Ivory, managed the Pentagram label, and obviously knew what to do with the fine voice of Barbara Lopez and the fluid guitar of Doug Welbaum. The choice of material was judicious too: Free's Be My Friend, Ike Turner's Too Much Woman, Sweet Lullaby by Randi Jacobs and six originals co-written by the group members and Bob Gisonno.

The liner notes state that the group formed circa 1967 as Fair Befall. (SR)

ALBUM: 1(A) BAD WAY TO GO (Sundazed LP 5173) 2003

45: Bad Way To Go/Bad Love (RCA-Victor 47-8920) 1966

Four real brothers from Pearl River, New York made up this teen quartet. Bad Way To Go is regarded as a classic 'nugget' since appearing on Volume 8 of Greg Shaw's Pebbles series. A wonderful frantic thrash, packed with untamed rawness and youthful exuberance, they sound like a younger version of the Blues Magoos.

As seems to have been the case with many major label signings, their release received scant promotion and, to no one's surprise, failed to set the charts alight. Eventually the band stagnated and fell apart, consigned to history as an obscure footnote. Continued interest in the vinyl collector community had seen the single fetch silly prices since the eighites, so it was only a matter of time until band members became aware of this and stepped forth to reclaim their legacy. The bonus here, unlike in many other cases, is that other recordings were made and have survived - the result is the stunning Sundazed album, highly recommended to anyone wanting to relive their youth via the undiluted sounds and spirit of sixites teen garage rebellion.

You'll also find Bad Way To Go on Pebbles, Vol. 10 (CD), Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 1 (LP) or Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 1 (CD). The flip has resurfaced on The Garage Zone, Vol. 1 (LP), The Garage Zone Box Set (4-LP) and Ya Gotta Have Moxie, Vol. 1 (2-CD). They also have a previously unreleased cut, The Courtship Of Rapunzel on Garage Beat '66 6 (CD). (MW/VJ/MM)

From his vocal mannerisms, James Bryant sounds like an early-sixites pop crooner but here he marries the melodrama of the Righteous Brothers to English Invasion sounds to produces two fine, simmering beat-ballads. It turns out he was quite a character, real name James Bartelme, who'd been in numerous outfits around Manitowoc, Wisconsin. Read all about him in Gary Myers' 'On That Wisconsin Beat'. (MW)

NB: Although both sides of this 45 were written by Bob Stanley, it was recorded before he joined the band.

From Lake County, Illinois only 500 copies of their single were pressed. Your Lies is a Kinks-influenced song, notable for catchy organ and very abrupt ending. Bob Stanley, who wrote both tracks, joined the band after his outfit The Empires fragmented into The Outspoken Blues. After the single, The Bryds modified their name slightly, becoming The Brydes and making several further recordings, none of which have been released.

After The Brydes split in 1967, Bob joined The Outspoken Blues. He also wrote Gotta Take It Easy for Michael and The Messengers and later composed the song Take Me Back, which was recorded by The Flock.

Compilation appearances have included Why Did You Break My Heart on Shutdown '66 (LP) and Your Lies on Back From The Grave, Vol. 6 (LP). The two songs also appear as bonus tracks on the Outspoken Blues (CD) soundtrack as bonus tracks. (VJ/JS/MW)

CD: 1 SACRIFICE (60sgaragebands.com 60SGB02) 2007

45: Sacrifice/I Want To Tell You (Diplomacy 30) 1966

This Lemoore, California band's origins date back to June 1962 and a surf combo called The Challengers. The founding members were Dick Lee (drms); Mike Wagner (gtr); and Ken Valentine (gtr). The group added a fourth member (Frank Bento) in July 1962. The Challengers were forced to change their name to The de-Fenders in August, 1963. The de-Fenders traveled throughout California and the Pacific coast area playing their surf music. During this period a fifth member was added to the group (Bobby Cox - electric piano). In November, 1964 Frank Bento (ld gtr) left the group to join another local band called The Sullies (Steve Perry of Journey was the drummer). Robert Virden (bs) replaced him. In late November 1964, The de-Fenders entered the recording studio for the first time and recorded two instrumental surf songs (Irritation and More Of More). As a result, the de-Fenders were signed by Diplomacy Records and Coast Artists Entertainment of Hollywood (in December 1964). In January of 1965, Diplomacy Records and Coast Artists changed the name to The Brymers. The group began traveling throughout California and the rest of the country. In January 1966, Ken Valentine, Mike Wagner, and Robert Virden left the group due to Vietnam. The Brymers now consisted of Dick Lee (vcls/drms); Jim Mellick (vcls/ld gtr/hrmnca); Bill Brumley (vcls/bs) and Kenny Sinner (vcls/piano/sax).

The Brymers entered H and R Studios (Hollywood) in November of 1965 and recorded Only By Your Own; I Should Be Glad; and Hello Little Girl. 15 additional tracks were recorded in Bakersfield, California during 1965.

In August, 1966, The Brymers entered Harmony Studios (Hollywood) and recorded Sacrifice; I Want To Tell You; Every Moment Of The Day; and Under My Thumb. Mercury Records wanted I Want To Tell You, but asked the band to re-write the song with lyrics that reflected the Vietnam War. Thus, Make Love Not War was recorded. In January, 1967, Jim Mellick left the group and was replaced by Bobby Hollister (ld gtr).

The Brymers disbanded in early 1968 and Dick Lee then joined Merrell Fankhauser and played with Fapardokly for over a year and played on the infamous album Fapardokly.

Dick Lee has told us about some of his memories from his days with The Brymers: "One of my favorite memories during the sixites occurred while backing up Chuck Berry for the first time. It was late 1964 and we were on a venue with Chuck Berry, The Isley Brothers, and The We Five. Chuck Berry was the last act to perform. 15 minutes prior to his time slot he still hadn't appeared. He finally arrived about five minutes prior to going on. Remember, that we did not have any time to rehearse any songs. I approached Berry and said, "Chuck, what songs do you want us to play?" Berry responded, "What do you mean boy - we are going to do Chuck Berry songs." And, with that he jumped out on the stage and began playing the intro to "Johnny B. Goode". We collectively said, "Oh Shit," and began following him through the beginning cord progressions.

During the recording of Sacrifice (in August 1966) another funny incident occurred. In the sixties minimal studio effects were available. Therefore,

Bubble Puppy
A Gathering of Promises

BUBBLE PUPPY - A Gathering Of Promises LP.

Kenny Sinner came up with the idea of taking a small amp and placing a huge 15" speaker in it. During the recording of Sacrifice, Kenny purposefully overpowered his amp causing smoke and sparks to pour out of the back. He eventually blew it up which resulted in the distortion sound you hear in Sacrifice. The engineer ran out of the booth - tape running - and yelled, "You fucking idiots are going to burn the studio down." Kenny responded, "Now that is the sound I was looking for." And, that sound is on the recording of Sacrifice. It should be noted that Kenny wrote both songs.

Another crazy time occurred while the group was booked into a San Francisco venue in 1967. Bobby Hollister had hooked up with this beautiful young blonde after a concert. He proceeded back to his hotel with the young lady and both entered his room. The rest of the group was next door playing poker and having a few beers to unwind. At one point, we heard Bobby yell and run out of the room. We instantly went to the door to see what the problem was. Hollister came running into the room yelling, "It's a guy! It's a guy! She has a penis." To his surprise, he had hooked up with a transvestite who was a working female impersonator in a North Beach nightclub. Needless to say, Bobby was always ribbed about the incident and always checked that future women did not have a "package."

In June 2007 "60sgaragebands records" released the Sacrifice CD. It contains 24 tracks that the group recorded during the sixties. As a result, the original members of The Brymers Dick Lee (vcls/drms); Jim Mellick (vcls/ld gtr/harp); Bill Brumley (vcls/bs); and Kenny Sinner (vcls/keyb'ds/sax) reunited in March 2007 and recorded the CD Where Are They Now. They followed this with another CD 40 Year Brotherhood in June 2008, and the Never Too Old To Rock-n-Roll CD in June 2009.

Sacrifice had resurfaced previously on Boulders Vol.4 (LP) and Garage Punk Unknowns Vol. 2 (LP). When the band split in 1968, Lee joined Merrell Fankhauser's Fapardokly. (Dick Lee/VJ/MW)

This single was recorded by a minor league garage/psych outfit from Tyler, Texas. Times Gone By is a pedestrian ballad psychedelic only by virtue of some deeply serious but (nowadays) hilarious lyrics - "variations of oceans of lavender skies" - crimson thoughts in a green and yellow mist"! The flip is a brooding mid-tempo garage number delivered in a folk- rock vein with a nifty bass line.

Compilation appearances have included You'll Be Mine on Project Blue, Vol. 3 (LP); and Tymes Gone By on Tymes Gone By (LP). (VJ/MW)

	Do You Really Love Me/ One More Mountain To Climb	(Senate 2114) 1968

This is not a bubble gum group, as they play a mix of dreamy pop and pop-psych. In the previous edition we reported that the band was killed while on a USO tour in Vietnam. Subsequently we've seen information that suggests this was a different band with a girl singer.

It seems that this Bubble Gum Machine was one of a long line of 'studio concoctions' just session musicians and session vocalists and then some 'models' for the album cover. I Won't Be Lonely Anymore (which was also on a single) could easily have been a hit and the album contains a batch of good Wes Farrell/Tony Romero compositions, a nice cover of For What It's Worth and a good version of The Bee Gees' classic To Love Somebody. On the downside there's an awful cover version of Sgt Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band. (SR/KKe/MW/VJ)

They started rehearsing in San Antonio in 1967 using the temporary name Willowdale Handcar although prior to this Prince, Cox and Fore had played together in Corpus Christi as The New Seeds. The name Bubble Puppy was chosen whilst they were high on acid at a Hendrix Concert flicking over the pages of Aldous Huxley's 'Brave New World'. With their new name they headed for Austin where they played at the now legendary Vulcan Gas Company but after being signed by International Artists, they moved on to Houston. Their first single reached No. 14 in the U.S. charts in March 1969 and combined hard-rock with fresh vocal harmonies. It was a highly regarded single in the U.K., and was covered on single by both The Nite

People and The Mooche in 1969. Their album, which actually reached No. 176 in the U.S. Album Charts, was similar in style and, although their three subsequent singles never achieved the success of the first, they became International Artist's most successful act after the 13th Floor Elevators.

During a tour with Steppenwolf Nick St. Nicholas convinced them to move to California which they did, signing to the ABC/Dunhill label. Here they changed their name to Demian issuing an album in 1971. Later in 1977 they reformed as Sirius and recorded an album that was issued on their own Elcric Flow label in 1979. However, the story was not over. They re-emerged in 1987 with a new album which contained new versions of their old classics as well as fresh material but which frankly showed them to be a shadow of their former selves.

Compilation appearances have so far included: Hot Smoke And Sasafrass on Best Of '60s Psychedelic Rock (CD); Days Of Our Time on Kicks & Chicks - Original 1960s Acid Punk (LP); Beginning on Relics, Vol. 1 (LP) and Relics Vol's 1 & 2 (CD); Thinkin' About Thinkin', Day Of Your Time and What Do You See on Austin Landing (LP); Hurry Sundown (single mix) on Austin Landing, Vol. 2 (LP); Thinkin' About Thinkin', If I Had A Reason and What Do You See? on International Artists Singles Collection (LP); the previously unreleased Secrets Of The Golden Sunrise, Keep Your Mouth Shut Once In A While, Beautiful Shadows and Love Me Like She Can on Acid Visions Vol. 11 (CD) (Spalax) and Secrets Of The Golden Sunrise and Keep Your Mouth Shut Once In A While on Psychedelic States: Texas Vol. 1 (CD). Quite a good version, it has some interesting guitar work near the end and altered lyrics in the chorus. It's a typical garage-punker which is well worth a listen. (VJ)

ALBUM:	1(A)	ONE OF THREE	(Bioya Sound MM-519) 1972 R2

NB: (1) issued in a crudely-printed burlap bag. (1) counterfeited in the early eighties, this was marketed in a plain white jacket. (1) reissued again on vinyl (Adelphi 75192) 1992. (1) reissued on CD (Genes) 200?

Roy Buchanan had a long career, from the early sixties to the mid-eighties. He notably played with The British Walkers and several other bands. His solo album released as by "Buch and the Snake Stretcher's" is now extremely rare and sought-after. They were the house band at the Crossroads Night Club in Bladensburg, Maryland in 1971 when the album was recorded. The sessions, over a week or two, were engineered by Hal Davis (also RB manager), along with Bob Ahrens. This homemade and self-produced platter was issued by Buchanan himself after it was rejected by Polydor. The artist decided to privately distribute the album on his own BIOYA label, whose initials stood for the message that Buchanan had for Polydor - B(low) I(t) O(ut) Y(our) A(ss). It was released in a real burlap sack, with a hand-stenciled title, and recorded with rather primitive equipment. For obvious contractual reasons, his name wasn't mentioned on the burlap bag that housed first pressings of the 12" platter, which was only sold at "underground" stores, head shops, and Buchanan's gigs. It includes some good tracks: two originals Since You've Been Gone and The Messiah Will Come Again, I'm A Lonesome Fugitive (penned by Casey and Liz Anderson), a version of Chuck Berry's Johnny B. Goode, a cover of Don Gibson's instrumental Sweet Dreams and a languid rendition of Neil Young's Down By The River.

Buchanan kept on recording but, although some are really interesting, his solo albums are out of scope of this book. He died tragically in jail in the late eighties. (SR/VJ)

ALBUM:	1(A)	NO GIMMICKS, JUST MUSIC	(Genera LPS GR-5575) 1975 R1

This melodic rock album was by a West Alexandria, Ohio artist. The cover has a portrait of (presumably) Buckingham with long flowing black hair and moustache. All 12 tracks are penned by Buckingham. He had a lightweight, but likeable voice and the material is diverse. There are the stark ballads one might expect on this type of album like Another Drunken Morning and Good-Bye, but it has funkier tracks like the fast-paced opener Your Eyes Do Lie, Conversation and Strange Lady. Smilin' Lady has a jazzy vibe with a flute solo and I Can Feel The Day is the most mainstream rocker (with a nice guitar solo from the anonymous lead guitarist). Sweet Rock And Roll was an odd concoction with feedback guitar but lame lyrics and vocals. Quite interesting overall. (VJ)

KIND OF A DRAG
SUNDAZED

THE BUCKINGHAMS - Kind Of A Drag CD.

This Chicago-based act came together in 1965. It was originally known as The Pulsations, The Falling Pebbles, The Centuries and later The Buckingham Fountain. Their biggest early exposure was on WGN-TV's 'All Time Hits' show in 1965, playing cover hits of the day. Their first single release was a cover of the Drifters/Searchers' hit Sweets For My Sweet on Spectra Sound. They were soon signed by the Chicago-based USA Records. Their first three singles were also substantial local hits but their big 'national' break came when Kind Of A Drag (written by Jim Holvay of local Chicago band The Mob) climbed to the top of the U.S. Singles Charts in February 1967. This resulted in Columbia buying their contract from USA Records and Jim Guercio, who was later involved with The Mothers Of Invention taking over production of their recordings.

They enjoyed two further Top 10 hits with Don't You Care (which was again written by Holvay and fellow Mob member, Gary Beisber) and Mercy Mercy, which took a Top 20 instrumental hit by jazz musician Cannonball Adderly earlier that year and added vocals. Their first two albums also sold quite well peaking at No's 109 and 58 respectively in the Album Charts.

Not a psychedelic or garage band as such they did release a single, Susan, which was an attempted venture into psychedelia and this was their most relevant recording to this book, whilst their first album is quite garagy, and of their early single cuts Don't Want To Cry is a great fuzz raver and I've Been Wrong Before is a great British-inspired slice of garage-pop.

Although they fell from favour in 1968, following a drug bust, they struggled on until 1970 and their Greatest Hits compilation, released in the summer of 1969, made No. 73 in the U.S. charts. Incidentally, Martin Grebe, who joined the band in 1968, had earlier played in Chicago act The Exceptions.

Carl Giamarese and Dennis Tufano later signed to A&M Records as a duo (recording under that name) and met with further chart success. They were one of a number of acts managed by Jon-Jon Poulos before his drug-related death on 26th March 1980. Marty Grebb also played with Dick Campbell and became an active sesson musician during the seventies.

The Buckinghams reformed in 1980 and again in 1981 for the annual Chicago festival. In 1985/86 they released two cassettes Sincerely Yours and A Matter Of Time, and for their 30th anniversary in 1996 a live CD/cassette and video Places In Five was released. They released an album of mainly original material Terra Firma (available on CD) in 1998.

In 2001, The Buckinghams participated in a Solid Gold 60s tour with Tommy James and The Shondells, Paul Revere and The Raiders, The Turtles, and The Grassroots. In January 2005, they performed at the Twilight On The Prairie Ball in Wahington B. C. as one of President George W. Bush's inaugural balls. Two years later they signed a contract with Fuel Records who released a new studio CD, Reaching Back that featured new recordings of five of their top hits and eight new compositions by Carl Giammarese. A second CD, Standing Room Only (previously released as Alive And Well) followed. In December 2008, they released a Christmas album, The Joy Of Christmas for the BML label.

THE BUCKINGHAMS - Portraits LP.

Still a popular live act, in 2009 they became the first band to appear at two Presidential inaugural balls, when they performed at the Bipartisan Illinois Agricultural Ball for Barrack Obama.

The vinyl junkies out there may want to know that in 1966 The Buckinghams released a juke-box only single on red wax. It consisted of a track from their first album and interviews with the band and is now one of the rarest sixties recordings out of Chicago. It's subsequently included on 2131 South Michigan Avenue (CD). The compilations Psychotic Reactions (LP) and 2131 South Michigan Avenue (CD) also include their rare I'm A Man cut featured only on the first pressing of their debut album (and the Sundazed CD reissue). The CD version has an unedited version of the solo. A right roarin' rave-up it is too, which is why it was replaced... makes you wonder if The Litter had heard this.

You can also find I've Been Wrong on Pebbles, Vol. 6: Chicago (CD); I Don't Want To Cry (the flip side to their first single on USA Records) on both Glimpses, Vol. 1 (LP) and Glimpses, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD); and seventies recordings of Mercy, Mercy, Mercy and Kind Of A Drag figure on Psychotic Reactions (Topline). 	Seventeen Year Old Girl/ Long Long Time	(South Camp 7004) 1967
	Reflections Of Charlie Brown/ Big Boy Pete	(South Camp 7007) 1967

This snappy quintet formed in 1965 in Muscle Shoals, Alabama. Their self-financed debut on Quin Ivy's Norala label got enough local success for him to sign them to the Atlantic-distributed South Camp label.

Their second single coupled a swingin' popper with a moody R&B ballad. The third and final single is their strongest, featuring an accomplished cover of UK pop-psych band Rupert's People - a stately ballad with atmospheric keyboards, heavily influenced by Procol Harum's Whiter Shade Of Pale. The flip tackles Harris and Terry's evergreen Big Boy Pete (also covered by The Tidal Waves, Paul Revere, The Pirates...) in frat-party style with some cool fuzz.

37 years on, Mickey Buckins still resides in the area and remains in the business as a studio musician, songwriter and producer.

TIM BUCKLEY - Self Titled LP.

The original group minus Benny Goodwin (replaced by Don Srygley, Jr) reunited at the Muscle Shoals Bands Of The '60s Reunion concert in 1992. Their renditions of Mustang Sally and Silly Girl are captured on the Muscle Shoals Bands Of The 60s Reunion (CD) (Alabama Music Hall Of Fame 1993-01), alongside contributions from Terry Woodford and The Mystics, The Del-Rays, The Weejuns, Mark V with Dan Penn, Hollis Dixon and The Keynotes, Bobby Denton and Travis Wammack. Buckley was born in Washington D.C. on the 14th February 1947. He spent much of his early childhood in Amsterdam and New York, before his parents took him to southern California, aged 10, and eventually settled in Anaheim.

During his mid-teens, he performed in various country bands and played folk music around Los Angeles. However, his musical taste soon grew to take in jazz and rock'n'roll, which were both to be significant for his later work. He also developed an act with poet Larry Becket (who wrote many of the lyrics for future Buckley songs) and bassist, Jim Fielder, who later played with Buffalo Springfield, The Mothers and Blood, Sweat and Tears. During this period, he was introduced to Herb Cohen, who became his manager and arranged a recording deal with Elektra for him. Holzman was apparently bowled over by his latest acquisition.

How far Buckley's music was influenced by the West Coast's acid-rock movement is difficult to gauge. Many of his songs sound drug-induced and, of course, he sadly died on 29th June 1975 from a heroin/morphine overdose.

His debut album contained all originals, five written by Buckley himself and the remainder-including arguably the best material Song Slowly Song, I Can't See You and Valentine Melody - by Buckley and Becket. The material was folk-based, often with a melancholic tinge that Buckley was to develop further on later recordings. Van Dyke Parks played keyboards on this album too.

The release of Goodbye and Hello coincided with the zenith of the Haight-Ashbury peace and love movement. The title track was supposed to convey the idea of saying goodbye to bad things and hello to good things. Another fine album, aside from the superb title track, it contained an anti-war song Man Can Find The War, beautiful numbers like Carnival Song and Phantasmagora In Two, Hallucinations and Morning Glory, which became one of his best known songs. Jerry Yester is credited as Recording Director on the album and Jac Holzman as Production Supervisor. It peaked at No. 171 in the U.S. Album Charts.

Commercially, Buckley was now at the peak of his career and most of 1968 was spent touring. Happy Sad was released in early 1969. Around the same time he made a brief visit to England playing with The Incredible String Band at The Queen Elizabeth Hall. Happy Sad, which was produced by Jerry Yester and Zal Yanovsky (of Lovin Spoonful fame), was a progression on his earlier recordings. Buzzin' Fly is a classic number.

Strange Feelin' and Love From Room 109 were both beautifully mellow. Unfortunately, much of side two is taken up by Gypsy Woman - a rather tedious song. In commercial terms this was to be his most successful album. It climbed to No. 81 in the U.S. charts.

Blue Afternoon, which Buckley produced himself, was much less commercial, and even more melancholic than his earlier work but this should not deter readers of this book. In terms of popularity stakes though, his eagerness to explore different musical forms left his audience behind. Among the best tracks on this are So Lonely, Cafe, a sensitive love song, Blue Melody and The River. It did climb to No. 192 in the U.S. Album Charts.

Lorca was recorded at the same time as Blue Afternoon, and produced by his manager, Herb Cohen. It's a strange, melancholic jazz-influenced album on which the title track (named after the name of famous Spanish poet Frederico Garsia Lorca) and I Had To Talk With My Woman were outstanding.

Starsailor was an even stranger avant-garde album. These five albums are strongly recommended. However, having lost his audience through his eagerness to experiment Buckley became something of a recluse, spending much time with his family and doing some acting - he appeared in productions of 'Zoo Story' and 'No Exit'.

The work he did after his lay-off was more commercial, less interesting and certainly less relevant to this book, and he was definitely on a downward trend at the time of his death. However, Buckley's talent cannot be denied, nor that he was a significant influence on the California rock scene in the late sixties. His voice was tremendous, many of his songs were beautiful and his albums sound better with time on account of their depth.

Buckley sadly died of a heroin overdose on 29th June 1975. Although he had earlier experienced both drink and drug problems, he was completely off both at the time of his death. Some sources reported that Buckley thought he was taking cocaine, not heroin, until it was too late. The man who owned the house where he died was convicted of involuntary manslaughter. His lay off from drugs would also have reduced his tolerance. At the time of his death Buckley was in debt - his sole possessions were a guitar and an amplifier!

TIM BUCKLEY - Lorca LP.

There are two Buckley bootlegs around - Happy Mad and Live At Starwood, which are reputedly of excellent quality and an insight into what he was like live. He also recorded a live album which was never issued. Among his more accessible recordings are Best Of Tim Buckley (Rhino RNLP 11 2) and The Late Great Tim Buckley - An Anthology (WEA 250770-1) 1984.

The 2-LP set, Dream Letters - Live In London 1968 captures a two-hour live concert recorded in London's Queen Elizabeth Hall on 10 July 1968. Buckley is accompanied by Lee Underwood, David Friedman and Pentangle's bass player Danny Thompson, in a set that included several previously unreleased songs being performed for the first time. Honeyman: Recorded Live 1973 is a CD taken from a radio show broadcast in November 1973, after the release of the poorly-received Sefronia album, but which shows him to be in good form. Live At Ultrasonic Studios is a nine-track CD recorded Live At Ultrasonic Studios, Long Island, New York on November 27th, 1973. Once I Was compiles material from his two BBC sessions - John Peel in 1968 and the 'Old Grey Whistle Test' in 1974. There's also an additional live cut I Don't Need It To Rain, recorded in Copenhagen in December 1968. The material from the 1968 BBC session is particularly good.

There's a CD called Return Of Star Sailor comprising live performances from 1967 and 1975, which should interest collectors. The Copenhagen Tapes contains material from a 1968 European concert. Three of the four songs featured are from his Happy/Sad album; the other the 21-minute I Don't Need It To Rain was previously available on Live At The Troubadour 1969. Morning Glory: The Tim Buckley Anthology is a well compiled, exhaustive selection of his material and includes one rarity - a stripped down version of Song To The Siren, recorded for the Monkees TV show, complete with an introduction from Mickey Dolenz. I'd also recommend this in preference to the more recent single set, The Best Of Tim Buckley. The Dream Belongs To Me - Rare And Unreleased Recordings 1968/1973 offers more live material.

Live At The Folklore Centre, New York City: March 6, 1967 features material from his debut album, previews songs from the forthcoming Goodbye and Hello and also features six songs that feaure just Buckley and his guitar and have never appeared on any album.

His son Jeff Buckley followed in his footsteps, releasing a number of recordings in the troubadour style, starting in 1994. He also followed his dad to an early drug-related death!

Compilation appearances have included: Song Slowly Song on Kings Of Pop Music Vol. 2 (LP); Hallucinations on Psychedelic Perceptions (CD); Aren't You The Girl, Strange Street Affair Under Blue, I Can't See You, No Man Can Find The War, Pleasant Street, Dream Letter and Morning Glory on Elektrock The Sixties (4-LP); I Never Asked To Be Your Mountain on A Monstrous Psychedelic Bubble (2-CD); a live version of Driftin' on Microdelia (CD); and the previously unreleased Once Upon A Time from 1967 on Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book). (VJ/EW/VZ/CG)

From the Los Angeles area, Hang It Out To Dry is a great smart-ass Sonny and Cher sounding rocker with sneering attitude and great riff and harmonica.

Alec Palao reports that track was written by Pat McGowen of Pat and The Californians but that the Downey vaults revealed no more info on this duo or their backing musicians.

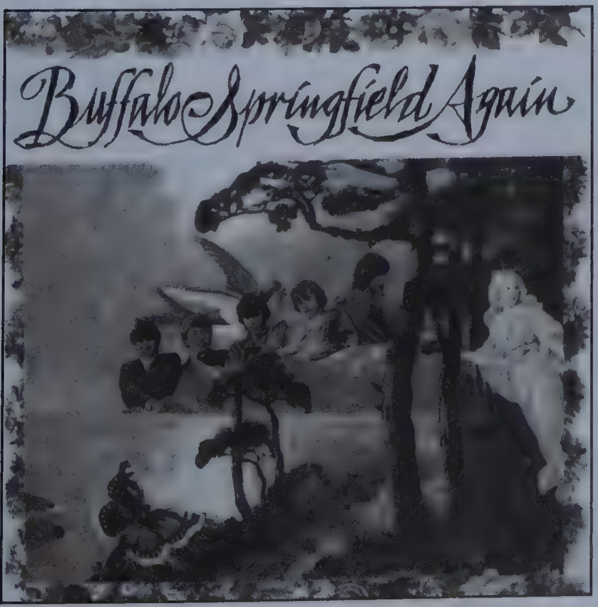
This now legendary band was formed when Stephen Stills headed to Los Angeles from New York to form a new group. Having failed to form a group with Van Dyke Parks and been rejected for The Monkees because of his crooked teeth he persuaded Ritchie Furay, originally from Dayton, Ohio to join him. It was in Dayton that by chance they met Young, a Canadian from Ontario, who had backed the Au Go Go Singers, and recruited him to their ranks too. Dewey Martin (who was born walter Milton Dwayne Midkiff) in Chesterfield, Ontario, Canada in 1941) joined at Young's insistence. He originated from Ontario too and had recorded as Sir Raleigh & The Cupons, been a session drummer in Nashville before prior moving to L.A. where he played for two bluegrass outfits The Dillards and M.F.Q. (Modern Folk Quartet).

Their debut album was stunning, full of original material written by either Stills or Young. When For What Its Worth became a smash hit in 1967 the album was repackaged with the hit single replacing Baby Don't Scold Me. Dealing as it did with the riots on Sunset Strip in 1966 For What It's Worth became something of a hippie anthem. The album included quite a few love longs, whilst Out Of My Mind and Burned previewed Young's fine guitar work. It climbed to No. 80 in the Album Charts.

Upheavals within the band led to their second album Stampede being shelved, although it was later made available as a bootleg. The "official" follow-up Buffalo Springfield Again turned out to be worth waiting for as it contained some of their best work: - Expecting To Fly, Stills' Everydays and the ambitiously orchestrated Broken Arrow. Commercially this fared better than their debut peaking at No. 44 in the U.S. Album Charts.



BUFFALO SPRINGFIELD - Buffalo Springfield Again LP.

BUFFALO SPRINGFIELD - Last Time Around LP.

Their first two albums are recommended but primarily conflict between Stills and Young led to their disintegration in May 1968. Last Time Around was a retrospective and comparatively disappointing release pieced together by Furay and Messina. It had a predominance of soft-rock songs including Furay's The Hour Of Not Quite Rain and Kind Woman and the distinctive group harmonies of the first two albums were largely discarded as individual group members performed their compositions how they wished. Along with their Best Of/Retrospective album it was their most successful commercially, both reaching No. 42 in the Album Charts. Ironically this band who, on account of the strength of their material, vocal harmonies and superb guitar work became a legend, met with little major success at the time. Doug Hastings of The Daily Flash filled in for Young when Young quit the band between July and September 1967.

Young and Stills, of course, later enjoyed solo careers and played together in Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young. Messina and Furay both played in Poco and Palmer had a solo career.

Martin formed New Buffalo Springfield (quickly shortened to New Buffalo) before having a solo career with Dewey Martin's Medicine Ball. In 1971 he went into production, but later became a car mechanic. There was a revived line-up of the band Buffalo Springfield Revisited in the mid-eighties that Martin was involved in and this lasted into the early nineties. Martin died on 31 January 2009, aged 68.

The Beatles' album The Beatles Were Born (Italian bootleg?) features an unreleased alternate take of Buffalo Springield's Bluebird.

Compilation appearances have included:- Broken Arrow on Psychedelic Frequencies (CD); Flying On The Ground Is Wrong on First Vibration (LP); and Go And Say Goodbye on Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book). (VJ/NW/SR)

Paul Buff (of Music Machine, Mad Andy's Twist Combo, Friendly Torpedoes and many more projects) is behind the dials again for this effect-laden harmony-pop-psych ditty backed by a fuzz and phase-washed instrumental. I guess he'd been listening in on Curt Boettcher. The recording was made in L.A.

Subtitled "The Original Liverpool Sound" this album features obligatory covers of She Loves You and I Want To Hold Your Hand. The group goes to lengths to include British locations in the song titles, so Just One Look becomes Soho Mash, and other titles include Mersey Mercy, Liverpool Drag & London Town Swing and are typical of the early beat sound. The weaker cuts include East End and Swingin' Thames.

An English invasion influenced outfit from Marlborough, Massachusetts. They were originally known as Albert DeSalvo and The Bugs and the first single was credited as such. Indeed Strangler In The Night was somewhat notorious as it was about and credited to Albert DeSalvo, the Boston Strangler. The song was actually written by ghost writer James Vaughn, who got drafted three weeks after making the single. The narration for Strangler was done by Dick Leviathan, who was a well-known radio personality from New York City. The Sex Pistols of the sixties?

This extremely rare and previously unreleased 1969/1970 heavy psychedelic album is housed in a superb sleeve and was pressed in a limited edition of 300. It was recorded in the Cavern Sound Studio, Missouri. The opening cut, End Of The Page, has a lovely guitar intro and the other highlight is the lengthy Let's Go To The Sea, which features some great Hendrix' psychedelic guitar work. The remainder of the album comprises harder edged rock cuts, their own interpretation of Stormy Monday and Hooked, which is the best moment on the album vocally. It's worth checking out. The band hailed from the Kansas/Missouri area. (VJ)

Born in New York, Sandy Bull spent the early part of his childhood in Florida with his father before returning to New York to live with his mother, the jazz harpist Daphne Hellman. His mother's eclectic taste exposed him to a wide variety of music that eventually led to him learning the guitar and banjo. After a brief stint at college in Boston, Bull returned to New York and became involved with the Greenwich Village scene. But it was in Paris that he had his first experience of Middle-Eastern music and oud-like instruments. Having learnt to play the oud from Hamza El Din, Bull returned to the United States, signing with the folk-label Vanguard.

A student of Eric Darling (of The Weavers), Sandy first played folk and country music before he developed his ability of incorporating different styles of music together. His earliest recordings were with The Samplers (KAPP/1961) and The Washington Square Singers (Continental/1962).

A multi-instrumental virtuoso, Sandy was into Eastern music and instruments as early as 1963. A near prodigy on guitar and banjo, he became a student of jazz as well as Indian and Arabic music. This eclectic mix resulted in Blend, a 22-minute track taking up one side on his first album, Blend II on his second and Electric Blend on his third.

Ornette Coleman's drummer, Billy Higgins, backed him up on his first two albums and 'Rolling Stone' magazine once described his music as" (a) smack freak's work-outs for acid eaters".

Since Bull played all the instruments on most of his songs, he regularly used overdubbing at a time when studio techniques were largely underdeveloped. Unfortunately a heroin habit interrupted his progress in 1972 and it wasn't until the late eighties that he was able to make a come back.

Afflicted with lung cancer for some years, Sandy Bull eventually succumbed to the disease on 11th April, 2001. (SR/EH/HS/VJ)

This New York City group was formed by Cornish and Danelli after the end of The Rascals. Their music was totally different from their previous group, as they were playing a mix of hard-rock and bluesy pop. Their lead singer was almost a "screamer" (especially on their version of Rockin' Robin) and the two guitarists were efficient. On a completist note, the whole group backed B.J. Thomas on his album Songs from 1973. Clearly a "second division" act, although it may interest some readers. Their first album spent eleven weeks in the Top 200, peaking at No. 176 and they had a couple of hit singles too.

In 1978, Cornish and Danelli would release three better-avoided albums as Fotomaker on Atlantic. During the seventies, John Turk played keyboards behind various blues singers (Taj Mahal, B.B. King, C. Musselwhite). (SR)

Got To Get You Back/State Of Affairs (Pioneer 2148) 1970

Bump was a psychedelic pop band formed in Detroit, Michigan in spring 1969. In late summer 1969, they signed to a local eight-track recording studio Pioneer. Two singles and albums were recorded, but the second album was not released.

Original pressings of the first album, which is an organ-based progressive affair somewhere between The Nice and Van der Graaf Generator, are sought-after by collectors. The opening cut, Sing Into The Wind, is one of the most commercial tracks, with a catchy introduction and great keyboards. State Of Affairs is a gentle organ-based pop song. Daydream Song has dramatic vocals but a weaker song structure. Spider's Eyes has a great organ intro and some fine guitar/organ interplay. The remaining material is less convincing, however, though the 10-minute finale, Lifeline - Decisions - You Can't Even Think, does have its moments. The album got good reviews in 'Billboard' and 'Record World' but due to lack of promotion sales were poor.

Ode To A Toad/Shining (Walrus TMC-001/2) 1969

From Seattle, Washington The Bumps started out as a Wailers-style R&B dance band, but by 1967 they were playing a wide range of music from punk through to folk-rock through to commercial pop. Led by drummer/vocalist Robert Van Den Akker, they were very popular in the Vancouver, B.C. area and their fourth single was produced by Viceroys/Surprise Package organist Mike Rogers.

By their fifth and very elusive final release they'd moved into heavy rock territory: Ode To A Toad has an underground vibe despite some brass passages and Cream-like riffs that drive the hard-rocker Shining.

Please Come Down undoubtedly remains one of their finest moments - a dramatic garage ballad with shimmering fuzztone.

Two of their best punk style offerings have appeared on a handful of compilations including:- Please Come Down on Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 2 (LP), The History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 3 (LP), The History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 3 (CD) and Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 2 (CD); Hey Girl on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 16 (LP); both Hey Girl and Please Come Down on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 2: Knock You Flat (LP & CD); It Wasn't Real, a lightweight pop affair with Latino rhythm and brass, also appears on Bring Flowers To U.S. (LP); and It's All Over Now Baby Blue on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 3: I'm Walkin' Babe (LP & CD). Based in Greenwich Village, New York City Jacob's pedigree had already been established with The Magicians, whose dynamic amalgam of pop and punk was showcased on Nuggets (2-LP) with An Invitation To Cry. Their two scarce albums mix electric rock with blues and fifties harmonies and were recorded with the support of Buzzy Linhart.

Bunky and Jake both attended the School of Visual Arts on West 14th Street, New York and were popular with art students, performing at the Pratt Institute and the School Of Visual Arts. Ann Rochelle "Bunky" Skinner may have come from Philadelphia originally, as she has a black Philly accent.

Their albums combine breezy tunes, sweet harmonies and tasteful fuzz guitar.

Allan Jacobs and Mike Rosa went on to form the underrated Jake And The Family Jewels, while Doug Rauch joined Linhart in Music. Taxicab got a further airing on Soft Sounds..Presents He and She (CD). (SR/MW/PKr)

The Buoys hailed from Forty Fort near Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania. This early seventies group had a controversial hit with Timothy, a song dealing with cannibalism!

Siracuse had been in The Glass Prism, a Wilkes-Barre group who'd made waves locally and released two albums on RCA; Hludzik was from a group called The Odd Power; and Gryziec had been in the Scranton group, Thee Avantis. Kelly and Hludzik would later reappear in 1980 with Dakota, a Boston-Kansas sound-alike, issuing one album on CBS. (SR/MW/MKn)

45:	I'll Get You Back Again/ Nothing Without You	(Argee 100) 1966

A Miami High School band who were originally known as The A-Men. Their sole single, which did not feature drummer Compton, was produced by local enterpreneur R.G. Deeb on his Argee label. Tim Yero's I'll Get You Back Again is an echoey beat-punker with sinuous keyboards, chiming guitar and catchy melody. It has reappeared on Vile Vinyl, Vol. 2 (LP), Vile Vinyl (CD), Time Won't Change My Mind (LP) and Psychedelic States - Florida Vol. 2 (CD).

The latter reveals that Sabella would team up with Alberto DeAlmar (from The Pods) and former members of The Gents Five to form the Leaves Of Grass, who released one single on the Platinum label in 1968. Sabella and DeAlmar later relocated to Gainesville and formed Celebration. (MW/JLh)

This band operated out of the Memphis, Tennessee area and was originally known as The Cruisers. Both Stormy Weather and Just A Little Bit were regional hits in the Memphis/Mid-South area and also got picked up for national release by major labels. However, when Just A Little Bit was taken up by Atlantic (Atco) they, inexplicably switched it to the 'B' side and opted for a rather flat cover You Better Move On for the 'A' side.

Their first five singles are doo-wop/group affairs, and Just A Little Bit is probably the first, which 'fits' within the remit of this book. Especially notable is Laughing Inside, an excellent Merseyish number with harmony vocals and chiming guitars. The flip is also good, sorta mid-tempo, a more "Yank" sounding tune replete with a 'lesliefied' guitar tone (i.e. the guitar was plugged into a Leslie speaker cabinet with a rotating horn, commonly used with Hammond B-3 organs to achieve a churning, tremoloed sound). The Rich-Rose label was named after Charlie Rich & Seymour Rosenberg.

You can also hear Without Me on A Journey To Tyme, Vol. 4 (LP), whilst Stormy Weather has re-emerged on A History Of Garage And Frat Bands In Memphis 2 (CD).

Two members would join Flash & The Board Of Directors. Thomas Boggs later toured with The Box Tops and now owns several restaurants in the Memphis area. Tommy Burk became a college educator. His younger brother Danny also lead Danny Burk and The Invaders. (VJ/MM/MW)

45: One Day Girl/Memories (Cavern 2207) 1967

NB: They also had 7" and 4 song EP acetates on Damon.

Topeka in northwest Kansas was home to this outfit, whose live shows were apparently great - full of Yardbirds, Who and Stones covers. Judging by two of the surviving tracks the EP acetate was a medley of powerful fuzz-filled covers as evidenced by Stroll On and I'll Feel A Whole Lot Better.

Their Cavern single was produced by Bluethings's guitarist Michael Chapman.

They also recorded four tracks for Audio House: Black Hearted Woman, If I Were Free, Listen Closely and Mr. Destiny.

Compilation appearances have so far included: One Day Girl on Monsters Of The Midwest, Vol. 1 (cassette), Fuzz, Flaykes, And Shakes, Vol. 5 (LP & CD) and Love Is A Sad Song, Vol. 1 (LP); Memories on Fuzz, Flaykes, And Shakes, Vol. 3 (LP & CD); I'll Feel A Whole Lot Better on Monsters Of The Midwest, Vol. III (LP); and Stroll On on Monsters Of The Midwest, Vol. II (LP) and Wyld Sydes Volume 2 (CD). Formed in 1963 when The Tide merged with The Squires, this popular Melbourne, Florida quintet toured the Southeast and made TV appearances in southern Florida. World is a simmering harmonious punker with dual fuzz attacks. The flip, Back Up is equally excellent, with more searing fuzz and a brain-warping break, building to a great climax.

Steve Turner went on to play in Dolly Parton's band.

Here's another example of the ESP group of folk singers. Burns was born in Connecticut in 1948 and ran away from home at the age of 17. He eventually ended up in New York City at the tail end of the folk boom of the early sixties, sleeping in Washington Square Park and making a living from busking. In early 1966, at the age of 18, he landed a regular gig as the permanent opening act at the legendary Gaslight Club on MacDougal Street in Greenwich Village. He was soon asked by ESP-Disk founder and president Bernard Stollman to record for his label.

His debut Of Love And War was a pleasant but fairly unremarkable introspective moody folk album that highlighted Burns' smooth voice accompanied only by his acoustic guitar and Emey Fletcher's occasional 12-string accents. The track list comprised just three originals alongside folk standards with a haunting version of Irene Paul's Mr. War the magnum opus. The other covers contained songs by Eric Andersen, David Blue and Tom Ghent.

After the summer of love, Burns returned home to New Haven, briefly and spent time with a local psychedelic group The Morning. When he returned to Greenwich Village he was inspired by psychedelia and formed The Sky Dog Band (with Matt Kastner (piano, organ), John O'Leary (trap kit and hand percussion) and Bruce Samuels (bs, flute). The Sky Dog Band gigged around Greenwich Village and New York in the winter of 1967-1968 and recorded Burns' second ESP-Disk album, Evening Of The Magician in spring 1969. This contained 10 originals and fused acid-folk with a little rock - the result was a big improvement on his debut effort. He also recorded Song For An Uncertain Lady with The Sky Dog Band. This effort was less psychedelic but introduced a country-rock tinge to several tracks.

In the early seventies he switched to Mercury for whom he recorded another good country-rock album Randy Burns and The Sky Dog Band. However, they dropped him when the sales were poor. He switched to Polydor for two further albums; I'm A Lover, Not A Fool and Still On Our Feet, before Polydor dropped him too.

Burns continued to gig in the seventies and eighties, appearing at folk festivals and coffeehouses and, in 1991, he and Kastner recorded a cassette, The Cat's Pajamas, which Burns put out on his own Picket Fence label and sold at gigs. He still gigged in the nineties and wrote an autobiography too.

The band manages to create both pop and hard-rock music with equal success, although the darker material suffers by the conspicuous absence of fuzztone. Had Lizard incorporated a Big Muff in his hardware pile, this album would be in the R5 category! Finest Thing In Life has a distinctly Beatlesque feel to it.

This garage band operated in San Bernardino, California between 1965 and 1966. Their first single was a catchy stab at the R&B standard, Got Love If You Want It, whilst the flip Feeling Sad And Lonely includes some nice mouth harp and some effective echoed vocals and instrumentation in places.

Their second single was produced by Kim Fowley and Don't You Fret was a cover of the Kinks song.

It's worth listening to the vinyl and CD compilations of their material that are drawn from the lead singer's Steve Hoard's personal archive of master tapes and acetates.

Greg Eckler went on to play for Light, and eighties surf-instrumental band Jon & The Nightriders.

The flip is a Byrds-style folk-rocker with lots of 12-string guitar. They were from Santa Clara, California. Baby is the Mort Schuman, Clive Westlake song also covered by the Sorrows and by Tracy Rogers (with Fleur De Lys) in the UK, The Powers in Denmark, and Frantic on their Conception album. What I Have I'll Give To You was written by Bill Lincoln, presumably he of The Word and Euphoria. (MW/VJ)

Although no singles were released during their tenure in the sixties, these Bushmen have had two unreleased covers unearthed by Sundazed. Notes from Jud Cost and recollections by Joe Lo Freso set the scene...

This particular tribe of Bushmen had formed as a quartet in the early sixties in Fresno, California; in 1962 they were augmented by 12-year-old keyboardist Lo Freso. In 1964 they won the KMAK 'Battle Of The Bands' with their rendition of Gloria. Their prize was to be the official band of sponsor 7-Up for a year, playing fairs and shopping centres etc.. Part of the deal was that they were renamed the 7-Up Action Boys. All went fine until they asked to play as The Bushmen at the newly opened Rainbow Ballroom in Fresno; 7-Up vetoed this, so the band quit the sponsorship.

Nothing is revealed about what happened subsequently or how this pair of Stones-influenced punkers came to be recorded but not released in 1965.

INCENSE HERBS OILS
the PAUL BUTTERFIELD BLUES band

PAUL BUTTERFIELD BLUES BAND - East/West LP.

Paul Butterfield was born on 17th December 1942 in Chicago where he later formed his racially integrated R&B band in 1964. The original line-up included Jerome Arnold and Sam Lay who had previously comprised the rhythm section of a band fronted by Howlin' Wolf, but shortly afterwards Butterfield's former University of Chicago classmate Elvin Bishop joined and they signed to Elektra. Mike Bloomfield was brought in on slide guitar and Mark Naftalin joined on keyboards during the recording of their first album. One of their early live gigs was at the July 1965 Newport Folk Festival but it did not go down well with the folk purists among the audience. However, they impressed Bob Dylan who invited them to back him later that day in what was his very first non-acoustic set.

The band travelled to New York in January 1966 to record their self-titled debut album which comprised a hard-hitting battery of electric blues numbers. It made No. 123 in the Billboard album charts. In June the same year they contributed five tracks to What's Shakin' (LP), an Elektra various artists compilation which also featured The Lovin' Spoonful, Eric Clapton, Tom Rush and Al Kooper. East/West followed in December 1966. The title track, which was over 13 minutes long, included many Eastern instrumental influences. The album peaked at No. 65 in the Billboard charts. Mike Bloomfield departed shortly after its release to form Electric Flag.

1967 was a quiet year for the band but Butterfield did cut an EP with John Mayall that was released in the U.K. by Decca. When Butterfield returned with Resurrection Of Pigboy Crabshaw in February 1968 (Pigboy Crabshaw was Bishop's nickname) it was with a fresh rhythm section and a three-piece horn section. Climbing to No. 52 in the Billboard charts this was to be Butterfield's most successful album. Although it followed the usual blues format, it had a distinct soul influence. Compositions included Booker T's Born Under A Bad Sign which Albert King had made famous, and One More Heartache, a Smokey Robinson song which had been a hit for Marvin Gaye. However, many of Butterfield's fans and some critics yearned for high-powered, white electric blues and regretted the band's latest soulful direction.

When In My Own Dream emerged later in 1968 it was also slated in some sections of the music press. The line-up was basically the same as for the previous album, although producer John Court joined forces with Bugsy Maugh, Charles Dinwiddie and Phil Wilson to provide vocal harmonies as The Icebag Four and Al Kooper guested on organ on a couple of tracks (Drunk Again and Just To Be With You). The album was musically diverse ranging from bar-room blues, to folk blues and electric music, and was criticised as being too fragmented. However, if much of it was uneven, the title track was distinctly innovative with the Icebag Four's backing vocals lending a gospel feel to the song. It reached No. 79 in the U.S. album charts.

Elvin Bishop left in 1968 to form his own band and was replaced by Buzzy Feiten for Keep On Moving, a heavy album with lots of brass, which could only reach No. 102 in the U.S. album charts. The band appeared at the Woodstock festival in 1969 and one of their songs, Love March was included on the original Woodstock album.

PAUL BUTTERFIELD BLUES BAND

PAUL BUTTERFIELD BLUES BAND - In My Own Dream LP.

Live was recorded with a new line-up live at L.A.'s Troubadour club in 1970, and produced by Todd Rundgren. This saw some upturn in their fortunes (albeit temporary) reaching No. 72. It contained a selection of material from their three previous albums, Everything's Going To Be Alright (also featured on the Woodstock 2 album) and three tracks which do not appear on other Butterfield albums:- The Boxer, Number 9 and Get Together Again.

By now Butterfield was tired of touring and he broke up the band in 1971 after a final studio album Sometimes I Feel Like Smilin', which could only manage the No. 124 spot in the Album Charts. Golden Butter, a 2-LP retrospective compilation, peaked at No. 136 the following year. 1972 also saw the release of An Offer You Can't Refuse which featured his earliest recordings back in 1963 with Smokey Smothers' band in Chicago, by specialist U.K. blues label Red Lightnin'. They account for one side of the album. The other side features Walter Horton, backed by musicians like Buddy Guy. This album was reissued again in 1982. More recent still is the Edsel 1985 release which is an accessible guide to the music of the Butterfield Blues Band. 1995 also saw the release on CD of The Original Lost Elektra Sessions (Rhino RZ 73505), which compiled material from an abandoned 1965 first album, which is largely dominated by powerful blues covers. It contains 19 tracks in all.

Bugsy Maugh later recorded two interesting albums for Dot. Paul Butterfield, an alcoholic, was found dead in his apartment in 1987, aged just 44.

If you're into high powered white electric blues these guys are essential for you, but if you're after garage-punkers or into demented psychedelia give them a miss.

Compilation appearances have included Morning Blues on Kings Of Pop Music Vol. 1 (LP); Born In Chicago on Kings Of Pop Music, Vol. 2 (LP); East-West on Elektrock The Sixties (4-LP) and I Got My Mojo Working on Follow The Music (CD in the Elektra book). (VJ/SR)

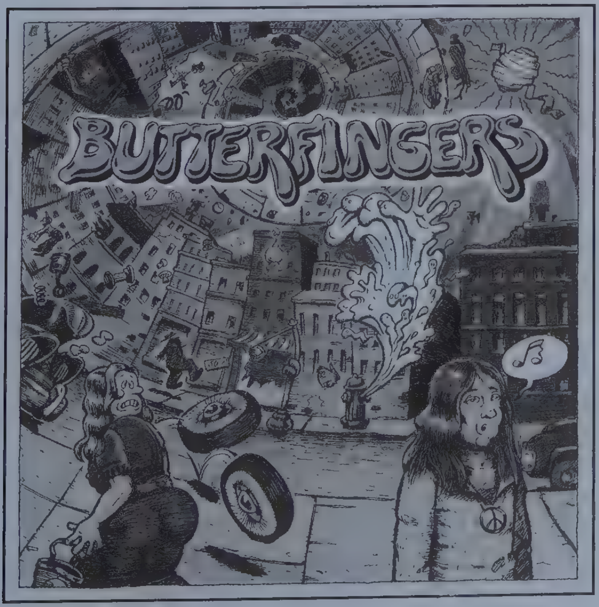
Butterfingers (?TX)

ALBUM: 1 BUTTERFINGERS (POT Records SLP-457) 197? R5

NB: (1) issued in a plain white sleeve circa 1970. (1) reissued on vinyl (Little Indians 6) 1998 and on CD (Shadoks Music 004) 1999, in a newly designed cartoon sleeve.

Here's another mystery group with a hideously rare private press to their credit. Butterfingers are thought to have come from Texas, as their album is rarely sighted far from the Houston area.

Musically, this band will have wide appeal amongst readers of this book - wild psychedelic guitar on every cut, that druggy underground vibe that was so prevalent in the 'States during this era but seldom was captured on vinyl (and was never allowed on radio). The lead vocalist has an obnoxious "soulish" vocal technique that irritates, however and overall the band come across as one-dimensional.



BUTTERFINGERS - Self Titled LP.

Several collectors are quite certain that Butterfingers were a black group, but they sound simply hillbilly to me. Adding Texas to the equation makes the latter interpretation more likely, although still speculative.

Despite what may appear as a lukewarm review, many collectors rate this album highly, and the reissue is certainly recommended. (CF)

45: I Cannot Turn Around/Aftermath (Maudz 45-002) 1968

I Cannot Turn Around is a pleasant pop ditty with tuneful keyboards and some fuzz buried low - promising. Aftermath is a melodic mid-tempo ballad about fighting abroad, punctuated by some searing bursts of fuzz, which can now be heard on Get Ready To Fly (CD).

Butter Rebellion may have come from Florida, although an act by this name played at the 'Butte Central Prom' in Butte, Montana in 1968. This act that is thought to have come from Boise, Idaho had a good live reputation and included a good cover of My Girl in their set.

The Maudz label was one of many run by Norman Petty. Both tracks are published by his Dundee Music publishing house and it is almost certain that the tracks were recorded at his legendary Clovis, New Mexico studio, to which countless garage bands from all over the US made pilgrimages in the sixties. I Can Make You Happy (RCI 47-8000) 1972

From Chicago, Buzzsaw was a short-lived acid-rock trio that was formed in 1970. Eddie and Gary Weiss had earlier been in the reknowned The Lemon Drops, and Watermelon, and in fact Buzzsaw are best known for a version of The Lemon Drops' classic I Live In The Springtime. The liner notes to Collectables Chicago Garage Band Greats - The Best Of Rembrandt Records 1966-1968 (LP) reveal that this was in fact the same recording as the earlier The Lemon Drops, but in a previously unreleased stereo mix.

Collectables CD anthology From Lemon Drops To Acid Rock! also compiles recordings from 1969 which fans of The Lemon Drops will enjoy.

Compilation coverage has so far included: I Live In The Springtime on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 4 and Pebbles, Vol. 6: Chicago 1 (CD); Walking Through A Rainbow, I Can Make You Happy, Nowhere To Go and Roll On, Angeline on Chicago Garage Band Greats - The Best Of Rembrandt Records 1966-1968 (CD); and Saturn Is Just A Few Days Away and Death Calls on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 6. (VJ/MW/LP)

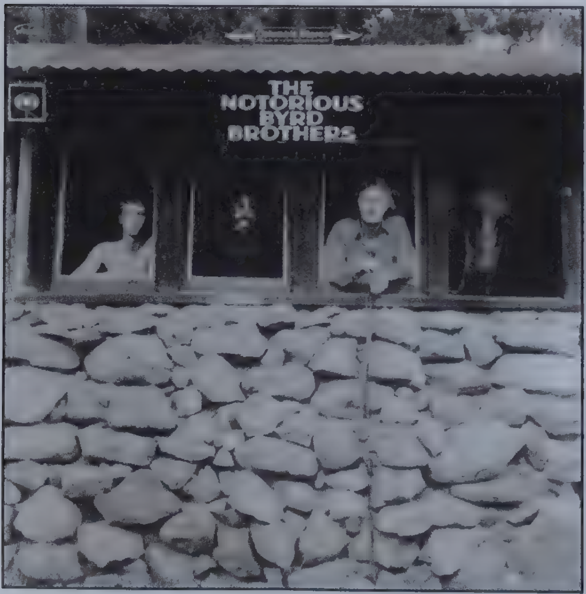
NB: There are also four French EPs and three singles, all with PS. One of these Mr Tambourine Man has been reissued on an EP CD (Magic Records FEP 341) as a limited edition in a card picture sleeve. The 7" Lazy Days/Reputations (Sundazed S 189) 2007 gives a release to two tracks recorded during the early Sweetheart Of The Rodeo sessions in March 1968 in Nashville in their unique mono mixes. Lazy Days is a previously unheard instrumental track (with Roger McGuinn on six-string electric) that had originally been intended for potential single release on Columbia. Reputation is a previously unheard vocal track by Gram Parsons and Chris Hillman. There's also a collection, The Original Singles 1965-67, Vol 1 (Columbia FC-37335) 1981 contains original mono single versions of all singles, including All I Really Want To Do, which is unavailable elsewhere and She Don't Care About Time, and Why, available only in stereo versions on The Byrds Boxed Set.

The Byrds spearheaded the Los Angeles folk-rock movement. Every member of the band had been involved in music from a fairly early age. Leader, James McGuinn (he changed his name to Roger in 1968) was born in Chicago, where he had backed Bobby Darin and the Limelighters among others. Guitarist Gene Clark, from Missouri, had supported The New Christy Minstrels for a while and Dave Crosby, the only member who originated from L.A., had played in Les Baxters Balladeers, a group of similar ilk. Chris Hillman had been playing folk music around local coffee bars, before becoming attracted to bluegrass music, first with Scottsville Squirrel Barkers and later with The Hillmen, a group who synthesized folk and bluegrass.

In the summer of 1964, McGuinn, Crosby and Clark began rehearsing in L.A. as a trio called The Jet Set. There they met Jim Dickson who had just produced an album for The Hillmen. When it became clear that neither The Jet Set nor The Hillmen were going to make it independently, Dickson persuaded Hillman to join the band, and drummer Mike Clarke, a friend of Crosby's, was added to complete the five man line-up. Their main influences in this period were The Beatles and Dylan and in 1964 Dickson got the group a one-record-and-option deal with Elektra. They changed their name to The Beefeaters and released Please Let Me Love You - a Beatles-influenced record which flopped.



THE BYRDS - Notorious Byrd Brothers LP.

Changing their name to The Byrds, they negotiated a deal with Columbia and released Dylan's Mr Tambourine Man as a single. In fact, of the group, only McGuinn played on the record - the remaining instrumentation was provided by Hal Blaine, Leon Russell and Larry Knetchel. The record soared to the top of the U.S. charts and also reached No. 1 in the U.K. It also marked the emergence of folk-rock as a potent musical force. Their follow-up single All I Really Want To Do was beaten to the top of the U.S. charts by Sonny & Cher's cover version. It reached No. 4 in Britain. Their first two albums contained some fine folk-rock compositions, too, with the title track of the second album Turn! Turn! Turn! returning the group to the top of the U.S. charts and reaching No. 26 in the U.K. Arguably, their music lacked excitement, although its harmonies were close to perfection.

Their next single was a flop, but follow-up, Eight Miles High in the spring of 1966 was arguably one of the earliest psychedelic recordings. It reached No. 5 in the U.K. in May 1966, and was a bigger hit in the US.

Gene Clark quit the group at this stage and The Byrds began to tire of the folk-rock formula which hitherto had been responsible for their success. Their next album Fifth Dimension experimented with electronics. This was their first album without any Dylan songs and included numbers like the title track and Mr. Spaceman, which inaugurated the group's space-rock phase. However, a gap was emerging between the group and their audience. This was evidenced in the failure of Fifth Dimension as a single and explains why the group henceforth struggled to achieve further chart success.

Their next album Younger Than Yesterday developed the experimentation of their previous album. It contained McGuinn's CTA 102, a strange spacey number, Hillman's Have You Seen Her Face?, Thoughts and Words and Time Between and two Crosby classics Renaissance Fair and Everybody's Been Burned. Perhaps the stand-out track, however, was the McGuinn-Hillman composition So You Want To Be A Rock and Roll Star? Unfortunately, the album failed to achieve the recognition it deserved as it was overshadowed by The Beatles' Sergeant Pepper album, released around the same time.

1967 also saw the release of Greatest Hits which included early classics like Mr. Tambourine Man, Eight Miles High, So You Want To Be a Rock and Roll Star, My Back Pages and many others.

Despite their change of direction, Crosby was becoming increasingly dissatisfied with the group. So much so around this time he openly gigged with The Buffalo Springfield when they opened The Byrds show. He wanted to record more political songs, and was also upset by The Byrds' refusal to perform one of his compositions, Triad (later recorded by Jefferson Airplane and CSN&Y). He finally left mid-way through the recordings of their pop-orientated songs like Goin' Back and Wasn't Born To Follow. However, both were gems and arguably two of the strongest in the group's repertoire. The latter was featured in the soundtrack to the film 'Easy Rider', winning the group wider acclaim. They were now beginning to develop a cult following, and attracting attention among the influential San Francisco audiences, who had previously tended to ignore them.

The arrival of Gram Parsons at this stage influenced the group's direction. Originating in Florida, he had run away from his adoptive home to Greenwich Village. Here, at the tender age of 16, he was singing protest songs. Two years later he had formed The International Submarine Band who released two obscure singles in New York before moving to Los Angeles to record what is generally regarded as the earliest country-rock album Safe At Home, now a collectors' item. Although he only played with the group for a short time, Parsons had an enormous influence on The Byrds' music. Their next album, Sweetheart Of The Rodeo, which also featured Kevin Kelley who replaced Mike Clarke, inaugurated their country-rock phase. It was recorded in Nashville, Tennessee. Once again The Byrds had opened an enormous gulf between themselves and their audience, who were still acclimatising themselves to the musical direction of the band's previous three albums. Retrospectively, however, the album would win acclaim as a notable early country-rock work.

But the group was now disintegrating. Parsons left, refusing to do a tour of South Africa, and then on the band's return, when McGuinn wanted the band to move away from country-rock, Hillman left to join Parsons and form The Flying Burrito Brothers. McGuinn had to form a new band with Gene Pasons (drms), Clarence White (gtr), and John York (bs). Their first album Dr. Byrds and Mr. Hyde was weak and still dependent on the country influence. But the follow-up The Ballad Of An Easy Rider was an improvement. At this time they benefited from the inclusion of some of their songs in the film 'Easy Rider'.

Before the release of double-album Untitled, Skip Battin (previously with Skip and Flip) replaced John York on bass. The band was acquiring a good reputation as a 'live' attraction, and one of the two albums was a 'live' recording. The stand-out song on the album was Chestnut Mare which returned the group to the U.S. singles charts and reached No. 19 in the U.K. Also of note was the bleaker Just A Season.

Sadly, they failed to capitalise on the temporary upturn provided by Untitled. They reached their lowest ebb on the subsequent two albums and McGuinn disbanded the group. One year later he reformed the original Byrds who in 1973 made a disasterous album, The Byrds. It really was the end of the road for the band, althouh McGuinn went on to produce a number of solo albums which still displayed that distinctive Byrds sound.

There's also a CD compilation Gene Clark In The Byrds 1964-1973 which traces and includes his compositions and vocals during this period. The 22-track collection is digitally remastered and includes classics like I'll Feel A Whole Lot Better, She Don't Care About Time and the psychedelic Eight Miles High. Live At The Royal Albert Hall 1971 (CD) is a 19-track set compiled from a tape discovered in Roger McGuinn's garage. The 19-track compilation captures them in great form with tight harmonies and razor sharp guitar.

Recorded on a Lake Elsimore, California label, the above single was their sole stab for stardom. Music was a Herman's Hermits styled pop song, the flip, a good amalgam between sixties punk and R&B.

Byron went on to The Generations who had one single Set Me Free/Please Help Me (Generation Records). This 7" is basically a Face To Face era Kinks rip-off, but Set Me Free is not The Kinks song. He also played with Muscle & Hair and recorded a country album, Byron Keith Daugherty (Fantasy Records) in 1974. A couple of 'Byron Dougherty' compositions - Vahalla and Love Is Blue also appear on Dancing Madly Backwards by Axcraft, which was 'reissued' recently on vinyl and CD.

A horn-pop quintet previously known as The Five Bucks (originally Five Bucs), formed by students at the University Of Michigan in Ann Arbor in 1965.

They changed their name when they were signed up by Bill Traut at Dunwich, who wanted an Association-like harmony group. Gigs around Ann Arbor during school term alternated with trips to Chicago to play the teen clubs during the holidays. Even Dunwich's golden touch couldn't get them a hit after three attempts and they folded when they graduated.

The forum for these Romans was Buffalo, New York; reportedly they would evolve into Big Wheelie and The Hubcaps. Their debut is decent garage-beat with cool keyboards. Green Grass Makes It Better has a frat/party atmosphere; Why Make A Fool Of Me is a more interesting beat-punker. Both were composed by Vicario & Hesse, as was Black Lantern. Perhaps this was one of the Hesse brothers, Jim & Joseph, of another Buffalo outfit, The Road? The label states that Black Lantern was from 'The Atomic Grandmother', an obscure film which starred Maureen Stapleton.

The band later evolved into Caeser and The Romans. Their version of The Supremes' Baby Love is full of fuzz guitar.

You can also check out Green Grass Makes It Better on Psychedelic States: New York Vol. 2 (CD) and Black Lantern has resurfaced on Grains Of Time (CD). (MW/SR/VJ)

CAIN - A Pound Of Flesh LP.

Jeffrey Cain was a close friend of The Youngbloods, providing songs for their albums and also for Jerry Corbitt's debut. Not surprisingly Cain's two albums were released on The Youngbloods' Raccoon label. The first, For You, with its Rick Griffin lettering, is in fact an extra Youngbloods album, as the whole group are featured backing Cain. Rick Turner (ex-Autosalvage) produced this fine example of West Coast psych-folk which also contains some spoken poems.

His second album, which was produced by Jesse Colin Young, is equally interesting but more electric. Eddy Ottenstein shows his skills on several fast numbers like Whispering Thunder, Bless My Soul or When I'm Thirsty.

Both albums are recommended but are getting hard to find. They were recorded whilst The Youngbloods were in California. (SR)

45s: Flight Reaction/
I'm A Living Sickness (Dove Acetate no #) 196?
Flight Reaction/Beep (Tuttle 1107) 1967

Hailing from the suburbs of Minneapolis, The Calico Wall produced a single entitled Flight Reaction which attempted to recreate the thoughts of someone sitting in an airplane before take-off and, fearing that the plane will crash, experiencing an attack of paranoia. An acid-punk classic, that is now available to all on several compilations, it is well worth checking out.

Their original recordings are red-hot and now practically impossible to find - however be warned that Beep is just that - a continuous tone... A reissue single exists, coupling Flight Reaction with the equally brilliant I'm A Living Sickness: fuzz laden, with great sound effects and tonsil tearing vocals. This is also becoming rare and sought-after Flight Reaction additionally appears on Money Music (LP), a rare 1967 compilation of Minneapolis bands.

Retrospective compilation appearances include:- Flight Reaction on Changes (LP), Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 2 (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 3 - The Acid Gallery (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 3 (CD), Pebbles, Vol. 2 (ESD) (CD) and Pebbles Box (5-LP); I'm A Living Sickness on Best of Pebbles, Vol. 1 (LP & CD), Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 1 (2 x 7"), Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol's 1 & 2 (LP), Songs We Taught The Fuzztones (2-LP & 2-CD), Acid Dreams Testament (CD), Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP) and Psychedelic Archives Vol. 7 (double cassette box); Flight Reaction and I'm A Living Sickness also appear on Trash Box (5-CD), whilst Free Flight (Unreleased Dove Recording Studio Cuts 1964-'69) (2-LP & CD) includes an instrumental version of Flight Reaction along with I'm A Living Sickness plus two previously unreleased cuts Look Over Yonder's Wall and Lotta Lovin'; and Beep (Excerpt) on Everything You Always Wanted To Know... (CD).

I'm A Living Sickness was later covered by Green Telescope and The Fuzztones. (VJ)

45: Walkin' The Dog/Live For The Day (Epic 5-10927) 1972

The first solo album by the guitarist of Spirit should interest fans of rock trios like Jimi Hendrix. Recorded with three different rhythm sections, one including Noel Redding (who was then recording the Road's album in the same studio), it includes two covers of the Beatles (Rain and Day Tripper), one of Paul Simon (Mother And Child Reunion) and three songs written by California, Evil, Downer and Rainbow.

California (real name: Randy Wolfe) used a lot of pyrotechnic effects on his guitars and the result, quite loud, can be compared to the albums of Velvert Turner or Peter Kaukonen. It is rumoured than a Kapt. Kopter, Volume II album was recorded but then shelved when California reformed Spirit. He would later record several other solo albums, which are rarely as interesting as his first effort.

	Stay/I Told You	(J.R. & J. 102) 1969
	Glass Disguise/Nausea Beast	(Crazy Horse 1318) 1969

The Californians were formed in 1968 by some former members of the Anaheim-based surf outfit The Avengers VI, who'd released the Real Cool Hits and Mrs Faruki's Suzuki albums in 1966 on the Mark 56 label.

Prior to the Nausea Beast single, they put out a couple on their own J R & J label in 1969, which were limited pressings used to demo their sound to various record companies before Brian Ross took them on. They also recorded material for an album that was never released, utilising the "big band" sound they believed would soon be back in vogue after the trend for power trios had subsided. Despite their obvious talents and a further name change to the Good Guys (another single on Magnum West Records in 1974) nothing happened for them and they split up shortly after. (GN/MW)

NB: (2) also reissued on Quadraphonic (Alshire Audio-Spectrum AS-9) 1972.

This outfit was basically a studio project for Al Sherman's Alshire label, with Gary Paxton providing the musical side of the venture.

Al Sherman was the label boss of the Alshire International label, which followed a simple philosophy, if you see a successful musical trend follow it. It didn't matter if it was rock, muzak or country as long as it sounded like the real thing without any copyright infringements. Studio groups were assembled to produce copycat albums with group projects like the Zero-Zero-Seven Band (after the John Barry Seven), The Village Men (after the folk group, the Village Stompers), Fats and the Chessmen (Fats Domino), Rusty Dean {Top #10 country hits}, Los Norte Americanos (The Tijuana Brass), The California Poppy-Pickers (The Mamas & The Papas meets country-rock), The Sons of the Purple Sage (The Sons of the Pioneers), The Bakersfield Five (Buck Owens Buckaroos) and so on.

The other main force behind the record deal was Gary Paxton, who had a 1960 hit with The Monster Mash as the Hollywood Argyles' and worked the Hollywood music scene as an engineer, producer, session musician, writer and music publisher with his Garpax and Maverick Music companies. He was heavily involved in the surf and hot-rod crazes, joining other L.A. session players as 'members' of various groups. Paxton had previously worked with Skip Battin in the Pledges {1956-1957}, Gary and Clyde {1957}, formed his own group {1957-1958} and produced the duo Skip & Flip, most notably for their 1959 million hit version of Gary's It Was I.

When Gary started his own Hollywood studio in 1965 his early session players included Gib Guilbeau, Gene Parsons, Clarence White, Carl Walden (steel gtr, vcls, gtr) Jerry Scheff (bs), Bruce Oakes (gtr, vcls), Vern Gosdin and Rex Gosdin.

In 1967, Gary relocated his studio one hundred miles away to Bakersfield and built a session crew that comprised Gib Guilbeau (vcls, gtr, fiddle}, Gene Parsons (vcls, drms, hrmnca), Clarence White (dobro, ld gtr), Ben Benay (gtr, vcls), Vern Gosdin (gtr, vcls), Rex Gosdin (gtr, bs, vcls), Wayne Moore (bs, vcls), Leo Leblanc (steel gtr), Ken Johnson (vcls, bs, drms, gtr) and Dennis Payne (vcls, gtr, bs).

During the 1965-1968 period most of the session crew had their own singles leased by Gary Paxton to various labels, the most successful to emerge was the Gosdin Brothers, Rex and Vern. Their work on Gene Clark's 1967 solo debut for Columbia had gone largely unobserved, but their own 1967 single Hangin' On on Paxton's Bakersfield International label provided them with a country top No. 10 hit and their record deal was bought out by Capitol Records.

Paxton's studio suffered further desertion in 1967 with Clarence White, Gib Gulibeau, Wayne Moore and Gene Parsons leaving to form the group Nashville West to work a club in El Monte, California. This ground breaking country-rock group lasted until mid-1968 when White and Parsons joined The Byrds. In fact, the core of his studio crowd was mainly country musicians and played in various club bands and even did session work for other labels.

Paxton himself recorded for his own and other labels, including Capitol Records. One of his Bakersfield International productions was Eternity's Children's second album Timeless for Tower Records, a subsidiary label of Capitol.

In 1969, Paxton started leasing his studio masters to Al Sherman, that year alone the masters of the last few years were compiled into various albums for the Alshire label. Alshire International releases by The Bakersfield Five, Rusty Dean {in reality Gary Paxton and Gib Guilbeau supplied the vocals}, and The Modern Country Friends, were basically various songs that were cut in Gary's studio. Some were previously issued as singles, and then reissued on the albums. Even Gib Guilbeau's first official Alshire release the Cajun Country 1969 album, was taken from 1965-1966 sessions.

The California Poppy Pickers were really Paxton's last solid project with Alshire. The studio group simply featured Ken 'Kenny' Johnson and Dennis

Payne, with Bakersfield pedal steel player Leo LeBlanc added when needed. Ken Johnson appeared as the main singer and backing vocalist, he also played guitar, bass and drums. Kenny had been in the Bakersfield group The Avengers in the mid-sixties and wrote almost everything that came out of the Paxton Bakersfield studio, especially in the later period. Also appearing on the albums with Ken Johnson was Dennis Payne, who was another of the label's country-oriented performers, having co-written songs and played bass for Bakersfield singer Red Simpson's first two Capitol Records albums in 1966. He also played in the Buckshots and recorded Paxton-produced singles for various labels during the sixties. His first single in the mid-sixties was actually issued on Al Sherman's A S label. For the California Poppy Pickers sessions, Johnson and Payne each received a flat fee of $200 for each album.

Housed in a budget sleeve, Today's Chart Busters, their third album was subtitled "The Big Hits From Coast to Coast" and contained some covers (notably the Beatles' Get Back and Ballad Of John And Yoko) and three instrumental tracks, with harmonica and crude fuzz guitar, written by the producer and guitarist Gary Paxton.

Apparently there was a falling out between Paxton and Sherman, for the California Poppy Pickers album Honky Tonk Women, and a different studio, producer and session crew were used. The California Poppy Pickers were Don Larson (vocals and bass), Mike Messer (vocals, guitar), Tom Slipp on drums and Randy Wilcox on vocals. It was recorded at Wilshire Sound Studios, Hollywood in 1969, and co-produced by Phil Volk and Drake Levin (ex-Paul Revere & The Raiders). It was a one-off deal and they were in reality Wilson McKinley. They used the proceeds from this recording to fund the release of an original EP in 1970 on Rocking Chair Records.

Gary continued to lease material to other labels, the Guitar Country (1969-1970) album by Bakersfield's Big Guitars on the Bakersfield-based Jaisco label may have been credited to a 'talented new country group from L.A.', but consisted of older material with Clarence White and Dennis Payne.

Most of Paxton's informal session crew went on to work in the country music industry and still do to this day. Dennis Payne continued to write and perform, he signed to the Bakersfield-based Mosrite Records just as the company folded in 1969, and he had yet to record for the label. In 1976, he moved to Nashville, where he worked with Gary Paxton and Vern Gosdin among many others as a producer and sideman. He now runs his own studio.

In 1970, Paxton was declared bankrupt and his operations were closed down. By this stage his Bakersfield holdings included a record store, a marina, rental properties, his own home and a string of publishing companies and small label deals. With his Bakersfield empire shattered, he moved to Nashville and built a career as a songwriter, continuing with recording and music publishing in the country gospel field. (JO/CF/MW/SR/DP/DLn)

The initial 2-LP set includes conversations between Callender and producer Tom Wilson and is thought to have been released to promote Rainbow.

Rainbow consists of music to be seriously stoned to. Young negro-turned-mystic Bobby is joined by an orchestra and a host of other musicians including Funatics' Hugh McCracken for a trip to the local soul-serious opium-den. Sitars and tablas abound in this artefact of an era. Find a paisley cushion, adopt lotus position and contemplate your inner self (or navel fluff!). Produced by Alan Lorber whose other 'in' projects included Ultimate Spinach.

The Way (First Book Of Experience) is a double, more conceptual, piece. Le Musee De L'impressionnisme pays homage to the 19th century painters and was recorded with a full orchestra, sometimes heading into progressive territory, with good electric guitar work, flutes and organ. Still with Lorber, Robert Callender also co-produced the aural documentary album by The Groupies.

Before Callender embarked on a recording career, he was a radio producer for Murray the K at New York station WINS.

You'll also find I'm Just High On Life on Journey To A Higher Key, Vol. 1 (LP), Rainbow Colours on Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers Vol. 3 (CD) and Sade Masoch on Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers Vol. 2 (CD). (MW/LP/SR)

Hailing from the affluent suburb of Short Hills, one of New Jersey's more prosperous New York suburbs, their finest moment was Streets Of Boston which can be heard on Attack Of The Jersey Teens (LP). It's rather demented with a haunting spoken intro, military drums and rather menacing guitar. The second single was an unsuccessful attempt at a flowery psychedelic pop song which one reviewer commented sounded 'like the legendary Stardust Cowboy on drums!' The warped dynamo behind this group was James Bentley, who wrote all four songs. (VJ)

ALBUM:	1(A)	STEAMED	(Buddah BDS-5023) 1968

45:	Rainmaker's Daughter/Hello Hello	(Buddah 83) 1969

From Seattle, the driving force behind this short-lived outfit was singer/songwriter Danny O'Keefe, who later had one or two Top 20 hits (including Magdalena). They made a bit of a splash locally, but like a lot of Seattle bands, they seemed much better live than on record. It seems that bands from Seattle during that period did not get very good support from their record companies... obviously things have changed since then! Calliope's first album is now a very minor collectable, and the second may have remained unissued. The Steamed album includes cover versions of Hello (Lee Michaels), California Dreamin' (with a very good psychedelic guitar solo), Hound Dog, Jimmy Bell (a traditional number), Like A Rolling Stone (Dylan), Nadine (Chuck Berry) and four originals - two by Goldsmith and two by O'Keefe.

John Simpson, who was tragically killed in a plane crash in 1973, had previously played with Scott Strong in The Bumps and may also be the guy who played drums in Christopher. Prior to joining Calliope, Scott Strong also acted as their road manager. Paul Goldsmith and Luther Rabb had earlier been in Emergency Exit and Clyde Heaton in The Dimensions. Luther Rabb later played with Ballin' Jack.

You can also hear California Dreamin' on Psychosis From The 13th Dimension (CD). (CBn/DR/VJ)

NB: α also released in the U.K. (Uni UN 514) 1969.

Believed to be from Santa Barbara, California this Calliope produced at least three excellent mellow folky-rock singles. The first, Ryan 5, sounds exactly like West (who also recorded on Epic), whilst the flip I'll Take It Back is mellow but up-tempo San Francisco psychedelic sounds.

Both sides of their second effort, which were written by A.J. Andron and produced by Brian Ross, maintain the standard. We've Made It features male/female vocals, good organ, two flute solos and a short but brilliant guitar solo, whilst Friends Of Mrs Fisher has male vocals with female backing, an unusual rhythm (a little like The Beatles' Octopus Garden) and interesting lyrics about a man "who wants to escape from the life he's leading today".

Their final single, Clear Mud, is another track of particularly high quality with strong rhythm and layered flute, Hammond and good harmonies.

You can check out Ryan 5 on Incredible Sound Show Stories, Vol. 8 (LP), I'll Take It Back on Fading Yellow Vol. 2 (CD) and We've Made It on Lost Gems From The 60's Vol. 1 (EP). (VJ/SPr/MW/SR)

This Florida bar band made their eponymous debut album just for their fans. On offer is hard-edged but melodic guitar-pop with some prog overtones, and a couple songs that go in a roadhouse/blues-rock/R&B direction. The album features some nice lead (and dual-lead) guitar. It has a homemade look and was presented in a black and white sleeve. Highlights include the opener Illusions and Mystery Wind, one of a few pleasant ballads. There are plenty of good-time rock numbers and some feature some nice guitar work.

Lane Cameron didn't figure on their second album. The title cut features some scorching slide guitar. This album is more inconsistent than their debut. (VJ)

Dick Campbell was a folkie/hippie character from Monroe, Wisconsin. According to Cuca's Jim Kirchstein, everyone thought he was a little odd - "(he) used to ride his bike around town, dressed like a hippie, and he had a little bag that he carried his money in". Nonetheless Kirchstein was impressed enough to take him on as an engineer and producer at Cuca, and believes he went on to work for a publishing house in Los Angeles.

In late 1966, he played guitar on the Talismen's Glitter And Gold single. He also produced Easy Street.

His album, produced by Lou Reizner, showed him to be a singer/songwriter heavily influenced by Bob Dylan. He was backed by the Butterfield Blues Band plus various Chicago musicians (including a young Pete Cetera, ex-Exceptions, later with Chicago). The album is rare and sought-after but is better avoided, the songs being weak and Campbell's voice too close to Dylan's.

Dick Campbell passed away in 2002. (SR/GM/MW)

ALBUM: 1(A) CANDLE (Greene Bottle GBS 1003) 1972

An abundance of unusual instruments and the desire to write emotional songs make for at least some interesting listening, here, although the album is not entirely successful. Most of the blame lies with producer and label-owner Charles Greene whose production lacks clarity. This combined with a tendency for simplistic melodies, tear down a large part of the building the musicians are attempting to erect. So, despite the large possibilities which the band seem to have, not much is actually coming forth in terms of inspiring (and inspired) music. Originally The Webs, this band operated out of Dothan, Alabama. Two singles were released with original vocalist Bobby Goldsboro before his departure to schmaltzy pop stardom. His replacement was Rodney Justo from Florida's Rodney & The Mystics. A psychedelic pop outfit, they also performed as Roy Orbison's back-up band. They did achieve a minor hit with Georgia Pines and their debut album also crept into the Album Charts climbing to No 195. Daughtry, Nix and Justo were all later involved in the Georgia-based Atlanta Rhythm Section.

Candymen specialised in live reproduction of complex Beatles and Beach Boys material, like A Day In The Life or Good Vibrations, and that gave them quite a following when they first appeared in New York in the summer of 1967. Unfortunately for them, their original material and records were not up to their live shows.

Rodney Justo also recorded a single with Noah's Ark.

There was another different act, Joe Dee & The Candymen who had at least one album The Twist (Diplomat FM/S/100) 1962. (VJ/PDg/SR/JMc/MW/JLh)

From Baton Rouge, Louisiana Canebreak was originally a folk group, but they went electric when Henry (of The Playgue) sat in. 1968 saw one further single on Columbia as by Love-Michael. Crespo's I Don't Really Like You is an excellent folk-rocker covered in 1967 by fellow Louisianans the Distortions. (AB/MW)

NB: (1) reissued officially on CD (Gear Fab GF-114) 1998.

In the mid-sixties Bob Randall was playing drums in a band called The Acetones and asked Gary Wilkinson to join them. The two bonded well and decided to form their own band with Lonnie Gasperini joining as keyboardist (although he left soon after joining) and Tony Rodrigues (ld gtr) and Charles Robillard (bs). When Gasperini left Wilkinson switched to keyboards and Organized Confusion was formed. They played around Lincoln, Rhode Island for a few months but when Robillard was drafted into the army Randall and Wilkinson convinced Gasperini to rejoin the band on keyboards with Wilkinson reverting back to bass. Shortly after they changed name to Cannabis. They gigged locally mostly playing cover songs, but Randall and Wilkinson also penned their own material too. When Robillard ended his tour of duty he rejoined as manager.

The above album, which was recorded at Methuen, Massachusetts after a tour to Texas, consisted of early seventies open air hippie festival rock. They added Kelly and Tweedly to their line-up just prior to the sessions. The album had a decidedly country-rock feel and the principal song writers (Randall and Wilkinson) were influenced by artists as diverse as The Band and British prog-rockers Yes. The highlight is the Byrds-styled Once Again. It got a lot of airplay in Boston and Providence but they split soon after its release.

Randall and Wilkinson reunited in 1990 and recorded as K-Volt.

The band is now far flung with original members in California (Brian Kelly), Florida (Bob Randall) and Puerto Rico (Tony Rodriguez). The remainder still live in Rhode Island.

One cut from the album I Can't Roll has been compiled on Gear Fab's Psychedelic Sampler (CD). (MW/VJ)

The formation of Canned Heat evolved in 1964 from Al Wilson, John Fahey and Mike Perlowin's ideas about starting an independent record company to reissue old blues records. Al "Blind Owl" Wilson (born in 1943 in Boston), was a music major at Boston University, who wrote articles on bluesmen like Robert Pete Williams and Son House, had a high-pitched voice with a unique vocal technique and played harmonica and guitar. In 1964, with the help of the blues historian Dick Waterman, Wilson had managed to track down Son House and revive his interest in playing blues, as he hadn't picked up a guitar in 20 years. Strangely enough on the same day in 1964, John Fahey and guitarist Bill Barth (later with Insect Trust) rediscovered elder bluesman Skip James in Mississippi and also brought him out of retirement. Barth and Fahey with another guitarist, Henry Vestine, promoted Skip's appearance at the 1964 Newport Folk Festival.

Mike Perlowin was another folk-blues guitarist having moved to L.A. from New York in 1961. He studied guitar at the Ash Grove's school of folk music, where one of his teachers was Clarence White, then with the Kentucky Colonels. Mike also played in a bluegrass outfit the Four Farfels with future Stone Poney Herb Steiner.

While Fahey, Wilson and Perlowin discussed their record label plans, Fahey remembered Bob "the Bear" Hite (born in February 1945 in California} a record store manager and blues '78 collector, who owned a rare copy of the Library of Congress recording of Muddy Waters and it was decided to bring Bob into the group's plans.

Mike Perlowin remembers: "Bob was working at a record store at the time that was actually very close to where I was living. I called him, and he agreed to meet with the three of us. We realised that we could all play, so we decided to form a band instead. As soon as we said we wanted to play electric, John Fahey lost interest, so in the beginning it was Bob and Al and me. We spent three days in Bob's house (he was living with his parents at the time, as was I) listening to records and making plans. We had a rehearsal in which Bob brought in a drummer named Keith Sawyer and I dragged in bassist Stu Brotman. Unfortunately for me, I was more of a folk style player (Fahey was my biggest influence at the time) and couldn't play rock very well, so I was fired and replaced by Kenny Edwards (pre-Stone Poneys), who was also fired and replaced by Henry Vestine, a former member of the Beaus".

The band was then thinking of calling themselves either "The Heavies" {due Bob's large size) or "The Black and Blues" but they finally chose "Canned Heat".

Mike Perlowin remembers: "Mike Bass who was sharing a place with Al and myself was talking to Steve Mann, another L.A. folk-blues guitarist who thought the band should all dress up as cops and call themselves The Heat. Bass came up with the name Canned Heat, after an old 1928 record, Canned Heat Blues, by a guy named Tommy Johnson, which was about drinking sterno to get high".

As 1964 moved into 1965, the nucleus remained Bob Hite and Al Wilson. By this stage Al had played harp on Son House's 1965 album The Father Of Folk Blues and had appeared on some John Fahey recordings (who gave him the Blind Owl nickname). He also guested on some sessions with Fred Neil.

The group was fairly informal and had basically dissolved, with Henry 'Sunflower" Vestine having left to join the Mothers of Invention briefly in 1965 before being sacked by Zappa.

In 1965 they reformed, with Stuart Brotman (bass) and new drummer Frank Cook, who had actually backed artists ranging from Chet Baker to Dobie Gray. This version also failed to take off and the group disbanded again in early 1966, the public being not interested by their traditional blues repertoire. Later that year, Wilson, Hite, Vestine and Cook rejoined with Mark Andes on bass (Brotman joined Kaleidoscope in 1967), and performed with a predominant boogie sound mixed into their electric blues. They played their first show at the Ash Grove in Los Angeles and soon became the resident band of the Kaleidoscope, another L.A. club.

In early 1967 due to the efforts of their manager, Skip Taylor, they were signed to Liberty Records. In March 1967, Mark Andes left to join Spirit and was replaced by Larry "The Mole" Taylor (born in 1942 in New York City} who was an accomplished bass player in demand in the L.A. studios (notably with The Monkees). His brother Mel Taylor was in The Ventures.

In April 1967, they started cutting demos at RCA studios in Chicago but these songs, notably a totally different version of On The Road Again, remained unheard until 1994. In May they re-cut some material for their self-titled first album, issued in July but preceded by the Rollin And Tumblin' single in June. Produced by Cal Carter, the album featured blues covers of material like Guitar Slim's The Story Of My Life, Dust My Broom, Sonny Boy Williamson's Help Me, Willie Dixon's Evil Is Going On and a few originals like Bullfrog Blues.

On 17th June, 1967, they played the Monterey Pop Festival (three tracks from their performance later appeared on the 1992 4-CD Monterey Pop Festival set). As with many other acts that performed at the event, it brought them a national audience and their debut album rose to No. 76 in the charts. They then began touring, but got busted in Denver for drug possession. To make bail, they received an advance from Liberty Records in exchange for their publishing rights!

Not long after, Mexican-born Adolfo "Fito" De La Parra (b. 1948, Mexico City) replaced Frank Cook on drums, after Cook had left to form Pacific, Gas & Electric. Tito had played in bands since 1958, in Mexico (Los Sparks, Los Hooligans, Los Juniors, Javier Batiz And The Finks) and with Los Sinners entered California illegally in 1965 where they became Los Tequilas (sic) and recorded two albums for RCA. In late 1965, they were caught by the police and sent back to Tijuana. De La Parra, who was married to an American woman, returned to California and joined Larry Barnes and the Creations, a club band from Torrance, and then Sotweed Factor and Bluesberry Jam (which evolved into Pacific Gas and Electric).

In late 1967, Canned Heat recorded a lot of material for their new album, but these versions of The Hunter, Whiskey And Women, Shake Rattle And Roll, Mean Old World, Fannie Mae, Gotta Boogie (The World Boogie) remained unissued until the 1994 EMI compilation CD Uncanned.

In January 1968, Boogie With Canned Heat was released. A Texas radio station picked up on one track, On The Road Again, and public interest led to its release as a single. It became a hit in the U.S and in Europe.

Produced by Dallas Smith, the album also featured classics like Amphetamine Annie (based on the death by overdose of one of Hite's friends) and Evil Woman (penned by Larry Weiss, who also wrote Hi Ho Silver Lining and Bend Me, Shape Me). The blues pianist Sunnyland Slim played on some tracks, but generally the album gets stuck in the boogie mode, especially with the 11 minutes of Fried Hockey Boogie.

Soon after that, Al Wilson, Vestine and Taylor appeared on Sunnyland Slim's album Slim's Got His Thing Going On. They toured Europe that year and won a faithful audience in several countries, notably in Germany.

October 1968 saw the release of Living The Blues, a two album set which included the hit single Going Up The Country. The group was then totally immersed in drugs and was playing very long "psychedelic boogie" tracks, with extended improvisations. Two examples can be found on this album: Parthenogenesis (almost 20 minutes) and the live 41 minute Refried Boogie which took up a whole album and is rather self-indulgent. John Fahey, Dr John and John Mayall guested on the album.

In July 1969, their next album, Hallelujah, featured guests such as Mike Pacheco, Javier Batiz (the Mexican friend of De La Parra), Skip Diamond, Elliot Ingber (from Fraternity Of Man), Ernest Lane and Mark Naftalin. Most of them were just adding vocals to the proceedings. The album was a fairly tight set with several highlights: Same All Over, Time Was and Sic' Em Pigs, but it produced no major hits.

In July, largely due to his drug abuse, Vestine left and formed the short-lived Sun. His replacement was the Chicago blues guitarist Harvey Mandel. In August 1969, Canned Heat appeared at the Woodstock Festival. They were subsequently in the film and on the two retrospective albums.

With their chart success and sudden lack of new material, a compilation album soon followed, The Canned Heat Cookbook, in October 1969. They also appeared on the Together Records compilation Early L.A (1969, two tracks), and a collection of previously unissued studio tracks appeared called Vintage Heat. Hite and Vestine also spent time compiling albums for Imperial Records 'Legendary Masters' series.

In 1969, when blues singer Wilbert Harrison reworked his Let's Stick Together as Let's Work Together (an early 1970's U.S hit), Canned Heat cut their version, which was issued in January 1970 in the U.K and became a hit. They concentrated on touring the U.K. and Europe and also played the Isle Of Wight Festival in 1970. Canned Heat Concert: Recorded Live In Europe was released in Europe in June 1970 and some months later in the USA with the usual mix of blues covers (That's All Right Mama, Bring It On Home, Let's Work Together) and original material (Pulling Hair Blues, London Blues, Goodbye For Now). In August 1970, their new album was titled Future Blues and contained three songs already used on their live album. It's the final Canned Heat studio album to feature Alan Wilson. Future Blues was also one of their most focused efforts and the group themselves handled the production with Skip Taylor. From Alan Wilson's sadly all too fitting My Time Ain't Long to a heavy blues version of Arthur Crudup's That's All Right, Mama, the album has an experimental edge that went far beyond their usual lengthy solos. Dr. John appears on two tracks: London Blues and Skat, a late-1940's-style jump blues novelty. The group was so popular that Liberty appointed the making of "The Kanned Korn Komix", a 20-page comic book a lá Robert Crumb, dedicated to the crazy adventures of the Bear, the Owl, the Snake and the Raccoon. Copies of the comic were included in early pressings of the album.

In May 1970, Larry Taylor and Harvey Mandel left the group to join John Mayall. Henry Vestine rejoined with Antonio 'Tony' De La Barreda on bass, a friend of De La Parra. That month they cut a double album with John Lee Hooker.

The label Wand then released a live album, Live At Topanga Corral. It features six long and energetic tracks 'recorded in 1966 and 1967', with one original, Bullfrog Blues, and five covers (I'd Rather Be The Devil, Dust My Broom, Wish You Would etc.). It was in fact recorded at the Kaleidoscope in 1969, but the group changed the name of the location and date as they were already signed to Liberty when the recordings occurred. Al Wilson died September 3rd 1970 from an overdose and was replaced by Joel Scott Hill from The Strangers, Jerome (formed with De La Barreda) and L.A. Getaway. A live recording of this line-up from an August 1971 concert in Finland Live At The Turku Rock Festival was issued (Bear Tracks BTS 964410) 1990 on CD and double album.

Early 1972 saw the release of the rather patchy Historical Figures And Ancient Heads album. The group was obviously looking for a new direction after the death of Wilson and the tracks (which featured three different lead guitarists, Vestine and Hill being complemented by a returning Mandel on one track) range from rock tracks (Hill's Stomp, Rockin With The King, with Little Richard) to boogie (Utah, Cherokee Dance) or more melancholic tracks (I Don't Care What You Tell Me, by and with Charles Lloyd). The cover art was quite scary, the group being depicted as old people looked after by nurses on the front sleeve and reduced to naturalised heads surrounded by dead flowers, shells, butterflies and material used for heroin injection on the gatefold. In June 1972, De La Barreda quit, with Larry Taylor re-joining for a short spell. Joel Scott Hill also left the group and later joined the Flying Burrito Brothers.

CANNED HEAT - Hooker 'N Heat LP.

In 1973 Canned Heat had evolved into the line-up of Henry Vestine, Fito de la Parra, Bob Hite and his brother Richard Hite (bs, tuba, gtr) replacing Larry Taylor and other new members James Shane (gtr, bs, vcs, sax) and Ed Beyer (keyb'ds, ex-Smoke). This version produced the New Age album in March 1973. From here onwards the group floundered with multiple line-up changes and recordings on small labels that fall outside the scope of this book.

"The Bear" died in 1981 from a heart attack. The surviving members, mainly led by drummer Fito de la Parra, continued touring and recording, although heavily relying on live albums. After recruiting new vocalist Walter Trout, they followed with James Thornbury, {who fronted the band from 1985 to 1995} then Robert Lucas assumed lead vocals.

They recorded as The Canned Heat Blues Band in 1996 for A&M, which was Vestine's last recording with the group, as he died in Paris in December 1997. A further release in 1999 Boogie 2000 was issued on the Ruf label.

There have been a number of recent retrospectives. Dimples (CD) compiles their earliest material from 1966 with music giant Johnny Otis handling production. Far Out (2-CD/2-LP) is a well packaged set. It includes many favorites like On The Road Again, Let's Work Together and Refried Hockey Boogie, alongside many tracks not previously issued on vinyl or CD. The 2-CD set is presented in a four-fold mini-LP sleeve. On The Road Again is a 15-track 'best of' culled form their sixties albums that mixes Muddy Waters and Robert Johnson covers and standards alongside their own original material. Some classics like Parthenogenesis, On The Road Again and Going Up The Country are included. Uncanned Best Of (2-CD) is a 41-track set covering the 1967-1973 period and includes many of their best songs alongside some rarities. It includes alternate takes of On The Road Again and Christmas Blues as well as unreleased songs such TV Mama, Human Condition, Fannie Mae and It's All Right. Under The Dutch Skies (2-CD) aires three previously un-released live recordings of the band captured live in concert by Dutch Radio on three tours of Holland between 1970-1974. The set comes with a 12-page booklet including sleeve notes and previously un-seen photos. The Boogie House Tapes (2-CD) presents 25 live and the occasional studio recordings from 1967-78. It includes live versions of Let's Work Together and On The Road Again. Special guests on this set include Wolfman Jack, Sunnyland Slim, The Chambers Brothers and Curtis Mayfield.

Compilation appearances have included: You Know I Love You and First Time Around on Early L.A.; Amphetamine Annie on First Vibration (LP); and Smokey The Bear Song on Glimpses, Vol. 3 (LP). (JO/SR/CF)

This Madison, Wisconsin quintet formed in 1965 and spent several years touring across Wisconsin, Illinois and Michigan. Around 1966 they thought about recording a version of the Strangeloves-penned I Wanna Do It but felt it was too suggestive. It didn't bother label-mates Robin and The Three Hoods, who picked it up and achieved an area hit.

Day To Day is a pleasant folk-rocker, likened to The Beau Brummels, and can be heard on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 15 (LP) and Wyld Sydes Volume Five (CD), which both mis-credit the title as Days Go By. (VJ/GM/MW)

Canoise (pronounced CANOY) was formed in St. Cloud, Minnesota in the fall of 1965 by four freshmen at St. Cloud College. All had previously served time with other outfits: Pat Curto in the Men From Uncle; Bob Coates in the Nightmen; Neal Dunning and Doug Swanson in the Trolls. Their first single was released on IGL in summer 1966 before they expanded to a five-piece with vocalist Grant Gullickson. Shortly after that Neal was drafted and Larry Suess, from the Mort Plank IV, was brought in, necessitating Doug switching from 12-string to bass. Two more singles were released on IGLs Sonic label before a period of rapid personnel turnover resulted in the departure of all the original members by late 1968, the last being Bob and Grant who joined Zarathustra.

In 1970 four of the original members got together again with new member Gary Gilbertson to reform Canoise. Just one single was waxed by this line-up which was based in Hawaii for over two years before returning to tour the geographical and climatic extremes of mainland USA (from Alaska to Phoenix!). This second chapter ended in 1974. Pat went on to Tanglefoot and Maiden America, Neal joined Danny Stevens and F Troop, Larry went solo and got a degree in psychology, Grant went solo and cut two albums (Ivory, Bobbidazzler), Bob completed medical school, and Doug moved to Connecticut.

The third and latest chapter started in 1981 with Bob, Pat, Larry and Neal reuniting as an annual event, but latterly playing all over Minnesota and marking their 25th anniversary with a guest appearance by Doug.

Recently Bob Coates has co-ordinated the release of the three private CDs which cover their entire history - Now... And Then concentrates on live recordings by the current line-up - 18 tracks performed in June 1993 (predominantly covers of sixties pop, ballad, soul, R&B and rock evergreens). It also features Something I Could Do (first single, 1966), two unreleased tracks (from 1967 and 1968) and Look Inside (from the 1971 single); The True Story CD is a studio recording odyssey - the four singles, two 1966 radio spots, nine unreleased tracks from the 1966-1968 period, four tracks from the current line-up (two from 1982 and two from 1995) plus a 1977 track featuring Grant and Lance Gullickson with Larry Suess and Bobbidazzler; Plugged In is all new recordings featuring contributions by seasoned Twin Cities musicians, including Larry Wiegand of Crow fame. All are available direct from Bob Coates at 6013 Porter Lane, Edina, MN 55436, USA.

As for the original singles...... the first couples a good cover of Nick Gravenites' Born In Chicago, with solid rhythm and accomplished guitar work, and a charming harmonious mid-pace beat-ballad written by Doug Swanson (echoes of the Beatles and Everlys). The second covers Goffin-King and Holland-Dozier-Holland in soul-pop mode with smooth harmonies and deep-throated lead. The third contains two more covers in a pop ballad vein but again the lead vocals try to take on an Elvis/cabaret style - it doesn't really come off, despite some fuzzed guitar on Right Track. Of the unreleased studio tracks from this period Paul Butterfield's Come On In stands out - above-par R&B-infused pop with waspish fuzz and better, i.e. less affected, vocals. The fourth Hawaii-period single covers Dylan in a good-timey folkie-rock style with sweet male-female harmonies, a piano solo and countrified guitar licks. The flip, an original, is overtly country-rock.

This band may not appeal to garage fuzz'n'farfisa purists but is definitely for those who enjoy the accomplished Midwest pop-rock sounds of the likes of Dee Jay and The Runaways, The Rumbles and The Coachmen.

Compilation appearances include Born In Chicago and Something I Could Do on The IGL Rock Story Part One (1965-67) (CD) and There Is Something About You Baby on Roof Garden Jamboree (LP). (MW/BCs)

CD: 1 CANTERBURY FAIR (Sundazed SC 11064) 1999

45: Song On A May Morning/Days I Love (Koala 8081) 1968

The Hollingsworth brothers first played together in 1965 with James Holley (who also did time with The Bushmen) in Fresno band The Coachmen. In 1966, the addition of Steve Bryant (guitar and vocals) precipitated a name change to Everyday Things, though Bryant soon left. In 1967, the brothers joined Kings Verses in time for their trip to Los Angeles to seek success and fortune - when this didn't work out Philip returned to Fresno and formed Canterbury Fair with Holley again plus vocalist Cheryl Churchman.

John had remained in L.A. for the rest of 1967, attending Cal State. On his return home in early 1968 he presented a wealth of newly-penned keyboard material that determined a new direction and configuration for the band - a keyboard-bass-drums format, with the addition Joe Lo Freso (also from The Bushmen) on Hammond.

With continuing apathy from record labels, Holley departed at the end of 1968 but not before securing Corsaro as a replacement, who in turn found them a new manager. The group relocated to San Francisco for a while, eventually returning to Fresno without Corsaro, whose place was filled by brother number three, David. They carried on until 1980 with various string players augmenting the line-up.

The CD comprises 10 tracks from their most creative period (1967 to 1969) highlighting their predominantly instrumental neo-classical or baroque flavoured recitals. Song On A May Morning from their rare single is their most commercial offering - a catchy slice of West Coast pop-psych.

Not for garage purists - this should appeal to those who like soft-psych or the baroque tendencies of The Left Banke and Ars Nova.

Compilation appearances have also included: Song On A May Morning on Son Of The Gathering Of The Tribe (LP) and A Journey To Tyme, Vol. 2 (LP); and The Man (an unreleased track from the single sessions in 1968 that didn't make it onto the Sundazed collection) on Fuzz, Flaykes, And Shakes, Vol. 4 (LP & CD). CANTERBURY FAIR - Canterbury Fair CD.

45:	Like A Rolling Stone/My Mind's Eye	(Century 36685) 1970

This single contains acoustic hippie-folkie workouts of Bob Dylan and the Small Faces, the latter notable for the use of the fiddle. The band was playing at the London Troubadour when they were approached by an American record producer called Robert Reiter. Howard Fullbrook: - "He was in London, Ontario looking for Canadian artists to record and within a week we were in London making the record. We never saw or heard anymore from him after that day in the studios. We did learn, through a friend in Canada, that the single had been released but we never received a copy of the record or even heard the final result!" (MW)

From Chicago, Shades kicks off like a certain Bob Lind folk-pop classic, whilst the flip is another matter: - weeping Eastern guitars, tablas, suitable stony vocals and numerous start/stops - still poppy but infused with incense. Lady Margaret can also be found on A Heavy Dose Of Lyte Psych (CD). The follow-up unfortunately reverts to harmony-pop, with Left Banke keyboard textures. Cory and Toops would also be involved with Crystal Ball. (MW)

This has also been released as two 2-LP sets (Table Of The Elements 98) 2004. The Best Of Captain Beefheart And The Magic Band (EMI 7243 5 39383 21) 2002 actually compiles material from his Virgin and Liberty years and remember that the mid-seventies were hardly Beefheart's creative peak. Magnetic Hands (Viper CD 011) 2002 features 'live' material. Some cuts are from later concerts. Beefheart (real name Don Van Vliet) was born in Glendale, California in 1941. One wonders what the Lancaster High School, which included Frank Zappa and Van Vliet could have been like. After playing briefly with a band called The Blackouts, the 'mad captain' took the name Captain Beefheart and formed The Magic Band in 1964, which was based in Los Angeles. His first single for A&M was a version of Bo Diddley's Diddy Wah Diddy.

His debut album, which was rejected by A&M and eventually released by Buddah in the U.S. and Polydor in England, sounded like nothing that had been heard before. Beefheart's growling and grunted vocals were most unusual, his vocal range most impressive, but some of the lyrics almost unintelligible. Nonetheless, the material was of a consistent standard, with Autumn Song, Zig Zag Wanderer, Electricity and Yellow Brick Road among the stronger numbers.

Mirror Man, the next album he recorded, was rougher and not released until 1971. It is not considered one of his best.

Strictly Personal, was even less commercial, but represented a musical progression. Raw blues numbers like Ah Feel Like Ahcid and Gimme Dat Harp Boy were combined with more imaginative tracks like Trust Us, On Tomorrow and the excellent Kandy Korn, which features some superb intertwined guitar work, and displays Beefheart's vocals at their howling and growling best. The album was apparently mixed without his supervision.

However, this line-up disintegrated after the album, St Clair left to work in a car wash and Handley joined a printing works. Then Beefheart by chance bumped into his old school mate Frank Zappa, who was busy setting up his Straight record label. With the promise of complete recording freedom Beefheart started work with a revised line-up on an album. The result was inevitably bizarre. Many would find Trout Mask Replica completely bewildering on an initial hearing. The band apparently recorded it in four hours and added the lyrics in four and a half hours without hearing the music! Most of the songs on the album are formless in the traditional sense, but far from being spontaneous, the band had rehearsed the material to the point of obsession. The album became an underground classic, regarded by many as the pinnacle of challenging music and hated by others. It was certainly atmospheric. Beefheart's next album was similar but lacked the apparent spontaneity of Trout Mask Replica.

Following the band's return from a nationwide tour in 1971, Beefheart and Zappa fell out and Beefheart switched to Reprise and changed his line-up bringing in a couple of influential figures:- Elliot Ingber, formerly of The Fraternity of Man who became known as Winged Eel Fingerling and Artie Tripp (Ed Marimba) from The Mothers of Invention. The resultant album, The Spotlight Kid, was his first album to make any impression in the Album Charts peaking at No 131. His next, Clear Spot, was made without Fingerling, but with Roy Estrada on bass. Musically this was one of Beefheart's best albums and it also made the album charts peaking at No 191.

His subsequent recordings are less interesting by comparison.

Beefheart and his band were an almost unique phenomena in the history of rock. Quite unlike anyone else, especially on those early recordings, and musically at odds with mainstream rock, these recordings are essential for connoisseurs of progressive rock.

There have been several retrospective releases most of which merit investigation. The Legendary A&M Sessions is a five-track mini-album of 1965 recordings, which has been reissued several times on vinyl and CD.

Grow Fins is a lavish 5-CD set of early rare material that is essential for Beefheart fans. This has also been released as two 2-LP sets. The Best Of Captain Beefheart And The Magic Band compiles material from his Virgin and Mercury years but remember that the mid-seventies were hardly Beefheart's creative peak. Magnetic Hands features 'live' material. The best are Orange Claw Hammer and Gimme Dat Harp Boy from a 1975 Knebworth gig and Dali's Car and Beatle Bones 'N' Smokin' Stones from a Portsmouth Guildhall gig from the same year. Some cuts are from later concerts. Also of interest is Prime Quality Beef (CD) which compiles both studio and live recordings from a number of years and is a hand numbered edition. Grows Fins Vol 3: Grows Fins concentrates on previously unreleased live tracks and radio sessions spanning his career from 1969 - 1980 presented in a heavy duty gatefold sleeve. Dichotomy is a 28-track collection of rarities, out-takes and demos from the sixties and seventies. The tracks include Neon Meat, Sticks And Stones, Ella Guru, I Was A Teenage Malt Shop, Hot Head and more. The booklet also includes previously unpublished photos and a brilliant full colour sleeve. Live At The Bickershaw Festival 1972 (CD) is a superb live set that comes with a full biographical CD booklet of the show. The 26-track 2-CD set Live'N'Rare includes 14 tracks from a newly discovered live concert recording and some rare photographs and artwork relating to Beefheart. The tracks are spread across the man's career including recordings from 1972, 1973, 1974, 1975 and 1980.

Electricity is a 2-CD set, which is an excellent introduction to the band and is accompanied by an informative essay by Harry Shapiro and detailed session notes. It draws from Safe As Milk, Strictly Personal and Mirror Man and a 1992 CD I May Be Hungry But I Sure Ain't Weird. The end result is that most of the Captain's best songs from this era are included.

Compilation appearances have included: Diddy Wah Diddy on More Nuggets (CD), Nuggets Box (4-CD), Nuggets, Vol. 6: Punk Part 11 (LP) and Excerpts From Nuggets (CD); Electricity on Psychedelic Frequencies (CD); Ah Feel Like Ahcid gave its title to Ah Feel Like Ahcid (CD); and Safe As Milk adorns *Where The Action Is! Captain Groovy and His Bubblegum Army (OH)

45: Captain Groovy and His Bubblegum Army/
Dark Part Of My Mind Part 1 (Super K 104) 1969 128

Jerry Kasenetz and Jeff Katz, who were the masterminds behind the commercially successful late sixties bubblegum music which gave us acts like The Ohio Express, The Music Explosion and The 1910 Fruitgum Company, made this single themselves using a pseudonym. Sporting metallic fuzztone guitars and typically warbled bubblegum lyrics, you'll find it on Boulders, Vol. 9 (LP) or Mindrocker, Vol. 5 (LP).

An instrumental Bubblegum March (Or Blowing Bubbles Through Rose Coloured Glasses) appears on the Everything You Always Wanted To Know... (CD), and Erik Lindgren's sleeve-notes suggest that the same track also appeared as the flip to Super Cirkus' Dong-Dong-Diki-Di-Ki-Dung single (Super K 9)... whilst Dark Part Of My Mind also appeared on the flip to a Crazy Elephant single (Bell 763) and has been compiled on Lycergic Soap (LP), Turds On A Bum Ride Vol. 1 & 2 (2-CD) and Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 (2-LP). Confused? Well the explanation may be that Captain Groovy and his Bubblegum Army started life as a soundtrack to a cartoon show, which was cancelled, with some of the tracks later being recycled. ALBUMS: 1(A) TRIP THRU HELL (Candy Floss 7764) 1969 R4-R5
2(A) C.A. QUINTET-LIVE 1971 (No label) 1984

NB: (1) has been subjected to the following 'defective' reissues: on vinyl (Psycho 12) 1983 with a changed back cover; again on vinyl as a Greek pirate, and on CD (Eva B29/852126) 1993. All of these only include one-half of the stereo mix - missing out much of the guitar parts. Fortunately, Sundazed have reissued the album officially, on CD with 12 bonus tracks (Sundazed SC 11021) 1995, and as a 2-LP with 14 bonus tracks (Sundazed LP 5037) 1996. (2) had a limited pressing of 500 copies.

Also relevant is Last Trip At Lake Pepin (LP) (Swordfish SFCQLP 1) 2007.

45s:	Mickey's Monkey/I Want You To Love Me Girl	(Falcon 70) 1967
	Blow To My Soul/She's Got To Be True	(Falcon 71) 1967
	Smooth As Silk/Dr Of Philosophy	(Candy Floss 102) 1968

All three of these singles and originals of this Minneapolis-based band's debut album are very rare and expensive collectors' items. The album, which was produced by band leader Ken Erwin, commences and concludes with the 12.30 instrumental title track, which at times contains some interesting sound effects. However, the stand-out track is a piece of classic paranoid acid dementia Cold Spider. The Live album is very disappointing.

They also had two cuts Mickey's Monkey and Blow To My Soul on the Money Music (LP) (August 100) 1967 compilation of Minneapolis bands, which had a very limited pressing and has also become very rare.

Although the album has been subject to many 'reissues', these were without the band's approval, and only included one-half of the stereo mix. The Sundazed reissue, corrects matters, and includes a number of alternate takes and previously unreleased cuts, together with sleevenotes including an interview with Ken Erwin, and studio engineer Steve Longman.

Last Trip At Lake Pepin features recordings from the original master tapes of their final gig from January 1971. This includes stronger material than on their live album, including storming versions of sixties classics like Born To Be Wild and Badge as well as originals like 4am in NYC and the finale China Clipper. Fully remastered the package comes with liner notes specially penned by Ken Erwin.

Retrospective compilation appearances include: Dr. Of Philosophy on Sundazed Sampler, Vol. 2 (CD) and Garagelands Volume Two (CD); both Cold Spider and Blow To My Soul on Changes (LP), Endless Journey - Phase Two (LP) and Endless Journey - Phase I & II (2-CD); Underground Music on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 6 (double cassette box); and the previously unreleased Hanging On The Porcelain Bowl figured on Timemazine # 1 (CD), which was given away free with the fanzine. 	Lovin' Just My Style//Self Service Lovin' Just My Style (instr) (PS)	(Dionysus/Bacchus Archives BA 1146) 2000

The Caravelles were from Phoenix, Arizona. They were managed and produced by Hadley "Who Loves You Madly" Murrell, a disc jockey at the practically all-black KCAC, Phoenix's AM soul station in the mid-sixties. For the most part, Murrell is better known for the legendary Phoenix soul acts he produced, which included The Servicemen, The New Bloods, Eddie and Ernie (who were in The New Bloods) and the Soulsetters. The Caravelles' flip to Lovin' Just My Style was a garagy cover of The New Bloods' Self Service, which had gotten enough local attention in Phoenix to get picked up by 20th Century-Fox for national distribution.

C.A. Quintet - Trip Thru Hell LP.

John Fitzgerald, The Caravelles' lead singer, had a reputation as "the Mick Jagger of Phoenix", and the group opened for the Dave Clark Five at Veterans Memorial Coliseum in Phoenix.

Rick Anderson was later in The Superfine Dandelion and The Tubes. It's unclear whether or not he played on Lovin' Just My Style, though. Drummer Neal Smith, who was in-between stints with The Laser Beats and Alice Cooper, joined The Caravelles in 1966, just before they changed their name to The Holy Grail. Contrary to rumours, Smith was not on the Onacrest record.

Their reissue single adds an instrumental take of Lovin' and comes in a neat picture sleeve with a band history by Dan Nowicki.

You can also hear the catchy Lovin' Just My Style, with its typical garage style guitar work, on Pebbles, Vol. 8 (LP) or Boulders, Vol. 1 (LP). Very much a case of The Kinks meet The Yardbirds. (VJ/DN)

ALBUM: 1 SEA CHANGE (w/lyric insert)
(Cardboard Village Records CVST-4) 1969 R2

Sea Change is an almost entirely acoustic folk album with guitar, flute, bongos and male/female vocals, and some sparse electric touches. Some dealers describe it as being "Airplane-type female psych" but it's in fact more in the acid/hippie blues folk style. They came from Boston, Massachusetts. The album is presented in a sleeve with a small photo inset of someone diving off a pier. (SR/VJ)

A mid-sixties college outfit based in Muncie, Indiana. Go Go Baby is a rather primitive stomper, which can also be found on Indiana Rock! (cassette) and Pebbles, Vol. 7: Chicago 2 (CD). Other compilation coverage has included: Tomato Juice on *Open Up Yer Door! 45: Cuttin' Grass/X+Y=13 (Sanctus 5511/2) 1967

This psychedelic punk outfit operated out of Los Angeles. Cuttin' Grass is notable for its brash vocals and some compelling guitar riffs. The flip is much mellower, with a sparse arrangement and a melody that sticks in the brain.

Compilation coverage has so far included:- Cuttin' Grass on Psychedelic Disaster Whirl (LP), Sixties Archive, Vol. 8 (CD), Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP), Acid Dreams Testament (CD), Acid Dreams, Vol. 1 (LP) and Acid Trip From The Psychedelic Sixties (LP); and X + Y = 13 on Pebbles, Vol. 8: Southern California 1 (CD), Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol's 1 & 2 (LP) and Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 2 (2 x 7"). NB: α feature different versions of Feel Al(l)right.

The band hailed from Tulsa, Oklahoma where they built a strong local following before relocating to Memphis to record. The first single was recorded at Dan Penn's Beautiful Sounds studio. A good response resulted in a contract with Ardent, the same label as Big Star. Produced by Terry Manning, formerly of Lawson and Four More, their style is also strong pop-rock with melodic hooks and great vocals (early power-pop if you will), compared to Badfinger by Ron Hall.

The four members guested on the album by The Hot Dogs, their label mates.

The band returned to Oklahoma in 1973 and broke up soon after. For more details of them and others on the Memphis scene (1960-1975), refer to Ron Hall's book 'Playing For A Piece Of The Door'.

Feel Alright and I Love You Anyway have been compiled on Thank You Friends: The Ardent Story (2-CD). (SR/MW/VJ)

Carp was formed in the spring of 1966 by four Oklahoma State University students. Produced by Dan Moore and Buzz Clifford (who also both produced the East Side Kids album), their only album is a consistent mix of rock, blues and country with some excellent guitar parts. All the material is original, except for The Great Kansas Hymn (penned by Michael McGinnis) and the lyrics often have a religious feel.

Gary Busey would later become an actor and, as "Teddy Jack Eddy", played drums with another Oklahoma native, Leon Russell. John Crowder, Glen Mitchell and Ron Getman became session musicians and later played with Loudon Wainwright, Tony Bird, Janis Ian, etc. (SR)

This Detroit gentleman first released this same single as by Preston on Sound Paterns 110. This World (Is Closing In On Me) is an atmospheric piece of doomy psych with orchestration, some neat effects and eerie guitar. The Preston version, which is a much hotter rendition with the fuzz guitar and mysterious organ much louder in the mix can be heard on Magic Carpet Ride (LP). Waterfalls is a rather strange track; a ballad with effects galore and vocals like Bobby Vee on acid! Both sides have also been compiled on A Heavy Dose Of Lyte Psych (CD), whilst the flip has also resurfaced on Incredible Sound Show Stories, Vol. 8 (LP). (MW/KBn)

ALBUM: 1(A) COMMUNICATION 1 (Grotesque GS 101) 1971 R2

This is a private pressing from Michigan. For folk fans, this is an undiscovered gem. Kahl is a terrific guitarist who sounds like he was influenced by Davy Graham, especially on the longer tracks which move into Eastern territory. Overall, the record is largely an instrumental work - Carr sings only two tracks and these sound very much like the vocal tracks on the A Cid Symphony album by Fischbach and Ewing. Hecht adds two layers of wordless voice to one short cut, making it a highlight of Side One. Side two of the album is all instrumental, concluding with an achingly beautiful piece that was lifted from Jefferson Airplane's Surrealistic Pillow album, Today. This track is quite breathtaking, especially when Thomas' flute appears and the song largely breaks contact with the Airplane song of the same name. The album has a nice, tasteful-yet-druggy cover design that enhances the overall package. (CF)

Frankie Carr (MA)

ALBUMS: 1 FRANKIE CARR (Tiger Lily 14044) 1976 R1
2 FRANKIE CARR'S ALL NATURAL BAND
(Tribute 1001) 1977 R2

Frankie Carr had been in Tea Company who made an interesting psych album in the late sixties. The Tiger Lily release is a disappointing and poorly produced album of undistinguished rock, aside from the occasional guitar passages and a few melodies. The All Natural Band album actually features sixties recordings by The Naturals (a pre-Tea Company outfit) that are reputed to be a mix of garage and folk-rock. Both of these albums were basically tax scam releases and neither can be recommended. (VJ)

This guy is a fascinating crossover artist from Champaign, Illinois. From 1961 he released singles on Ping and Fraternity under his real name, Arlie Neaville (or "Arlie Nevil"), and formed The Lucky Ones with the personnel above. Primarily a rock'n'roller outside the scope of this project, he ventured into garage-beat territory in the mid-late sixties for the singles above; thereafter he returned to his roots, before finding religion and going down the gospel trail.

The highly-recommended CD retrospective tells his story and demonstrates his achievements - combining Elvis-style rock'n'roll with garage-punk to vibrant effect. Check out his cover of Jailhouse Rock, the top side of what has come to be regarded as a classic punk double-sider. If his hybrid sound appeals, check out the equally unique "biker-punk" supremo Milan.

Compilation appearances include: Run Rabbit Run on You're Playing With Fire (LP); Jailhouse Rock on Ear-Piercing Punk (LP/CD), Pebbles Vol. 6 - Chicago (CD) and Uptight Tonight (CD); Rebel Woman on Ear-Piercing Punk (LP/CD), Pebbles Vol. 6 - Chicago (CD), and The Essential Pebbles Collection (2-CD). ALBUM: 1(A) WONDERFUL DEEDS AND ADVENTURES
(Epic BN 26510) 1969

Subtitled "A Collection of Stirring Scenes and Moving Accidents", this album was initially prepared in Laurel Canyon by Susan and arranged by Dick Halligan of Blood, Sweat and Tears. Produced by Les Carter in New York and recorded in 1968/69, it was recorded with Blood, Sweat and Tears and several New York session men like Elliot Randall and Herb Lovelle.

Clearly influenced by the "art rock" scene and the attempts of groups like Blood, Sweat and Tears to mix rock, jazz, pop and soul, Susan Carter choose to sing mostly covers including the Beatles' I'm So Tired, Buffalo Springfield's Bluebird, Donovan's Young Girl Blues, Randy Newman's Illinois, a James Taylor song, two jazz compositions by Nat Adderley and Billie Holiday plus two original tracks: a medley written by Laura Nyro and the best track, the long Jam Session: Cruising With The Blues by the Carter couple. As Susan Carter had a good voice, the overall result has its moments, even if some of the arrangements now sound dated. (SR)

This classy San Diego, California harmony-pop group is well documented elsewhere and best remembered for the pre-1964 teener classics like Rhythm Of The Rain. Do not dismiss them, as they did survive the beat-boom and the sixties by embracing the burgeoning beat, folk-rock, baroque-pop, and sunshine-pop sounds with some success, if not commercially. Some of their more obscure singles (on Charter, Liberty, Arwin, and Smash) are their most interesting from our perspective.

45:	Security/San Francisco Sunset	(Bridgeville 003-4676) 1976

A rare psychedelic blues-rock album, dedicated to the late Allman Brothers Band bassist. Whilst not released until 1979 it was included in the previous edition of this book and is included here because more information has been unearthed about the band. Only a few hundred copies of the album were pressed, and aside from the mildly-jazzy cover of John Mayall's California, the material is all self-penned. They attempt country-rock (the pretty ballad Driving Me Crazy), boogie (Down In the Belly), mild jazz (View From A Mountain Peak) and even Santana-styled Latin rock (Security). The vocals shared between Cashman and Sadus are quite good, but tragically Sadus apparently died in July 1978, aged just 30, while the album was being made. Robert John Guziejka (who contributed a couple of songs and played with Cashman and Oakley in their garage band days) guests on guitar and there are a few tasty lead guitars scattered throughout the set and some jazzy moments on There's No Tellin'.

MAYBE THE RAIN WILL FALL
THE CASCADES

THE CASCADES - Maybe The Rain Will Fall LP.

Bob Guziejka (gtr), Ron Sadus (drms), Berry Oakley (gtr), and the late Jerry Kokas (bs) had a band called The Vibratones. Doug Cashman wasn't in that band, but he did play in a trio with Bob Lee and Ron Sadus [then on bass] called "Satish-chada" from 1968 to 1971. Cashman moved to California in 1971 and Ron and Bob joined him there in February of 1972. They recorded a few sessions in L.A that included Good Days, Drivin Me Crazy and Security. Ron and Bob then headed back to Chicago and the tapes remained in the can, until Cashman (who was working as a street artist in 1975) met James Vincent in San Francisco. They later recorded what became side two of the album live. James Vincent also made some solo recordings. (SR/VJ)

Formed at the University of Minnesota in Minnesota in 1962 where they started the group largely for self-amusement and to entertain fellow students. In 1963 Lonnie Knight left to form The Rave-Ons and was replaced by Bob Folschow.

Liar, Liar (composed by Jim Donna and Denny Craswell) was a spectacular debut that climbed to No. 12 in the summer of 1965. Despite several fine singles they'd never reach those heights again.

Before their follow-up Dick Roby left to go solo. In late 1966 Bob Folschow was called up for service and Jim Donna went back to college. Replacements were found in Tom Husting and Dennis Libby (from Dudley and The Doo-Rytes) and Gregory Maland (better known as Gregory Dee of Avanties fame). This line-up lasted until the band folded in 1969, after which Craswell, Libby and Maland moved onto Blackwood Apology. Craswell was later in South 40 and Crow. Other members are thought to have been in Hope.

Twas far from the end for The Castaways... Liar Liar was/is a blissfully simple pop song of less than two minutes long. From the opening drum beat, keyboard strains and falsetto lead, it is instantly recognisable. The pining guitar motif, girl put-down lyrics and a break preceded by one chilling scream, add up to a great slice of sixties garage-pop.

It first appeared on album in 1966 on the Bud-Jet label The Big Hits Of Mid-America, Vol. 2 (LP), accompanied by Sam. It would probably have been forgotten after the sixties but for its inclusion on Lenny Kaye's Nuggets - Original Artyfacts From The First Psychedelic Era 1965-1968 (2-LP) compilation in 1972. Since then it has appeared on Wild Thing (2-LP), We Have Come For Your Children (LP & cassette), More Nuggets (CD), Nuggets From Nuggets (CD), Psychotic Reactions (Topline label), Soma Records Story, Vol. 2 (LP) and the Nuggets Box 4-CD box set. Outside of the collector set, appreciation of it has been kept alive in films (notably 'Good Morning Vietnam'), soundtracks and on TV. Quite rightly it has come to be regarded by many as a sixties classic.

After Bob Folschow was called up for service, he played with Ed Truman (drums, ex-Marke V) and Lee Caplin (keyb'ds) as The Castaways. At the time, Bob was using the surname Bob Leroy and stationed in Fayetteville, North Carolina. This outfit played for two years, in and around Durham, Chapel Hill and points North and South, including schools, bars, public venues and a gig at Duke University.

In the late seventies Jim Donna revived his own version of The Castaways, which was still going strong in 2000.

In 1987 Hensley, Craswell, Roby and Folschow formed The Original Castaways with Al Olivera, on the heels of the interest generated by 'Good Morning Vietnam'.

The 22-track retrospective CD collects all their single tracks and adds: three unreleased '66 tracks - Lead Me On, Everytime, Watching The Time Go By; Work Song - a solo release by Dick Roby; and six tracks from the two revived Castaways. With detailed liners from Jim Oldsberg and input from several band members, this is a fine testament to a GREAT Midwest pop act.

45:	You Were Telling Lies/ Ain't Gonna Cheat On Me	(Tornado 1003) 1965

This was an obscure garage band from Lake Charles, Louisiana that would later be known as The Sound Rebellion. You Were Telling Lies is a primitive snarling punker, whilst Ain't Gonna Cheat On Me has some catchy lyrics. Both sides have resurfaced on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 9: The Nightclub (LP & CD) and Hang It Out To Dry! (LP & CD). (MW)

		I'd Like To Know/Rocky Ridges	(Laurie 3444) 1968

NB: α mis-spells group name as Castells.

Here's a Memphis group that blended beat and folk-rock to produce some vibrant sounds. Save A Chance is raw upbeat Brummelesque, first issued on the local Wildfire label - this is unearthed on Fuzz, Flaykes, And Shakes, Vol. 3 - Stay Out Of My World (LP & CD). The jangle quota was upped on the more polished Black Gold single version, compiled on Leaving It All Behind. This is also excellent but many will still prefer the original. The flip, by the way, is a swaying Everlys-style ballad.

Save A Chance can also be found on A History Of Garage And Frat Bands In Memphis (CD) and Leaving It All Behind (LP).

Marijuana Unknowns (LP & CD) includes Rocky Ridges, a slow beat ballad with flute, water effects, smooth harmonies and psychy vibe. It includes the immortal line "Pass the grass and I'll keep saying something I don't mean".

The Miller brothers started out as The Seltaeb Trio but became The Castels in 1965. They continued under this name until 1970 by which time they were back to a trio again (line-up 'X') and became The Miller Bros.

They released an album and several singles in the seventies. For their full story see Ron Hall's Memphis book, 'Playing For A Piece Of The Door' (Shangri-La Projects, 2001, ISBN 0-9668575-1-8).

In 2002 Don Miller produced the 20-track retrospective CD, Keepsakes. (MW/IT)

Hailing from Dallas in Texas, their first single was picked up by Tower for nationwide release and much later Girl Do What You Gonna Do was included on Boulders, Vol. 5 (LP) and Who Needs Tomorrow (CD). The flip to their next single had earlier appeared on the reverse to early versions of their first single. Line-up (A) also had two cuts - Red, White And Blue, a rockabilly-influenced effort and I Heard A Voice Last Night, which featured some good guitar work - on the compilation A New Hi, Dallas 1971-Part 1 (Tempo 2) (LP). Bugs Henderson played on their last two singles on his way to Mouse And The Traps from The Sensors and Stevie Ray Vaughan later fronted Double Trouble.

Their third single was produced by Don Nix and Dale Hawkins, who also produced Mouse And The Traps. (VJ/MW/SR)

45s:	I'm On The Road To Memphis/Amber	(Dot 17277) 1969
	Storm/City Ditty	(Dot 17304) 1969

Catch was a five-piece from California. All the tracks are written by M. Collings/R. White, who was also responsible for Feather - Friends on Columbia in the late sixties. Musically, it's very different; whereas Feather sounds like the third Chocolate Watch Band album, Catch is poppier with quite a few orchestrated numbers like The Dandelion And The Butterfly and the eight ½-minute Nine Roses. The one exception is the glorious psychedelic rocker Crash And Burn.

There was also another outfit of this name from Belmond, Iowa who were previously known as The Confederacy. They recorded one side of a Booking Agent Disc Sampler on Sensational Sounds (5079). The flip side was by Stack. (VJ)

Hidden away on the back of a solid brassy popper, is Deathwise - a fuzz extravaganza that kicks off like the Stones' Paint It Black before moving into freakout territory. The nearest comparison to these ears is Mystic Tide.

The second single is of less interest - See Saw is back to bland and brassy pop with a laid-back rock ballad featuring piano on the flip.

A New York progressive group, Cathedral's album is in the same style as Harlequin. There is lots of mellotron as well as guitars and keyboards and Yes and King Crimson were clearly a strong influence on them. The album is rare and sought-after by seventies prog fans.

This band originally formed on the East Coast and became based in New York. Their first album was recorded at Electric Ladyland in New York and produced by Jimi Hendrix, for whom they opened at several of his concerts, including the famous L.A. Forum concert. Like Hendrix, the band were under management contract with Michael Jeffery and in attempt to escape his clutches their second album was recorded at Pacific High Recording studios in San Francisco in late 1969. Hence, the inclusion of some of their material on the Pacific High Studios Christmas album in 1970.

Larry Packer had previously played with New York Ensemble and Roy Michaels was in The Au Go Go Singers. Charlie Pritchard may have been in Conqueroo.

They then relocated to northern California and changed their name to Cat Mother. Their music had a strong blues and country/folk influence.

They were still together in the late seventies.

Jay Ungar later played in The David Bromberg Band and Bob Smith went solo. Ungar (ex-Family of Apostolic) recently achieved some level of fame recording Ashokan Farewell, used in Ken Burns' documentary "The Civil War". The music from this production won a Grammy award. Charlie Harcourt later played for U.K. band Lindisfarne. (VJ/SR/NWn)

Personnel incl: RICHARD MARTINEZ

45s: Confusion/La La Lu (Decca 31940) 1966
House Of Kicks/True True Lovin' (Decca 32037) 1966

New York outfit The Cats Meow included guitarist Martinez, previously with an early (1966) incarnation of Bohemian Vendetta. Almost certainly a studio group they had just two vinyl outings. Their first single Confusion was a beaty, guitar instrumental, but their finest moment is usually considered to have been House Of Kicks, an appealing combination of surf-harmony falsettos and driving punk guitars. You can find it on Pebbles, Vol. 13 (LP).

Songs were composed and produced by Norman Marzano and James Calvert, who may or may not have been band members, for Koppelman-Rubin Associates (the duo behind the Critters and later a bubblegum empire). Marzano had been in The Videls with Vinnie Poncia and Pete Andreoli; he was also involved in their next venture, The Tradewinds. In 1968 the Marzano-Calvert team would reappear with The Beeds. (VJ/MW)

Cavalry Twill (?)

45: All You Need Is Love/The Girl (MGM K 13849) 1967

Starting this Beatles anthem with the intro of Strawberry Fields is quite a feat. This version soon develops into an uncanny combination of scorching fuzz guitar over trite Flowerpot Men-like backing, complete with multiple vocals and 'la la la's. The Girl (by producer Neil Levenson) is a B-film instrumental with vague Balkanesque leanings. Obscure! (MK)

All About Love/Bo Diddley (Capitol Star Artist 18285) 1966

An obscure Buffalo, New York band whose A Small World, written by Reyes & Reyes, has proved to be popular with the compilers of Everywhere Interferences (LP), Follow That Munster (LP), Sick And Tired (LP), and Trip In Tyme Vol. 2 (CD). Street cred takes a hammering on the flip where they cover the Doris Day number, although it's not quite as awful as one might expect.

Recorded at Rochester's Fine Studios, the follow-up sounds, appropriately, like it was done in a cave! All About Love is a muffled, garage-ballad which stumbles along, bursting into an occasional sprint; it's featured on Psychedelic States: New York Vol. 2 (CD). The flip is better - a stormin' version of Bo Diddley with a shrieking guitar solo. (MW/VJ)

45: It's Trash/The Pillow Bit (Chelle PH 148) 1966

Former members Pauli Walterson and Bob Jabour have produced the Key West Psychedelic Daze Volume #1 (1965-1975) compilation, which at last reveals the identities behind this band and two other Key West, Florida outfits - Paloma (who also featured Pauli Walterson and Tony Rey - one track from 1972) and Overseas Highway (nine tracks from 1970 to 1978 featuring comp co-producer Jim Dean). No new nuggets by The Cavemen however - just their moment of immortality, It's Trash. With its superb iron-lunged vocals, savage guitar-led instrumentation and fine use of echo it typifies all that's best about mid-sixties psychedelic punk.

The Key West compilation dangles a carrot by stating that The Cavemen did record an album which only made it to the test pressing stage (10 copies, it says, also on the Chelle label). Let's hope that any nuggets thereon may be revealed in a future volume.

Jabour had earlier played in a band with Vince (Vinnie) Martell who went on to the Pigeons before hitting the jackpot with Vanilla Fudge. Rey went on to play with Eric Andersen and latterly a band called Guarapo. Roche was later in a Led Zeppelin cover band.

Additional info is provided by the liners on the excellent Teenage Shutdown series, which reveals that the band included two former Coachmen (Jabour and Rey?) and would be known latterly as the 4th Generation until they split.

Other compilation appearances include It's Trash on Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 1 (LP), Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 1 (CD), Off The Wall, Vol. 11 (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 3 (ESD) (CD), Trash Box (5-CD), Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 4: I'm A No-Count (LP & CD), Best of Pebbles, Vol. 3 (LP & CD), Psychedelic States: Florida Vol. 3 (CD) and Key West Psychedelic Daze Volume #1 (CD). 45: Summertime/No Reply (Leaf 6670) 1967

This band came from Rockford, Illinois and recorded on a Janesville, Wisconsin label. Their single features a soft ballad backed by a very basic reading of the Beatles number, sounding more like 1964-era beat.

The band must have enjoyed a large local following as Summertime spent 13 weeks at No. 1 in their local chart. Rick Nielson (later of Cheap Trick), also paid them complements when they became the only band to beat his Grim Reapers at the Sherwood Lodge 'Battle Of The Bands'.

In 1968, the band signed to Mobie Records in Chicago and changed names to The Iron Gate. (MW/KH)

CEDAR CREEK - In The Wind LP.

This Colorado Springs band tackled the Leaves' Too Many People on their spring 1966 debut. In 1967 they became Maibe Handle and finally Broadway Muse And Shell Band when they added vocalist Ellen Dahl.

You Won't Do That first reappeared on Garage Punk Unknowns Vol. 2 (LP) and Too Many People on Wyld Sydes Vol. 2 (CD); all four known recordings and band details appear on Psychedelic States: Colorado (2-CD). (VJ/MW/RM).

45: Bad Day/Call (Steffek 1921) 1968

Here's an historically significant Fort Worth outfit on account of it being one of Beard's early bands. Previously with The Hustlers he went on to The Warlocks, The American Blues and later became drummer with megastars ZZ Top. The band was the house band at Pat Kirkwood's Cellar Club hence their name and inevitably their single is rare and sought-after. Bad Day, a Merseybeat influenced song, was included on Texas Punk, Vol. 9 (LP) and Acid Visions - Complete Collection, Vol. 3 (3-CD). 45: Love Is A Beautiful Thing/Working Man (Lance 111) 1967

Michael Gleicher had started out playing in bands with his brothers Don and Fred; the former was later in Piggy Bank.

This sixties punk outfit was from the Albuquerque area of New Mexico. Working Man has also appeared on The Psychedelic Sixties, Vol. 1 (LP), Boulders, Vol. 5 (LP) and The Cicadelic 60's, Vol. 4 (CD). Both sides of the single also appear on I Wanna Come Back From The World Of LSD (CD) and Bands On Lance (LP). (VJ/MW/MD)

45s: And She'll Cry/Jail (Linjo 106) 1966
Wondering Why/Man That's Gone Mad (Coronado 133) c1966

The Celtics hailed form El Paso, Texas. And She'll Cry is a promising tune and moves in all the right places with a distinctly moody menacing beat that is underplayed without developing into overkill. It can be found on Diana's Rootin' Tootin' Wild Teenage Rock 'N' Roll Party! (LP), Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 2: The Barn (LP) and Sixties Rebellion, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD). Jail is an ode to delinquency with spoken vocals delivered in a aptly rebellious and don't-give-a-damn attitude. 45s: Times With You/It's A Lonely Life (Dante 2291) 1968
For Your Love/Looking For You (Dante 2295) 1968

This Atlanta, Georgia band featured lead vocalist Ronnie Hammond who eventually joined the Atlanta Rhythm Section in 1977 just before they hit the jackpot with Imaginary Lover.

Times With You is a pumped-up punk-popper with scorching lead breaks. It can be appreciated, belatedly, on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 3 - The Auditorium (LP & CD) and Psychedelic States: Georgia Vol. 1 (CD). Looking For You has also had a further airing on Quagmire Volume 7 (CD). (MM/MW/VJ)

Center Family (?)

ALBUM:	1	SHANTI-DAS/SERVANT OF PEACE	(Vector) 1973

This is another example of a community managed by an Indian guru and releasing an album to show the world how happy they were. Mostly acoustic folk with Indian instrumentation, chanting. (SR)

The Center Line (WA)

ALBUM:	1	SAYIN IT... TOGETHER	(Vanco 1008) c1970

The Center Line was from Washington State. Sayin It... Together is an awful album with some spoken pieces and a 14-minute long (very long!) Peace Medley of Beatles' songs including Eleanor Rigby, We Can Work It Out, Within You Without You, All You Need Is Love, Carry That Weight and Hey Jude. Between pop-rock and lounge music, not recommended at all! (SR)

Central High School (CT)

ALBUMS:	1	SOUNDS OF '67	(Private Pressing) 1967 R1
	2	SOUNDS OF '68	(Private Pressing) 1968 R1

These albums came out of a real Central High School from Bridgeport, Connecticut and came with stunning psych sleeves. The music is a mix of folk with female vocals plus electric backing and garage numbers. (SR)

Central Park (?NY)

45:	Flower Hill/Who Wouldn't Want To Be Loved	(Amy 11019) 1968

Produced by Wes Farrel, the manager/producer of Elephant's Memory and Beacon Street Union, this was a Beatles inspired group who apparently issued only this single. The band may have been from New York City.

Flower Hill has since been compiled on Soft Sounds For Gentle People (CD). (SR/VJ)

45:	She's Good For Me/Why	(Wildwood 19045/6) 1967

Centrees came from the rural communities of Tipp City and New Carlisle, near Dayton, Ohio. This very young garage quartet set out as a surf outfit called The Rhythm Riders circa 1963/4. The surf influence is still evident in their garage rocker, She's Good For Me, which can be heard on Back From The Grave, Vol. 5 (LP), and the flip is good too. (VJ/MW/GGI)

45s:	Lonely Girl/I'd Cry For You	(Rich RR-102) 1965
	Don't Let It Fade Away/Just Today	(Rich RR-112) 1966

Here's a cool outfit from Oklahoma City. The first single starts with a yearning pre-beat style teen ballad but I'd Cry For You is the reason why it is sought-after - simple but very effective beat-garage with fuzzed guitar. You'll also find it on Bury My Body (CD). The later single sadly fails to follow up this promise, reverting to basic beat-pop ballads - with horns on the flip. (MW)

45:	Whole Lotta Shakin' Goin' On/ Gandy Dancer	(Mark C # unkn) 1964

The Centurys formed initially as a four-piece instrumental outfit while still at school in Alamo Heights, San Antonio, Texas. With the addition of a vocalist they moved towards the new Invasion/beat sounds and issued their own single, featuring covers of Jerry Lee Lewis and the Ventures. They also recorded an album's worth of material which remained unreleased - although the four recently compiled tracks are supposedly from that project. They continued through to 1966 when, with the departure of Tony Volz and a name change to the Pandas, they put out the awesome Walk single. Check out Andrew Brown's 'Brown Paper Sack #1' zine for their full story.

Four unreleased tracks from 1964 have recently resurfaced. You'll find Johnny B. Goode on Texas Punk, Vol. 3 (LP) and Acid Visions - Complete Collection, Vol. 2 (3-CD); and Back From Eternity, New Orleans and City Surfin on Acid Visions - Complete Collection, Vol. 3 (3-CD). (AB/MW)

Compilation appearances include: Endless Search on Pennsylvania Unknowns (LP); Hard Times and And I Cried on Return Of The Young Pennsylvanians (LP); 83 and Hard Times on Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 1: Jump Jive & Harmonize (LP & CD); Hard Times on Boulders, Vol. 1 (LP) and Ya Gotta Have Moxie, Vol. 1 (2-CD); So The Prophets Say on Quagmire Vol. 1 (CD); Together To Stay on Quagmire Volume 6 (CD); and Don't Bother on Quagmire Volume 4 (CD). 45: I Can't Make It/I Need Her (Panorama 1001) 1967

Here's some solid thumpin' Pacific Northwest sounds, produced by Gil Bateman, from Spokane in Washington State.

I Can't Make It - not the Small Faces track despite the Stevie Marriott vocal mannerisms - is also on Psychedelic Crown Jewels Vol. 3 (CD), The Northwest Battle of The Bands: I'm Walkin' Babe (LP) and Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 2 (CD). I Need Her has resurfaced on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 4 (CD). 45: Changes/Ceyladd Beyta (Vault 940) 1967

NB: A-side is on the LP, but split into three separate sections. B-side contains a different mix of the LP track.

A West Coast group, most of whose personnel went on to greater achievements. Osborne, as a member of The Dillards and later as a session musician for Simon and Garfunkel among others; Knechtel as a member of Bread and session musician for Dave Mason, Lee Michaels, Art Garfunkel and Neil Diamond among others, and Cooder, of course, has made many significant solo albums and done session work for numerous artists. The album is an excellent collection of Indian-influenced instrumentals. The German pressing came with a different front cover design.

Compilation appearances have included: Changes (the single version) on Beyond The Calico Wall (CD only); Ceyladd Beyta (the rare alternate single mix) on Everything You Always Wanted To Know... (CD); and Arton 1 on Microdelia (CD). (VJ/SR)

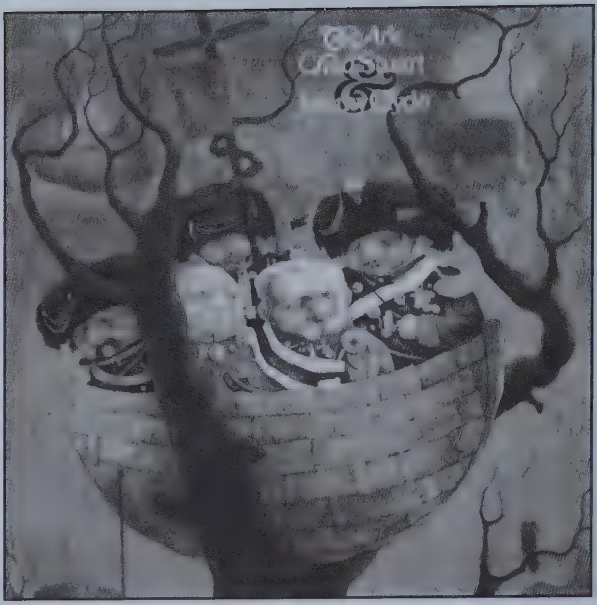
Ex-public schoolboys Chad Stuart and Jeremy Clyde were regarded by Americans as exemplars of that pinnacle of Western civilization, the Archetypal Englishman, and were hence far more popular stateside than at home - the English being less infatuated with Englishness than Americans. Realising early on that their appeal lay in the States, they moved their base of operations to Los Angeles and can be regarded as an American act for the purposes of this book.

The two met in 1962 while studying at the Central School of Speech and Drama in London and formed a duo, performing folk-based pop material. They signed with Ember Records and had a minor U.K. hit (No. 37) in late 1963 with their debut single, Yesterday's Gone. U.S. label World Artists picked up the U.S. rights to the duo and Yesterday's Gone reached No. 21 in the States in June 1964 followed three months later by their biggest hit, A Summer Song. Willow Weep For Me and If I Loved You (from the musical "Carousel") were also sizable hits but when World Artists failed to pay the pair any royalties, they teamed up with Allen Klein who quickly signed them to Columbia Records in March 1965. Their musical style remained the same, a softly melodic but rather cloying harmony-pop, except for a foray into Righteous Brothers-territory with I Don't Wanna Lose You Baby and a comedy single (Teenage Failure), but they were frequently on TV - not only performing their hits but also demonstrating their acting skills on 'Batman', the 'Patty Duke Show', and the 'Dick Van Dyke Show'.

In late 1965, while on tour in the Midwest, they discovered future Chicago and Blood, Sweat and Tears manager James William Guercio, who was then playing in a Chicago group called the Mob. They employed him as their bassist and he wrote several songs for them including their final Top 40 hit, Distant Shores, and later became their manager.

Of Cabbages And Kings Chad Stuart And Jeremy Clyde

CHAD & JEREMY - Of Cabbages And Kings LP.



CHAD & JEREMY - The Ark LP.

Wearied by the unsubstantial nature of their musical output so far, the pair decided to go for something more ambitious and joined up with Byrds and Sagittarius-producer Gary Usher in 1967 for the concept album, Of Cabbages And Kings. The entire second side was devoted to the five-movement Progress Suite which told the story of man from Creation to Nuclear Holocaust. The album however is better remembered by psyche-holics for the 6'46" opening track, Rest in Peace, a gently satirical number inspired by Tony Richardson's film adaptation of the Evelyn Waugh novel, "The Loved One".

Their musical swansong, The Ark (spelt Arc on some pressings), was easily their best album with a number of highly evocative tunes like Pipe Dream, Pantheistic Study For Guitar And Large Bird, and Transatlantic Trauma 1966. Gary Usher spent $75,000 in making it a production tour-de-force but was sacked by Columbia for his pains when it failed to chart. The duo also wrote the music for the movie "Three In The Attic" around this time.

By this time, Jeremy had decided to devote his flagging energies to acting and the pair split up. Since then, Jeremy has become a well-known actor in England on TV and in the movies while Chad remained in the U.S. writing music for television and stage. The two reunited in 1983 for an album, Chad Stuart & Jeremy Clyde, and also in 1986 for an oldies tour.

Compilation appearances have included:- Progress Suite Movement on First Vibration (LP); Sunstroke on Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers 9 (CD); and Rest In Peace on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 6 (double cassette box). (VJ/MW)

45: The Sun/When I Needed You (Date 1538) 1966

Originally known as The Strangeurs, this Stones-influenced outfit came together in The Bronx, New York. They turned professional in 1964 and some time later changed their name to The Chain Reaction. A single for the CBS subsidiary Date met with little success, although the band were regulars on the New York circuit and even got to open for The Yardbirds. When I Needed You is a sparse, Stones-like number with a couple of rasping fuzz breaks and with vocals mixed strangely low.

After they eventually folded in June 1967, Tallarico worked in the studio with the last version of The Left Banke before working the New York club scene with Chain in 1967-1968. He then moved back to Boston where that group split in 1969, worked with Fox Chase (1969) and William Proud (1970) before trying out for the reforming Jeff Beck Group.

Tallarico was then teamed up with The Jam Band by Henry Smith, a roadie and gofer not only for The Stranguers, but also the Yardbirds, The Jeff Beck Group and even Led Zeppelin. In 1970 he changed names to Steve Tyler and with the remnants of The Jam Band formed Aerosmith.

When I Needed You has been compiled on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 4 (LP & CD) and Psychedelic States: New York Vol. 2. (JO/VJ/MW/BPs)

45: You'll Never Know/
G.Y.S. (Get You Some Lovin') ((blank) #67-764) 1967

One of several bands using this name in the mid-sixties, this bunch came from Jacksonville, Florida. Nothing more is known except that G.Y.S. was composed by James Alan Bartlett and it comes across as garagy frat that swings. It's been unearthed on Psychedelic States - Florida Vol. 2 (CD).

It seems that they couldn't decide what to call their custom label so it bears the template" (blank)" in small type.

Other Chain Reaction(s) bands around in the mid-late sixties, with no links to the listed outfits (pun intended), include bands from: Connecticut, Florida, Massachusetts (two), and parts unknown (singles: Ever Lovin' Man/You Should Have Seen Her Yesterday (Verve 10611) 1968 and Definitely Dixie/I've Got A Lot Of Love Left In Me (Dial 4070) 1968). This single was the only known waxing by a group from Old Saybrook, Connecticut. According to Aram Heller in his New England bible, 'Till The Stroke Of Dawn', What Am I Supposed To Do is "good moody garage in the style of The Mauve" yet it remains uncompiled. (MW)

City Boy/Agnes Vandalism (Reprise 0859) 1969

The Knack had been reduced to a trio after Michael Chain went off on a solo trip, which resulted in the Pinkiny Canandy album. They teamed up with Larry Tamblyn, fresh from the break-up of The Standells. This union was christened Chakras and produced a pair of decent, if unexceptional, psychy soft-rock singles. City Boy is agreeable pop-rock, nothing special at all. Agnes Vandalism (also by Michael Kaplan) is better: anglophile pop-psych like heavier Hollies with nice background choir.

Tamblyn moved on again and this time the threesome chose to remain as they were; after all power-trios were "in", so why not? Their next adventure would be known as Chariot. (MK/MW)

Chalis (?)

ALBUM: 1 ONE MORE CHANCE (Ellen Abby 25389) 1975 SC

The Challengers Of Wilson, N.C. (NC)

45: Moon, Send My Baby/Dream (Kix International 2263) 1971

This single was the work of a very young band from Wilson, a town about 40 miles due east of Raleigh in North Carolina. They are therefore unconnected to the Milwaukee, Wisconsin band The Challengers (Of Who). Moon, Send My Baby has a super bluesy intro which gives way to a slightly manic up-tempo punk thrash. You'll find it on Tobacco A-Go-Go, Vol. 1 (LP). (VJ/MW)

ALBUM: 1 LIGHT MY FIRE WITH CLASSICAL GAS
(selected) (GNP Crescendo GNPS 2045) 1968

From California, these Challengers began in the early sixties as a successful instrumental surf group and several of their album sleeves featured Rick Griffin drawings. They somehow managed to survive throughout the sixties and issued this album in 1968. Side one is purely instrumental and contains covers of The Doors' Light My Fire, Steppenwolf's Born To Be Wild and Cream's Sunshine Of Your Love plus three pop songs. The guitar parts are competent, but the addition of strings and horns spoil it. Side two features vocals on some original tracks and more covers, but once again with rich arrangements. Overall, it's a total failure. (SR)

NB: α as shown by The Challengers Of Who.

This Milwaukee, Wisconsin band's first single features a psyched-out instrumental which is a blatant tribute to the kings of American acid-rock. You'll find it on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 15 (LP), Buzz Buzz Buzzzzzz, Vol. 1 (CD) and The Cuca Records Story 2: Garagemental (CD).

The band was never known as The Challengers Of Who, as billed on their second single. John Beaster told Gary Myers in his book on fifties/sixties Wisconsin bands, 'Do You Hear That Beat', that "it was just someone's dumb idea for the record".

Their cover of the Zombies' Leave Me Be can also be heard on Badger Beat Chronicles (LP).

David Chalmers (IL>CA)

ALBUMS: 1 PRIMEVAL ROAD (Same Old Label 64109) 1976 R1/R2
2 LOOKING FOR WATER (River Records SRR 1001) 1977 R1
3 ALL NIGHT LONG (River Records) 197? R2

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (River Records SRR-1000) 1976 with different track line-up. Both editions were released in a gatefold sleeve. (3) was a demonstration-only LP issued in handmade cover.

David Chalmers was from Illinois originally, but relocated to California in the seventies. In the Hendrix style, his first album is full of guitar excursions and decent vocals. It's not a typical heavy guitar record at all. At times it's more in the singer/songwriter mould.

Looking For Water is short on playing time and only contains eight tracks - two of them are remakes of earlier songs. This is a harder-rocking album, with a Hendrix/Mahogany Rush feel.

All Night Long was pressed for demonstration purposes. Only 100 copies were produced. Those that have heard it speak of dreamy arrangements, tasteful guitar work, fine vocals and strong material. (SR/VJ)

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl and CD (Akarma AK 130) 2000.

45: Camillia Is Changing/Your Golden Love (MGM 13929) 1968

This sole album is full of great flower-power pop with heavenly vocals that will appeal greatly to fans of Left Banke and Cryan' Shames. Prior to Chamaeleon Church, Ted Myers and Kyle Garrahan had been in The Lost and after the band's demise, Myers and Scheuren went on to Ultimate Spinach. Kyle Garrahan too pursued a solo career, whilst Chevy Chase went on to fame and fortune with a career in films.

Apparently their album did not truly represent the bands own "sound". During the recording of the album, for example, the bass drum was given its own track but is all but missing from the final mix - Chevy was apparently "rippin' mad" when he heard the final result.... Producer Alan Lorber had wanted to give them an easy soft-rock feel - a phrase that didn't even exist back then, but which was somewhat akin to Orpheus, who had achieved some success at the time with their blend of soft psychedelia.

Ted Myers later wrote a song around '72 called Going In Circles which was recorded by Three Dog Night as the flip side of one of their biggest hits, The Family Of Man. It also was used in a movie called "X, Y & Z". Later Myers recorded an album with studio musicians, called Glider, a single Your Like A Melody and he is now is an A&R Director for Rhino Records. Tony Scheuren went on to the National Lampoon, where he appeared with Chevy in a road company of "Lemmings" (an off Broadway spoof on Woodstock written by Tony Hendra). After that he was in some other road shows and appeared regularly on the Radio Hour. Scheuren is also featured on several National Lampoon albums, two of which were grammy nominated... Missing White House Tapes and Goodbye Pop.

Compilation appearances have included: Off With The Old and In A Kindly Way on The Best Of Bosstown Sound (2-CD); and Off With The Old, In A Kindly Way, Here's A Song, Ready Eddie? (Waltz For Debby), Camillia Is Changing, Your Golden Love, Remembering's All I Can Do, Blueberry Pie, Blueberry Pie (alt), Tompkins Square Park and Spring This Year on Family Circle - Family Tree (CD). The Chambermen (WA)

45: Louie Go Home/Midnight Hour (Chambermen 1292) 196?

The Chambermen came out of Spokane, Washington and put this out on their own label. Louie Go Home, one of the most recorded Northwest songs, can also be found on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 7 (LP). It had a catchy guitar riff and typical garage organ backing. (VJ)

This group of Mississippi-born brothers started out as gospel singers in the 1950s. Keenan joined in 1965 when they switched to a rock format. They went on to record several albums and singles enjoying five U.S. Top 100 hits. It was their biggest, Time Has Come Today which has most relevance to this book. It peaked at No 11 in the US. It is a good example of what might be termed 'psychedelic soul'.

Also noteworthy are the title track from A New Time A New Day which features shards of guitar with leslie speaker effect, over what sounds like a black power anthem. The central instrumental section of the track also features a freak-out with lots of strange sound effects and wild guitar... unique violent psychedelia!

The title track from Love, Peace and Happiness, reissued on CD (GNPD-2224) may also be of interest: a side-long wonder with a lengthy psychedelic instrumental section in the middle (with lots of wah-wah and echo). This is quite a nice track, but is surrounded by a lot of mediocre, poorly recorded gospel R&B.

They recorded an album, Oh My God! in 1972, that remains unreleased and disbanded shortly afterwards, only to reform two years later for Unbonded. They followed this with Right Move in 1975 and, whilst no new studio recordings appeared after this, they regularly performed live in the decades to follow. Much later they released some live albums; Live Fillmore West 65 (2004) in Germany and Live (2005).

They supported Maria Muldaur on her Gospel Nights album and made commercials for Levi jeans. Lester relocated to New York and formed a band with ex-Electric Flag bassist Harvey Brooks.

In addtition, the brothers pursued individual projects and The Chambers Family Choir, a gospel group that also included the siblings' own children.

Guitarists Willie and Joe would find work as session men; George went back to singing gospel music and would later become a deacon of his church. Brian Keenan moved to Connecticut, set up a recording studio and worked as a carpenter, but died of heart failure in 1985. Willie performed with the group Vince and The Invinceables at a benefit concert for Arthur Lee of L.A. band Love in 2006.

This talented New York City-based songwriter duo would achieve some success but also saw this eclipsed by covers of their songs. A vibrant blend of catchy and occasionally punky folk-rock-pop, some of these titles should be familiar - Crispian St.Peters achieved a U.K. No. 5 with his version of Pied Piper, which was also covered by the Human Bein(g)z, La De Da's, and both the Aces Combo and Tony & The Fabulous Spades on their respective Justice albums. It was originally a minor hit for the Changin' Times. New Zealand's garage gods the La De Da's also covered the Changin' Times finest moment How Is The Air Up There - hear it on Ugly Things, Vol. 3 (LP) or Wild Things, Vol. 1 (LP). It's a dynamic snarling garage-pop blast that would've fit right into the Standells' repertoire. Just a month or so after Aladdin appeared, it was covered by the Bo Street Runners.

Artie Kornfeld went on to be one of the quartet that created and organised Woodstock - with Joel Rosenman, John Roberts and Michael Lang. Steve Duboff subsequently released a solo single - In The Peaceful Valley (Woodstock '69)/Song For You (Cotillion 44051) 1969.

Their names continue to turn up on songwriting credits and as arrangers or producers of other acts. Steve Duboff and Dave Morris composed Out Of Sight, Out Of Mind was covered by The Marauders, Limey & the Yanks, the Bit 'A Sweet, and in the eighties by the Outta Place. Artie Kornfeld production credits include singles by the Bassetts, Carnival Connection, Guild Light Gauge, Tuneful Trolley and the Unclaimed (with Milan), Bert Sommer's eponymous album on Kama Sutra in 1971 and Swampgas.

Not to be confused with the identically-spelt (but later) outfit from Memphis, this group were from somewhere in Alabama. Bye Tyme is a moody but smoothly-paced jangle-rocker, whose inner pain is revealed only by some unexpected crashing fuzz chords towards the end. It merits repeated plays and can be found on Psychedelic States: Alabama Vol. 1 (CD). (MW)

It appears that many Carolina "garage" bands on labels like Justice were heavily indebted to James Brown for their soulful sounds. Here's another example from a Taylorsville, North Carolina band who put out a brace of singles on their own Hard Times/Tymes label. This much-travelled mob formed in North Texas State University late in 1964. They journeyed to Miami and then headed to Orlando where Cashwell joined their ranks. His connections with a booking agency got them gigs throughout the South but the rest of he band were not interested in gigging in the North so they parted company with him. Returning to Dallas in 1966 and adding Womack to their line-up they recorded a number of songs which were unable to attract any record labels at the time but which have subsequently been compiled (see below). In 1968 they set off again to try their luck in California. After a spell in L.A. they split up in San Francisco. Karnavas remained there forming The Snakes with ex-Briks vocalist Cecil Cotton, but the rest went back to their homeland.

ALBUM: 1(A) CHAPLIN HARNESS (w/insert and plain sleeve) (M.O.D. Sounds FW-8069) 1969 R2

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Void 34) 2005 with a new cover and a bonus tracks in a limited edition of 600 copies. (1) reissued on CD (Gear Fab GF-237) 2009.

This demo album was recorded in Camden, New Jersey during 1969. It is thought that only 50 copies were pressed for demo purposes. It's a guitar/organ hippie-rock jam with some progressive moments which the Void reissue brought to a wider audience. As with many unsigned rock acts of the period, 1969-1970, there's a rag-tag bag of styles and influences ... falling somewhere between blues-rock, underground, neo-prog, and lounge, with smatterings of soul and jazz thrown in to spice it up ... and therein lies the problem. Ultimately, they fail to impress because of a lack of identity and conviction as to their direction. Ray Bozarth died in the late seventies. (VJ/MW)

ALBUM: 1 A GIFT OF LOVE (Capitol ST 260) 1970 SC

Previously thought to be from the Dallas/Fort Worth area, these chaps originated from Pine Bluffs, Arkansas. Both the singles on Paula are in the garagy beat/folk-rock camp. Wait A Minute features continuous fuzz over a trotting beat, broken only by the unexpected intrusion of a harpsichord... unusual and cool, especially the freaky ending.

After a year on the road, Woodfield left to join The Uniques and Bochette relocated to South Carolina. Matlock and Heird led the band throughout several line-ups in the mid-seventies before forming Matlock.

The last two singles listed above may fill in the obvious gap before the appearance of the later singles on Soft, by which time they'd moved onto a much heavier rock style. They may be the same Chaps who accompanied L.B. Gibson on his 1969 outing, Treat Her Right/Oh Boy (Charay 1003).

Compilation appearances include: Tell Me on Sick And Tired (LP), Psychedelic States: Arkansas Vol. 1 (CD) and Trip In Tyme Vol. 2 (CD); Remember To Forget Her on Psychedelic States: Arkansas Vol. 1 (CD); and Wait A Minute on Sixties Rebellion Vol. 2 (LP) and Sixties Rebellion Vol's 1 & 2 (CD). 45:	Fear/Oracle	(Original Sound OS-78) 1968

This obscure group was from L.A. Fear is a good organ driven mid-tempo track with an excellent intro and male vocals, whilst Oracle, is also an interesting organ-driven piece. The single was produced by Brian Ross with Fear written by Mike Payne and the flip penned by D.Mandish/S.Libbea and R.Helgeson.

In 1991 the Fuzztones covered Fear on their Braindrops album.

Fear has been compiled on Boulders, Vol. 6 (LP), Fuzz, Flaykes & Shakes Vol. 6 (LP & CD) and Shadows Falling (CD). (SR/MW)

The band included former members of Bocky & The Visions plus two former members of Dick Whittington's Cats, previously Richie & The Fortunes. (SR)

Chariot was described by some as a Cream-influenced blues and hard-psych trio, others find them more progressive with cosmic flower-power sensibilities. Previously known as Chakras, they evolved out of a sixties band called The Knack and the above album was recorded in Hollywood. National General was owned by the National General Cinema Corporation and their releases were distributed by Buddah.

English-born drummer Pug Baker went on to play with a number of minor bands, such as the RCA-signed Rocking Horse, and Waves, a group that enjoyed a short tenure with Epic. Baker is still bashing the skins, and is currently plying his trade with southern rockers Ghost Riders. (VJ/SR/SBn/CF)

Charisma was centred around Rich Tortorigi and George Tyrell. Both of them had been members of a New Britain, Connecticut soul band called The Mantiques. The Mantiques had been one of the three main horn-based bands in New Britain in the mid to late sixties. In 1968, Rich Tortorigi recruited Tom Majesky to play guitar with The Mantiques, following their break-up. Tom then recruited Bernie Kornowicz, former bassist of The Last Five, to share guitar and organ duties. The final acquistion to the group was folk singer Mike DeLisa to sing lead vocals.

In 1969 The Mantiques signed with Roulette Records as a convenient tax write off to record an album. The album was produced by Ed Vallone and most of the songs were penned by Bruce McGaw. During the recording of the album, there was a stand-off between the band and their management over their name and eventually the band was told their name would be Charisma - a name they hated.

Following the recording of What's It Like, the first track on the album at Vanguard Studio in New York City, George Tyrell quit the band, Bernie Kornowicz became the bass guitarist, Tom Majesky took over as lead guitarist, and a new organist Bob Mocarsky was recruited:. The remainder of the album was recorded at Incredible Sound Studios in New York City. The only original cut on the album was A Truth Emerged penned by Suzi Langlois (their lyricist) and Bob Mocarsky. There's also a cover of Sono Bono's Bang Bang. Another cut, Yesterday's Folks Medley was originally on the U.S. 69 album. Overall, the album is in a psych/prog style with some light jazz touches and a good dose of humour. Of the Bruce McGaw compositions, Miss Willoughby was clearly inspired by the Beatles and there's a Procol Harum feel to Death Of Me.

Prior to recording the second album, Mike DeLisa decided to quit and Tom Majesky took over vocals. Beasts and Fiends was recorded at the Record Plant in New York City during the summer of 1970. While credit was given to Bruce McGaw and Ed Vallone for production, the album was in fact produced by Charisma under the guidance of Jack Hunt (one of the top engineers at the time who'd produced the 'Woodstock' album). The album was housed in an amusing cartoon cover. Dirty Pigs Don't Get Far In This World, The Age Of Reptiles, The No-Tell Motel and Bizwambi, Ritual Dance Of The Reptiles, all penned by Majesky and Langlois, pay witness to their unusual sources of inspiration. Several tracks are purely instrumental, with interesting keyboards and guitar parts.

Both albums sold better in Europe than they did in the USA, because there was more of a market for this style of music there. Charisma was offered an option to record a third album for Roulette Records, but did not take it up, which in retrospect was probably a mistake.

Rich Tortorigi and Bob Mocarsky then decided to leave the band, but Tom and Bernie recruited Jim Roselle and Mike Reynolds and Jim in turn recruited Paul Midney and Ray Mase. Charisma briefly became Midney (after Paul), but then reverted back to Charisma. Paul eventually quit the group and got into meditation and Ray went on to play with the American Brass Quintet. About this time Charisma, assisted by sound engineers Ron Scalise (now at ESPN) and Norman Campbell (now in California) began building a recording studio and spent the next few years in it. To finance this they had to play more commercial music. They auditioned several singers as front men and finally decided on Brian Salke. He did not appear with them when they preformed live, but he did appear on some of their later recordings. These were recorded between 1973-76, but remain unreleased. Charisma split in 1976. Their records are still largely ignored and hard to find. (SR/VJ/MW)

The Charlatans were the very first San Francisco underground rock band. Their story begins back in the summer of 1964 when George Hunter, inspired by the Beatles, decided to form a rock band. He got together with Richard Olsen, an old college friend, and Mike Wilhelm, a folk singer who had been at school with him. Later that year, Mike Ferguson, who owned an antique shop in San Francisco and had just returned from a trip to Mexico, joined as pianist. Sam Linde was their original drummer, although he was later replaced by Dan Hicks. Hicks had known some of the group at the San Francisco State College. He had done a bit of drumming but his interest really lay in guitar and vocals. At the start the group played Chuck Berry numbers and R&B standards like Got My Mojo Working and My Babe but gradually they evolved the folk-rock repertoire for which they had become famous. Eventually the group was offered a residency at the Red Dog Saloon in Virginia City, Nevada, one of the states adjacent to California. Virginia City, once a thriving mining town, was in danger of becoming something of a ghost town when the silver ran out and its population fell from 30,000 back in the 1870s to just 450 in the 1960s. However, around the late sixties it became a tourist haunt for people armed with cameras and interested in America's history. The manager of the Red Dog Saloon had originally wanted The Byrds to play there, but by then their Mr. Tambourine Man single had given them international popularity so he had to settle for The Charlatans. To mark the occasion of their first appearance Mike Ferguson designed what is generally thought to have been the first rock poster. Here The Charlatans acted as a magnet for the whole hippie scene. News of them soon got around and acid heads came from Reno, 'Frisco and as far afield as Seattle and Los Angeles to hear them play. The Red Dog Saloon predated any of the San Francisco venues and at the time it was the only place on the West Coast where you could hear the new music. When the group arrived at the saloon they were submitted to an unexpected audition - they did this out of their heads on acid! Apparently, The Charlatans had no hassle from the police - there were only a handful of them anyway and they all used to listen to the band, on one occasion even the Governor of Nevada being in the audience.

But things began to go wrong. Despite being packed almost every night, the saloon made a loss because no admission charge was levied so profits could only be made from beer and wine sales. The owner had left his 22-year-old son in charge and was not pleased when he found, on returning to discover the reasons for this loss, that everyone was having a ball at his expense. To make matters worse his visit coincided with two members of the group getting busted on the way back from San Francisco with more drug supplies for the group.

Eventually the band headed back to San Francisco for good, taking with them a reputation on a par with anybody. Before long, record companies began to take an interest in them and they eventually signed with the Lovin' Spoonful's label, Kama Sutra. In retrospect, they would have done better to wait for a company to offer them the sort of advance RCA had offered The Jefferson Airplane. The group cut a nine-track album for Kama Sutra which included the Buffy St. Marie song Codine (later recorded by many other 'Frisco bands), amazing versions of traditional songs like Alabama Bound and 32-20 Blues, and the old Coasters' song The Shadow Knows and two songs featuring Lynne Hughes, who worked as a barmaid at the Red Dog Saloon (and later sang with Tongue and Groove and Stoneground) on vocals - Side Track and I'd Rather Be The Devil. The Charlatans had wanted Codine backed by 32-20 released as a single, but the record company got cold feet because of the mention of 'drugs' in Codine and cut off all contact with the band. This was disastrous for The Charlatans and ironic when one considers that the song was condemning drugs rather than advocating their use.

At this point, Mike Ferguson left the group to join Tongue and Groove with Lynne Hughes, to be replaced by Patrick Bogery, and Dan Hicks gave up the drums to concentrate on the rhythm guitar. So Terry Wilson, who had been playing with David LaFlamme and Jaime Leopold in a group called The Orkustra came in on the drums. But they struggled to get work and Hicks, Bogerty and Hunter left the group for good. Hicks departed to set up Dan Hicks and His Hot Licks. The remaining three (Wilhelm, Olsen and Wilson) recruited a keyboard player Darryl De Vore and were determined to have a final fling. They negotiated a new contract with Philips, although the resulting album was a mediocre affair. This time The Charlatans called it a day for good.

The tragic story of The Charlatans, probably one of San Francisco's most talented bands, that of a group taken for a ride by its record company, was sadly typical of this era.

Readers of this book may also want to check out a solo album Wilhelm (Zig Zag UA 221) released in 1976, featuring Mike Wilhelm and a host of session musicians. Many consider that side one captures The Charlatans' spirit far better than their albums did.

Dan Hicks has recently toured to promote the new Hot Licks album Beatin' The Heat, a studio recording featuring guests Elvis Costello, Rickie Lee Jones, Brian Setzer, Tom Waits and Bette Midler. Richard Olsen still performs with his Richard Olsen Orchestra. George Hunter now runs a cabinet making shop in Sonoma county. Mike Ferguson died from complications of diabetes in the early eighties.

Originally known as Bobby Poe & The Poe Kats, from Kansas, they moved to Washington DC at the start of the sixties. Bobby Poe dropped out of performing to handle the management side, but the remaining members carried on under the same name, backing Big Al Downing. In 1964, as a side project and in response to the wave of Invasion sounds, they cut She's The One with the above line-up as The Chartbusters, and bust 'em they did! This meant leaving the comfort of Big Al and going for it as a bona-fide sixties band. They took their chance and, having invaded the sixties invasion, stayed with it through to the end of the decade. Few genuine rock'n'roll groups from the fifties can have made the transition more successfully or lastingly.

Vernon Sandusky later became lead guitarist for Roy Clark, a guitarist, banjo and fiddle player from Virginia.

She's The One can also be heard on Nuggets, Vol. 4: Pop Part 2 (LP), and Why (Doncha Be My Girl) has resurfaced on Too Much Monkey Business 3 (LP). (MW)

From Colorado Springs this outfit released three singles before evolving into The Chosen Few (not ANOTHER one!), who chose not to release anything.

Their debut features a jerky beat number backed by I'm Sure - a lilting, garagy ballad where Merseybeat meets the early Byrds; no surprise that it featured on the jangley-folk/punk compilation Byrds Won't Fly Today (LP). By their final single in 1967, the sound was fuller and more confident yet they'd retained a 1964-5 beat/dance sound - Unchain My Heart features a brass section with a strong club/show-band vibe.

		I'm The One/Since You Have Gone	(Smash S-2021)	1966
		Summer Has Come And Gone/Count On Me	(Jam 114)	1966

NB: α shown as by The Shadows.

Soon after their 1964 debut, this Louisville, Kentucky 10-piece changed their name from The Shadows to the similarly-sounding Chateaus, to dispel confusion with same-name US bands and the UK instrumental combo. Their next release was an instrumental which did OK, but changes were a-coming. During 1965, they slimmed down as they adopted a Merseybeat sound, initially to a septet, eventually to a quintet. On their third release, I'm The One, they'd adopted the moody, melodic jangle of The Searchers with some aplomb; this did so well locally that it was picked up by Smash for national exposure. Backed by a stomping beat-popper, Summer.. followed in similar moody Mersey vein; it's a thinly-disguised rework of All My Sorrows.

Producer Ray Allen also did the honours for other Louisville acts, including Alphabetical Order. Bill King went on to play for Janis Joplin, Martha Reeves, and the Pointer Sisters. Bobby Webb was next in The Mersey-Beats U.S.A. and Frank Bugbee went onto great things with Soul Inc. .

Count On Me has been compiled on Wyld Sydes Volume 2 (CD). (MW)

45:	Reference Man Pt. 1/Pt. 2	(Eye 1000)	1969

From Vermillion, South Dakota this band included a certain Tommy Bolin on guitar. Until around 1967 they were The Shattoes, formerly the Galaxies, who'd been on the scene since 1963.

Bolin would become a reknowned axe-wielder and writer. He went on to increasing prominence with Zephyr and Energy, before replacing Joe Walsh in The James Gang circa 1973. He left after a couple of albums, released two solo albums and had a brief stint with Deep Purple (replacing Ritchie Blackmore) until their 1976 break-up. He died young, of a heart attack, at the end of 1976.

Compilation appearances have included: Caught Up In The Blues on IGL's Roof Garden Jamboree (LP); Reference Man Part 1 on 30 Seconds Before The Calico Wall (CD); and a previously unreleased version of Mr. Reference Man on The IGL Rock Story: Part Two (1967 - 68) (CD). (VJ/MW)

From San Antonio, Texas this band was formed out of Paul Alien and The Baroques. Best known for their version of Night Time which was picked up by Lelan Rogers for release on his International Artists label, their remaining material was unexceptional.

In '67/'68 the original line-up split up. Miles Wells and Charlie Eddleman, then put together a new line-up ('B') with Jim Frizzell (ex-The Rel-Yea's) and other members of the band he was in at the time. This later line-up lasted until 1972, when The Chayns finally called it a day.

Compilation appearances have included: Night Time on Epitaph For A Legend (2-LP); Live With The Moon on Austin Landing (LP); Run And Hide and Why Did You Hurt Me on A Journey To Tyme, Vol. 1 (LP); Run And Hide on Austin Landing, Vol. 2 (LP), and Sigh Cry Die (CD); and Why Did You Hurt Me on Boulders, Vol. 1 (LP) and Ya Gotta Have Moxie, Vol. 1 (2-CD). Based in Houston, they recorded their first two singles under the name Chaz. The third single, Girl Of The 13th Hour, a snotty punker with a tinge of psychedelia, was issued under the longer name. Check it out on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 11 (LP) and Gravel Volume 3 (CD). (VJ)

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Collectables COL-0617) 1996.

The appetite was whetted when Collectables started reissuing the much-vaunted Justice albums which are rarely seen and go for astronomical figures. Tim Warren had already made the Tempos waxing available again which had just lived up to expectations - with the Barracudas, Invaders, Mod and The Rockers, Stowaways albums in the same stable, expectations of the remaining unknown combos was probably unreasonably high. So it's not surprising to discover that they occupy soul/lounge/club territory, well away from garage/beat sounds. What's more, they perform, almost exclusively, the same covers as each other in a perfunctory style. Stick to the known Justice garage-classics and enjoy them at an affordable price. (MW)

On the Nashville label that put out singles by the Originals, Three From Three and Thee Saints & The Prince Of Darkness comes a classic style punker with superbly snarled and pissed-off vocals and booming backing. No fuzz fest but probably the best cut on Psychedelic Crown Jewels, Vol. 2 (2-LP & CD). (MW/RM)

The story of this Sacramento-area club band is retold by Alec Palao on his 2-CD anthology, The Ikon Records Story, which features Do It To Deff. He reveals that Ikon messed up their album to the extent that it was unplayable on most turntables.

Soon after the anthology appeared, an unknown single turned up (in the UK of all places) and was snapped up, in case it was by the same band. It certainly is and, although not on the "Ikon" label as such, it doesn't take much imagination to guess what "I.R.P." could stand for. Unlike their ill-fated album, this is playable and features a beat-club number backed by a 'cool' soft-shuffle instrumental. (MW)

Cherry People was a popular mellow pop group that some dealers try to describe as psychedelic. They're definitely not, on record anyway, but are remembered as one of the most commercially successful D.C. area bands of the late sixties.

The core of the band was the Grimes brothers and Meadows, who formed the Intruders in 1964 in Washington, D.C. A year later they moved to Arlington, Virginia and became The English Setters, under which name they released three singles. Come the summer of '67 they changed their name again, to the Cherry People, after a trip to New York where they landed a new manager Ron Haffkine and a deal on the Heritage label.

Throughout their long history numerous other D.C. musicians came and went as their rhythm section. Prior to the album, Alves and Kelly left. The Grimes-Meadows triumvirate was joined by drummer Rocky Isaac (formerly with The Tejuns, The Creatures and The Fallen Angels) and bassist Jan Zukowski (Nobody's Children).

The debut single covered the flip side of a 1967 Left Banke single - And Suddenly that was co-written by Michael Brown and Bert Sommer. This can be found on the Colossus Gold (LP), a catalogue sampler released in 1970 on this short-lived label. Imagination has since resurfaced on Fading Yellow Vol. 7 (CD).

Their second single was produced by Ron Haffkine and Barry Oslander.

The band split in 1972 and Punky Meadows went off to form Angel. The Grimes brothers reformed the Cherry People soon after but folded again finally in 1975.

Above are the generally-known facts but they barely scratch the surface or even give the correct impression. The band's full history is far more complex and throws their recorded output into a totally different light, thanks to label/management shenanigans. For example, the band apparently sounded nothing like their album (on which they played on just one track). To get the full low-down, check out Mark Opsasnick's 1996 book 'Capitol Rock' (ISBN 0-9655017-0-1). (SR/MMs/MW)

The two releases of I Cannot Stop You feature different mixes with horns more prominent on the U.S.A. release. Dick Coughlin: - "We recorded it at Audio Sound Studios in Cleveland, Ohio and the horns were played by Dr. Don Sheets, who played four different parts. He is now a local Veterinarian."

Three 'previously unreleased' tracks on Thee Unheard Of (LP) compilation are by a different act entirely and include, a cover of The Beatles' Birthday, Feel A Whole Lot Better and the weaker See Suzie Run.

These Beatles-imitators had a large local following around their home town of Kansas City, Missouri. They were originally known as The Chesmann and their sole single came in a picture sleeve. Their cover of Pete Townsend's Circles has resurfaced on the cassette compilation, Monsters Of The Midwest, Vol. 1, High All The Time, Vol. 2 (LP) and Storm In The Garage (3-CD box).

The group started in 1964 and eventually called it quits around 1973. A popular mid-sixties Dallas band with a strong live reputation. They underwent frequent line-up changes but all of the above were members at some time. Although their original singles are hard to come by many tracks have been retrospectively compiled. In particular, I Need You There is a killer punk masterpiece, backed by a folk-rocker.

This outfit harboured quite a lot of talent and unsurprisingly many of them were involved in other projects later. Doyle Bramhall played with Stevie Ray Vaughan and Double Trouble, Bill Etheridge briefly replaced Lanier Greig in ZZ Top before being edged out by Dusty Hill, Sammy Piazza went on to Dry Creek Road Band and later still to Hot Tuna and Jimmy Vaughan was in the Fabulous Thunderbirds.

Hailing from Abilene, a sizeable town in western Texas, this garage punk outfit has received good compilation coverage. In particular, Come Back Bird is a pretty fine effort, but Dangling Little Friends is a real gem, with a hypnotic beat and scathing lyrics.

The Titan single was recorded in Hollywood after the band won the 'Vox Starfinder Battle Of The Bands' in 1966.

Originally known as Time, this band was formed by Barry Goldberg and cut a six-track demo in 1966, on which Mike Bloomfield appears to have helped out. Apart from Goldberg, Judy Novy had previously recorded an album with her older brother as Len & Judy. Bob Slawson had been in a couple of folk bands, like the Almanac Singers.

The first two singles were produced by Bob Crewe and Al Kasha on Crewe's label and the first hit the Billboard charts at No. 37.

Barry Goldberg was soon recruited by Mike Bloomfield for Electric Flag, but Bob Slawson put together a new Chicago Loop and signed a new deal with Mercury.

The band also did a Macleans Commerial spot released on the Macleans Is What's Happening album (Macleans MR-6555) 1966. This features tracks by Jeannie Brittan, Tommy Roe, Peter and Gordon, The Four Coins, Mitch Ryder and The Detroit Wheels, Marilyn Maye, The Tokens and Stan Getz/Astrud Gilberto. They are all doing a 30-second song about the wonder of Macleans toothpaste. It sounds like Mike Bloomfield is playing the guitar on the 'Loop's version of the commercial.

The Mercury singles are brash up-tempo popsters. The final effort is good pop-with-fuzz backed by a strange unsettling number with spiralling fuzz that gives it a psychy feel and a somewhat off-the-wall ending. Their first Mercury single is nowhere near as good.

John Siomos and Carmine Riale also played with Mitch Ryder.

Compilation appearacens have included: This Must Be The Place on Fading Yellow Vol. 3 (CD); and Beginning At The End on Psychedelic States: Illinois Vol. 1 (CD). (MW/SPr/JLh/SR/RAd/VJ)

ALBUM: 1(A) CHICAGO TRANSIT AUTHORITY (2-LP) (Columbia PG 8) 1969 171

NB: (1) also issued in France, U.K. (2-LP) (CBS 66221) 1969, Germany, Holland, etc. (1) reissued on CD (Rhino/Atlantic R2 76171) 2002.

Produced and conceived by James William Guercio, a Chicago producer already responsible for The Buckinghams' success, Chicago Transit Authority was one of the first "big rock bands with horns". Their first album is really interesting, notably for Free Form Guitar: seven-minutes of Hendrix-like improvisation on guitar and Liberation: 15 minutes recorded live and full of great guitar mayhem courtesy of Terry Kath. Prologue was recorded at the famous Democratic Convention of Chicago in August 1968, during the confrontation between black militants and the police. There's also a cover of Steve Winwood's I'm A Man. Unfortunately, after this good debut, the group became known as Chicago and that's a totally different story, really out of the scope of this book!

Terry Kath, their talented guitarist, killed himself while playing Russian Roulette in 1977. Pete Cetera had earlier played with The Exceptions. (SR)

CHILD - Self Titled LP.

CHICAGO TRANSIT AUTHORITY - Self Titled CD.

This short-lived outfit specialised in melodramatic cover versions of popular songs of the day. The album, which was recorded at Select Sound Studios, in New York, includes slowed down versions of classics like Hold On I'm Comin, You'll Never Walk Alone, Old Man River and the instrumental Exodus. All come with lots of very heavy organ in the same mould as Vanilla Fudge. It's certainly worth a spin. (VJ)

45: Brink Of Death/Anne With Love (PS) (Limelight L-3084) 1968

N.B. there's also as a DJ-only promo (Limelight DJL-3084) 1968, which comes in the standard picture sleeve but the 45 has mono and stereo versions of Brink Of Death.

An interesting sole waxing by this five-piece, presumably from the New York or Washington DC area. Produced by electronics wizard Walter (aka Wendy Carlos), Brink Of Death was also written by Bert Sommer of Left Banke fame. It is a haunting lament with phased vocals and lots of orchestration, as one would expect, plus doses of strange effects. Strangely enough the flip, though not penned by Sommer, sounds much more like the Left Banke - a kind of psychy baroque-pop.

Compilation appearances have included: Brink Of Death and Anne With Love on Incredible Sound Show Stories, Vol. 8 (LP); and Brink Of Death on A Heavy Dose Of Lyte Psych (CD). (MW)

One of the more commercial acts to come from San Antonio, Texas in the 1960s, Perron, Cabaza, Szuch, Trieber and Holzhaus had all previously been with The Mind's Eye. It had been speculated that Bill Ash (ex-The Stoics) had been in The Children as a version of The Stoics Enough Of What I Need appeared on the flip of The Children's first single. Chris Holzhaus has, however, told us that he played on all The Children's recordings and that Bill Ash had only been an early member of The Mind's Eye.

Rebirth is a soft-psych album with harpsichord, flute, falsetto backing vocals and some orchestrated passages. It's difficult to single out individual tracks as they are mostly of a consistent standard, although Pictorial has a dramatic intro that descends into guitar mayhem, but the track continues for a for minutes after this. Just Military School and I Got Involved are dispensable on the album.

Mike Marechal replaced Trieber after Trieber was killed in a drag boat accident at McQueeney Lake outside San Antonio, Texas in 1968. Their second single was taken from their album, produced by Lelan Rogers. There may also have been a test pressing for an album on Ode.

Cassell Webb was later in Saddlesore and went on to production work and a solo career. She is now based in the UK. Perron also enjoyed a brief solo career but sadly died of an accidental doze of a pain killer called Darvon on 8 August 1973. Holzhaus went on to Eastwood Review. Bill Ash died of a heart attack in May 2001.

The Gear Fab reissue CD features nine bonus Children tracks, both Argyles singles, the Stoics' single, and Help I'm Lost by The Mind's Eye. This is highly recommended.

Compilation appearances include: Francene on '69 Love-In (CD); and Enough Of What I Need on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 23 (LP) and Acid Visions - The Complete Collection Vol. 1 (3-CD).

The Children's cover of Ian Whitcomb's This Sporting Life on Boulders, Vol. 5 and Ya Gotta Have Moxie, Vol. 1 (2-CD) is by a different L.A. band. (VJ/MW)

The Children of Darkness (IL)

45:	She's Mine/Sugar Shack A-Go-Go	(Royce 5140) 1966

Allegedly from 'Oblong' in southern Illinois, this was their sole vinyl venture. She's Mine is a typical garage punker with great organ about an independent-minded girl that is really cool. The flip, is a sing-along party track, with brilliantly numbskull lyrics.

There's some dispute over the bands origins. Oblong is indeed located in east Illinois, due west of Robinson in Crawford County, (which borders Indiana just north of Vincennes), but its also said that the band claimed to come from here as a joke that was meant to go along with the name The Children of Darkness being a reference to a Casket/Coffin...

Compilation appearances include: She's Mine on Back From The Grave, Vol. 2 (LP), Garage Kings (2-LP) and Psychedelic States: Illinois Vol. 1 (CD); and Sugar Shack A Go Go on Pebbles Vol. 7: Chicago 2 (CD) and Hipsville, Vol. 2 (LP). (VJ/MW/KBn)

45:	You Can't Erase A Mirror/August Mademoiselle	(Soho 101) 1968

The Captives came together in 1965 in Thousand Oaks, California and after a few personnel changes became Mushroom, then Children Of The Mushroom in 1967. You Can't Erase A Mirror was a psychedelic ballad, whilst the flip is also an enchanting psychedelic folk-rock track. Unsurprisingly the single commands a very high price tag, and has been heavily compiled.

They started off doing Doors type material, and then turned into a sort of an Iron Butterfly "clone". In fact, the lead singer, Jerry McMillen, was rumoured to have auditioned with Iron Butterfly, and possibly even sang on their first album, Heavy (check the credits on the album - the vocals for one song are listed as "Darryl with Jerry" - could it be?). By late 1970, Jerry was also playing flute, and their material had progressed into a sort of psychedelic version of Jethro Tull. At that point they changed their name to Lady.

In 2004 Jerry McMillen produced a very limited, numbered DVD, Anthology (J&K Productions), which features photos, images and rare video footage of the band performing at a local festival circa 1968. The soundtrack begins with snippets of contemporary sounds that inspired them, then you get to hear both sides of their single, three unreleased COTM tracks (The Mushroom Theme, Care For Me, It Won't Be Enough), a pair of Mushroom tracks (Blade, Vortex), and five unreleased tracks by Lady. An enthralling glimpse back at a magical time - to quote Jim Rolfe on the insert "Like a bit of magic we are lifted for a while".

Compilation appearances have so far included: You Can't Erase A Mirror on The Magic Cube (Flexi & CD); August Mademoiselle on Pebbles, Vol. 9: Southern California 2 (CD) and Filling The Gap (4-LP); You Can't Erase A Mirror and August Madmoiselle on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 11 (LP), Slowly Growing Insane (CD) and The Human Expression And Other Psychedelic Groups - Your Mind Works In Reverse (CD). The Chimes (AL)

45: #38/Foolish Pride (Matrix S 777) 1968

This was Dothan, Alabama's answer to Dave Diamond and The Higher Elevation. Composer Douglas Huber was a local DJ who came up with some weird alliterative lyrics, spoken Bob Markley-like, over music composed by The Chimes. OK, it's not quite 'out there' with Dave Diamond's classic Diamond Mine but #38 is quite weird'n'wonderful, with flanging and tremolo effects and great harmonica.

It awaits your pleasure on The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 2 (2-CD), Psychedelic Crown Jewels Vol. 3 (CD) and Psychedelic States: Alabama Vol. 2 (CD). (MW/MM)

Chimps (PA)

ALBUMS:	1	MONKEY BUSINESS	(Wyncote W/SW-9199) 1967 R1
	2	MONKEYS A-GO-GO	(Wyncote W/SW-9203) 1967 R2

N.B. Neither album is credited to The Chimps.

Philadelphia area band Chimps released two interesting cash-in/'exploito' albums. Monkey Business contains a couple of Monkees covers and occasional garage noises. Monkeys A Go-Go has three Monkees covers, some Zombies-like manoeuvres, and one outstanding psychedelic cut, Fifth Class Mail. This begins as a pop waltz before degenerating into an off-the-wall freakout; it's been included on A Heavy Dose Of Lyte Psych (CD).

Tired of monkeying around, the band released a single on Cameo in 1967 as the Thomas A. Edison Electric Band and by 1970, when a single and album appeared on Cotillion, they were known as Edison Electric Band. (MW)

Let The Winds Blow has a driving beat, reverberating guitar and typically tough-sounding punk vocals. You'll find it on The Midwest Vs. The Rest (LP) and Tougher Than Stains (LP), whilst Marbletown has re-emerged on Wyld Sydes Volume 1 (CD).

Both sides of the M5 single were composed by Kathy Lynn. Both sides of the 2nd single were written by Eugene Pistilli, later of Buchanan Brothers, aka Central Park West and Cashman-Pistilli-West. Previously though to be a Connecticut band, they do NOT feature in Paul Bezanker's authoritative book 'Connecticut Rocks!' More likely they were an upstate New York outfit - firstly, Marbletown (see flip of first single) is in Ulster County, New York and, secondly, Eugene Pistilli was a New York-based songwriter/producer. NB: (1) reissued on CD (Gear Fab GF-130) 1999 and vinyl (w/insert) (Akarma AK 071) 2000. Both reissues appear to have a mastering error that sounds like a skip at the beginning of Dear Friends.

45: Mr. Sunshine/Golden Image (PS) (Crested Butte 1200) 1972

Foote, MacKenzie, Naylor and Taylor were all in progressive rock outfit called Sassafrass from Westchester County, New York, when Tony Chirco asked them to help complete a project he'd already begun with other session musicians. The album was recorded in New York and Connecticut. It features lot of fuzz and vibes and Barry Tashian of The Remains helped the band record their sessions in Wallingford, Connecticut. Every track's a winner in what is for the most part a stunning blend of guitar and keyboards with a jazz feel, but it also has a spiritual feel in places too. The finest moment is probably the final track Child of Peace and there's also a cover of Barry Tashian's Mister Sunshine.

The album was originally issued on a local Colorado label, although the band was apparently never based there - a very curious marketing strategy! The label was run by a Chilean businessman J. Carlos Schidlowski who ended up being convicted in both the States and Chile for various financial irregularities. Visitation was the first of just two album releases on the label; the other being a very MOR effort by Paul Hampton.

Anvil Roth passed away some years ago and the whereabouts of many of the other band members is not known.

You can also hear 33 Years on Gear Fab's Psychedelic Sampler (CD). (VJ/MW/MSk/CF/NK)

Arguably We're Pretty Quick was one of the best singles to come out of New Mexico in the mid-sixties. They came from the Albuquerque and were also responsible for Why Am I Alone? credited to Choab (a euphemism for pimple!).

We're Pretty Quick was covered in 1984 by the Fuzztones on their album Leave Your Mind At Home. In the same year another eighities New York City retro-garage band, The Outta Place, reworked it as the title track of their debut album, We're Outta Place.

(Collectables COL-0597) 1995

An early seventies rock band from Texas, The Chocolate Paintbox's CD has 10 tracks. Little is known or revealed on the CD liner notes. Sadly a lot of the music is also pretty anonymous and uninspiring, despite the liner description of 'acid trips' and 'psychedelia' - mellow folk/blues-rock it certainly is.

All the songs were written by R. Hillburn and D. Michael Franklin. (MW/NK)

45: Let's Tranquilize With Color/
One By One (Jack O'Diamonds J.O.D. 1011) 1967

Such a trippy group name and with titles like Let's Tranquilize With Color, it may sound like it's gotta be wonderful psych but, too often, it's exploito psych or tame MOR flower-pop put out by a producer with studio musicians, eager to catch the latest trend; such is the case here.

Alex Zanetis, owner of a small Nashville label, harvested some studio musicians and issued this flowery-pop offering in late 1967. It should appeal to fans of The Love Generation, Fifth Dimension and Free Design but there's something missing - the lull in the middle is obviously where a guitar or keyboard solo was to be inserted!

This curio can be heard on Psychedelic Crown Jewels, Vol. 3 (CD). (MW/RM)

This San Jose band formed in the summer of 1965 at Foothills College in Los Altos and was discovered late the following year by Ed Cobb. Their original line-up included Pete Curry on drums, who went on to become guitarist/songwriter with The Halibuts. His time in the band was severely limited however, and after their first gig was replaced by Gary Andrijasevich. Although nothing was released by the first couple of line-ups (*), they were reputedly on par with the "classic" Chocolate Watch Band, with Dan Phay being a particularly charismatic front-man.

The band was also friends with another act called The Topsiders who for a short while included Skip Spence, prior to his joining Jefferson Airplane. In 1965, both bands underwent a number of changes, with Phay, Torney and Kemling all leaving to join The Topsiders (who then became The Other Side), whilst Sean Tolby, moved from The Topsiders to The Chocolate Watch Band. Indeed Mark Loomis (ex-Shandels) also had a brief spell with The Other Side after Rich Young was drafted, before he decided to reform the 'Watch Band with Gary Andrijasevich and Jo Kemling. The latter opted to stay with The Other Side however, and bassist Bill Flores (ex-Shandels) and vocalist and biology student Dave Aguilar were drafted in to complete The Chocolate Watch Band's new line-up. Heavily influenced by British R&B outfits like The Stones and The Yardbirds, the band gigged regularly around the Bay Area supporting bands like The Doors, Big Brother and The Holding Co. and The Mothers of Invention.

They were signed to Tower and recorded a debut single in 1966. Sweet Young Thing, written by Cobb, was a fine Stones' influenced number, but with an uniquely Californian interpretation. Inexplicably, Tower issued the single on its black R&B subsidiary label, Uptown, which did not, as a white group on this label, attract the airplay it deserved.

On Cobb's insistence, The Chocolate Watch Band returned to the studio to record a cover version of Blues Theme, originally performed by Davie

Allan and the Arrows, on the soundtrack to The Wild Angels. However, Tower was not convinced of its commerciality, and Cobb leased the finished master to Hanna-Barbera records. It was released, under the pseudonym, The Hogs, as HBR 511, with Loose Lip Sync Ship, which culminates into a strange psychedelic piece of dementia, on the flip side. It was quite successful locally and Davie Allan's version of Blues Theme became a Top 40 hit.

The 'A' side of their next single Misty Lane was more commercial than and not as powerful as Sweet Young Thing. The flip was an uncharacteristically reflective, quieter number with a stringed and woodwind section.

1967 saw the band record two tracks Don't Need Your Lovin' and Sitting Here Standing, on the soundtrack to 'Riot On Sunset Strip'. September 1967 saw the release of their debut album No Way Out. Essentially a collection of psychedelic punk, containing the impressive Let's Talk About Girls, punk versions of Come On and In The Midnight Hour as well as drug-influenced songs like Expo 2000, The Dark Side Of The Mushroom, Gossamer Wings and the title track. Many of the songs have an Eastern influence. It has later been revealed that the band did not play on the spacier tracks on this album, for which Cobb used session musicians. It is now known, too, that arranger Don Bennett and not Dave Aguilar sang the vocals on Let's Talk About Girls. However, the full band did play on Are You Gonna Be There (At The Love In)/No Way Out their next single lifted from the album. Aguilar's explanation for the mixed-up nature of the studio recordings is that the band considered themselves primarily live performers who "loved to challenge big-name groups and blow 'em off the stage. That's where we got our excitement and our kicks". The studio stuff was considered a mere sidelight which they left mainly in Cobb's hands.

The Eastern influence was developed further on their excellent second album, The Inner Mystique, which appeared in February 1968 and was actually comprised of outtakes from the first album plus new recordings that didn't feature the band. Aguilar, Loomis and Andrijasevich had all quit before the release of the first album leaving Flores and Tolby to fill their spaces with other musicians from the San Francisco Bay Blues Band. The band did not appear at all on the 'A' side, which was the work of Ed Cobb's session musicians. There was a mystical/Eastern element to instrumentals Voyage Of The Trieste and Inner Mystique, (both written by Cobb) and in their cover version of We The People's In The Past. The band itself did play on side two, which included a remix of Dylan's Baby Blue taken from their first single, an excellent version of Ray Davies' I'm Not Like Everybody Else and The Brogues' I Ain't No Miracle Worker. Flores and Tolby also quit in late '67, prior to the album's release, although this was because of the problems in maintaining a stable line-up rather than any frustration with Cobb's influence over the band's recordings.

With no band to promote the release, a year passed before Ed Cobb persuaded some members to reform the band and have another go. Guitarist Danny Phay (from The Other Side) came back in as a replacement for Dave Aguilar, who decided not to get involved again. The band wrote all the material for the resultant One Step Beyond album, but aside from I Don't Need No Doctor, it's comparatively disappointing. They split again after this album was released in 1969 and an attempted reformation in 1970 lasted just one month.

Also of note was a short-lived act known as The Tingle Guild, who included Mark Lomis, Dan Phay, Gary Andrijasevich plus his cousin Chris Ramey. Original drummer, Pete Curry, also returned to the fold for a while, but presumably the band fizzled out...

Dave Aguilar was reported, in 1983, to be Professor of Astronomy at Colorado University and he then moved into doing research for the aerospace industry. Rich Young now gigs in the bay area with Jerry Miller of Moby Grape fame. Sean Tolby is now dead.

Later revelations that the band did not play on some of their album tracks perhaps diminish a little of their reputation, but they remain one of the most interesting West Coast bands and they made some fine music.

In 1999, the band reformed for a gig at the three-day "66-99" event in San Diego on 12th June and later at the New York 'Cavestomp '99!' on Nov 5-7th alongside The Standells, Monks et al.

Retrospective releases have included Forty Four which includes all of the material the band actually played on; The Best Of The Chocolate Watch Band; Are You Gonna Be There? and Melts In Your Brain - Not On Your Wrist: The Complete Recordings (2-CD) contains every single the band ever recorded. On this project Big Beat has collaborated with band members, producer Ed Cobb and manager Ray Harris to create arguably the best compilation of the band with lots of photos, notes and cuttings. Disc one contains the entire works of their classic line-up, Disc two their early demos, their post-Dave Aguilar album One Step Beyond and all the pseudonymous and mysterious recordings they baffled the world with back in 1966.

They continued to do occasional gigs and in November 2002 were half of a dream billing at the Great American Music Hall in San Francisco, with the Electric Prunes! At this point the line-up comprised Dave Aguilar (vocals), Tim Abbott (guitar), Ned Torney (guitar, keyb'ds), Gary Andrijasevich (drums), and new boy Alec "Nuggets From The Golden State" Palao on bass. Finally in 2005 they made it over to the UK to headline at the Beat Bespoke Weekender.

Compilation appearances have included: Are You Gonna Be There (At The Love-In)? on Sundazed Sampler, Vol. 2 (CD), Excerpts From Nuggets (CD) and Nuggets, Vol. 2 (LP); Are You Gonna Be There (At The Love-In)? and Sweet Young Thing on More Nuggets (CD); Are You Gonna Be There (At The Love-In), Let's Talk About Girls and Sweet Young Thing on Nuggets Box (4-CD); Let's Talk About Girls on Nuggets - Original Artyfacts From The First Psychedelic Era 1965-1968 (2-LP) and Nuggets (CD); Sweet Young Thing on Pebbles, Vol. 7 (LP) and Nuggets, Vol. 6: Punk Part 11 (LP); No Way Out on Psychedelic Perceptions (CD) and Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD book); Don't Need Your Lovin' and Sitting There Standing on Riot On Sunset Strip (LP); Don't Need Your Lovin' on Garage Music For Psych Heads (cassette); there's an alternative previously unreleased

Originally called The Mods, this band formed in Mentor (near Cleveland), Ohio in 1964, adopting that particular musical genre popular in Cleveland - U.K. mod-pop. The line-up revolved through many changes with members constantly coming and going. The nucleus was Wally Bryson, Jim Bonfanti and Dave Smalley (3/4 of the Raspberries). Jimmy Skeen was another member. When they recruited vocalist Eric Carmen from Cyrus Erie they became The Raspberries.

THE CHOIR - Choir Practice CD.

Their vinyl zenith was the classic Its Cold Outside, a melodic, Merseybeat-influenced pop song, which has subsequently been heavily compiled. The flip, was much more punkish.

The EP, released in the late seventies, features five unreleased tracks: - Anyway I Can, Don't Change Your Mind, I'd Rather You Leave Me, Treeberry and I Only Did It Cause I Felt So Lonely. The group split in 1970.

Upon The Choir's demise Margolis moved immediately to Los Angeles, where he formed another ambitious group, Sanctuary, with Richard Tepp and eventually Rick Caon. Jim Bonfanti briefly considered leaving music but instead approached a post-Cyrus Erie/Quick Eric Carmen about forming a 'bar band'. Enthusiasm soon took over and the 'bar band' idea was shelved in favour of a totally English-inspired group, somewhat along the same lines as The Mods and Cyrus Erie. With the addition of Wally Bryson and a band mate of his from the group Fortega, John Alleksic, the new band settled on the name Raspberries and a reactionary (for 1970) British Invasion/Beach Boys' sound. In a bold move, they even adopted shorter, vintage Beatle-length haircuts and matching suits. By the summer of 1972 (and with Dave Smalley added as Alleksic's replacement), The Raspberries were positioned at No. 5 nationally with the classic Go All The Way. Other hits followed. After three albums, Bonfanti and Smalley left the Raspberries over a long-running dispute with Carmen over image. Bryson and Carmen continued with The Raspberries for one more album, 1974's Starting Over (voted one of the best albums of the year by 'Rolling Stone'). Though the album yielded a sizeable hit in Overnight Sensation (Hit Record), the band soon ground to a halt. By 1976 Eric Carmen re-established himself as a Top 10 recording artist, though now in an ultra-commercial singer/songwriter mould. Bryson, who went on to record albums with Tattoo and Fotomaker in the late seventies currently plays in the Cleveland area band, Sittin' Ducks, with Dann Klawon and Kenny Margolis.

While not every ex-member of The Choir is still involved in music, Denny Carleton currently enjoys an international cult following for the home studio pop creations he releases through his Green Light label. Randy Klawon keeps the spirit of The Mods and The Choir alive; he currently performs obscurities like The Pretty Things' Come See Me and Yardbirds' Little Games in a band called The Newcastle Quartet.

Choir Practice compiles on CD almost all their known recordings mostly from 1966 to 1969.

Compilation appearances have included: It's Cold Outside on Nuggets Box (4-CD), Pebbles Box (5-CD), Pebbles, Vol. 2 (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 4 (ESD) (CD), Pride Of Cleveland Past (LP), Excerpts From Nuggets (CD) and Great Pebbles (CD); I'm Going Home on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 9 (LP) and Best of Pebbles, Vol. 2 (LP & CD); I'm Going Home and It's Cold Outside on Pebbles, Vol. 2 (CD) and Trash Box (5-CD); Don't You Feel A Little Sorry For Me, I'm Going Home, It's Cold Outside, No One Here To Play With, When You Were With Me on Psychedelic Microdots Of The Sixties, Vol. 3 (CD); I'd Rather You Leave Me on Who Put The Bomp (LP); and Any Way I Can on Sundazed Sampler, Vol. 1 (CD).

Here's another one of the way, way too many Chosen Few's. From Butte, Montana they relocated to Wrightsville Beach, North Carolina in 1966 to play a summer-long residency. While in North Carolina they recorded this single, on which they perform a stomping version of a Pacific Northwest fave by Dave Lewis, backed by the Holland-Dozier-Holland classic. CHOSEN FEW

THE CHOSEN FEW - Self Titled LP.

Time Was is a hypnotic garagy power-popper with fuzz and Eastern influences that pushes all the right buttons. The flip is noteworthy too - a shimmering hook-laden fuzzy garage-ballad.

In 2005 Denny Bayless recalled: "Before The Chosen Lot, Panny and I had played together in a popular local band, Carl Edmonson and the Driving Winds. I can't remember how we hooked up with Tony Brazis and Bob Ritter for The Chosen Lot... nor what happened to Tony or Bob after; The Chosen Lot didn't last long. Rick Coghill and I played together for years before - we were first together in The Continentals, who featured Larry Kinley on vocals who is still a Cincinnati favorite locally. In 1966 Rick and I played the James Brown session at King Records for James Brown's Christmas album, James Brown Sings Christmas Songs produced by the late Bud Hobgood. Rick went on to form a messianic Jewish gospel duo, Lamb, where he was quite successful for years in the gospel market. Panny left the music business to help run his family business, Dixie Chili, a worldwide marketed Sarakatsannis version of the very famous Cincinnati chili."

Rick Coghill and Denny Bayless went on to The Glass Wall.

Compilation appearances have included: Time Was on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 8 (LP & CD), Sixties Archive, Vol. 6: Texas/Michigan Psych (CD) and Psychedelic States: Ohio Vol. 1 (CD), where it is joined by If You Want To. (MW w/thanks to Denny Bayless/GGI/MM/KBn/MB)

This one-sided album was recorded in Topeka, Kansas. The band also had a non-album single and gigged quite a lot locally. The album's six tracks include a cover of As Tears Go By - on which the female vocalist Angel turns in a good performance. Believed to be from Long Island, New York this combo's sole single is a decent two-sider, labelled 'soul-rock' on the top side and 'folk-rock' on the flip. Actually, Cold Summer is moody fuzz-pop - the soul flavour is in the forceful vocals and raucous yelps.

Compilation appearances have included: Cold Summer on Sick And Tired (LP), Trip In Tyme Vol. 2 (CD) and Psychedelic Archives Vol. 7 (double cassette box); How Many Times on From The New World Vol. 1 (LP); and Cold Summer, How Many Times, Marshmallow Cake and Scarlet's Not Here Yet on Frog Records Story, Vol. 1 (CD). 45: Grizzly Bear/Touchdown (Tap. 0002) 196?

This Texas outfit's psychedelic/progressive album has been increasingly attracting attention from collectors in recent years and has also had a limited repressing on vinyl and CD, including an official reissue by Gear Fab. It combines some fine fuzzy psychedelic guitar work on tracks like Dark Road, Queen Mary and Disaster with mellow, laid-back songs like In Your Time and Beautiful Lady, whilst the mystical Magic Cycles leans towards the progressive genre and The Wind is notable for some bluesy guitar. Well worth tracking down, just 1,000 copies are thought to have been pressed originally and most US copies of the album were white label promos. It failed to sell at the time and is now one of the rarest major label US albums.

They formed in 1968 in Houston, Texas and were originally known as United Gas. They performed a lot at a Houston club called 'Tangerine Forest' and the club's owner Nick Lee secured them a recording contract through his Las Vegas and L.A. connections. Metromedia suggested a name change to avoid confusion with Pacific Gas and Electric, although the band continued to perform as United Gas. The new name was inspired by St. Christopher and Avitts and Walden's material took on a spiritual flavour.

During the recording of the album, Doug Tull was having severe problems with drugs. He attempted suicide, was fired, and the album was completed using session musicians (line-up 'C'). Tull then joined fellow Texans Josefus; but he would eventually commit suicide.

Doug Walden was the brother of Snuffy Walden (of Stray Dog) and he eventually relocated to Oklahoma where he played in a blues band.

One cut from the abum Queen Mary is compiled on Gear Fab's Psychedelic Sampler (CD). (VJ/MW/RM/SR)

This is another fine album by an entirely different band, from Columbia, South Carolina. Only 100 copies were pressed originally making it an ultra-rarity, although the various reissues on Rockadelic/Atlas/Scenes Of/Lion will bring it to the attention of a wider audience. There's lots of good guitar work on this album, from the fuzz psych of Holiday (with its effective drumming) and Modern Day Oracle to the bluesy guitar on Day Of Sunshine and the title cut and the more melodic and mellow mood of The Great Clock and Fugue. This is recommended. (VJ/MW)

The Souls were a McAllen, Texas band who gigged in the Texas Valley area with other area acts - including the Marauders and Cavaliers. In 1966 they were approached by Christopher Voss, who was the elder brother of their original bassist. Chris wanted to record two songs he'd written and they were duly waxed on the local Pharaoh label. The single features line-up 'C', but with Chris replacing vocalist Allen, which explains the new moniker. Kudos and thanks to Andrew Brown for allowing us to fill in the details from his 'Brown Paper Sack #1' zine which divulges the histories of many Louisiana and Texas sixties bands.

Lyrically, Diamonds, Rats and Gum was unusual with words like "I'll give you rats and five pieces of gum and then you'll know I'm not a bum!"

ALBUM: 1(A) BLOWIN' AWAY (Chelsea BCL1-0234) 1973

A little known group formed by Tomme Boyce from Boyce and Hart in the early seventies. The cover art is rather intriguing, with a face lost in a cloud on the front sleeve and the band hidden in a thick smoke cloud on the back.

Recorded in Hollywood, most of their material was written by Boyce, who also produced the album, and Overly. The music is typical of the early seventies, with several tracks strongly influenced by the Rolling Stones (Brand New Boogie At 10 A.M is even dedicated to Jagger) plus some slower numbers.

The interest in this album mainly resides in the lyrics, with many name dropping phrases (about Mick Jagger, Rod Stewart, Lenny Bruce, Ralph Nader and Doris Day) and counterculture examples, especially in the long Celebration and in Sandra, The Cat Lover with:

"I'd probably want to go there
Just to smell the scent of fresh stoned air
People smokin' hash and rolling marijuana
Like it was legal
Just livin' every day,
Without a moment of waste to spare"

The album also contains two strange covers: Paul Simon's Cecilia (rather awful) and the old Zip A Dee Doo Dah.

After this album, Overly, O'Connor and Pemberton formed Aim. (SR)

A southern California group formed by a rock critic, Christopher Milk was a "comic rock" group. Their records included mostly parodies (I Want To Hold Your Hand sung by a Bob Dylan imitator...) and songs like In Search Of R. Crumb, sometimes with good guitar parts. NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (MGM SE-4547) in 1993. (1) reissued on CD (Rev-Ola CRREV94) 2005 with eight bonus tracks.

This Ithaca, New York band recorded just one album. All the tracks were composed by group leader Barbour, who came originally from Canton, Ohio. Musically their album is soft, intricate psychedelia with a few more intense tracks also included. Most notable is Dr. Roots Garden, which has an early "Floydish" feel to it, whilst the album as a whole has a very strange sound that is exceptionally unique with beautiful clear female vocals.

It is thought that mono copies of the album were DJ only. Price guides tend to list these as worth less than stereo copies but in fact they are much harder to locate!

Barbour had at least one of his later songs recorded by Martha Velez. Dahaud Elias Shaar went on to play drums with Van Morrison first appearing on his His Band And The Street Choir album. He is also the drummer on the live It's Too Late To Stop Now and Veedon Fleece releases. Paul Album also played with Fear Itself. (SR/EDMoulin/VJ/DMy/MW)

ALBUM: 1 CHURCHILL (Attarack AT-5003) 1970

45: Freedom's For The Birds / Better Not Wait 'Til Tomorrow (Attarack ATT 105) 1970

Co-produced by Ray Harris, Emory Gordy and Ed Cobb (Standells, Zoo), a rock trio with some blue-eyed soul influences. Most of their material was penned by Spooner Oldham and Cobb and as they also cover The Box Tops' Cry Like A Baby, they may have come from the Memphis area. Some tracks (Doggone) are decent but overall the result sounds rather uninspired.

The cover art is rather funny, with a dusty hand doing the peace sign. The band is of course totally unrelated to the Israeli band Churchills. (SR/MW)

45: I Gotta Get Back To My Baby/ The Amazing Three (Amazing 3 SJQ-101) 1968

A catchy strummed pop-rocker is showcased on this rarely-seen single by an unheralded Los Angeles act. What makes it worth seeking out is The Amazing Three - heavier rock sounds and, despite a little brass, there's plenty of growlin' fuzz and distortion to be savoured.

Don Adey would team up with Terry Rae (ex-Palace Guard and Strawberry SAC), Paul Downy, and Tim Smyser to form Strawberry Jam. They made enough of an impression on the folks at Dunhill to be signed up but, by the time any record appeared; only Adey remained and their name had been abbreviated to Jamme. (MW)

Prior to this band, Armand had been in an outfit called Kack Klick. The Churchmice operated out of Irondequoit, New York.

Armand Schaubroeck spent some time in jail in the early sixties and then began a solo career with at least five albums (including the 3-LP set A Lot Of People Would Like To See Armand Schaubroeck Dead, the double Live At The Hollywood Inn, Ratfucker and I Came To Visit But Decided To Stay) in a style very influenced by Lou Reed. He now runs Mirror Records, home to the Chesterfield Kings, and with brother Blaine, the House of Guitars store, in Irondequoit, New York. He also produced Jerry Porter's album.

Deep Inside/Psychedelic Soul (Warner Bros. 7095) 1967
Grey Days/No More Tears (Ivanhoe 1801) 1969

From Canton, Ohio and previously known as The Echos. By the final single all bar Joe had been replaced by the Jackson brothers. Their finest moment is Hay Girl, an uptempo punker with an effective organ backing which gives way to a drum roll chorus and becomes quite psychedelic half way through before reverting back to a more usual garage punk style. Interested? Well, it's resurfaced on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 9 (LP), Boulders, Vol. 1 (LP), Ya Gotta Have Moxie, Vol. 1 (2-CD) and Psychedelic States: Ohio Vol. 2 (CD); and you'll also find I Want More Lovin' on Psychedelic States: Ohio Vol. 3 (CD). Don't get too excited about the Psychedelic Soul single however - it's more soul than psych!

Joe Vitale had previously done time with The Measles (a group featuring Joe Walsh amongst others) and would go on to Marble Cake who didn't make it onto vinyl. In the seventies he rejoined Joe Walsh when Walsh went 'solo' after the James Gang. Vitale contributed vocals, keyboards, and synthesiser and flute in addition to drums, and was Walsh's main 'Barnstormer' from 1972's Barnstorm album through to 1978's But Seriously Folks. For those who groaned when Walsh joined the Eagles, this represents his peak period which of course includes the Smoker You Drink album featuring the classic Rocky Mountain Way. During this stay Joe Vitale also found time to do a solo album - Roller Coaster Weekend (Atlantic SD 18114, 1974). (MW/GGI/VJ)

The debut single by this Amarillo, Texas outfit features a pair of rockin' beat covers. It's notable as an early outing for J.D. Souther, whose prominence resulted in a name change for the follow-up. Having relocated to L.A. during this period, Souther's next major project was Longbranch Pennywhistle, as half of a duo with Glenn Frey. They split after one album, Frey moving on to greater success with The Eagles. Souther went on with a solo career which was interrupted for a while in the early seventies when he formed country-rock supergroup, Souther-Hillman-Furay, with Chris Hillman (ex-Byrds) and Richie Furay (ex-Buffalo Springfield and Poco).

Circus is a melodic rock album from Cleveland, Ohio. This is one of the early examples of what became branded as 'power-pop' (strictly speaking outside of this book's remit), an early-to-mid seventies style that was particularly popular in Cleveland thanks to its premier exponents, The Raspberries. A dynamic pastiche that mixed elements of sixties mod, pop and hard-rock (especially the Who, the Stones and the Nazz) and grafted them onto slickly-produced, hookladen and dramatic teen-pop. They were very popular for a while locally, but failed to break beyond their state boundaries.

45:	I'm Walkin'/Bar Room Wiggy	(Panda 6075-29) 1975

Released on a local label based in Madison, Wisconsin this album was produced by Corky Siegel (Siegel Schwall Band) and is a combination of heavy rock and blues with jamming guitars and keyboards. Particularly noteworthy is the 12-minute, Old Age, which features some lovely ringing guitar in the Quicksilver style, but is a little marred by a drum solo! You To Me and Let Me Tell You also feature some nice guitar work. Much of the rest of the album is a sort of dispensable bar boogie rock.

The band formed in Stevens Point, Wisconsin in 1969 and was known as Sound Street (line-up 'A'). They toured throughout the state plying their particular brand of blues and rock. In 1970 they signed up with North Central Productions, brought in Ray Cyr on drums, changed their name to Circus and relocated to Madison, Wisconsin. Their touring expanded to take in the Midwest, the South and New England. In 1972 Konkol was diagnosed with a rare form of terminal cancer and had to be replaced (he died in 1973).

45: Negative Dreamer Girl/Lonely Man (Vanguard 35063) 1967

Hailing from Austin, Texas, this band played a mixture of hard-rock, folk-rock and West Coast with flower-power lyrics. Their two albums are not easy to come by, but they are not expensive and recommended for their excellent guitar work. The first album contains seven Bob Bruno songs (mostly psychedelic with some jazzy touches, notably on Wind) and four by Jerry Jeff Walker (which are more folk-rock oriented).

At the end of 1967 they gave a unique concert at the Carnegie Hall with the New York Pro Musica, a baroque ensemble.

Their second album is equally interesting and contains songs like Mixtures and Parallel which are really nice. Neither of these albums sold well however and the group broke up.

Jerry Walker later enjoyed a long and successful solo career, as a singer and a songwriter (his Mr. Bojangles was covered by many artists, including the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band and Bob Dylan).

Compilation appearances have included: Hello Baby, Neverland and Oops I Can Dance on The New Sound Of Underground (LP); Rest Of My Life To Go on Songs Of Faith And Inspiration (CD); and Lost Sea Shanty on The Electric Coffee House Volume 2 (CD). (VJ/SR)

Originating from the New York scene, this decent pop-rock group is of most interest for its member's solo careers: - Carole King was formerly a Brill Building songwriter with her first husband Gerry Goffin. Their melodic songs were covered by several groups, notably Wasn't Born To Follow by The Byrds and Take A Giant Step by Taj Mahal. As a singer/songwriter, Carole King would become extremely popular with her best seller album Tapestry in 1972.

The City's album features the original version of Wasn't Born To Follow along with other classics including Snow Queen and Paradise Alley. The soft pop-rock album has a laid-back sixties hippie vibe and was out of print for 30 years prior to the CD reissue!

Previously with The King Bees, The Fugs and Clear Light, Danny "Kootch" Kortchmar went on to play with James Taylor, formed Jo Mama with Charles Larkey in 1970 and became a session musician. One of the best American drummers, Jim Gordon can be found on hundreds of records and went on to play with Delaney and Bonnie, Leon Russell, Traffic and Derek and The Dominos to name just a few.

Charles Larkey was in The Myddle Class and married Carole King. He would later commit suicide. (SR/KSI/MW)

ALBUM: 1(A) BLUES FOR LAWRENCE STREET
(Nouveau Records NR 5001) 1967 R5

Here's a very rare private electric blues album from Fullerton, California. Their sound is comparable to The Blues Project or the early (pre-Cipollina) Quicksilver Messenger Service line-up as heard on the Groucho underground releases. Lesher and Payne were previously with a group called The Northern Sound who issued two rare singles of British Invasion-influenced rock in 1965 and 1966, but I don't have further details. (CF)

From Seattle, Washington the band's members had previously been in The Imperials, Rocky and The Riddlers and Rocky and His Friends. Under this name they cut a fine version of Stagger Lee in a straight forward rock and roll format. After their demise Jeff Beals went on to play with The Kingsmen, Ric Ulsky joined The Association and Jeff LaBrache played with West Coast Natural Gas/Indian Puddin' and Pipe. They had a previously unreleased version of Tossin' and Turnin' included on Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 (LP) in 1966.

Tossin' and Turnin' has been compiled on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 - Flash And Crash (LP & CD), Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 (CD) and The History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 4 (LP). (VJ/MW)

Formed in Bellevue, Washington in 1965 as The Zu, they became The City Zu after local DJ, Pat O'Day suggested that "City Zu" would add a more bubble-gum appeal. They played in a gritty punky pop style not dissimilar to Paul Revere but with more harmony. They secured a record deal with Columbia and when the resulting single flopped did a further two for Dot. In fact, their singles did garner heavy airplay, but problems with distribution meant their singles didn't hit the stores until much later, and conseqently sold far fewer than they otherwise might.

Still, Too Much, Too Soon, Too Fast, a punky pop number with some adventurous harmonies, can be heard on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 16 (LP), although the end result is a rather messy production. You can also locate I'll Find Another on Gravel Volume 3 (CD).

Around the time of the singles, The City Zu got to open for many of the big names that came to town, including The Who, Herman's Hermits, Dave Clark Five, Sonny and Cher, Yardbirds and The Byrds.

Dave Roland also hit the skins for The City Zu after The Wailers had split up in 1969. Foos and Heath went on to play for a later The Sonics line-up and both had spells in Paul Revere and The Raiders (Foos 1974 - 77, Heath 1972 - 77 with both rejoining circa 1980).

The band is still going strong today although Jerry Zu is the only original member left. They are mostly to be found playing the casino circuit in Nevada, although they are still based in Seattle. (VJ/MW/SC/KCandJZu)

This loud, bluesy rock group featured the screaming vocals of Lynn Carey and loads of guitar on tracks like Stormbird, Baby Let Me Out, Mean Hearted Man and the nine-minute Trilogy. The group was managed by Robert Fitzpatrick, an associate of Robert Stigwood. He would recommend their young female singer to the Hollywood composer Stu Phillips and that gave birth to the Carrie Nations project.

Lynn Carey would soon become better known as Mama Lion. The guitarist Jefferson Kewley later played with Sandi Szigeti. (SR/NK)

Clean-cut boys from Kansas City, Missouri whose forte was soft, harmony-vocal beat and pop. Managed by Charles Dimmel, father of Drew & Doug, they lasted from 1963 to 1977 and are best remembered for their hits, Julie and Graduation Goodbye.

Not a garage band, despite Julie appearing on Monsters Of The Midwest Vol. 1 (cassette) and Any Old Time on Wyld Sydes Volume 5 (CD). The follow-up The Yang Yang moved into soulful brass-pop territory and is not recommended.

In August 2007 they reunited to headline a charity gig, billed as "Kansas City's Greatest Reunion Jam", along with the Chessmen, the Fab Four, and Gary Mac and the Mac Truque.

Several other Classmen were around in the mid-sixties:- one from Colorado, another in Indianapolis, and arguably the best known an R&B group from Detroit (with singles on the J, Volkano, and Impact labels). (MW/VJ)

An 'acid' influenced skiffle band, whose album though weak technically, is good fun if you can obtain a copy. They were based in Berkeley, California.

Their second album, under the pseudonym, The Masked Marauders, was an attempted imitation of Dylan, Lennon-McCanney, Harrison and Jagger. This album was the result of a spoof album review in 'Rolling Stone'. The fictitious review, by Greil Marcus, described a bootleg album by The Masked Marauders, supposedly featuring a super group that involved, among others, Bob Dylan, Mick Jagger, John Lennon, Paul McCartney and George Harrison! It claimed that the album was released without any information as the participants wanted to remain anonymous. The joke though backfired as many who read the review believed it and started searching for the album. Rather than admitting the truth at this point Marcus and Langdon Winner got the musicians of the Berkeley group, The Cleanliness and Godliness Skiffle Band, to record songs with titles used in the review and to make it 'convincing' by imitating the various supposed famous participants. The album (along with a single) were released by Warner Brother/Reprise but issued as if on the Deity label - the non-existent label that was cited in the review. At this point, 'Rolling Stone' did publicise that the album was a spoof release.

Hirsch, Johnston and Marsh all played at various times with Country Joe (McDonald). (VJ)

Skiffle Band's

CLEANLINESS AND GODLINESS SKIFFLE BAND - Greatest Hits LP.

Bob LaPalm and Timothy Griffin were previously in Bold and went on to form Clean Living with various musicians. This group offered a good-humoured mix of country, blues, rock and good-time music.

Produced by Maynard Solomon, their first album is musically diverse, with three different lead singers and material covering rock (Berry's Sweet Little Sixteen), bar songs (In Heaven There Is No Beer), delicate ballads (Charles Street) and "religious" songs (Jesus Is My Thing, Jesus Is My Subway Line).

In 1973, Danny Weiss (Everything Is Everything) produced Meadowmuffin. Norman Schell was now clearly the lead singer and the album loses in variety what it gains on direction. Being more country-oriented, it's probably less interesting than its predecessor. (SR)

Clear Blue Sky (NC)

45: Morning Of Creation/Ugly Girl (Romat 1005) 1967

Recorded in Greenville, a small town in eastern North Carolina, which I believe, is a leading market centre for bright leaf tobacco. Morning Of Creation sounds like Jefferson Airplane without the extra dimension that Grace Slick's vocals gave them. Despite this, the layered harmonies are quite effective and the rhythm section is quite competent. You'll also find it on Tobacco A-Go-Go, Vol. 1 (LP). (VJ)

Along with Mark Lepine (vcls) and Dave Lawrence (bs), Angott, Ward, and Rocco were previously in the Tryumphs who, in 1966, committed to tape at least two songs: covers of the Yardbirds Mr. You're A Better Man Than I and the Byrds Chimes Of Freedom. In 1968, after Lepine and Lawrence had left and Keith Buckley joined, the band switched names to Clear Blue Sky. Though they were popular in their home town surroundings of Northwest Detroit, they were never able to achieve widespread success. Clear Blue Sky never officially recorded, but tapes survive of the band's versions of Along Comes Mary, Uncle Jack, I'm So Glad, Are You Happy?, Can't Take It and the group original Mr. Pebbles, which should definitely interest many garage/psych fans.

Buckley and Angott continued to record throughout the seventies and eighties, and in December 1999 completed cover versions of a few of their favourite songs by sending tapes back and forth between Michigan and North Carolina! When not creating music, the pair stays busy by running the My First Band web site (www.myfirstband.com), a site that requests submissions from members of former sixties garage bands such as Clear Blue Sky and documents their histories accordingly. A book is also currently in the planning stages. (MDo/DA/KB)

This heavy rock band from Los Angeles evolved out of Brain Train and was a novelty at the time, possessing two drummers. Their only album was a fair debut, although the band never looked likely to break into the first division of American rock. It achieved modest commercial success peaking at No 126 in the Billboard Album Charts. Often their songs lacked distinctive melodies. This was not the case, however, with A Child's Smile, the shortest and one of the best tracks on the album. Another strong track Black Roses was issued as a single. The non-album flip side, which is excellent, was taken from the film "The President's Analyst" which they appeared in briefly. The original line-up included Robbie "the Werewolf" Robison, husband of Peanut Butter Conspiracy's Barbara Robison, on rhythm guitar but he was replaced by keyboard player Ralph Schuckett in mid-1967, just after vocalist Cliff De Young had joined the group.

Clear Light

CLEAR LIGHT - Self Titled LP.

In early 1968 guitarist Bob Seal was sacked from the band and replaced by Danny "Kootch" Kortchmar, who had previously played with The King Bees and The Fugs. Sessions for a second album began but before it was completed Clear Light split up. Lubahn, Ney, Schuckett and Kortchmar all played on Porpoise Song from the soundtrack of the Monkees' film Head.

After Clear Light, De Young became an actor, enjoying a long and varied film and television career. He recorded a solo album for MCA and had further success with the soundtrack album to the TV series Sunshine. Schuckett and Ney (as Michael Stevens) went on to the Peanut Butter Conspiracy, appearing on the For Children Of All Ages album. Lubahn, who had earlier done session work for The Doors went on to play for Dreams and Pierce Arrow before forming Riff Raff in the eighties; he was bassist for the Billy Squier band. Ney and Kortchmar later played together in The City. Dallas Taylor (ex-Factory) hit the jackpot as drummer for Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young.

Sand, another track from their album, was also covered by a Mexican outfit, Los Laud Jets, (in Spanish) entitled Mira. The 1988 Edsel reissue of their album includes one track She's Ready To Be Free which was not on the original album. This single's 'B' side, which was also featured in the James Coburn cult classic "The President's Analyst", is also included as a bonus track on the Collectors' Choice Music CD reissue.

Compilation appearances include: The Ballad Of Freddie And Larry on Kings Of Pop Music, Vol. 2 (LP); Sand on Endless Journey - Phase Three (LP) and Endless Journey - Phase I & II (2-CD); and Black Roses and Mr Blue on Elektrock The Sixties (4-LP). (VJ/MW/SR)

Itinerant Vaudeville performers Joseph Ximenes and his sister Lorraine, originally from Brooklyn, New York were better known as Travis and Coventry Fairchild. Whilst in Miami in 1966 they were teamed up with the Moss brothers, from local trio The Twilights, to become The Clefs Of Lavender Hill.

A quartet of appealing Invasion-pop singles appeared in quick succession and the impetus was carried into recording an album. Such a promising start was snuffed out however when Date chose to shelve the album. The Moss brothers departed and, although the Clefs soldiered on for another couple of years, nothing further was released.

After their demise former-Montells drummer Napoleon would encounter Milone in the power-trio Smack.

Stop! Get A Ticket was also covered by Cleveland's Baskerville Hounds (as The Statesmen).

Travis also co-wrote No Place Or Time for The Echoes Of Carnaby Street.

Young folkie singer-songwriter Click Horning was based in New York and released three singles in 1966-1967. A couple of years later, still looking like he was barely out of school, he put together a pleasant folk-pop album with producer Tom Wilson. Horning wrote all the songs and most are delivered in hushed tones, sweetly-enunciated in an almost twee, Donovan style. It's an album full of slow and spooky tunes like Girl On My Mind, For Judith, My Precious and Theme Too. The stand-out track is the sitar tinged Many Times Jimbo.

Of more relevance here are the singles - orchestrated folk-pop in a more commercial vein than the album. The second airs two catchy pop numbers, where comparisons to Donovan are again unavoidable. The third features the waltzing Girl With A Mind and the bluesy-folk Rainmaker (not the Nilsson song), which is the pick of the crop.

Girl With A Mind has been compiled on Fading Yellow Vol. 6 (CD) and you'll also find another of their cuts, Many Times Jimbo on Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers 6 (CD). (SR/MW)

Buzz Clifford began his career in 1957 and had a big novelty hit in 1960 with Baby Sittin' Boogie. After several singles and one album (Baby Sittin' With Buzz), he moved to California and began working with Daniel Moore.

Between 1967 and 1973, both men would play a key role in the Los Angeles Sound, as producers, songwriters and arrangers. Their production credits include the Hamilton Streetcar, the East Side Kids and Colours, as well as some non-California groups like Carp and Head Over Heels. Buzz Clifford's songs would be recorded by several of the groups he produced plus many other pop and rock acts including David Anderson.

Produced by Richard Delvy, his album See Your Way Clear was recorded with Daniel Moore plus a who's who of Los Angeles and Texas musicians: Rob Edwards, Gary Montgomery and Carl Radle (Colours), David Marks and Matthew Moore (Moon), David Doud, Michael Doud and David Potter (East Side Kids), Ed Lively and Joseph "T-Bone" Burnett (Whistler, Chaucer, Detroit and Greenhill), Stephen Bruton, Jim Keltner and Bernie Leadon (Hearts and Flowers). All the tracks were written by Clifford, except for Dan Moore's Hollywood Joe and Ricky Sheldon's We'll All Get By. The album is not excellent but has its moments.

Clifford appears to have stopped recording and producing after 1974. (SR)

ALBUM: 1(A) THE CRYING OF A GENERATION (w/poster insert)
(Joint Artists JA 332) 1975 R1/R2

This is a local Bay Area release. Some copies were issued with a poster showing the cover art and a statement from Clint: "I am no longer afraid to admit it - I am an insane animal", which may be true, but regrettably is not much in evidence on the album itself. Clint himself sounds more depressed than crazy, and actually breaks down in tears on the 11-minute Angels Don't Need Friends. Much of the album is acoustic folk. (CF)

Pena, Templeton and Cope joined this band from The Lavender Hour and Mike Teaque and Steve Headley from the same band were also briefly members of The Clique, who operated in Austin, Texas between 1966-71. They are best known for their fine cover of the 13th Floor Elevators' Splash 1 which was also featured on 21 KILT Goldens, Vol. 2 (LP).

Two of their three Top 100 hits, Sugar On Sunday and Sparkle And Shine, were written by Tommy James and The Shondells. Most of the White Whale singles are from the album, but they may also have recorded a non-album single for Laurie. Teaque was later in Just Us, who issued a single on Mod International, and Tiger's Claw.

REM later covered Superman, which was written by their album producer Gary Zekley and M. Bottler, on Life's Rich Pageant.

Their music should appeal to fans of soft-pop, psychedelia and West Coast sixties craziness. Sugar On Sunday - Definitive Collection (CD) comes with rare previously-unpublished photos and comprehensive liner notes. It features rare sides never before on compact disc, including the unlikely hit cover of The Thirteenth Floor Elevators' Splash 1.

Retrospective compilation appearances have included: Gotta Get Away and Splash 1 on Austin Landing, Vol. 2 (LP); Splash 1 on Endless Journey - Phase One (LP), Endless Journey - Phase I & II (2-CD) and 21 KILT Goldens Vol. 2 (LP); and I'll Hold Out My Hand and Sugar On Sunday on Happy Together - The Very Best Of White Whale Records (CD). A RoFran production, i.e. Roger Francisco, who was behind several other releases on the Rofran and Custom labels (Dearly Beloved, Mad John Fever, The Impalas, The Prodigies) and who was later in Spoils Of War.

You can also hear So Hard, a short punker with raw vocals, on Back From The Grave, Vol. 7 (LP). The flip is a primitive blues/folk ballad. They appeared in a locally televised 'Battle Of The Bands' competition in 1966. (VJ/MW)

THE CLIQUE - Self Titled LP.

ALBUM:	1(A)	CLOCKWORK	(Greene Bottle 1013) 197?

Housed in an unipak cover, an obscure group, somewhere between Crosby Stills Nash and Young and Blue Mountain Eagle, with covers of Paul Simon's Hazy Shade Of Winter, Steve Stills' Rock & Roll Woman and Hitchcock Railway.

Greene Bottle was a subsidiary label of Paramount. (SR)

Clockwork Orange (NY)

45s:	Sweet Little Innocent Lorraine/Help Me	(Rust 5119) 1967
	Image Of You/What Am I Without You	(Rust 5126) 1968

This New York City combo produced two interesting singles. Whilst Sweet Little Innocent Lorraine is quaint post-Sgt. Pepper 'psychedelic pop', Help Me is heavier and is rather reminiscent of early Iron Butterfly. Image Of You is disappointing soulful pop but it's the flip again that comes up trumps. This is pumped up psych-pop with some wonderful licks.

Compilation coverage has so far been limited to What Am I Without You? on Mindrocker, Vol. 13 (LP) and Help Me on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 4 (CD). (MW)

Clock Work Orange (KY)

45:	Do Me Right Now/Your Golden Touch	(Creole 1002) 1967

This is a different group from Paducah, Kentucky. The single above is an excellent garage psych two-sider. Both sides have resurfaced on Pebbles, Vol. 12 (LP) and Pebbles, Vol. 10 (CD). (MW)

ALBUM:	1	CLOSELY WATCHED TRAINS (w/insert)	(Follies Bazaar NR-5666-1) 1975 R1

45:	Cool Jane/ The Frightened Sparrow	(Audio Fidelity AF-155) 1969

NB: double-side promos also exist. Also released in France with a PS (AF 11001).

Written by Hoffman and Goldstein, Cool Jane is a rather boring song with decent organ but poor vocals, in a prog-pop vein. The band headlined the Boston Tea Party, Jan. 5-6th, 1968 playing with Ill Wind and came from Cambridge, Massachusetts. (SR/SBn/MW)

Clouds (CA)

45: Visions/Migada Bus (Independence 82) 1967

This Los Angeles band also had the same single issued under the name The Looking Glasses on the Media label. The Clouds version can be found on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 6 (LP & CD) and you'll find The Looking Glasses version on Pebbles, Vol. II (LP & CD). They're exactly the same. Visions is glorious mystical psychedelic punk that goes from frantic to spaced-out and back again. Migada Bus is a pleasant instrumental in a baroque style with fuzzy edges. (VJ)

Cloudwalkers (NY)

45: Sunglasses/You Never Told Me So (Capco 106) 1965

Despite the appearance of Sunglasses on The Midwest Vs The Rest, Vol. 1 (LP) and Pebbles Vol. 8: Southern California 1 (CD), this band was actually from Brooklyn, New York.

Sunglasses is a British-influenced rave-up with lots of mouth harp. You Never Told Me So is reputedly a worthwhile psych-folk outing that can also be found on Wyld Sydes Volume 1 (CD) and Gravel Volume 5 (CD). (MW/MM)

McFee, Call and Howie all met at Tamalpais High School and formed the Tiny Hearing Aid Company. In 1967, when they teamed up with Giambotti - formerly with the bluegrass act The Valley Boys and the Outfit, they became Clover. The next two years were spent giging around venues like the Avalon and the Fillmore, before John Fogerty of Creedence Clearwater Revival helped them to sign a contract with Fantasy.

Their first album is supposed to have been recorded without a mixing desk. It contains some excellent West Coast rock and country-rock selections, notably Wade In The Water (a la Mad River), Lizard Rock'n'Roll Band and Shotgun (the only non-original track).

The second album is more country-rock oriented but is still interesting with Mr. Moon, Chicken Butt and Keep On Trying. Both albums were produced by Ed Bogas, who was the fifth member of the group and an active studio musician (also with David and Tina Meltzer) and soundtrack composer (notably for Ralph Bakshi's 'Fritz The Cat').

They later spent time in the UK and recorded Unavailable and Love On The Wire and released several singles in the UK during 1976 and 1977.

Clover drifted back into obscurity and finally, circa 1975, McFee, Call and Giambotti came to England with new members Huey Lewis, Micky Shine and Sean Hopper to launch a new career. This new line-up of Clover somehow managed to play with Elvis Costello on his first album, My Aim Is True, and even signed a new recording contract with Vertigo/Mercury which resulted in two new albums in 1976 and 1977 (Clover and Unavailable), which are totally different from their previous efforts.

The Sound City Sessions: 1975 compiles previously unheard demos by this band that never really got the credit it deserved.

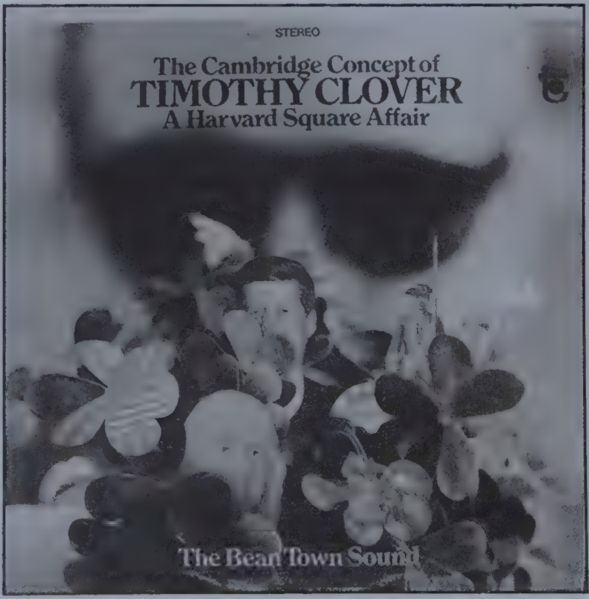
A gifted guitarist, John McFee also played on several Californian recording sessions (Janey and Dennis, Tim Davis, Norman Greenbaum etc.) and joined the Doobie Brothers in 1980. Alex Call went solo and is still recording for the German label Taxim. The two later members, Huey Lewis and Sean Hopper, went on to form Huey Lewis and the News and sold some millions of records during the eighties. (VJ/SR/MW)

Timothy Clover (NY)

ALBUM: 1 THE CAMBRIDGE CONCEPT OF TIMOTHY CLOVER - A HARVARD SQUARE AFFAIR (Tower ST-5114) 1968

An album of orchestrated pop-psych, recorded at Olmsted, New York by Tea-Pot Productions (Bruce Patch and Lennie Petze) and Larry Jaspon. The front cover shows what some dealers may describe as a psychedelic collage, with portraits of Kennedy and Washington, British and American flags, indian warriors, "Tea" stickers, leaves... and bears the subtitle "The Bean Town Sound" (to be compared to the Boss Town Sound!).

Apart from the best track, the dreamy Tear-Drop Mobile composed by F. Gelfand and G. Katz, all the material was written by the producers, assisted on some tracks by T. Landry, S. King, L. Collins and R. Morse. A studio project, it still has to attract interest.



TIMOTHY CLOVER - The Cambridge Concept Of... LP.

Bruce Patch: - "As I remember it... I had produced a single by a group called The Rondells and Lennie Petze was one of the guitar players. We became friends and started writing songs together. We then produced a Teddy and The Pandas album for Tower (I had produced and managed the group on a couple of Musicor releases) and then came up with the Timothy Clover idea to capitalise on the rash of Boston groups that were getting signed. We wrote a bunch of songs and had no artist so our friend Larry Jaspon who was a local booking agent had some bar band and the singer from that group become Timothy Clover. I don't think they ever did one gig under that name." (SR/JFr/BPh)

The Clue (TX)

His next ventures were The Bitter Ends (1965-66, no releases), The Upside Dawne (covers band 1966-68 with one album in 1967), and Tide (1968-74); he was still going strong in 2003. NB: α shown as by Alexander's Rock Time Band. β shown as by Professor Morrison's Lollipop.

Probably the best known of the outfits using this moniker, they were based in Lincoln, Nebraska and played in a cool melodic beat-rock style. A local supergroup with Jim Reinmuth and Bruce Watson having previously spent time in The Chandells and the remainder coming from The Viscounts, they would have some success over the next three years. Mr. Moon was a local phenomenon and sizeable hit in the Midwest which made some impression nationally, but as the decade unfolded the band changed its name to prevent becoming dated, firstly to Alexander's Rock Time Band and then Professor Morrison's Lollipop with a more straightforward pop sound.

The earlier releases are certainly worth a spin and you'll find My Generation on Monsters Of The Midwest, Vol. IV (LP), No Answers on Brain Shadows, Vol. 2 (LP & CD) and Wyld Sydes Volume 9 (CD); and Mr. Moon on Searching For Love (LP) and Psychedelic Archives Vol. 7 (double cassette box).

Incidentally, the band hosted their own local TV show "The Coachmen Show" in Omaha, where they performed their own hits and featured guest appearances by other local bands. The programme was on air for six months, with each song being pre-recorded in one take.

Still Rockin' is a collection of 20 songs performed by The Coachmen. 15 of the tracks on this CD are newly recorded covers and originals (Stand Tall and Heartland) it also contains five original songs by the band recorded between 1965-1967 and a 1999 remake of the hit Mr. Moon.

Bruce, Red, Jeff, Rick and Craig are planning on performing occasionally "as money and logistics allow" which, considering that the members reside in three different parts of the country, might prove difficult. Red, Jeff and Bruce all continue to write original music, as evidenced by Stand Tall (a real rocker!) and Heartland on the new CD, and they hope to release another CD in the future, dependent on sales for the Still Rockin' release.

The band was inducted into the Nebraska Music Hall Of Fame in 1997 and the Iowa Rock'n'Roll Hall Of Fame in 2008. (MW/MDo/RFr/BWn)

Very popular on the Little Rock scene, these Coachmen thrilled local fans initially with their take on contemporary Invasion sounds. An early example from an unreleased acetate circa 1965, You're My Girl, was unearthed on the Arkansas compilation, Lost Souls Volume 1 (CD).

Their debut release in spring 1966 was recorded in Memphis and they had moved towards homegrown styles and an inevitable soul influence, like many acts from that region. By the time of their final single as the Little Rock Coachmen, they'd immersed themselves in a southern-soul/stax-infused swamp. (MW)

45:	I'll Never Leave You/Possibility	(Gold Standard 155) 1965

These Coachmen were hot on the Memphis scene from 1964 to 1966, so it's surprising that they only released one single, then again maybe not. Possibility can be heard on A History Of Garage & Frat Bands In Memphis (CD); it harks back to pre-Invasion teen-pop so would have sounded dated and unhip by 1965.

After the band split in 1966, Rick Allen joined the (Swingin') Yo Yo's and later The Box Tops, Fred Prouty ended up with the Hot Dogs, and after a couple of years Glen Cammack moved to Mississippi and re-emerged in the Sugar Blues Band (not to be confused the Sugar Cube Blues Band, also from Mississippi). The Coachmen (WI)

45s:	The News Is Out/Girl In The Wind	(Target T 1001) 1969

There was an earlier, unconnected outfit from Milwaukee, who were active in the first half of the sixties. They released an instrumental single in 1962 - From Beyond/Movin' (Type 3580), whose flip side graces Strummin' Mental Vol. 2 (LP).

Another, probably different again, Coachmen were captured live on the 1966 Milwaukee Sentinel Rock'n'Roll Revue (LP) performing a cover of Run For Your Life. (MW)

NB: α shown as by The Syndicate.

This Oshkosh, Wisconsin group travelled to Minneapolis to record their debut, which is much touted amongst collectors, yet remains uncompiled.

Soon after they changed their name to The Syndicate Of Sound only to find out about the California band who hit the charts with Little Girl. They shortened it to The Syndicate, still oblivious of another California combo already using that name, and released a single in early 1968.

Pat Nugent was later in seventies band Blue Tail Fly and Bob Misky worked with Chicago outfit Skip Arne and The Dukes. Nick Christas was thought to be doing blues gigs in San Francisco. (VJ/GM/MW)

From Bloomington, Indiana this previously unhailed outfit made good use of fuzz and farfisa. Their repertoire ranged from garage (I'll Hide My Head...) to flower-pop (Flower People) and a fuzzy instrumental laid on a Mona-beat (Down With It) - these three are compiled on Psychedelic Crown Jewels, Vol. 3 (CD). Down With It also appears on Buzz Buzz Buzzzzzz, Vol. 2 (CD). 45: I Wanna Be Your Love/Instant Heartache (Big Beat 1002) 1966

From Smyrna Mills, Maine this New England teen band has been well represented on recent compilations. I Wanna Be Your Love is up there with the Pretty Things for raw, savage intensity.

The Leavitt brothers were later in Euclid and Bobby Herne produced their album. Herne, a chicken farmer and exceptional guitar player, had previously played with the Exotics (on Coral) and DJ and The Soulbeats. He went on to produce and arrange numerous New England acts in the sixties and seventies, including the infamous album Philosophy Of The World by The Shaggs. He died suddenly in May 1998 and Aram Heller's zine 'Banjo Room Revisited #2' chronicles parts of his legacy.

Compilation appearances include: Instant Heartache on New England Teen Scene, Vol. 1 (LP), New England Teen Scene (CD) and Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 14 (LP & CD); I Wanna Be Your Love on New England Teen Scene, Vol. 2 (LP), Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 1: Jump, Jive & Harmonize (LP & CD) and I Was A Teenage Caveman (LP); and Instant Heartache and I Wanna Be Your Love on New England Teen Scene (CD). Dennis Coffey and the Detroit Guitar Band (MI)

ALBUM: 1 EVOLUTION (Sussex SXBS 7004) 1971

From Detroit, Dennis Coffey is a guitarist and producer, often associated with Mike Theodore (on Paul Parrish's Forest Of My Mind for instance). If his prolific solo production throughout the seventies is generally in the funk style and totally out of the scope of this book, his first album may interest some readers, as it contains 10 instrumental tracks (including a cover of Whole Lotta Love) with three guitars, a sitar and percussions. (SR)

Crash Coffin (OH)

ALBUM: 1 CRASH COFFIN (Mus-I-Col CC-69) 197? R2

Released on the same Ohio label as Owen-B, The Myrchents and J.H. and The Esquires, this album was released with two different covers: the first has "Crash Coffin" hand written in blue and red, the second has a plain white cover with the label logo. Perhaps because the musicians got tired of all the handwriting! It's musically diverse, ranging from psych-folk to bluegrass, with rather naive vocals. The best psych cuts are Alone Together and God Loves The Loser. (SR)

Linda Cohen (?)

ALBUM: 1 LEDA (Poppy PYS-5702) 1972

During the seventies, Linda Cohen recorded several instrumental albums combining folk and baroque/chamber influences, sometimes with psych sounds. Her presence here is mainly due to the involvement of several former members of Mandrake Memorial, notably Craig Anderton who played guitar and self-invented instruments and also had a hand on the production. Mostly suited for late night listening, her records will not appeal to everybody. (SR)

His album was recorded in Hollywood with studio musicians: Jim Gordon, Ben Benay (Goldenrod), Lincoln Mayorga, Jim Keltner, Larry Carlton, Dick Rosmini and the jazz bassist Buell Neidlinger. Some tracks use tablas, harpsichord, female choirs or flutes, but the result is clearly in the "also ran" category. (SR)

A soul/blues group with horns that was popular on the San Francisco rock scene, playing regularly at the Fillmore. Their sound was based on the bluesy vocals of Lydia Pense, who issued a single in 1965 with The New Invaders.

Their first album is notable for its fine Rick Griffin artwork but the music was rather uninspired and the horn arrangements quite messy. The same can be said of their following albums, which became more and more soul-oriented. They all sold quite well. You may also want to check out their retrospective live album from 1973.

Their first drummer, Frank Davis, also played with Loading Zone and shouldn't be confused with the Texan Frank Davis (Travel Agency, Saddlesore).

Cold Blood disbanded in the late seventies, reformed in the eighties and stabilised with its current membership in the nineties. It continues to record and perform today. Vintage Blood: Live! was released in 2001 from a live 1973 concert and a new album Transfusion was released in 2005.

COLD SUN - Dark Shadows LP.

Cold Sun was a Texas band. Contrary to popular belief, the Rockadelic release above is not a straight reissue of an acetate. An acetate was found with several tracks by this group (only one known copy exists, now in a private collection) and through this acetate, information leading to the group was dug up. The leader of the band was found to have several tapes of sixties material and from these tapes the Dark Shadows album was mastered. Most of the material on the Rockadelic album does not appear on the acetate.

This band is most worthy of investigation - they have a genuinely psychedelic sound with lots of superb and, often discordant, electric autoharp and sustained fuzz guitar and lots of fresh ideas. The vocals don't always reach the same standard, but this album is recommended.

Bill Miller later played on Roky Erickson's 1981 album The Evil One. (CF/VJ)

Cole and The Embers was a Kirkwood, Missouri band whose sole single sounds much earlier than its QCA pressing date of May 1968, on the same label as The Xtreems. Hey Girl followed the simple punk format with a droning farfisa organ backing and just a hint of progressivism in the brief organ solo midway through.

Compilation appearances have included: Hey Girl on Pebbles, Vol. 13 (LP) and The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 2 (2-CD); and Love Won't Hurt You on Bury My Body (CD). (VJ/MW)

Jerry Cole was born Jerald Edward Kolbrak in Green Bay, Wisconsin in September 1939. He grew up in Chicago where he played on the local blues scene. He was in The Champs, who made No. 1 with Tequila in 1958. After a spell playing with Glen Campbell he moved to Los Angeles where he worked as a sessionman. He also fronted Jerry Cole & His Spacemen who made two futuristic surf albums for Capitol, who had signed him on the recommendation of Bobby Darin. With track titles like Martian Surf, Power Surf and Racing Waves you can get some idea of the excitement these albums generated.

His credits as a session guitarist included The Byrds' Mr. Tambourine Man, Them's Here Comes The Night, The Dixie Cups' Chapel Of Love, Paul Revere & The Raiders' Kicks, Nancy Sinatra's These Boots Are Made For Walkin' and The Ronettes' Be My Baby. He also recorded 20 instrumental albums under various pseudonyms and was the creative force behind The Animated Egg album. He also worked with Roger Miller and Andy Williams and played on The Beach Boys' 15 Big Ones album.

He died in Corona, California on 28 May 2008, aged 68. (VJ)

This obscure New York City group played a mix of jazz and psychedelia with strange effects and some Middle Eastern influences on the first album. There's not much singing, but there is quite a lot of chanting. The second album retains the above elements, but there's an early seventies funk feel to some of the tracks. Neither album works effectively. (SR/VJ)

Significant for containing pre-Orpheus members Jack McKenes and Eric Gulliksen, this is the group referred to in the liner notes for The Best Of Orpheus retrospective CD as The Wanderers. A tribute to the late JFK, the record was produced by Tom Zagryn and Eric Gulliksen, and recorded in the cellar of a fraternity house on a Webcor tape recorder. Eric recalls: "As we already had a relationship with the Swan label via The Blue Echoes, we trotted it down to Philadelphia and Swan jumped on it thinking they would make a bundle. However, no Kennedy records made it in the US; people (and rightly so) just didn't want to see someone make money from the tragedy of JFK's death. For many years, though, I received air play royalties (in small amounts) from the four corners of the earth". (VJ)

These college boys were from Huntington, West Virginia although they would relocate to Charleston. Be aware that, despite being described as 'garage' by some dealers, their style was predominantly slick sixites teener-pop. Exceptions to this are decent covers of Bo Diddley's Roadrunner and Gene Vincent's High Blood Pressure. Their popularity on the regional circuit resulted in a local hit I Can't Get You Out Of My Mind, which was picked up by Smash and made it onto the Billboard charts. (MW)

Originally from northern California, Colours evolved out of The Boy Blues and relocated to the Bay area. They met Johnny Rivers and sang back-up vocals on his Realization album. Their albums have quite an anglophile sound and are worth investigation.

English spelling for a U.S. group seems illogical enough, but the liner-notes from their first album tell us that they 'have the crystalline sharpness of the Beatles before they turned acid'. That seems a dangerous thing to postulate. The first track, though, completely lives up to these pretensions and must be reckoned among the very best attempts at an orchestrated psych sound. Easily switching from key to key and with disturbingly frequent time-changes, which at first sound completely innocent, this particular track conveys a sense of drama seldom equalled. Menacing harmonies and superb instrumentation underscore the sorry tale of a bored lad, who vainly tries to rob a liquor store - with a tragic outcome: Bad Day At Black Rock, Baby "I'm carving a gun from an old piece of wood, dip it in black paint, it looks pretty good". Other tracks can't quite keep the standard that high, but feature several more highlights and very versatile playing, like the sitar droned Rather Be Me, the commune-song Brother Lou's Love Colony with bagpipes and later covered by Moon, and the eerie Cataleptic. This is definitely an underestimated album.

Their second album is sadly not in the same class. Without any credits to other musicians than Dalton/Montgomery, this album takes in some progressive rock; some undigested country and also has a cluttered production. Only the very last track on side two You're High comes anywhere near the former style and intensity. This album is best forgotten. The first needs rehabilitation.

From Tulsa, Radle and Blackwell were close friends of Leon Russell. They both guested on Don Preston and The South's album and later enjoyed successful careers. Carl Radle was with Delaney and Bonnie, Derek and The Dominos, J.J. Cale and Eric Clapton. Chuck Blackwell played with Taj Mahal, Joe Cocker and Leon Russell. Rob Edwards has also previously played with Eddie and The Showmen.

Where Is She, a Dalton/Montgomery song, surfaced on Harper and Rowe's album, whilst Cataleptic was also covered by Aorta. Love Heals: The Complete Recordings (CD) compiles their complete recorded output. It is the first time either of their albums has appeared on CD and the set also includes a White Whale single by Dalton and Montgomery and three previously unreleased demos which pre-date the band's formation in mid-1967. A Boston area band. Cold Wind Blues was recorded in New York and produced by Bob Bateman. Whilst the extended version of Dead End Street from their debut album had a lot of exposure on the early FM stations on the U.S. East Coast at least, of more interest is the six-minute intrumental Govinda which is a great hindiesque groove with mallets on the drums, soprano sax and electric guitar played like a sitar... (undoubtedly they had heard the new Butterfield Blues Band's East West). For the most part, the album consists of urban blues-rock in the Chicago style, although there's no harmonica. Definitely more of a progressive blues than a psych item, the cover is standard issue record company psychsploito smoke and double exposure band/nature photo that is actually quite nice... tinted lavender even... and has the written endorsement of Will and Lester Chambers of the Chambers Brothers on the back cover.

The group later released a rare progressive blues-rock album recorded live at the Phoenix Coffee House before disbanding. In 1970, Tilton and Schroer were recruited by Van Morrison for his Moondance album and Schroer kept on working with Van the Man up until 1975. In 1972, Winfield and Tilton also worked with Martha Velez on her album Hypnotized and Tilton also played on solo albums by Ellen McIllwaine, the former Fear Itself singer. In the mid-seventies, Chuck Purro went on to play with the James Montgomery Band, a blues band from Boston, along with Peter Malick from Listening. (PPe/SR)

COLWELL-WINFIELD BLUES BAND - Cold Wind Blues LP.

CD: 1(A) MERCY MERCY (Collectables COL-0620) 1997
NB: (1) was originally recorded for release on Justice in 1966, but not issued.

Formed in 1963 at Hill Junior High School in Winston-Salem, North Carolina, The Comets recorded 12 tracks for Calvin Newton's Justice Records Label in 1966. Aside from the typical cover versions, including three Chuck Berry tunes, the Rolling Stones' The Last Time and Wilson Pickett's In The Midnight Hour, the band recorded three original lightweight pop compositions: What You've Done, Someday You'll See, and Do You Remember. Sadly, before the fruits of their endeavours could be released the label went bankrupt.

That was thought to be the end of The Comets saga, but the story doesn't end there.... After Justice closed its doors in '67, the building became home to various businesses (it's now a Carpet store!). However, circa 1975 it was home to an advertising agency. Tim: - "After the break up of The Comets, Mike Russell, our lead singer, went on to perform with several bands. He went on the road for a while and in the process made a number of friends who like all musicians drifted in and out of the music business. One of his friends, Tom Vickers, was working in this advertising studio at the old Justice building. In the back was a great big old desk that had very deep drawers in it. No one knew how long the old thing had been there. Well, Tom had gone back to this old desk to look for a roll of double sided tape to work on a layout with. Reaching way back in the lower drawer he found two boxes of Scotch Recording Tape. Each box had one reel of 7" X1/4" recording tape in it and on the front of the boxes was a label that just said The Comets."

Over the next few years, the tapes languished on the shelf, until Mike Russell accidentally discovered a Collectables reissue of another Justice album. The tapes were verified by Calvin Newton and at last released by Collectables.

Today, Buddy lives in Orlando and Mike Hall in Massachusetts, but the other four remain in Winston-Salem.

You can also check out The Last Time on Green Crystal Ties Vol. 10 (CD). (MDo/TP)

45s: Be Me/Come Soon, Some Day (Ode 109) 1969
I'll See You/Now (Ode 112) 1969

This Los Angeles band's main claim to fame is that they were discovered by Jim Morrison. Their album was produced by Robbie Krieger and John Densmore (also of The Doors). It has some very pleasant moments. They sounded similar to It's A Beautiful Day and Peanut Butter Conspiracy. The group also appeared and played two songs in an exploito movie called "How to Commit Marriage", with Jackie Gleason, Bob Hope and Jane Wyman.

Bernie Schwartz was also a songwriter who began recording singles in 1963 and released an interesting album, The Wheel in 1969 or 1970, with Gene Garfin and Euphoria.

Greg Leroy later worked for Neil Young and Crazy Horse. (VJ/SR)

A PSYCHEDELIC SIX-PACK OF SOUND

A PSYCHEDELIC SIX-PACK OF SOUND (Comp LP) including Coming Generation.

This quintet came from Dwight, Illinois. They contributed two cuts to A Psychedelic Six-Pack Of Sound, a 1968 sampler album of six local Illinois bands. Without You is a harmonious acoustic folkie-pop ballad. Down To The City is much better, a catchy folk-rocker notable for its use of a siren - one of the few 'psychedelic' moments on the album.

Steve Eddington in the early - mid seventies played in New Colony Six, and currently plays in Heartsfield. (MW/SD)

45: Pork & Beans/Keep The Music Playing (Josie 954) 1966

This one single was the sole vinyl excursion by this obscure outfit which is from Costa Mesa, California and featured formers of The Wooly Ones. Judging by Keep The Music Playing, which can be heard on Pebbles, Vol. 12 (LP), they deserved better with this than a return to total obscurity. It's got some nice pop harmonies, but perhaps suffered from being a low cost production. (VJ)

45: Come Down/Dream World (Atco 6535) 1968

Bill Rhinehart wrote and produced both sides of this Beatlesque offering, where Penny Lane meets toytown pop. The results sound more like the band he'd just left, the Merry-Go-Round, than his earlier outfit The Leaves.

Assumed to be a one-off Los Angeles studio aggregation with a witty name, rather than a real gigging band ("did you catch The Common Cold at Ciro's last night?" - yes, very funny, ha ha!).

Come Down has now appeared on Where The Action Is! Los Angeles Nuggets 1965-1968 (4CD). (MW)

45s: Look Around/Dawn Of My Life (Flodavieur 801) 1967
Oh My Mind/Days On My Mind (Flodavieur 802) 1967

Baldwin Park, California was home to this collective, who released two extremely rare, expensive and sought-after singles on local DJ Dave Polk's imprint in 1967 before somehow managing to land an album deal with Capitol.

of the people/by the people/for the people from

THE COMMON PEOPLE - Of The People... LP.

Mellow, soft psychedelia similar to Gandalf, the album is recommended and increasingly attracting interest from collectors. The first three tracks are heavily orchestrated, but unfortunately their arranger David Axelrod had to drop out of the project because his wife was badly injured in an accident and Capitol would not support the project after Axelrod left, meaning that the rest of it was hastily recorded. The remaining tracks effectively blend garage, rock, soul and folk. The gruff vocalist Denny Robinett is distinctive too. The album cover features a dawn photoshoot in the Mojave desert. When it was released, Capitol barely promoted it and the band undertook no live engagements so the album inevitably sank without trace. Then, soon after the album's release Jerrald Robinett drowned in the San Francisco bay aged just 22 and the band dissolved. So, a sad tale but even although it was not what they intended their legacy is still a fine album of mostly laid-back late night psychedelia.

Their singles for the private Flodavieur label can also be heard as bonus cuts on the Fallout CD. You can also hear one of the better cuts from their album; Soon There'll Be Thunder on Ah Feel Like Ahcid (CD). (VJ/MW)

A Missouri label, but the band is thought to be from Kansas. Formed in Arizona but based in California, Condello's Phase One album has some interesting moments, particularly the pop-sike material near the beginning. Its content is very diverse and spans from pop to almost heavy metal. Their Makes A Comeback EP included Soggy Cereal, (which has become rather well-known by virtue of its inclusion on Pebbles, Vol. 3 - The Acid Gallery (LP), and Sonic Boom, a Hendrix-influenced blast (compiled on Brain Shadows, Vol. 2 (LP & CD) and Magic Cube (CD)). Mike Condello later joined Elton Duck, a L.A.-based late seventies/early eighties new wave trio, and then recorded a solo album in 1984. Bill Spooner ended up in The Tubes and Dennis Kenmore joined Pollution, a late sixties/early seventies jazz-influenced rock band.

Condello also produced an album for Warren S Richardson, which may be a Bill Spooner solo project.

Much of Condello's material is collected on the CD Wallace And Ladmo's Greatest Hits. Brain Shadows, Vol. 2 (LP & CD) also features The Time Machine, a rather catchy number by Commodore Condello's Salt River Navy Band.

Both singles as Last Friday's Fire for Lee Hazelwood's LHI label were produced by him. As Last Friday's Fire they had also earlier backed Lynne Castle on her solo single: The Lady Barber/Rose Colored Corner (LHI 17003) 1967.

45: 1 To 3/I've Got Time (PS) (Sonobeat 103) 1968

One of Austin's best-loved bands of this era they opened their own club, The Vulcan Gas Company in 1967 and among its attractions were the 13th Floor Elevators and many of the best black blues singers of the era. The club lasted until 1970. Their single appeared in a picture sleeve and featured some fine 'acid' guitar work. Indeed the band has been referred to as Austin's Grateful Dead. They moved to San Francisco for a while and whilst there Brown and Guinn also worked as The Angel Band. Disillusioned The Conqueroo split and returned to Texas. They reformed briefly in the mid-seventies.

Their retrospective album is a live recording from 1968. It features fine guitar work on Passenger and Banana And The Cat but is patchy overall so primarily for archivists. Ed Guinn and Bob Brown recorded a demo tape circa 1967, but this hasn't surfaced to date. They also backed up comic artist and Austin resident Gilbert Shelton on his sole single.

Bob Brown later married and subsequently divorced Julie Christenson of Divine Horseman fame.

From the eighties through the mid-nineties, Ed Guinn had a successful recording studio in Austin. He also played the part of the scared truck driver in the 'Texas Chainsaw Massacre' movie.

45s:	I Don't Know/Direction Of Mind	(ROK 6709) 1967
	Future Days/New Mexico	(ROK 6907) 1967

For many years it was rumoured that this high school quartet from Davenport, Iowa had put out a demo album. It had a pressing of just 100 and was issued on a subsidiary of the obscure Fredlo label. Their brace of singles had become keenly sought since Direction Of Mind appeared in 1986 on the well-annotated Dirty Water - The History Of Eastern Iowa Rock Volume 2 (LP) compilation. It shows a strong Byrds influence. I Don't Know has since turned up on Quagmire Volume 4 (CD). The first single was recorded in Minneapolis.

Many years later, a copy finally came into the hands of the collector community to confirm the rumour. It turned out to be a real treasure; not only did it contain 13 all-new tracks (none from the singles) but they're all originals - instead of the usual raft of covers and medleys.

Does it live up to the hype? Well, yes, and no. It's not full of garage/psych ravers if that's what you were hoping for. This is the legacy of a well-matured outfit with their own sound. It's finely-honed, intelligent folk-rock-pop with a West Coast vibe. The mood is laid-back; despite protest aplenty in the lyrics it does not resort to shouting. With multi-part vocals, comparisons to Buffalo Springfield are understandable... on poppier tracks; the timbre is similar to Merry-Go-Round/Emitt Rhodes. Craig Hute later turned up in the hard rock outfit Tabernash. (VJ/MW)

	Under My Thumb/ Somebody Help Me	(The Continentals 101) 196?

A Dallas/Fort Worth, Texas rock'n'roll band who would embrace the post-Invasion sounds on their latter releases. I'm Gone was a fast punk number with a tambourine solo! Bobby had been in Gene Summers & the Tom Toms.

You'll also find it on Riot City!! (LP), Texas Punk From The Sixties (LP), Sixties Archive Vol. 2 (CD) and Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 4: I'm A No-Count (LP & CD). (VJ/MW)

The Continentals (TX, West)

45: Take Me/She Wants You (AOK AOKR-1025) 1966

This is a West Texas outfit, different to the above, who appear to have released just one single. Take Me has a wonderfully spooky intro and outro, book-ending a mid-tempo keyboard-driven punker with a short, cool guitar solo.

You'll also find Take Me on The History Of Texas Garage Bands, Vol. 3 (CD), You're So Square (LP) and Trip In Tyme Vol. 2 (CD); and She Wants You has been compiled on The History Of Texas Garage Bands, Vol. 4 (CD). (VJ/MW)

45: Sick And Tired/Almost A Man (D&C DC-20) 1966

This Messina, New York group had evolved out of The Panthers. Their summer 1966 release appeared on the Schenectady label that put out notable singles by The Chancellors and The Oscar Five.

Sick And Tired - a great Anglophile punker, where Kinks riffs mesh with strong raunchy vocals and cool harmonica - is a stand-out on Sick And Tired (LP), Fuzz, Flaykes, And Shakes, Vol. 5 (LP & CD) and Psychedelic States: New York Vol. 1 (CD). Almost A Man can be found on The Night Is So Dark (LP) and Fuzz, Flaykes, And Shakes, Vol. 7 (LP & CD). 45: Continentals Jam/
House Of The Rising Sun ("The Continentas" 418) 1965

Pine Mountain and West Point were the hometowns of this Georgia quartet who came together in 1962. Their basement recorded debut appeared around the time they became Soul, Inc.; they would also be known briefly as The Buckinghams, before the Chicago act hit the charts, just prior to their split in the summer of 1966. Larry Bowie was later in The Rock Garden.

The reedy rocker Continentals Jam can be found on Psychedelic States: Georgia Vol. 1 (CD) along with Soul, Inc.'s Ode To A Girl. (MW/RM)

45: A Guy Without A Girl/Don't Leave Me (Rampro R-117) 1967

A Guy Without A Girl is a sad garage ballad, but it's the flip side of this Wisconsin garage single that has attracted compilers. It can also be found on Monsters Of The Midwest Vol. IV (LP) and Teenage Shutdown Vol 15: She's Just A Pest (LP). (VJ)

Curley Cook and The Versitones (?)

45: Avalanche/Long Road To Nowhere (Norcur NR 100) 1966

This was one of the first records by the future Steve Miller Band/A.B.Shky member. Avalanche is a good instrumental track with fine guitar, Long Road To Nowhere is a ballad written by Ricky Lee.

The Norcur label was based in Hobbs, New Mexico. (SR)

Shep (Walter) Cooke was originally from Tucson, Arizona and had previously played with Intruders, who evolved into Quinstrells and finally became The Dearly Beloved. He would later tour and record with The Stone Poneys and The Floating House Band

All three solo albums are singer/songwriter efforts. The Vanguard album (credited to Shep) is the weakest and for the most part Shep sounds unsure of himself and comes across rather wimpy. The second is a local Tucson effort and is fairly difficult to find, but on this album he is much more comfortable with the material and is more confident in his playing and singing. It is a good local folk record for collectors of that genre. The third album is a more polished effort and picks up where the second left off, it also features other former members of the Stone Poneys. (VJ/MW/HS)

COOKIN' MAMA - New Day LP.

From the San Francisco Bay Area, Cookin Mama was a rural jamming rock group with a horn section, influenced by the Grateful Dead and the Sons Of Champlin.

Both pressings of their only album are now hard to find. The Rock Bottom label also issued the equally obscure Ofoedian Den.

Sherry Fox would later be in Oasis, while Pat Thrall played guitar with The Pat Travers Band, the Hughes/Thrall Band (with Glenn Hughes of Trapeze/Deep Purple), Asia, Elton John, Tina Turner and others. (SR)

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Studio West 2874) 2008.

This Californian duo's gentle folk album is well worth a listen. There are complex chord progressions on some tracks, some jazzy guitar leads and tracks like I Need A Change and Where Is The Change feature mild fuzz guitar. All tracks are original compositions, and the style is very personal. Whilst the musical direction is mostly folk-rock, many tracks are quite psychedelic too, in their own way. There are no obvious influences because Bill and Alan had their own psychedelic folk-rock style. The recent CD reissue has been remastered from the master tapes, and comes with a booklet and outer slipcase.

Alan Munson released two solo folk-rock albums during the seventies. (VJ)

Vincent Furnier entered the world on 4 February 1948 in Detroit, Michigan. He was the son of a preacher. His parents moved to Phoenix, Arizona where he spent most of his youth. Whilst at high school in Tuscon, Arizona he formed a rock band in 1964 called The Earwigs. The outfit played at local hops in yellow corduroy Carnaby Street style jackets and comprised Furnier, Glen Buxton, Dennis Dunaway, John Speare and John Tatum. Spear and Tatum left and Furnier renamed the band, The Spiders bringing in Mike Bruce. The latter line-up recorded one local single as did the next line-up Nazz. These singles were reissued by Blitz Magazine in 1980 as an EP. Nazz had the same line-up as The Spiders with the addition of Neal Smith.

STEREO
Love it to death
Alice Cooper
INCLUDING THEIR HIT "I'M EIGHTEEN"

ALICE COOPER - Love It To Death LP.

In 1968 they moved to Los Angeles, and after discovering that Todd Rundgren's Nazz were using the same name, they chose the name Alice Cooper. The new band lived a hand to mouth existence in the bars and local clubs around the area. Out of sheer frustration Cooper started to powder and paint his face and apply lipstick in a desperate attempt to attract attention to the band. He also began to wear a dress. In some respects his band previewed the glam-rock era. Cooper often got blind drunk before coming on the stage, which he would stagger and sway around on uncontrollably. Gradually they did begin to win themselves an audience, although this was not always the case. At one gig, the whole audience (an estimated 2,000 people) walked out, and only Frank Zappa remained. In his view any band that could get such a strong audience response must have some future! He promptly signed them to his Straight label! The result of this association was three albums; Pretties For You, Easy Action and Love It To Death. They were musically his most imaginative and interesting works, but didn't sell in vast quantities because they weren't that commercial. Love It To Death is a particularly good album though. By this stage, heavily in debt and regarded as something of a freak show, they had quit L.A. for Detroit (in 1970) perhaps feeling they would be more at home there with its high energy musical tradition. A significant break came when their contract was transferred to Straight's distributor Warner Bros and they began recording their third album with producer Bob Ezrin. With his help, they developed their classic heavy metal crunch on this album which featured the # 21 hit single Eighteen; the album peaked at # 35 and went gold. The success enabled the group to develop a more impressive, elaborate live show, which in time made them a highly popular concert attraction across the U.S. and eventually the U.K.

By the time of Killer, Cooper was utilising the 'Theatre of The Absurd' stage show, employing gimmicks like chopping up dolls and using props like gallows and electric chairs. He seemed to be mirroring what some would consider the true face of America - sex and violence. Certainly any remnants of the love and peace vibes of the flower-power era were being trampled underfoot. The album contained some strong cuts notably Under My Wheels and Be My Lover, an autobiographical number. Cooper by now had become one of America's top box office attractions.

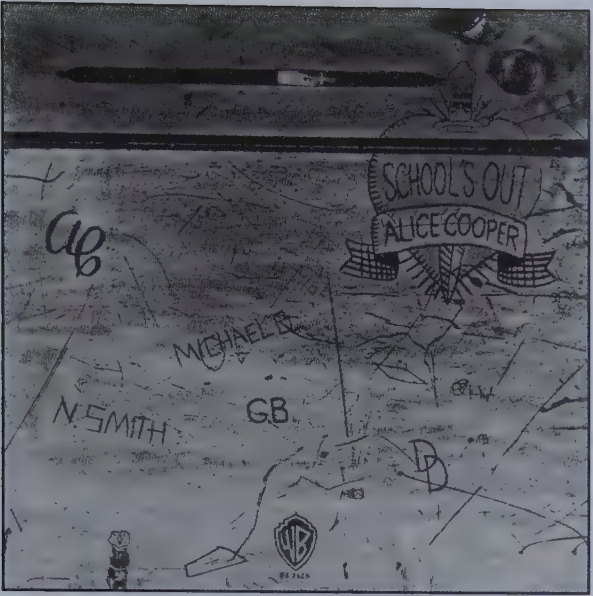
The title track to School's Out brought a glint to the eye of school kids worldwide. It became a UK # 1 hit and established them as an international attraction. Again their success with this album (as with the previous two efforts) owed much to Bob Ezrin's superb production work. Later that year, they enjoyed a further Top 30 hit with Elected - something of a jibe at President Nixon.

Billion Dollar Babies coincided with the band's most successful US tour and spawned two further hits; Hello Hurray and No More Mr. Nice Guy in 1973. From hereon though, their fortunes declined badly, although Teenage Lament '74 did provide them with a further minor hit single. Basically they were becoming too self-indulgent and over-theatrical. Later in the year, therefore, Cooper sacked the band and replaced them with line-up (B). These musicians had all previously played with Lou Reed.

The discarded band members released one unsuccessful album under the name Billion Dollar Babies and Mike Bruce and Neal Smith both recorded solo albums that were never issued. In the fall of 1974, Warner Bros released a compilation of his first five albums for them entitled Alice Cooper's Greatest Hits and it became a Top 10 hit.

With his new line-up and a new contract for Atlantic, Cooper recorded Welcome To My Nightmare and used a 'Welcome To My Nightmare' stage show to promote the album. It wasn't a great departure from his previous work, and it became a Top 10 hit in America, launching the hit acoustic ballad Only Women Bleed; its success put an end to any idea of reconvening Alice Cooper the band. Its follow-up, Alice Cooper Goes To Hell was another hit, going gold in the US. Thereafter, though, his career began to decline and, as well as changing fashions, this was also due to his increasing battle with alcoholism. Cooper entered rehab in 1978, and wrote an album about his treatment called From The Inside with Bernie Taupin (then Elton John's lyricist) later that year.

Although his popularity was on the wane, Cooper continued to release albums throughout the eighties and he went on to make a comeback in the late eighties fuelled by his appearances in horror films and the fact that a number of pop-metal bands of that era paid musical homage to him. His 1989 album Trash was a particular highlight and throughout the following decade he continued to appear in films, tour and record with some success and he attained something of a cult status.



ALICE COOPER - School's Out LP.

Glen Buxton died in hospital in Mason City, Iowa on 19 October 1997 from complications from pneumonia.

Come the millennium Cooper was still regularly putting out albums and most notably, The Eyes Of Alice Cooper (2003) and Dirty Diamonds (2005) exuded a sound near to garage-rock. The ambitious Along Came Spider (2008) was a concept album telling the story of a spider-obsessed serial killer! Even in 2010 he's still touring and still trying new things. He's one of the most resilient figures of US rock but along the way he's become a TV personality and film star too. You can't keep a good man down! (VJ)

Don Cooper who came from New York is now a largely forgotten folk-rock singer. His second album was recorded with Elliot Randall on guitar, Terry Plumeri on bass and Bobby Notkoff (Rockets, Heavy Balloon). The rather unusual combination of electric fiddle, guitars and harmonica gives a interesting touch to tracks like A New Gun, Tin Cans And Alleyways, James Taylor's Something In The Way She Moves and the title track. ALBUM: 1 A MINUTE OF YOUR TIME (Barnaby BR-15004) 1972

A largely forgotten figure of the Los Angeles scene, Marty Cooper was active between 1966 and 1974 as a producer (Vanguards, United Fruit Co.) and songwriter for local groups. He was often associated with Lee Hazelwood. Co-produced with Ken Mansfield (Sand), his only solo album is a decent mix of country-rock, folk and soft-rock, with his View From Ward 3 previously been recorded by Hearts and Flowers. Fire is compiled on The Stars That Play With Dead Jimi's Dice (LP). (CF)

Copeland was based in the UK and Detroit, Michigan. She wrote a few of the tracks on the first Parliament album, which she also produced. Her first album is incredibly varied with spoken word passages, operatic arias with acid guitar work and hard-rock. The second album, which came in a gatefold sleeve, is more in a soul/hard-rock groove. Clearly a talented performer and producer, both albums are worth seeking out, so the Castle reissue (that unfortunately omits the operatic track) is otherwise welcome. (VJ)

When John Cipollina left Quicksilver Messenger Service in 1971, he formed Copperhead with Jim Murray and Casey Sonoban (two members of the first Quicksilver line-up), his brother Mario (who later found fame with Huey Lewis and The News) and various other musicians. Their frequent rehearsals and gigs didn't allow them to get a recording contract and in 1972 Cipollina assembled a new line-up with Gary Philippet (ex-Front Line), Jim McPherson (ex-Stained Glass), David Weber and Hutch Hutchinson. A record, Sealed For Your Protection, was prepared for release on Just Sunshine Records but was cancelled at the 11th hour. Finally Copperhead was issued by Columbia in 1973 and it's a superb hard-rock album, with seven original tracks and a new version of Kibitzer, already recorded by McPherson with Stained Glass. This is a must for fans of Quicksilver and Cipollina's guitar.

Two bootlegs with a good sound quality also exist: Drunken Irish Setter, recorded live on 16th December, 1972 in San Francisco (Oh Boy 1-9026, CD) and Live 1973, recorded for KSAN-FM (Blue Velvet FCP002, LP). Both contain tracks not present on the album.

Cipollina, McPherson and Philippet also played on one track of Kathi McDonald's Insane Asylum (Capitol ST-11224) 1974.

After Copperhead, Cipollina, Weber, McPherson and Hutchinson joined Terry & The Pirates and played with various local groups. Hutch Hutchinson became a renowned bass session player and is still active in the studios.

ALBUM: 1(A) MIKE CORBETT AND JAY HIRSCH WITH HUGH McCRACKEN (Atco SD 33-361) 1971

In 1971, Hirsch and Corbett recorded, wrote and produced this good album which is in the same vein as their previous group, Mr. Flood's Party. Tracks like Gypsy Child, Annie's A Wizzard, Fly With Me or Butterfly Day all contain fine vocals and lyrics with interesting instrumentation. The album was recorded in New York.

John Siomos was previously in Chicago Loop and Music. Hugh McCracken was a very active musician at the time on the East Coast. (SR)

ALBUMS: 1 MARBLE-EYED GYPSY (Prelude) 1976
2 ONE FELL SWOOP (Prelude NS 10022) 1976

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Prelude Record Co.) 2008. (2) reissued on CD (Prelude Record Co.) 2008.

Frank P. Corbin III was born in 1948. His father was in the military and Frank traveled extensively with his family including to Japan and Hawaii. He went to high school on Randolph Air Force Base, in San Antonio, Texas where he joined the high school band and learned coronet and French horn. He graduated in 1966 and went to Texas Lutheran College. From there he continued to study at college in San Marcos, Texas and graduated with degrees in Chemistry and Psychology. After college he drove around the States in a Dodge van and stopping off at Stanford he decided he wanted to learn to play guitar, bought one, and began to practice. Then he went on to learn harmonica, bass guitar, piano and congas. He then became a singer/songwriter and went on to pen over 1,000 songs.

Moving to Austin, Texas he formed his own Prelude record company with Buzz Hudiburg and eventually he recorded an album Marble-Eyed Gypsy that was heavily discounted to try and secure a recording contract, but it didn't work.

Corbin was apparently dying of colon cancer when he was recording One Fell Swoop, which explains the drawing of a hooded executioner on the front cover. Musically, the menu is mostly melodic mainstream rock, aside from the opening instrumental track, all the numbers were penned by Corbin. There's also some nice jazzy piano in places and appealing female vocals on a couple of tracks.

Corbin died in Austin, Texas on 16 March 1976. (VJ)

4(D) CORBITT & DANIELS, LIVE II (Tiger Lily TL-14002) 1976 R2

Corbitt was previously in The Youngbloods and left them in 1968. He went on to become a producer (Mad River, Janey & Dennis) and a solo artist. His first album featured Rick Turner (from Autosalvage), Greg Dewey (from Mad River/Country Joe), Bernie Krause (from Beaver & Krause) and Charlie Daniels who also produced all his albums. (Daniels was also producing The Youngbloods at that time). Not surprisingly, it sounds a bit like Corbitt's previous group and contains some excellent West Coast tracks like The Kahuna Song, Out Of The Question or Banned In Boston. Most songs were penned by Corbitt and Jeffrey Cain.

His second album is very disappointing and best avoided. Corbitt also figured on most of Jesse Colin Young's solo albums and teamed up again with Charlie Daniels in 1976 for two good live albums of original material plus some covers (like John Deere Tractor written by Lawrence Hammond, ex-Mad River).

The two Tiger Lily albums are both very rare, and contain some interesting hard rural-rock. (SR)

ALBUM: 1 FOR A FEW LOVIN' MINUTES (Bard BLP 102Z) 1967

This fragile acoustic folk duo's album features breezy, dreamy vocal harmonies and introspective lyrics with acoustic guitar, bass and occasional flute (played by Jimmy Mosher). The best tracks are These Woods Are Friendly, Gypsy Peace, East Wind and Walk Now In The Evening. The disc also features some spoken passages.

Rumoured to be from Maryland, their album is beginning to be sought-after by collectors of "real people" albums. (SR)

In 1994 Bertler said, "My main purpose in starting the group was to show people that religious life wasn't all just prayer, that there was a fun side, too."

Ghost Power is a really good punk thrash instrumental. Sounds like they had a lot of fun recording this!

The Cords hailed from Amarillo, Texas. Their second single was produced by Norman Petty and is a surprisingly excellent platter from 1969. I'll Do Just.... is well-crafted baroque-tinged pop with good (i.e. unobtrusive) orchestration and a defiant mood.

Ain't That Love is a great fuzz-rocker featuring a brief wah-wah solo.

Compilation coverage has included I'll Do Just... on Every Groovy Day; Ain't That Love on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 15: Apple-Glass Cyndrom (LP & CD) and Get Ready To Fly (CD); two previously unreleased tracks, Sin Crazed Woman and Too Late To Kiss You Now have resurfaced on Now Hear This! (CD) and another unreleased cut The Lesson was included on Get Ready To Fly (CD). Canadian-born Gene Cornish had a solo career and worked with numerous groups on the New York club scene. Having relocated to Rochester, New York, he formed his own outfit The Unbeatables, a club band who mixed late fifties and early sixties sounds - harmony and doowop-style balladry with RnB and rock'n'roll - as well as being around at the right time to jump on the Invasion bandwagon.

I Wanna Be A Beetle is a good example of the immediate musical tsunami and cash-in hysteria following the Beatles appearances on the 'Ed Sullivan Show'. It kicks off with the melody line of She Loves You before lettin' loose as a catchy, handclappin' beat-cum-frat-rocker. The flip is a cheeky steal of George Harrison's Don't Bother Me, effectively it's just a slower version camouflaged with new lyrics.

In 1965 he teamed up with Eddie Brigati and Felix Cavaliere, whom he'd encountered when working with Joey Dee & The Starliters, to form the Young Rascals. (MW)

THE CORPORATION - Get On Our Swing LP.

With a contract for an album the band journeyed to Detroit to record at Terra Shirma studios with producer John Rhys. Released in February 1969, the album is notable for the side-long psychedelic rework of John Coltrane's India. All tracks on side one were group compositions. It was successful in several regions (No. 3 in Milwaukee) but only rose to No. 197 in the national charts.

The group made more recordings but a deal for a second Capitol album fell through and this material was eventually spread across two albums released by the band on Age Of Aquarius, a Cuca custom label. Both albums are a messy amalgam of many styles (including rock, jazz, psych and prog), the vocals are very unattractive and the material is almost totally devoid of any decent melodies.

The Corvettes were formed by Jeff Hannah and Chris Darrow when the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band disbanded; Darrow had earlier played in Kaleidoscope. The two Corvettes singles were produced by Michael Nesmith, who had recently left the Monkees.

The Corvettes soon became Linda Ronstadt's back-up band when she left the Stone Poneys. She had heard about them through Nesmith, who had written the Stone Poneys' hit Different Drum. When Jeff decided to reform the Dirt Band, Bernie Leadon (ex-Hearts and Flowers) joined the band. This aggregation stayed with Linda until Bernie was asked to join the Flying Burrito Brothers, and John Ware and John London, the rhythm section, teamed up with Nesmith in his First National Band. Chris continued to play with Linda off and on for a number of years.

Musically interesting, it's a mix of West Coast and Californian country-rock with excellent guitar and vocals. (SR/CDw)

Born in Boulder, Colorado in 1943, Bill Plummer moved to Los Angeles 20 years later to pursue a jazz career. Already trained on piano, string bass, trumpet, marimba and vibraharp, he added the sitar to his repertoire under the tutelage of Ravi Shankar. He played and toured with Herb and Lorraine Geller, Nancy Wilson, the Paul Horn Group, Buddy DeFranco Quartet and Pete Jolly Trio amongst others. In 1966 he toured with Tony Bennett and Buddy Miles and formed an experimental group The Jazz Corps, which included Lynn Blessing and Maurice Miller.

His love of jazz and interest in Indian music comes together on this 1967 album where jazz workouts sit alongside Eastern ragas and blend with some contemporary pop-rock influences - exotic renditions (ala Lord Sitar or Folkswingers) of Bacharch's The Look Of Love and Byrds' Lady Friend are enchanting rather than cheesy.

His Impulse album should appeal to psych fans of an Eastern persuasion: the trippy Journey To The East (with deadpan spoken vocals) has since appeared on Journey To The East (LP); and the 10-minute Arc 294 is a heady cacophony where exotic instruments do battle on a field of freeform jazz.

The A&M single switched to more accessible pop-psych sounds: Sunshine World is catchy and quite heavy sitar-pop; Yentra II is a stately sitar instrumental that starts off like Zodiac Cosmic Sounds then builds gradually to a heavy crescendo - most excellent.

Lynn Blessing released a solo album in 1969. (MW)

45: The Suzanne Love Mirage/
The King's Winetaster (Tener 1030) 1968

The Cosmic Camel was the 1968 line-up of an evolutionary Gainesville, Florida band that changed name every year (from 1966 to 1972) as members left or transferred to other schools. Frat parties were the band's staple diet though they did gig in other cities, venturing as far as southern Georgia.

In 1966 Beutlich and Wassman had arrived from Orlando where they'd been in Jerry and The Gents. They recruited Liz Green, from West Palm Beach, after she held them off first place in a 1966 University of Florida talent contest. Thacker, from Clermont, was also known as DJ "Montana" on a Gainesville radio station. Manager Brian Morris, from Orlando, was another local DJ. Sammy Green was from Jacksonville.

The Suzanne Love Mirage, unearthed on Psychedelic States - Florida, Vol. 2 (CD), is a fragmentary folk-psych opus of moods and movements with a San Francisco vibe, alternating from fuzzed dirge to cantering folk-rock. The keyboard-led lament The King's Winetaster is on Psychedelic States: Florida, Vol. 3 (CD).

Just 50 copies of the single were pressed, to be given out at concerts. (MW/RBh/RM)

The second album was a local Los Angeles release made after he moved to California to catch the wave and is simply awful. (CF/MW)

This album was an idea of Jac Holzman, the owner of the Elektra label. Composed by Mort Garson and Jacques Wilson, it was produced by Alex Hassilev and released in May 1967. The album was recorded by a group of session musicians and featured Cyrus Faryar of the Modern Folk Quartet on vocals. The electronic instruments were played by Paul Beaver. A track is allocated to each of the 12 signs of the zodiac on the above album. Instrumentals are superimposed by narrative and the two do not always blend effectively together. It's an unusual and rather enjoyable album, although it's clearly not for garage or psych-pop fans. The back sleeve mentions "Must Be Played In The Dark"!

Two years later, Garson and Wilson would prepare a series of 12 albums dedicated to the Signs Of The Zodiac.

Compilation appearances have included: Aries on Kings Of Pop Music, Vol. 2 (LP), Elektrifying (LP), Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 (2-LP) and Turds On A Bum Ride Vol. 1 & 2 (2-CD); and The Moon Child on Hallucinations, Psychedelic Underground (LP). (VJ/CA/MW/SR)

	α	Rivers Invitation/Hog For You Baby	(Little Piggy 109) 196?

NB: α may not have been released.

Based in Olympia, Washington this band included Fred Dickerson and Duane McCaslin, who had earlier played in The Bootmen. Cotton Mouth was a great live act circa 1968 and Mr. Fishker's Glory is one of the rarest and finest slices of psychedelia to come from the Pacific Northwest. It's strongly recommended and has lots of fuzz guitar. (MW/DR)

ALBUM: 1(A) CAMARADERIE (ABC ABCS-729) 1971

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Walhalla WH 90367) 2006.

From California, Cottonwood was a short-lived outfit formed by the guitarist Gary Rowles after Love broke up. The music reflects the sleeve: bearded men running in the fields or meditating by the sea. It may sound quite naive and dated now.

Rowles would later back Flo and Eddie and in 1973 join Richard Torrance and Eureka, an interesting California rock group (lovers of West Coast guitars should check their two albums on Shelter). (SR)

The Counsellors were out of Columbus, Ohio. Love Go Round starts off hesitantly with a coy intro but gradually builds in confidence from poppy garage to a waspish fuzz solo and a memorable outro - neat, hear it on Psychedelic Crown Jewels, Vol. 2 (2-LP & CD). (MW/RM)

45s:	You Know I Do/Strange Are The Shadows	(Fiji 691) 1965
	You Know I Do/Strange Are The Shadows	(Bear 1968) 1985

The single was the work of a high school band from the Iowa City suburb of Coralville, previously The Friars. Larry Barrett wrote, sang and played guitar on You Know I Do, an undistinguished effort which can be found on either Dirty Water - The History Of Eastern Iowa Rock Volume 2 (LP), Monsters Of The Midwest, Vol. IV (LP) and Die Today (CD), whilst Strange Are The Shadows has resurfaced on Trip In Tyme Volume 4 (CD). The band later changed their name to Uncle and The Anteaters and Barrett was also later involved in The XL's and Fire and Ice. (VJ)

NB: α shown as by Ron Gray and The Countdowns. β shown as by The Countdowns. χ Ron Gray solo effort.

Hailing from West Monroe, Louisiana their Cover Of Night, was a raw, bluesy garage punk rendition. The band was originally known as Ron Gray and The Countdowns and their first single, No More, was released under this name. Written by Ron Gray, it has a pretty good beat. Ron Gray is also credited for A&R and co-writing both sides of another single on the N-Joy label by Ruston, Louisiana's Spectres.

Compilation appearances have included: No More on Louisiana Punk Groups From The Sixties, Vol. 2 (LP) and Sixties Archive, Vol. 3 (CD); Can't You See on Follow That Munster, Vol. 1 (LP) and Yesterday's Dawn (LP); and Cover Of Night on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 22 (LP). Finally, a Ron Gray solo disc, Hold Back The Sunrise was compiled on Diggin' For Gold 7 (LP). (VJ/MW)

There's also a rare French EP with PS: Psychotic Reaction/They're Gonna Get You/Can't Get Your Lovin/The Morning After (Disc AZ 1058)

This San Jose high school/student band reached the U.S. Top 10 with the title track of their only album, now a collector's item. Their album also made No 122 in the U.S. Album Charts, and the group toured the U.S. performing with the Hollies, Beach Boys, Rascals, Byrds, Dave Clark Five, Sony and Cher, The Doors, Them and Peter and Gordon to name but a few.

Aside from the classic Psychotic Reaction, their album was full of driving rock songs, of which Double Decker Bus was the next best. A German Line compilation Dynamite Incidents 1983 contains some of their non-album singles. One side plays at 33 r.p.m. and the other at 45 r.p.m. Also Edsel have released a 13-track compilation.

Psychotic Reaction has become something of a garage standard. It was well covered at the time by the like of Fire Escape, Leathercoated Minds, Positively 13 O'Clock and Underground.

Compilation appearances include: Psychotic Reaction on Nuggets - Original Artyfacts From The First Psychedelic Era 1965-1968 (2-LP), Nuggets Box (4-CD), Nuggets (CD), Nuggets From Nuggets (CD), Nuggets, Vol. 1 (LP), Psychedelic Frequencies (CD), Battle Of The Bands (CD), Excerpts From Nuggets (CD), We Have Come For Your Children (LP & cassette), Highs Of The Sixties (LP), Wild Thing (2-LP), Tough Rock (LP), Best Of Psychedelic Rock (CD), Uptight Tonight (CD) and Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD and box); You Must Believe Me on Sound Of The Sixties (2-LP) and Sixties Archive Vol. 1 (CD); Teeny Bopper, Teeny Bopper on Sounds Of The Sixties San Francisco, Vol. 1 (LP); Psychotic Reaction and They're Bound To Get You on Psychotic Reactions (LP) (Topline); and Revelation In Slow Motion on Microdelia (CD). Housed in several different sleeves (at least three), Country Coalition's album is extremely patchy. Only its opening track, Your One Man Band, is really interesting, with good guitar work and vocals. The remaining songs hesitate between West Coast, pop and country pop and are best avoided. The album was produced by Bob Todd and arranged by Don McGinnis at the American Recording studios in Hollywood. Several additional musicians were used, including Mike Rubini, Louie Shelton, Joe Osborn and Kenny Loggins, who also wrote one song. The other tracks were penned by various songwriters including Carole King and Gerry Goffin, Larry Murray (Hearts and Flowers) and Steve Gillette. (SR)

Other European releases included: The Fish Cheer + F.U.C.K/Rock And Soul Music (Vanguard 119023) 1969 - a French single with B&W picture of Country Joe at Woodstock with a big "F.U.C.K." written on the sleeve. The French censors were probably unable to read English! Country Joe also had a solo 45 in France: Tiger By The Tail/Friend Lover Woman Wife (Vanguard 119028L) 1970, which was housed in a picture sleeve showing a B&W picture of Country Joe.

Country Joe and the Fish were the wittiest, most political and most reflective of the Bay Area 'acid'-rock bands. Their radicalism emanated mainly from Country Joe McDonald, who was born of leftist parents in El Monte, California in 1942. His Christian name, Joe, was apparently after Joseph Stalin. Musically, his main influences were country and he wrote his first song I Seen A Rocket in support of a colleague's campaign for student presidency. In 1964 he made The Goodbye Blues (his first recording) with Blair Harriman. His first group was The Berkeley String Quartet. Then, with Barry Melton and Bruce Barthol he played in the 13-strong Instant Action Jug Band. The Rag Baby EPs were the first recordings credited to Country Joe and the Fish. They were released starting in 1965 on the Rag Baby label, Rag Baby was a left wing pamphlet magazine. The group, which was based in Berkeley, eventually developed and recorded their superb debut album Electric Music For The Mind And Body. Written to trip to, this was one of the classic albums of the period and contained a broad range of material. There was Not So Sweet Martha Lorraine, a song of social satire, drug songs like Flying High, Bass Strings and Section 43, a daring political skit Superbird and the closing love song Grace (presumably about Grace Slick of The Jefferson Airplane) was full of acid-inspired lyrics.

I Feel Like I'm Fixin' To Die was also excellent including a more polished version of its title track; Janis, the beautiful love song McDonald wrote at the end of his romance with Janis Joplin; Eastern Jam, an electric instrumental with fine guitar interplay and Who Am I? which captures the band in more reflective mood. Also of interest were the drug-induced Thought Dream, the Bomb Song an anti-nuke anthem and the notorious Acid Commercial:-

"Now if you're tired
Or a bit run down
Can't seem to get your feet off the ground
Maybe you oughta try a little bit of LSD
Only if you want to"
"Shake your head and rattle your brain
Make you act just a bit insane
Give you all the psychic energy you need
Eat flowers and kiss babies
LSD.. for you and me...."
(from Acid Commercial)

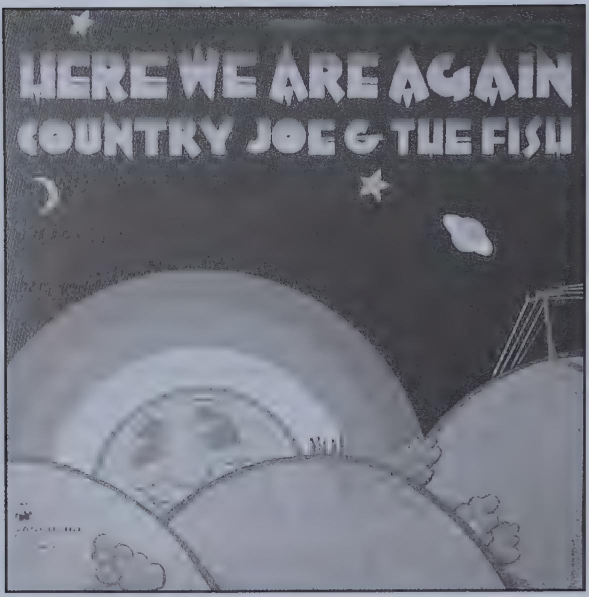
Country Joe left The Fish after this album, getting married and recording a solo album. Barry Melton kept the band together either as The Fish or The Incredible Fish and individual band members wrote their own material. The band reformed a few months later as The Country Joe and The Fish Revue. Although nowhere near as good as their first two albums Together, which included the results of their individual enterprise still has some fine moments notably on An Untitled Protest- another anti-Vietnam protest song and The Streets Of Your Town and Bright Suburban Mr and Mrs Clean Machine, which were both protests against their own environment. McDonald is still credited as one of the band on the album sleeve and he appeared on some of the tracks. During 1968 these were extensive personnel changes and as a result Here We Are Again was disappointing.

They appeared at the Woodstock Festival on 21-24 August 1969, with a modified line-up, and performed their infamous Fish Cheer, but only McDonald and Melton now remained from their definitive line-up. They also appeared in Michael Wadleigh's full length movie of the festival in 1970. The same line-up recorded their CJ Fish album. After this the band disintegrated. Briefly in the mid-seventies the whole 1967 line-up reformed for a series of live gigs and the disappointing Reunion album.

COUNTRY JOE & THE FISH - Together LP.



COUNTRY JOE & THE FISH - Here We Are Again LP.

Barry Melton later recorded an album with Melton, Levy and The Dey Brothers.

Country Joe and the Fish were one of the best and most interesting of the late sixties Bay Area rock bands. Their first two albums remain classics of the genre.

Compilation appearances have included: Rock And Soul Music on The New Sound Of Underground (LP); Bass Strings on Nuggets, Vol. 7: Early SFO (LP); Fish Cheer and Rock And Soul Music on Pop Music Super Hebdo (LP); Bass Strings, Section 43 and Thing Called Love on The Berkeley EPs (CD); We're The Crackers and All I Need which don't seem to appear elsewhere on Zachariah soundtrack (LP); Death Sound Blues from 1968 on California Christmas Album (LP) and I Feel Like I'm Fixin' To Die Rag, Section 43 and Superbird on Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD and book). ALBUM: 1 THE COUNTRY ROAD (No label) 197? R1

From Kentucky, an unknown quartet, with a style somewhere between rock, garage, country and bar music. Their rare album contains mostly covers including: Tommy James' Draggin' The Line, Hoyt Axton's Never Been To Spain, Dale Hawkins' Suzy Q and The Doors' Hello I Love You. It's thought to have been recorded in the early seventies. (SR)

NB: All five tracks from (1) are included on Country Weather (RD Records 015) 2005, a 2-LP set with bonus tracks and a booklet.

This one-sided 12" album was issued in a plain sleeve. Only 50 copies were pressed and it is the rarest record from the San Francisco sixties scene. The band was based in Walnut Creek, California. Time Is Leaving Me Behind, a pleasant, melodic pop-folk number with good guitar moments and the superb finale Fly To New York, a driving number with excellent guitar work, really catch the ear. New York City Blues is routine blues but Carry A Spare features some pretty good guitar jamming.

Greg Douglass became a well-regarded California musician first with Terry and The Pirates and later with The Steve Miller Band.

COUNTRY JOE & THE FISH - The Life And Times Of... 2-LP.

He performed his first gig in June 1964 with The Statics for a P.T.A. sponsored event. Throughout 1965 Greg was with the Vibrants, leaving them in 1966 to replace Paul White in the Virtues. By late 1967, the Virtues changed their name to Country Weather and played the Avalon, Fillmore and throughout northern California and the Pacific Northwest. Their 'almost' record deal never materialised and by 1973 the band broke up.

After the split, Greg and Bill Baron formed Mistress with Brian Kilcourse. Their album which was produced by Mallory Earl was again never released and by August 1974 Mistress called it quits. At this time Greg's reputation was growing. Aside from working with Terry and the Pirates, he had played on Link Wray's 1973 album and performed with Van Morrison's back up band and Mario Cipollina's band Soundhole. He later worked with Hot Tuna on their Yellow Fever album and joined The Steve Miller Band in 1977.

He is still performing and recording today with two solo albums on the German Taxim label.

Compilation appearances have included: Time Is Leaving Me Behind, New York City Blues, Carry A Spare and Fly To New York on California Acid Folk (2-LP); Fly To New York on Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD book) and there are three live rehearsal tracks; Confusion, Ride With Me and I Am Getting Closer on Ptolematic Terrascope Pot 34 (CD). Formed in Ballard, Washington in 1959, their personnel underwent a number of changes, and in addition to the personnel listed above, Mike Smale, Steve Lervold and Craig Parker provided keyboards in early line-ups, with Dick Gazewood also playing sax. By 1964 they had secured a record deal with Sea Crest Records. Turn On Song won them a lot of regional recognition and they got to play with many major acts before they evolved into Rubber Band in 1967.

In addition to their four singles they had one cut, Trick Bag on the compilation Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 (LP) in 1966, on which Billy Burns provided vocals. Other vocalists on their recordings include Woody Carr on Then I Cried.

Early member Steve Lervold later played with James Henry & The Olympics, whilst Dan Olason was last reported working as a Boeing executive and brother Bill is a dentist in Seattle.

In 1964 when this Goldsboro, North Carolina outfit released a beat/frat influenced single on the local JCP label, some of them were stationed at the Seymour Johnson Air Force Base. By the time of their next recordings in 1966, they'd acquired a new drummer, let their hair grow long, and acquired a more Anglophile image and sound. Their version of Spoonful differs from the norm; instead of a bluesy punk shouter, it has an upbeat swing and live frat/party atmosphere.

Kudos to Sundazed (again!) for unearthing a pair of unreleased 1966 folk-punkers alongside Spoonful - the Don Roof composed Discussion.. and a cover of Bob Dylan's Baby Blue. The EP comes with some cool pictures and interviews with band members by Jeff Jarema. If Discussion.. sounds familiar, it turns out that The Counts IV made another appearance in the guise of The Inexpensive Handmade Look, with the song retitled What Good Is Up.

Compilation appearances have included: Listen To Me on Tobacco A-Go-Go, Vol. 1 (LP), Scum Of The Earth, Vol. 1 (LP) and Scum Of The Earth (CD); Spoonful on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 22 (LP) and Shadows Falling (CD); Where Are You on The Electric Coffee House Volume 2 (CD); and Discussion Of Unorthodox Council on Garage Beat '66 4 (CD). A heavy rock outfit from Illinois Coven was notable for the screaming vocals of Jinx Dawson. They released at least three albums. Produced by Bill Traut (Aorta, Shadows of Knight...), their first one attempted to mix psych-rock with Black Mass "liturgy" for generally enjoyable results and contained 10 tracks including: Black Sabbath, Dignitaries Of Hell, Pact With Lucifer, For Unlawful Carnal Knowledge... The album came with a nice gatefold cover with lyrics and several pictures of the "ceremony".

The first album features members of Aorta and in particular Jim Donlinger wrote most of the songs, arranged them, played guitar, and sang backup. Their subsequent releases were in the same style musically, but abandoned the 'satanic' theme.

The group featured Mike "Oz" Osbourne, formerly with UK act the Magic Lanterns. He is not Ozzy Osbourne of Black Sabbath, although some dealers mention it on their lists.

One of Coven's tracks One Tin Soldier appeared on three of their singles and was also featured in the movie 'Billy Jack'.

Jinx Dawson was born on a Friday the 13th and actually is named Jinx on her birth certificate. (SR/RNi/MW/SMu)

COYOTE - Self Titled LP.

After a Kim Fowley/Michael Lloyd produced single, Joe Covington played drums with Jorma Kaukonen and Jack Casady for the first live gigs of Hot Tuna. He eventually became the drummer of the Jefferson Airplane for Bark, but quit the group in 1973 to go solo.

His sole album was released on Grunt, the 'Airplane label, and produced by Pat Ieraci. Musically patchy, it contains seven tracks written by Covington and mixes good West Coast guitar solos with loose improvisation and generally weak vocals.

Covington had earlier been in The Fenways and also later played on Peter Kaukonen's Black Kangaroo and Papa John Creach's first album. After 1973, he apparently retired from the music scene but can however be found drumming on Nick Gravenites' Blue Star, an album from 1980. Patrick Craig was in West Coast Natural Gas/Indian Puddin' and Pipe until their break up in 1971, then played with Van Morrison and Buddy Miles before forming the Tazmanian Devils in 1976.

NB: There's also CD, Painting The Day - The Angelic Psychedelia Of The Cowsills (El ACMEM69CD) which may be of interest.

The EP shown above was never available in the shops and comprises four original compositions never released before. It was sponsored by the American Dairy Association. Side one commences with the Milk Song which extols the virtues of milk as a restorative agent. The remaining three cuts are the harmony-layered All My Days, the gentle Nothing To Do and tambourine sunshine-pop of The Fun Song.

Their single, All I Wanta Be Is Me, is an excellent garage record with almost sneering vocals. It has also resurfaced on Hipsville 29 B.C. (LP).

Former Navy man Bud Cowsill brought a couple of guitars back to Newport, Rhode Island from Spain for his two older sons Bill and Bob (18 and 16 at the time). They taught themselves to play and were soon augmented by their younger brethren, Barry (11) and John (10). Precursors to The Osmonds' brand of sibling pop; they were also managed by their father.

After the Joda single they had considerable success and released eight albums and numerous singles on MGM, Philips and London between 1966 and 1971, although these fall outside the remit of this book. Bill Cowsill went solo and put out an album in 1970. Sister Susan joined the group at a later stage and released some solo singles in the mid-seventies.

Painting The Day - The Angelic Psychedelia Of The Cowsills is a 23-track, 80-minute compilation of their better examples of sunshine pop.

Their flower-power The Rain, The Park, And Other Things, is also reputedly worth a spin and you can also check out Mystery Of Life on Fading Yellow Vol. 7 (CD). (BM/MW/VJ)

The 10-piece group from Richmond, Virginia comprised nine guys and one female, none other than future rock star Pat Benatar. With four horn players they played a kind of poor lounge rock. (VJ)

CRABBY APPLETON

CRABBY APPLETON - Rotten To The Core! CD.

Formed by Michael Fennelly after the end of Millennium and Sagittarius, Crabby Appleton was one of the early seventies California rock groups signed by Elektra, along with Rhinoceros and the Wackers. Their first album was produced by Don Gallucci (from Don and The Goodtimes and Touch) and enjoyed reasonable success, climbing to No. 125 in the Charts. This allowed them to release a second album on which they used some female background vocals. Their music was characterised by Fennelly's vocals (sometimes inspired by Robert Plant) and his good lead guitar work. Their songs combine hard-rock and melodic pop-rock. Of their singles, Grab On is non-album.

Fennelly later moved to England and released two solo albums: Lane Changer with Rod Argent (Epic KE 32703) 1974 and Strangers Bed (Mercury SRM 1-1043) 1975. Felix Falcon became a session musician.

Compilation appearances have included Go Back on Elektrock The Sixties (4-LP) and it is this Nazz-like slice of power-pop that the band is best remembered for. (SR/VJ/MW)

45: Chase Yourself/Bye Bye My Little Girl (Universal 30495) 1967

Formed in 1966 by childhood friends Alec Smith and Robbie Leff, The Crabs were managed by prominent Houston agent and big-band leader, Buddy Brock, who produced their only record, Chase Yourself/Bye Bye My Little Girl on Brock's own Universal label. Both songs were written by Leff.

Chase Yourself met with no success on Houston radio (many thought that the flip side should've been the topside) but it did chart in Beaumont, Texas and Lake Charles, Louisiana where The Crabs also made their one and only TV appearance on a local morning show. There they lip-synched their single and promoted that night's appearance at the opening of a Lake Charles nightclub, The Cave. One embarrassing moment of the live TV show: Someone in the booth mistakenly played the opening 20 seconds of the single at 33rpm... no doubt the longest 20 seconds in the brief career of The Crabs.

Typical songs from the group's set list included those of the Yardbirds, The Beatles, Gerry and The Pacemakers, Johnny Rivers, Sam The Sham and The Pharaohs, Paul Revere and The Raiders, Wilson Pickett and Roy Head and The Traits.

After playing steadily for almost two years the group broke up when drummer Smith went off to college in El Paso and Leff moved to Los Angeles to pursue songwriting. Although Leff's music never enjoyed great success, his songs were recorded by a diverse group of artists including Nancy Sinatra, Johnny Winter and Alice Cooper.

Leff moved back to Houston in 1982 where he currently performs in the sixties music duet, Speedy Mancini with singer/drummer Dale Marks. Alec Smith is married with two grown children and is in the insurance business. Jerry DeJong was last heard of teaching guitar and Ed Rudnick's whereabouts are currently unknown.

Compilation appearances include: Chase Yourself on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 12 (LP) and Acid Visions - The Complete Collection, Vol. 1 (3-CD); and Bye Bye My Little Girl on Psychedelic States: Texas Vol. 1 (CD). (VJ)

45: Walk In The Sky/
Listen To This Side (PS) (Columbia 4-44434) 1968

Wrapped in a baroque art sleeve, this is most likely a Philadelphia or New York studio creation. Walk In The Sky is a Turtles-like cover of a Flower Pot Men song, arranged by Jimmy "Wiz" Wisner. Producers John Walsh and Murray Wecht also wrote the flip, an amazing instrumental where an oscillator (or similar electonic noise generator) impersonates a racing car climbing through countless gears - imagine Silver Apples doing a cover of Chicago's Free Form Guitar (on their first album) and you're halfway there. There's also a compilation CD, Classic Crack (Lifesong) 1980.

This prog-rock band formed in Baltimore in the early seventies and evolved out of an early seventies band called ArcAngel.

Their critically acclaimed first album was declared the "debut album of the year" by Rolling Stone magazine, promotion and distribution problems prevented its widespread success. All the tracks were penned by Palumbo. The album is a Beatles-inspired seventies pop and prog-rock delight.

Animal Notes, the band's second album, was originally written as a rock opera about the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Like the band's debut release, it was critically acclaimed, but the high concept and lack of "radio singles" meant that sales were disappointing. Palumbo's lyrics are strong on tunes like Wet Teenager, We Want Mine (about haves and have-nots) and especially Animal Skins (about the masses manipulated by religious leaders then and now). Maybe I Can was a well arranged song with the introspective lyrics Palumbo was associated with.

Sadly, there was friction with the label and within the band about future musical direction and Palumbo left in 1977 to go solo. The remaining band members, with vocalist Gary Lee Chappell, released a third album Safety In Numbers in 1978, which some consider to be their best, and the live album Live Sky the same year. Following this, Crack The Sky disbanded, and Classic Crack, a hits compilation, was released by Lifesong in 1980. (VJ)

This Bay Area blues-rock group was fronted by Joe Crane. Originating from Conroe, Texas, Crane was a pianist, guitarist, songwriter and singer who had previously played with Texas musicians like Roy Head, Huey Meaux and Johnny Winter. He moved from Texas to California in 1967, while he was in the Coast Guard and then became the only white member of the Buzzards, an Oakland bar band. In 1970, Crane met the producer Jack Leahy and organised the Rhythm Devils. After the release of their rare privately pressed 33rpm EP, their line-up changed and the group became known simply as the Hoodoo Rhythm Devils. (SR)

This bubblegum outfit was originally put together in the studio by producers Jerry Kasenetz and Jeff Katz with Robert Spencer, formerly of The Cadillacs, on vocals. The above line-up is for the touring group that was formed later. They are best remembered for Gimmie Gimmie Good Lovin', which had the pounding beat and immediate appeal that typified bubblegum music, but the flip is superb slice of U.S. psychedelia with a long organ introduction and haunting vocals. Also of note was the upbeat Sunshine, Red Wine.

Although the album includes a different stereo take of Gimme Gimme Good Lovin' from the single, the rest of the material is also different. The opening cut is a long version of Respect, featuring heavy organ and flute solos. Apparently the group that recorded the single was a studio creation but the band which recorded the album was formed by New York musicians, who'd earlier recorded as Livin End.

Kenny Cohen had started his musical career in Florida with The Group, a garage band based in Cocoa Beach.

Dark Part Of My Mind also appears to have been released as the flip to Captain Groovy and His Bubblegum Army's sole single and can also be found on Buzz Buzz Buzzzzzz Vol. 2 (CD). Another track, In A Castle has resurfaced on Psychosis From The 13th Dimension (CD) and Space Buzzy is on Mindexpanders (LP). (VJ/SR/MW/JLh)

Born in 1917, Papa John Creach was a black violin player who joined Hot Tuna in 1970 and the Jefferson Airplane in 1971. His first album for Grunt (the 'Airplane label) can interest the Bay Area fans because of the participation of the whole of 'Airplane, plus Jerry Garcia, John Cipollina, Pete Sears, Carlos Santana...

Musically patchy, it contains some excellent tracks (The Janitor Drives A Cadillac, sung by Grace Slick and written by Covington; Plunk A Little Funk, Everytime I Hear Your Name and String Jet Rock with Casady, Kaukonen and Piazza in an electric formation). Alas, insipid covers of Over The Rainbow and Danny Boy reduce the global quality of this surprising album.

In 1972, Papa John created his own group, Zulu, and recorded his second album Filthy which is not as good, his main highlight being the Kaukonen composition Walking The Tou-Tou.

Creach later joined Jefferson Starship and kept on recording under his name during the seventies. He died in the early nineties. (SR)

45: David/The Fun Machine (Windi 1006) 1968

This very rare southern California pop-psych album with dual organ, fuzz and sunshine vibes sounds similar to Strawberry Alarm Clock. The songs are quite catchy and the album has long been popular with collectors. The band utilised pretty much every instrument around at the time. They were previously known as Sunlights Seven and recorded an unreleased, acetate-only album in Hollywood: Sunstroke, circa 1967. This early line-up's repertoire was largely comprised of early versions of songs re-recorded for the Creation Of Sunlight album. (VJ/SR/CF)

EP:	1(A)	TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN	(Norton EP-101) 2001

The Norton EP comprises four previously unissued tracks 'recorded live in the bedroom' in 1966 by this teen combo from Elizabeth City, North Carolina. Unusually for the times, all the material is original and each clocks in at over three and a half minutes. Despite the lo-fi quality, they shine through on this homemade demo.

The Animals and Yardbirds appear to be the prime influences. Better Watch Out is a moody punker with Burdonesque vocals and a visceral guitar solo; I'm Mad has a great Yardbirds-style rave-up; Soul And Feeling (with "it's very own sound") is a bluesy slow-burner with a rockin' middle section; finally To Whom It May Concern is the band's roll-call number which provides the personnel above (strangely the leader and drummer Raymond Brown is omitted from the label's personnel list). Whatever, 35 years on they've made it! (MW)

Two other singles: Bootleg/Good Golly Miss Molly (America 17010) 1968 and Molina/Sailor's Lament (Fantasy 17038) 1971, were also issued in France.

When they renamed themselves with this strange name, the former Golliwogs were wishing to make a new start, relying on their roots: raw blues-tinged sounds from Memphis and New Orleans. Their first single, a good cover of Dale Hawkins' Suzy Q reached No. 11 in the charts in October 1968. The debut album was greeted with much critical approval and sold surprisingly well, reaching No. 52 in the charts. The following albums established Creedence as a very popular act. The prolific songwriting skills of John Fogerty helped the group to release six albums in three years and most of the songs were a powerful mix of blues, rockabilly, rock and R&B with clever lyrics, often expressing the working-class sensibility (Fortunate Son, Lodi). They were probably the only San Francisco band whose public thought they were from Louisiana or Tennessee.

In February 1971, Tom Fogerty had quit the band to pursue a solo career. John gave in to the demands of the rhythm section for more artistic freedom and their final album, Mardi Gras, was an artistic disaster, the singing and songwriting abilities of Cook and Clifford being really limited.

When the group broke up, Doug Clifford recorded a solo album Cosmo (Fantasy 9411) 1972, which is better avoided. Clifford and Cook kept on working together, first with Doug Sahm (the excellent Groover's Paradise was produced by Clifford) then with the Don Harrison Band and Russell DaShiell. Stu Cook then worked with Roky Erickson (he produced The Evil One) and later formed Southern Pacific, a successful country-rock act with other San Francisco veterans (John McFee, Keith Knudsen).

In 1996, Clifford and Cook formed Creedence Clearwater Revisited and are still touring, mostly in northern Europe.

John Fogerty first created the Blue Ridge Rangers, a country/blues/hillbilly act whose album sold quite well (it was in fact Fogerty solo playing all the instruments!) and went "really" solo in 1973, recording some singles and an excellent John Fogerty in 1975. Being in a long-term procedure with Fantasy to get his royalties back, he stopped recording for 10 years and finally came back in 1985 with Centerfield which was very successful. He is still recording and touring. (SR/VJ)

Crème Soda hailed from Milwaukee, Wisconsin where they first started playing together in 1972. Both singles are from their album, which contains quite a range of styles. Melodic soft-rock predominates as evidenced by Give It Up, Tonight, Deep In A Dream, Keep It Heavy and Daydreamin'; but there's also a couple of weirder more psychedelic tracks in the early Pink Floyd mould - Numero Uno and The Beat Song; some rockabilly/punk (I'm) Chewin' Gum and When The Sun Shines and a bit of punk/blues on That Is That. Overall, it's worth investigating. Don Juntunen, incidentally, later played with Oklahoma.

There were rumours of another album entitled Live Zingers, but this is now known not to exist.

Compilation appearances have included: Tonight and Keep It Heavy on Endless Journey - Phase Two (LP); and Tonight on Endless Journey - Phase I & II (2-CD). (VJ/CF)

This New Jersey flower-power pop quintet first attracted attention when they recorded Younger Girl, a John Sebastian song from the first Lovin' Spoonful album. The single gave them the first of their four U.S. Top 100 hits and their first album was a delightful summery disc.

Originally called The Vibra-Tones, when they signed up to Kama Sutra Records, they were forced to record covers although the band had a large amount of original material ready. After recording the Jackie DeShannon song Children And Flowers for their first Kama Sutra single, the band wanted the Don Ciccone original, Mr Dieingly Sad for their second but when the label insisted on Younger Girl, four of the members went on strike rather than record the song. Subsequently, only Don and Kenny appeared on the single.

The record company then relented and Mr Dieingly Sad became their biggest hit. Soon after Don and Bob left to join the Air Force and a few months later, Jack Decker was drafted. Chris Darway then left to return to college and Jimmy Ryan and Kenny Gorka were left to carry the name with some hired musicians.

In late 1967 they signed to Enoch Light's Project 3 label, whose interest lay in making interesting use of cutting edge recording technology rather than music per se. They were subsequently featured on Light's "Popular Science" series of stereo/quad test albums.

Jim Ryan later worked with Carly Simon and Gunhill Road, Bob Spinella went on to Steeplechase, an altogether heavier outfit whose album, Lady Bright is quite collectable. Kenny Gorka later became the manager of The Bitter End in New York City; Don Ciccone went off to write songs (for the Innocence) and later joined The Four Seasons, whilst Chris Darway became "Inventor in Residence" at Princeton University.

Their most successful single, Mr Dieingly Sad can also be heard on Nuggets, Vol. 11: Pop Part Four (LP), whilst you can find the earlier No One But You on Destination Frantic! (CD); and Don't Let The Rain... on Every Groovy Day (LP). (MW/JFr/VJ/LP/SR/DG)

The Command single was taken from the album. They won a songwriting award in the Bay Area in 1969.

ALBUM: 1 IF I COULD ONLY REMEMBER MY NAME

Recorded shortly after the death of his girlfriend, Christine Gail Hinton, the first solo album by David Crosby contains some decent tracks but will not appeal to everyone, and many will find it boring. Its main interest today is probably the stellar backing group: four members of the Dead (Garcia, Lesh, Hart and Kreutzmann), two from Santana (Shrieve and Rolie), four from the 'Airplane (Grace Slick, Kantner, Casady, Kaukonen), one from Quicksilver (Freiberg), plus Graham Nash, Neil Young, Joni Mitchell and Laura Allen.

The music is very laid-back and as one may expect, given the personnel, contains some good guitar parts. The material was penned by Crosby with some help from Young, Nash, Garcia, Lesh and Shrieve. The strangest track is an accapella version of the French traditional Orleans, Beaugency.

The album was engineered by Stephen Barncard, who also worked with Chet Nichols and went on to form Oasis (the US one!). David Crosby worked throughout the seventies and eighties with Graham Nash and occasionally Steve Stills and Neil Young. He also spent various periods in jail. After some severe health problems, he is now intensively touring and recording, solo or with his two groups, CPR and the reformed CSN&Y.

David Crosby was of course one of The Byrds. Two cuts from his days with the Les Baxter Singers; Willie Gene and Come Back Baby have been compiled on Early L.A. (LP). (SR)

They later moved to Minneapolis and enjoyed some singles and album chart success between 1968-1970. Best Of Crow is a good overview of their work but is rather hard to find now. Wagner released a further album On The Run in 1983 which was comprised of studio tapes he made whilst with Crow. Colours By Crow is a limited edition compilation. Musically they were similar to Grand Funk and Vanilla Fudge (without the keyboards). Evil Woman was later recorded by Black Sabbath. (HMc/VJ)

NB: α shown as by Naturals, β shown as by Honest Truth.

This Fort Worth, Texas band had a lengthy lineage. Initially known as the Naturals, they put out one single in 1965 before becoming Crowd + 1, whose trio of singles are worth seeking out. They aren't so much garage as hard-edged pop and rock and Don't Hold Back, for example, doesn't hold back on use of the fuzz pedal.

A brief period as Honest Truth saw one single before they became Bloodrock and enjoyed a highly successful career in the seventies.

Meantime Dean Parks, writer of all the songs on the Crowd + 1 singles, resurfaced on a single credited to Morning Rain - Take Your Time/Most Peculiar (Buddah BDA 247) in 1971. (MW)

Crucible (IN)

ALBUMS:	1	SHAGGY JOE - DON'T FORGET MY NAME	(Crucible) 1971 SC
	2	CRUCIBLE: RECORD TWO	(No label) 1972 R1

These two albums were recorded in Richmond, Indiana by students from Earlham College and consist of solo and band performances of folk material, including some traditional UK folk. Strictly speaking they are various artists' albums. The second album is reputedly the better of the two.

There are other albums in the Earlham series such as Hoi' Polloi, Attention Span and Sequoiah Stream. (VJ)

	β	The Salem Witch Trail/Complain	(Night Owl 6836) 1968

This Madison, Wisconsin high school outfit was actually known as The Crucible but their debut single label erroneously credited them in the plural and shortened the title of the flip side, which was actually called Beware Of Low Flying Birds.

The original band split soon after and Erikson formed a new band, Kiriae Crucible. Again they were haunted by a label error where ..Trial was mis-spelt as "Trail". This track would reappear, correctly spelt, on the 1969 Badger A Go Go sampler (LP). It's fine pop-rock with echoes of H.P. Lovecraft in the vocal arrangements, and features trilling keyboards, some moog-like whoops and wah-wah.

Compilation appearances include: You Know I Do on Shutdown '66 (LP), Destination Frantic! (LP & CD); Beware Of Birds - Badger Beat Chronicles (LP) and Gravel Volume 3 (CD); and The Salem Witch Trial on Badger A Go Go (LP), Brain Shadows II (LP), An Overdose Of Heavy Psych (CD) and The Cuca Records Story 2: Garagemental (CD). The Crusade (AK)

45:	Psychedelic Woman/Fade Away	(Golden North 103) 1966

Psychedelic Woman, a guitar-driven garage-punker with snarling vocal, was the work of this group from Juneau, Alaska. The flip, Fade Away, is a slow number with catchy guitar and sound effects.

Compilation appearances include: Psychedelic Woman on Scum Of The Earth, Vol. 1 (LP), Scum Of The Earth, Vol. 2 (LP) and Scum Of The Earth (CD); Psychedlic Woman and Fade Away on Incredible Sound Show Stories, Vol. 4 (LP); and Fade Away on Wyld Sydes Volume 4 (CD). (VJ)

The Crusaders (CA)

ALBUM:	1	MAKE A JOYFUL NOISE WITH DRUMS AND GUITARS (mono/stereo)	(Tower T/ST 5048) 1966

The Crusaders was a five-piece gospel-rock group from L.A. With the addition of a female singer, they later became Love Exchange. They are obviously totally unconnected to the funk/jazz Crusaders.

One track from the album, God Lives later resurfaced on the compilation Songs Of Faith And Inspiration (CD); and Little Drummer Boy has re-emerged on Resurrection - The Amplified Bible (CD). (SR/DJ)

Originally known as The Travelers, this Chicago-based act was clearly influenced by the British music invasion. Indeed it was their cover version of Sugar And Spice, which had given The Searchers a big U.K. hit back in 1963, which attracted the attention of Columbia, leading them to take over the distribution of their single. A latter cover of Lennon-McCartney's You're Gonna Lose That Girl, which was probably intended as the follow-up, got lost somewhere in their switch from Destination to Columbia and only got an airing much later when Happy Tiger included it on their Early Chicago (LP) compilation.

THE CRYAN' SHAMES - Sugar And Spice LP.

After signing to Columbia they concentrated on putting out their first album which had a considerable Byrds influence and some good original compositions, notably Jim Fair's Ben Franklin's Almanac. It also contained some well done cover versions of classics like, Hey Joe, If I Needed Someone, We Gotta Get Out Of This Place, We'll Meet Again and She Don't Care About Time. It peaked at No. 192 in the U.S. Album Charts.

Further singles followed: - another Jim Fair composition from their debut album, I Wanna Meet You, which became a minor hit, and Georgia, which was even less successful.

Gerry Stone was drafted and further line-up changes took place before they began work on a second album. The result was rather bland but a marked advance in terms of production and harmony. Commercially it was more successful than their first, climbing to No. 156. Meanwhile they enjoyed a minor single hit with It Could Be We Are In Love - one of their more inventive singles. Like the follow-up, Up On The Roof, it made the No. 85 spot.

Their third album Synthesis had strong material and lavish instrumentation but could only manage No 184 in the Album Charts. For this release Dave Carter had joined from the recently disbanded Saturday's Children.

In 1969, Carter, Kerley, and Dawson joined with members of Aorta to do an album of Navy public service spots under the moniker Aorta/Cryin' Shames Ensemble. The following year the band called it quits and Kerley formed Possum River.

Isaac Guillory gave it a go solo and moved to England where he recorded an album in the folky 'singer-songwriter' mould. In the nineties Jim Pilster, who got his nickname because he had a hook instead of a left hand, was still singing for a re-formed The Cryan Shames, for which Tom Doody also makes occasional appearances.

Compilation appearances have included: Sugar And Spice on Nuggets - Original Artyfacts From The First Psychedelic Era 1965-1968 (2-LP), Nuggets Box (4-CD) and Nuggets, Vol. 3: Pop (LP); Ben Franklin's Almanac on A Journey To Tyme, Vol. 2 (LP), Pebbles Vol. 7: Chicago 2 (CD), Garage Music For Psych Heads (LP), Destination Frantic! (CD) and 2131 South Michigan Avenue (2-CD); Greenburg, Glickstein, Charles David Smith & Jones on The Psychedelic Voyage 2 (LP); the previously unreleased You're Gonna Lose That Girl on Early Chicago (LP); and a demo version of the same song on 2131 South Michigan Avenue (2-CD). The Crystal Ball (?IL)

45:	Trans-Love Airways (Fat Angel)/ You're A Big Girl Now	(Smash S-2092) 1967

The Crystal Ball recorded a stoned psych one-off cover of Donovan, backed by a Lovin' Spoonful cover in a melodic pop vein. The single was produced by Roger Karshner (Bhagavad Gita, National Gallery), Richard Toops and Joel Corey (of the Capes Of Good Hope).

You can also find Trans-Love Airways on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 11: Hydrogen Atom (LP & CD). (MW)

45s:	The Setting Of Despair/It's Only You	(United Artists 50284) 1968
	Suicidal Flowers/Land Of Love	(Cobblestone 730) 1969

This psychedelic punk outfit came from Providence, Rhode Island. Suicidal Flowers had a distinctively Eastern flavour and is well worth checking out. Land Of Love is an intensely moody 'psych' ballad with gorgeous Spanish guitar phrases thoughout.

Compilation appearances have included: Suicidal Flowers on Pebbles, Vol. 3 - The Acid Gallery (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 3 (CD), Pebbles, Vol. 2 (ESD) (CD), Pebbles Box (5-LP), Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP), Acid Dreams Epitaph (CD), Trash Box (5-CD) and Great Pebbles (CD); and The Setting Of Despair on Punk Ballads Sampler (LP), Sixties Archive, Vol. 5 (CD), Son Of The Gathering Of The Tribe (LP) and Acid and Flowers (CD).

The Suicidal Flowers track later gave name to the psychedelic neo-folk-rock band The Suicidal Flowers from York in the UK. (VJ/MW/ELn)

NB: (1) test pressing with blank labels. (1) reissued on vinyl and CD as "In Relation To Our Times" (Akarma AK 134) 2001

45: In Relation/Merry Go Round (All-American 3333) 1967

NB: Shown as by Strawberry Sac.

The personnel above are as credited on the Akarma album but all may not be as it seems.... a reissue of an untitled 1968 album, allocated a catalog # of All-American AA-5733-LPD, that only made it to the test-pressing stage. One copy surfaced in 2000 with a price-tag of $1,500.

This group/project was in Bill Holmes' All-American stable of inter-twined groups from in and around the Santa Barbara, California area. Greg Munford had been with Thee Sixpence up to the point that they recorded the Incense And Pepermints (sic) single and became The Strawberry Alarm Clock. Crystal Circus would appear to have been his next venture. He was involved in other projects and a single released in 1967 by The Shapes Of Sound - Lost Weekend/Twisted Conversation (All-American 343) - is a likely candidate, given that Twisted Conversation turns up on the Crystal Circus album. Munford, Solomon and Bielan were certainly involved with another band on All-American, The Indescribably Delicious, and are credited on the I.D. album reissue - Good Enough To Eat (Akarma AK 046) 2000. Bob Feldman also pops up amongst the composer credits. HOWEVER you should refer to the I.D. entry to get the real facts behind the band, their "LP", and their experiences with Gary "Solo" Solomon and Bill Holmes.

One has to wonder why this album was not released, given the success of the Strawberry Alarm Clock. The vocal style and arrangements on the soft-centred pop-psych numbers (In Relation, Merry Go Round, Circus And Zoo World) are uncannily similar. There are trippy vibes and elegant baroque gestures (Castles, Twisted Conversation) counterbalanced by harder material that harks back to the sounds of Thee Sixpence: - strident garage-pop with blistering guitar (Don't Say I Didn't Warn You), Cream-like fuzz-grunge (The Difference Between Us), and brass-pop bombast (Never Again).

Whatever the real truth behind it, this reissue unearths a fine selection of '67-'68 confectionery and is recommended. (MW)

Crystal Garden (CA)

45: Flash/Peach Fuzz Forest (Baytown BT011/012) 1969

This San Leandro, California outfit was previously known as The Carnaby Five. They recorded a good psych single with an interesting lead guitar. Read all about them in Bruce Tahsler's book 'The San Francisco East Bay Scene' (Teens n' Twenties Publications 2006).

Peach Fuzz Forest later resurfaced on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 3 (CD) and Pebbles Vol. 11: Northern California (CD). (SR/MW)

NB: (2) reissued on CD (Red Lounge Records) 2001 with bonus tracks.

Hailing from Lodi, California this band also recorded numerous singles between 1968-1982, as well as these three albums. Utilising both male and female singers, they played mostly cover versions across genres encompassing hard-rock, rockabilly and more funky rock. The production on all three albums is pretty basic and none of them is particularly good. By the time of Sure Feelin' Loose the band was a trio and this is the best played and funkiest of their albums, but it's nothing special at all. (VJ)

45s: Hey Ma Ma/Funeral At Dawn (Vangee 904100) 1969
You And Me/World On Fire (Dynamic Sound 91101) 1969

This band came from Painesville, Ohio. Their first single, Hey Ma Ma has quite a hypnotic quality, with well thought out fuzz, keyboard pulses and inventive drumming. Their follow up You And Me, is also a fine tripped-out, echo-soaked mind-blast. Check it out!

Compilation appearances have included: Hey Ma Ma and You And Me on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 11 (LP & CD); Hey Ma Ma on A Lethal Dose Of Hard Psych (CD); You And Me on An Overdose Of Heavy Psych (CD), Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 2 (2-LP), Turds On A Bum Ride Vol. 1 & 2 (2-CD), Echoes In Time, Vol. 2 (LP) and Echoes In Time Vol's 1 & 2 (CD); and World On Fire on Turds On A Bum Ride Vol. 3 (CD). John O'Brien had previously been in The Norsemen and Infinity Of Sound, neither of whom appear to have made it onto wax. This was his third Rochester, New York oufit and their sole 500-press single appeared in the spring of 1970. Life is a catchy up-tempo swinger, featured on Project Blue Vol. 5 (LP) and Diggin' For Gold Volume 9 (LP), and sounds closer to 1966 with its simple Chuck Berry style solo. For Me is a dreamy, drifting ballad with warbling keyboards. (MW)

Cucumber (?)

45: Don't Make Me Cry/Under (Cobblestone CB 715) 1968

This obscure outfit recorded just this one single. The flip is a heavy fuzz instrumental number, whilst the top-side, also composed by a Robert Esposito, is a heavy mid-tempo fuzzy thriller.

Compilation appearances include: Under on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 6 (LP & CD) and Everything You Always Wanted To Know... (CD); and Don't Make Me Cry and Under on Turds On A Bum Ride Vol. 3 (CD). (VJ)

The Midnight To Sixty-Six (LP) compilation revisits the Culls' rather conservative cover of the Pretties' classic on their sole single. It has subsequently been compiled on Psychedelic States: Arkansas Vol. 1 (CD) and Trip In Tyme Vol. 1 (CD). Based in Little Rock, Arkansas, the MY label seems to have had a monopoly on the area's burgeoning mid-sixties scene and released fine singles by the likes of the Dutch Masters, Egyptians, Romans and Spires Of Oxford. This is a mystery outfit from Riverside, on Long Island New York. They released two moody pop-punk singles that are proving popular now with compilers: Fire And Flood is on Every Groovy Day (LP); I Don't Know is on Leaving It All Behind (LP); and Here I Stand can also be found on Vile Vinyl, Vol. 1 (LP) and Vile Vinyl (CD). Wait For The Moment (United Artists 50651) 1970

CURFEW - Let There Be Dark; And There Was Dark LP.

This faceless outfit provides no credits or pictures on this minor-league U.A. album. However, they do produce the odd bit of vibrant heavy keyboard pop-rock with strong fuzzy guitar. Photogenic Jenny kicks off nicely in that vein, but the album quickly disappoints, slipping into insipid easy-pop. Whilst a couple of other tracks return to form - the Cream-inspired Something Inside Of Me for example, overall it's a patchy effort with no real identity.

Photogenic Jenny has been compiled on Songs Of Faith And Inspiration (CD). (MW)

Curtiss came from Bayside, Queens, New York City. He was involved in several different musical ventures between 1961 and 1973. Throughout he was a phenomenal songwriter. In the early days he sold songs to Bobby Darin and Ellie Greenwich. In 1963 he went into advertising but still continued writing in the evenings. He had records out on United Artists and Warner Brothers which aren't shown above because they fall outside the remit of this book. In 1967 he turned full-time to singing/songwriting forming an association with Ernie Maresca at Laurie Records. Psychedelic Situation, which really falls into the short-lived but successful bubblegum phenomenon, can also be heard on Pebbles, Vol. 16 (LP), Incredible Sound Show Stories, Vol. 4 (LP) and Visions Of Rarities From The 60s and 70s (CD). He met with more success as a songwriter, most notably writing Child Of Clay, a hit for Jimmie Rodgers.

He later formed his own Perception label, releasing an album on it, before going into TV and commercials in 1973. His solo album is quite interesting, with various styles covering folk and pop, with some string arrangements. Its best tracks include You Can't Tell A Man By The Songs He Sings for its wah-wah guitar and bass work, whilst Lack O' Testicle Blues is about a soldier ready to be sent to Vietnam but willing to burn his draft card. His backing group, on this, Elminger and Wyeth also released two albums as Albert in 1970/1.

His most interesting period was with Decca from 1967 to 1969 where he was a member of The Hobbits, who released one album of soft psychy sounds and another of folk plus a couple of singles. He also produced and wrote for The Bag who had an album and two singles of 'psychedelic soul' (sic).

Baubles, Vol. 1 features The Hobbits 'Down To Middle Earth. (VJ/SR/MW/MMs)

Custer and The Survivors (CA)

45: I Saw Her Walking/Flapjacks (Vardan 202) 1965

NB: original release September, reappeared on Golden State 657 a couple of months later, and again on Ascot 2207 in January 1966. You have to admire their persistence.

The legend of Golden State Recorders in San Francisco has been revitalised of late, notably by Jud Cost and Alec Palao's excellent zine 'Cream Puff War' and their various collections on Big Beat's Nuggets From The Golden State series and Sundazed compilations.

Though most stuff was leased out to local and national labels, Leo De Gar Kulka's studio also had its own label which put out a few singles including efforts by Poor Souls, Gold, Donnybrookes, Astros, Zorba and The Greeks, Hyde St IV and Seventh Dawn.

Custer is sadly not one of the more memorable - solid pop with horns, backed by an instrumental. Still you will find I Saw Her Walking on Up From The Grave (CD). (MW)

Custer's Last Band (FL)

From Florida, this band appeared on the rare 1968 Bee Jay Video Soundtrack sampler (LP) (Tener 1014), with To Love Somebody. Their track was miscredited on the album as by 'Custer's Last Stand'. (SMR)

45: She's No Good/Time For Me To Leave (Lee 5467) 1965

This obscure outfit is thought to have been based somewhere in Pennsylvania - St. Marys has been suggested. She's No Good is a strongly Stones - influenced garage punker. Two band members were later in Next Generation. They changed their name to New Generation and issued a further single, It's Alright/I Told You Once (Bomb 885-2) - in 1965.

Compilation appearances have included: She's No Good on Back From The Grave, Vol. 4 (LP) and Back From The Grave, Vol. 2 (CD); and Time For Me To Leave on I Can Hear Raindrops (LP). (VJ/MW)

This band was from the Lumberton area of North Carolina. Sossamon had earlier been in The Young Ones, who issued a single on the Super Cool label, and another on Mu Records (shown as by Psychic Motion). The other members of Cykle were known as The Glory Cykle (with Ken Allen on drums) before Sossamon joined, first as manager and sponsor, and then as drummer, freeing Allen to concentrate on lead vocal duties. This is the line-up that recorded the highly-rated album above in early 1969. All the material was written by Sossamon and pretty imaginative stuff it is too. Many collectors place the Cykle album in the Top 10 of American private press sixties records and there is plenty to recommend it. The first aspect is the recording - about the best sound you will ever hear on a private press from the era. It's so good, in fact, that even the reissues sound great despite the unavailability of the master tapes. The tracks range from engaging pop (A Little Faith, In Love My Friend) to intense fuzz-punk (Walkout (Of My Mind), It's Her and Lesson To Learn). The album plays like a compilation of great sixties single sides!

Gear Fab has reissued the album officially on CD, with many bonus tracks and this is highly recommended. Two of the best cuts - the epic Walkout (Of My Mind) and It's Her also feature on their top-drawer Psychedelic Crown Jewels, Vol. 1 (2-LP & CD) compilation.

Other compilation appearances include: Walkin' Through My Mind on Gear Fab's Psychedelic Sampler (CD); If You Can on Tobacco A-Go-Go, Vol. 1 (LP) and Sixties Archive Vol. 8 (CD); Lesson To Learn and Do My Thing on Endless Journey - Phase Three (LP); and Walkout (Of My Mind) and It's Her on Psychedelic Crown Jewels 1 (CD). 45: Cynara/Stoned Is (Capitol 2974) 1970

Cynara is a keyboard dominated jazz-rock group that issued one album in 1970. It features exceptional keyboard playing from Michael Tschudin (ex-Listening) and fine expressive vocals from Jeffrey Watson. Almost every track features multi-tracked piano, organ, harpsichord and vibes, all played by Michael Tschudin. The album consists of five songs and one extended melodic jazz piece featuring veteran jazz drummer Elvin Jones. The songs are quite unusual, often with a Middle Eastern flavour. The multiple keyboards and percussion give them a sound not really comparable to anything else we've heard. The album was recorded in New York and produced by Ken Cooper. There isn't a weak track on this album. Recommended.

In the late seventies, Michael White went on to play with Tom Waits and Michael Tschudin with Tim Curry. (VJ/TA/SR/MW)

45: You're A Better Man Than I/
Train Kept A Rollin' (Bear 001) 1966

This Fort Worth, Texas garage band formed at Paschal High School. Strongly influenced by the British invasion their sole single comprised two superb Yardbirds cover versions. In particular Train Kept A Rollin' includes lots of fuzztone and feedback. When Ronnie left the band and Bob Rodriguez was drafted to the marines another old Paschal High School mate Riley Morris came in on bass. The new line-up recorded I'll Go, which was written and engineered by 'T-Bone' Burnett. On the flip was a strange cover of Ray Davies' Don't You Fret which included lots of sound effects culminating in what was meant to be a nuclear explosion to mark the end of the band. The I'll Go/Don't You Fret single may have been released on Hue 375 in 1966 and an acetate does exist.

Compilation appearances have included: You're A Better Man Than I and Train Kept-A-Rollin' on Texas Punk Groups From The Sixties (LP) and Sixties Archive, Vol. 2 (CD); and Train Kept A-Rollin' on Flashback, Vol. 5 (LP). You're A Better Man Than I and Train Kept-A-Rollin also feature on an unreleased acetate Texas Psychedelic Punk, Vol. 11 and on *Fort Worth Teen Scene! Originally known as The Rondells, the group was formed at Lafayette College in Easton, Pennsylvania with Jim Maiella on drums. They were apparently spotted by Nat Weiss, who introduced them to Brian Epstein, who became their manager. When they changed their name to The Cyrkle - that name was suggested to Brian Epstein by John Lennon.

Their debut single for Columbia in 1966, Red Rubber Ball written by Paul Simon and Bruce Woodley (of The Seekers), was a U.S. hit. Follow-up Turn-Down Day also charted and the group was part of The Beatles 1966 U.S. tour. After this, Earl Pickens left the band to concentrate full-time on medical school and was replaced by Michael Losekamp on keyboards.

The interesting harmony-pop outfit was by now based in New York City and Turn-Down Day was a good example of their dabbling with Eastern raga/sitar sounds, as was the Byrdsy raga composition The Words. They enjoyed further minor hits including another Paul Simon and Bruce Woodley composition, I Wish You Could Be Here and a Neil Sedaka song We Had A Good Thing Goin'. They also achieved some commercial success with their albums which reached No's 47 and 164 respectively.

The It's A Lovely Game, Louise single coupled two tracks from the film 'The Minx', which are on the film soundtrack album issued on the Amsterdam label in 1970. The album features only The Cyrkle's contributions (penned by Dawes and Dannemann) - dreamy or swingin' harmony-pop, mainly instrumentals with 'oooos' or 'ba-ba-bas', in a style similar to The Association or Harpers Bizarre. The film's almost-obligatory "opium-den" number, Nicole, is the stand-out track - a hypnotic four-minute sitar and flute number which builds into a screaming raga freakout.

Another collectable oddity from this group is a 5" cardboard interview single from Teen Scoop magazine. On this they reveal that Red Rubber Ball was originally written for The Seekers and never got past the demo stage.

After their demise, Dawes and Dannemann went on to make commercials, Fried became a lawyer and Losekamp went on to play with Green Lyte Sunday. However, later in 1981, Dannemann and his wife Eileen recorded I Did It For You/Mother and Lover (Mother GD 2), which Eileen had written as a tribute to John Lennon.

The Sundazed CD reissue of The Minx soundtrack album recounts the story behind the movie, which didn't gain a release until 1969. The Cyrkle's contributions were recorded as far back as mid-1967 and the CD adds eight bonus contemporary cuts including film versions, tracks from the film which never made the soundtrack album, and an instrumental version of Kites (best known as a hit for Simon Dupree & The Big Sound in the UK).

Compilation appearances have included: Red Rubber Ball and Turn Down Day on Nuggets, Vol. 3: Pop (LP); The Words on Psychedelic Perceptions (CD) and Psychedelic Archives Vol. 6 (double cassette box); Please Don't Ever Leave Me and We Had A Good Thing Goin' on Sixties Years, Vol. 2 - French 60's EP Collection (CD); and Red Rubber Ball on Even More Nuggets (CD). Produced by Dick Monda and Don Sciarrotta in Torrance, California Daddy Dewdrop included Tom Hensley (ex-leader of Masters Of Deceit) but was very probably more a studio project than a "real" group. Released on a short-lived subsidiary label of MGM, their album is musically diverse, with rock, psych, R&B and good-time music influences. The playing is quite tight, the lead singer has a powerful voice and the song titles are often intriguing or amusing: March Of The White Corpuscles (a good song and the only Hensley composition), Migraine Headaches, Johnny Do It Faster, Abracadabra Alakazam and Fox Huntin (On The Week End). Overall the album, which rarely turns up, is pleasant but of minor interest. The songs were composed by Janice Lee Gwin, Monda or Sciarrotta with the help of Kenny Rogers (the funky Diggin' On Mrs Jones), Paul Robin or Leonard Reid.

One of their singles, Chick A Boom was featured in the 'Archies' cartoon show. An earlier single, co-produced by Dick Monda with Paul Robin and Vic Gargano, was credited to Daddy Dewdrop And The Sugar Plum Sassafrass Bubble Gum Band - Here Come The Judge/Collection Of Hearts (Indigo 4444) 1968.

Bill Perry and Larry Brown went on to play in Gunhill Road, while Hensley was a sought-after session musician. (SR/RNi)

45:	High Again/ To The Rescue (Wet Patso)	(Warner Bros WB 3004) 1970

This band was backed by a rich guy from Chicago. They were brought together at the end of 1967. Kurt Palomaki was discovered playing bass at New York's Electric Circus. Cliff Carrison had played with Chicago Slim's Blues Band. The first lead guitarist, Steve Hayton, used to play Indian ragas for a San Francisco curry house. They first moved to upstate New York to get their sound together. When they failed to make it in New York, they moved to New Mexico, only to move to Britain by the end of 1969, hoping to secure a deal recording film soundtracks. They settled in a cottage in Hertfordshire, where they were joined by Moe Armstrong in the summer of 1970. He was involved in the recording of the first album and then moved back to New Mexico, where he ran a puppet show. Steve Hayton left the band by the end of 1970 and was replaced by Gary 'Norton' Holderman, who'd played with Bobby Vee and Roy Orbison, and had been on the verge of joining Pacific Gas & Electric when he got the call to join Daddy Longlegs. Right before the recording of their second album in January 1971, keyboards player Peter Arnesen also joined the band. For the final album, Carrison, Holderman and Palomaki brought in South African keyboards player Paul Measroch formerly of Abstract Truth. (LB)

From Rockville, Connecticut Tom Dae cut a large and varied selection of discs under numerous names. Aram Heller reveals in his New England bible, 'Till The Stroke Of Dawn', that Tommy's real name was Draus and that father Frank provided help and connections via his job at a big record label. Much of his material falls well outside the boundaries of our interest - the album is apparently in lounge mode - but he did dabble in garage and psych. You Made Me Cry is said to be a decent garage effort, I Shall Walk is a psychy phase-filled opus and is compiled on A Lethal Dose Of Hard Psych (CD), Exploding Plastic Inevitable, Vol. II and Shadows Falling (CD). The final single is in hard-rock mode.

Erik Lindgren notes in the Lethal Dose liners that the Cirkyt single is thought to be the High Tensions minus one member, though this remains unconfirmed. (MW/AH/ELn)

NB: α was withdrawn prior to release, so that their cover of Dino Valente's Birdses, which Parrot found too 'twee' could be replaced with the folk-rocker Jack Of Diamonds.

Formed in summer 1965, The Daily Flash became Seattle's first alternative psychedelic band. The band members were from very diverse backgrounds. MacAllister had previously played with a bluegrass trio, The Willow Creek Ramblers, which he had founded. Hastings was a red hot guitarist who'd briefly played in The Dynamics, Keliehor, formely of The Frantics, was a classical percussionist and jazz drummer and Lalor, a New York folk musician who had been a member of the San Francisco folk group, The Driftwood Singers.

They were discovered performing at the Door, a downtown Seattle club, by a local record distributor, who released their first single. Queen Jane Approximately, was a fine Bob Dylan cover, however the single was poorly recorded and received little promotion outside of the Northwest. It did not sell.

Buffalo Springfield's manager Charlie Greene saw the potential of the band and invited them to L.A to re-record Queen Jane Approximately. In the spring of 1966, The Daily Flash headed for San Francisco and played at the Avalon Ballroom before heading on to Los Angeles, where they played numerous shows at the Whisky A Go Go with bands such as The Byrds, Sons Of Adam and Love. A second single was issued but gained insufficient airplay to launch the band nationally. After this they began to disintegrate with Hastings leaving in late May 1967 for a brief spell with Buffalo Springfield.

Craig Tarwater (gtr), was living near Jon Keliehor at the time, and whilst with Sons Of Adam had gigged with 'Flash at the Whisky in '66. He was recruited, but in July, Keliehor too left to be replaced by English-born Tony Dey from Hawk & The Randelas. Keliehor briefly rehearsed with Gentle Soul and then later auditioned for 'Project Supergroup', Elektra Records attempt at forming a supergroup. In November 1967, he subbed for John Densmore in The Doors for two Northwest dates.

The Daily Flash disbanded in late October 1967 when MacAllister and Tarwater broke away and formed the short-lived Nirvana. This group subsequently changed name to The Grapes of Wrath and finally, Two Guitars, Piano, Drums and Darryl, who recorded a lone single for Atlantic Records. Somewhat confusingly, the group also provided the soundtrack to the cult 'B' movie 'Pit Stop', which was credited to The Daily Flash.

THE DAILY FLASH - I Flash Daily LP.

After Buffalo Springfield, Hastings auditioned for Clear Light but this didn't work out. In mid-November 1967, he rejoined Steve Lalor with Tony Dey and Rick Dey for the final Daily Flash line-up, who embarked on a short tour of the Northwest before finally disbanding. Hastings then joined Keliehor in Project Supergroup. They both appeared on David Ackles's debut album, although Keliehor was subsequently dropped in favour of Billy Mundi and the band became Rhinoceros.

During 1968 Keliehor and Lalor put together the five-piece outfit Popcorn with ex-Kingsmen bass player Kerry Magness, who had failed the Project Supergroup audition. The band recorded as Bodine in October 1969. Keliehor also played with Jeff Simmons in 1969.

Lalor joined Danny O'Keefe's support band in late 1969 and Keliehor later moved to London to perform at the London School of Contemporary Dance. MacAllister played with Barry Goldberg and then joined Hastings in Dr John's autumn 1969 tour band. He subsequently died of a heroin overdose.

Craig Tarwater later played with The Other Half and went on to play with Buddy Miles and Frank Zappa as well as playing on Arthur Lee's Vindicator album.

The Psycho/Flash retrospective, which is recommended, includes both sides of their two released singles, three unreleased studio cuts, a live recording of Herbie Hancock's Cantaloupe Island (from the Eagles Auditorium, Seattle in October 1967) and an extended live recording of Queen Jane Approximately at the Whiskey A Go Go in November 1966. An important psychedelic folk-rock band, The Daily Flash deserved greater recognition.

Hastings, Lalor and Keliehor had a re-union in 1994. Steve Lalor is still active on the local Seattle music scene, whilst Craig Tarwater now lives in Walla Walla, Washington and operates a mail order business called Video School of Guitar as well as his local music store; Blue Mt. Music Inc. Hastings lives in Alaska and Keliehor lives in Glasgow.

Compilation appearances include: Jack Of Diamonds on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 9 (CD) and Nuggets Box (4-CD); Green Rocky Road on Sounds Of The Sixties San Francisco, Vol. 1 (LP); The French Girl on Baubles - Down To Middle Earth (LP); and Jack Of Diamonds and Violets Of Dawn on Nuggets, Vol. 8: The Northwest (LP). This Texas outfit enjoyed a regional hit with this single. They later became the Floyd Dakil Four. Their album was credited to this name but recorded much later at the Registry Hotel, Dallas, Texas on 31 May 1975.

In the mid-nineties Collectables issued a compilation CD entitled Dance Franny Dance. This has most of their better known cuts.

Dance Franny Dance has been extensively compiled on Pebbles, Vol. 1 (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 1 (CD), Pebbles, Vol. 4 (ESD) (CD), Pebbles Box (5-LP), Trash Box (5-CD) and Texas Music, Vol. 3 (CD). (VJ)

NB: α shown as by "Dalek: The Blackstones".

Originally from Hammond, Indiana this classy Beatlesque band became better known as Saturday's Children. All the "Invictus Collector's Series" singles feature pre-Saturday's Children recordings from 1965 BUT exactly when they were released remains a matter of some debate.

Never Feel The Pain has a catchy beat but suffers from indistinctive vocals. Strangely, You Don't Know Better was credited to Bryan-McGeorge but the later version on the Saturday's Children single was credited to Bryan-Holder.

A rumour has persisted that Cheap Trick drummer Bun E. Carlos was involved with this band but it seems doubtful as McGeorge and Bryan were from Indiana and Carlos at the time was in The Paegens (probably from Rockford, Illinois). For the most authoritative info so far, check out Jeff Jarema's fanzine 'Here 'Tis #6' for the article on Jerry McGeorge, later of The Shadows Of Knight and H.P.Lovecraft.

Compilation appearances have included Never Feel The Pain on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 4 (LP), Pebbles Vol. 6: Chicago 1 (CD) and Gravel Volume 3 (CD); Could It Be Love on Psychedelic States: Illinois Vol. 1 (CD); and The Bag I'm In on Quagmire Vol. 1 (CD). (MW/VJ/KBn)

(Capitol ST-271) 1969 R2
2 IN MY OWN TIME
(Just Sunshine/Paramount PAS-6008) 1972 R1

Karen Dalton was part of the New York City folk scene in the late sixties and a friend of Fred Neil. Her last recording session seems to have been her participation on Alleged In Their Own Time, an album by The Holy Modal Rounders recorded in 1973 but released only in 1975. Drug problems sadly prevented her from pursuing her career.

Her first album is starkly recorded, but quite compelling. Two of the tracks were penned by her friend Fred Neil. The album (like Gandalf and Euphoria) is becoming a significant Capitol collectable. The second album is rather disappointing in comparison. She doesn't sing with the same conviction and its more rock-oriented arrangements don't suit her voice. (SR/VJ)

A Jacksonville, Florida combo The Dalton Gang peaked in 1967 with the release of their sole single. Originally managed by Bill Conrad, they came under the wings of WPDQ DJ "Uncle" Dino Summerlin, who put out their single on his own label, named after his daughter. He ensured that it did well in the local charts (peaking at #4 in WPDQ's Super Survey in June). The band debuted on TV on Summerlin's "Shakin Up Summer" show, opening for Joe South. They'd also written the show's theme tune and that was released and duly charted locally in August.

By the end of the sixties they were no more. Burrell joined Dennis Yost and The Classics IV. Their memory is revived by the appearance of Our Love, a cover of the Ernie and Petie song, on Psychedelic States: Florida Vol. 3 (CD). (KCs/MW)

In the early seventies they joined the hippie-rock-trio movement (America, CS&N etc.) as D,J&S. One Time Around has resurfaced on Byrds Won't Fly Today (LP) and is a good example of their harmonious soft-rock sound. (MW)

From Cleveland, Ohio this good psychedelic hard-rock outfit did achieve some modest commercial success. Their first album is excellent, with surprising covers of Last Train To Clarksville, Morning Dew and You Don't Love Me, plus a good original penned by William "Bill" Constable. The Second Damnation is also interesting, with Back To The River, Money Tree and In The Morning. There's already a southern rock feel in some songs. Some collectors consider this their best effort. Side one in particular features strong material and showcases Adam Blessing's vocals at their best.

After three albums, they renamed themselves Glory and released an album on Avalanche in 1973.

Eric Stevens, who later worked with Brownsville Station, produced their albums and Bill Schwark had previously played with The Alarm Clocks.

You'll also find Eve on A Lethal Dose Of Hard Psych (CD); Driver on Up All Night (CD); and the previously unreleased Painter got an airing on Storm In The Garage (3-CD box). (VJ/SR/MW)

The non-gatefold edition was counterfeited in Belgium (Fanny) 1993 in a limited edition of 400 and two pirate CD's editions also exist, one (No label) 1994 and one (Afterglow 013) 1994. In 1998 an official CD reissue was made available by the band (Daily Bread Ministries no #) 1998, and later that year a deluxe official vinyl repress (with the original gatefold sleeve, an insert and a bonus 7" EP) was produced in a limited edition (Little Indians #3) 2000. This same deluxe LP/EP set was again made available on vinyl (Guerssen GUESS 020) 2004.

45s:	α	A Face In The Crowd/I Lie	(Delcon 1) 196?
		I Wonder Why/Everything Is Alright	(Ankh 109) 1966
		Song Of The Gypsy/ Oh, What A Good Boy Am I	(Ankh A-1) 1968
		Poor Poor Genie/Don't You Feel Me	(Ankh A-2) 196?

NB: α shown as by "David Del Conte".

The Damon recordings are amongst the most sought-after and widely-loved of the late-sixties underground scene. Simply put, they convey emotion and power in a very concise and believable way. Song Of A Gypsy is an excellent psychedelic album and both gatefold/non-gatefold versions are monster rarities. There's lots of fuzz guitar and a mystical feel about tracks like Do You and The Night. I Feel Your Love has a sleepy, stoned atmosphere sounding rather similar to The Deep. Another track, Birds Fly So High, has 'snake charming' music, again creating a sort of Eastern mystical feel.

Based in Los Angeles, David Del Conte and Charlie Carey had already pursued careers in popular music for many years before deciding to embrace the underground rock movement. Del Conte released a considerable number of singles; it is possible that as much as half of his discography will be found to be too early to fall within the time-frame of this book. The last recordings he made pre-Damon (aside from a handful of acetates never made available to the public) may be of interest to readers. As Damon Lane, he issued at least three singles on the Del Con label - these possess a unique Byrdsy jangle over which his trademark authoritative voice presides.

The first Damon single has a non-album flip side and a different lead vocal than the album version of the 'A' side. (It is, by all accounts, significantly rarer than the album and fortunately these tracks are included as one side of the 7" EP of bonus material with the reissues on the Little Indians and Guerssen labels.) The record set the tone of the band's campaign which ran the course of 1968 - the message of love and self-expression coupled with an almost arrogant disregard for the establishment:

"I wake up each day about noon
I live in a rainbow-coloured room
I break every rule in the book
I don't even bother to look
I laugh at the heat, I've got bells on my feet
And oh, what a good boy am I"

The album itself is made up of (similarly) short, urgent tracks that overflow with Carey's amazing distorted lead guitar and Del Conte's powerful, otherworldly voice. The title track opens side one in dramatic fashion; the opening lyric "Today I feel like cryin', Today I feel like dyin'" delivered in a most convincing manner. It's obvious right away that you're listening to something very special. If there really is such a thing as psychedelic music, this is surely it.

It should be noted that the sound quality of this album is exemplary. Like the Cykle album, the fidelity is so good that even the bootlegs impress...

Del Conte and Carey, despite living roughly a thousand miles apart, continue to perform together and collaborated on a new album project in 1998. The resulting CD release, Gypsy Eyes has much to recommend it, not the least of which is the fact that it sounds like a second Damon album! The closing track, The Gift, is truly mind-blowing, as good as anything on the first album.

Atley Yeager subsequently performed and recorded as Atlee in southern California.

You can also find the album version of Song Of A Gypsy on Love, Peace And Poetry: American Psychedelic Music (LP & CD) and their second single Don't You Feel Me came free with Timemazine #2 (CD), but obviously, the Damon album is an essential purchase. (CF/VJ)

Damon (ND)

ALBUM: 1 FEELING ALONE (Witherspoon 30522) 197? R1

From North Dakota, this Damon was a local DJ and his rare and very strange album contains mostly spoken "hip" poetry with a musical background. Some cuts, like High On A Hill and Leslie's No Fool, feature a full band with fuzz guitar, while some of the others were recorded with only harmonica and acoustic guitar. (SR)

Dennis Damon (TX)

45s: Debbie/Satisfy You (Campo 953) 1965
Debbie/Shout! Bama Lama (United Artists 984) 1966

An artist with a split personality - Debbie is an awful drippy teen ballad in a Bobby Vee/John Leyton style with a toe-curlingly soppy spoken passage. But flip it over and Satisfy You is a hard-rockin' bluesy workout with raucous vocals, scintillating guitar, and hard drumming that sounds way ahead of its time - amazin'. Debbie was picked up for national exposure on UA and the flip was changed to a swingin' cover of Otis Redding's Shout! Bama Lama.

It was produced by Major Bill Smith, responsible for Larry and The Blue Notes amongst many other acts from the Fort Worth, Texas area - perhaps Damon was too. (MW)

Liz Damon's Orient Express came from Hawaii and played cabaret music. They enjoyed an 18-month residency at Waikiki's Hilton Hawaiian Village and were well practiced at covering the contemporary hits and standards of the time. There are a few self-penned compositions on this album, Heaven In My Heart and Quando Quando Quando; but otherwise they rely on covers like Hal David and Burt Bacharach's Close To You, Ray Stevens' Everything Is Beautiful and George Harrison's Something. (VJ)

Dan & Dale were a studio group supervised by Tom Wilson. Their musicians included Sun Ra and his Arkestra and Danny Kalb (of Blues Project fame). Apart from Batman and Robin's Theme, all the other tracks are instrumental. Apparently Sun Ra plays organ on this 1966 version of the Batman Theme and the girl singers sound good.

A rare and expensive curiosity, it is hard to find in good condition as it was originally aimed at the children's market. Some copies have a colourful cartoon image of Batman on the inner sleeve.

The Batman Theme can also be heard on Spank Rock + Old Time Relijun (CD). (SR)

An obscure psychedelic band from Berkeley, California Dancing, Food and Entertainment was founded by ex-Jazz Mice member Tom Glass. Picked up by Bill Graham's booking agency (Millard) in mid-1968, they opened for Ten Years After at the Fillmore West the weekend of 16th November, 1968 (where they replaced Country Weather who cancelled because of illness); played the Avalon Ballroom with Santana and did several gigs opening for the Grateful Dead. The band never got an album or single pressed, but recorded three songs at the infamous Sierra Sound Labs in Berkeley that were destined for a never-pressed EP.

Needless to say their name has been a big hindrance with regard to archival research... Thus, Dancing, Food and Entertainment have been largely overlooked by sixties psychedelic historians.

Naomi Ruth-Eisenberg went on to join ex-Charlatan Dan Hicks' band as one of the "Hot Licks". (IT/DRd)

	You Need Love/Ode To The Wind	(Coronado 136) 1966

The band was formed around 1960 and maintained a popular following into the late sixties. They played Tejano music and soul in the early days later switching to a Texas garage band sound influenced by Beatles, Stones, Bobby Fuller etc..., but without abandoning their Tejano roots. Danny and The Counts recorded on the same label as Bobby Fuller (Coronado) did in his early years. A staple of the El Paso rock scene, they were ahead of the times in the punk evolution and showmanship played as much part in the Count's act as did the music...

Their second single, You Need Love was typical Texas punk, but the flip was a smoother, more psychedelic track.

45:	Bad Trip/Wait For Me	(Fine FI 111) 1966

This Rochester, New York band started out as a trio in 1965. They expanded to a seven-piece (line-up 'C'), although only those noted as line-up 'B' were featured on the single. Tiberio had switched from drums to lead vocals by this point.

Pomponio wrote the music for Bad Trip and Tiberio's lyrics came together after reading about Timothy Leary's experiments with LSD in a 'Time' magazine article. The band believed this to be the first-ever psychedelic single (or ABOUT psychedelics?) - it might have been on the East Coast, but...

Regardless, it's a cool garage-punker with an affected vocal style that gives it an air of tongue-in-cheek novelty. It has remained popular with collectors and compilers alike - reappearing on High All The Time, Vol. 1 (LP), Sixties Rebellion Vol. 16 (LP & CD) and Psychedelic States: New York, Vol. 1 (CD). Wait For Me sounds more like a rough demo of an Invasion beat-pop number. ALBUM: 1(A) DARIUS (Chartmaker CSG 1102) 1968 R4

NB: (1) counterfeited on vinyl (Breeder 005-C2-565) 1986. (1) reissued on CD (Flashback 009) 199?. (1) reissued officially on CD with three bonus tracks (World In Sound WIS-1001) 2000 and also on vinyl (World In Sound RFR-010) 2000.

Darius II (World In Sound RFR-011) 2002 compiled previously unreleased material, which was more soulful and some copies came with inserts.

45: Hello Stranger/I Don't Mind (Chartmaker 419) 1968

Darius was based in Hollywood, California and was backed by Goldenrod and Mike Deasy. The album is all originals and the music very melodic with upfront vocals and a style veering towards progressivism. Particularly stunning are Mist-Veiled Garden and I Feel The Need To Carry On. Funk and blues influences are more evident on side two of the album.

The single was taken from a projected second album on Chartmaker, Hello Stranger, which was not released at the time, but eventually aired as Darius II in 2004.

Producer Pat Glasser went on to work with Three Dog Night.

Darius went on to record a single for Metromedia as Bobby Joe Ott, Flint River Inn, but the company was bought out by Bell and the track sank in the changeover.

He then returned to his home town of Cleveland, Ohio and under the name of Darius James played the club circuit. In 1974, a bad automobile accident put his musical plans on hold and he spent the next six years having re-constructive surgery. In 1980, he put a band called The Earthlings together and went back to Hollywood to play the Showcase Club Circuit and despite many recordings, no deal was forthcoming.

In 1990, Darius went back to Cleveland and met Barbara McFaul aka: Honeygirl. He then concentrated his efforts on recording and producing Honeygirl, also producing/directing three music videos with her.

In 2000, he started singing/writing and recording again along with Honeygirl and The Earthlings...

The Darius II LP/CD gathers up 15 unreleased cuts recorded between 1967 and 1971. It's an endearing selection of romantic ballads and dramatic rockers, augmented occasionally by a string or horn section. He was accompanied by a gallery of L.A. sessioneers including:- the late Ben Benay (to whom the release is dedicated), Toxey French & Jerry Scheff (the trio known at one time as Goldenrod); Larry Knechtel (later of Bread); Joe Osborne (Ceyleib People, Bob Morrison) ; Mike Deasy (Ceyleib People, Friar Tuck, Flower Pot, and many more); John Rhys and Ed Green. Deasy, Osborne & Scheff would come together again in Tongue & Groove.

He passed away in 2006.

You can also find Shades Of Blue on Love, Peace And Poetry: American Psychedelic Music (LP & CD) and I Feel The Need To Carry On has been compiled on Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers. (CD). (VJ/MRz/MW)

Darkhood (MN)

45: Destination/Very Much (Northland S 69-113) 1969

'Lost And Found' reveals that this was a Duluth, Minnesota band that travelled to Chicago's Chess studios to record these two originals. Destination (recorded in stereo, which was unusual at the time) is a musical journey chronicling a person who "gets high on life". Initially organ-led, halfway through fuzz guitar prevails and things get heavy. Very Much has a light-hearted aura, but exploits numerous drug references. Only 500 copies were pressed on the band's own label and 300 of them melted/warped in the trunk of a car. In 1970 members of the band linked members of The Dynasty (the band who recorded I've Gotta Shout) and formed a band called Wildwood. (VJ)

45: You Lied/Girl, Stand By Me (The Dark Horsemen 3720) 1966

This is a rare privately-pressed single, mastered in Miami, Florida. However this quartet is thought to have emanated from Lake City.

You Lied, an up-tempo punker, is also to be found on Back From The Grave, Vol. 8 (2-LP) and Psychedelic States: Florida Vol. 1 (CD). Girl Stand By Me, a sultry ballad, is also on Psychedelic States: Florida Vol. 3 (CD). (VJ/MW/JLh/RM)

45: Send Her To Me/Dark Knight (IGL 111) 1966

This single is the work of a garage quintet from Storm Lake, Iowa. Both sides of the single have also resurfaced on The Best of IGL Folk Rock (LP) and The IGL Rock Story: Part One (1965 - 67) (CD). (VJ)

Darkseid (VA)

45: Ground Zero/Land Of The Darker Sun (Brooks RSR-6) 1973

Awesome heavy psychedelic fuzz-rocker on a label out of Hampton, Virginia that could just as easily be from 1968 or 1969. Both sides are excellent. Ground Zero is the more upbeat with female-male vocals, tribal drumming and searing breaks. Darker Sun has a backing track reminiscent of Uriah Heep's Gypsy, some scorching leads and a doom-laden feel. This is quite superb for the genre.

There's a Darkseid, noted in Mike Kuzmin's excellent discography on Pennsylvania ('Sounds From The Wood'), who released one single in 1971 on Darkseid 101 - Space Bass/Shamokin' Woman. Noted as a possible Pennsylvania outfit presumably due to the Shamokin' in the title - is it the same group as this lot? (MW)

ALBUM: 1(A) DAUGHTERS OF ALBION (Fontana SRF-67586) 1968 SC

NB: (1) came with a pair of mini-posters, approx 8"x11", featuring surrealistic hippie drawings. (1) also released by Fontana in U.K. (STL 5486) 1968 and Holland (887806) 1968. (1) reissued on CD (Fallout FOCD2081) 2008. (1) reissued on CD in Japan (MSI Records MSIG 0460) 2008.

Previously known as Gas Co./Company, this hippie psych-pop duo was produced and arranged by Leon Russell. All the songs were written by Greg Dempsey (sometimes helped by Dave Luff) and some arrangements are obviously influenced by the Beatles's Sgt. Pepper album. It's quite pleasant, but not essential.

Graced with a really good voice, Kathy Yesse recorded a solo album in 1974 (produced by Greg Dempsey) as Kathy Dalton, Boogie Bands And One Night Stands. This was also released with one different track as Amazing, with both titles appearing on Frank Zappa's Discreet label. While the record itself is unremarkable, failing to showcase her considerable talents, it's worth noting that she was backed by Little Feat with guest appearances including Van Dyke Parks, Sneaky Pete, Carl Wilson, Billy Hinsche (of Dino, Desi and Billy) and others. This surf combo came from Pomona, California. You'd not guess it from their final single, where they chose to catch the surging wave of chiming folk-rock and rode it, along with the rest, in the wake of The Byrds. The transition was smooth and the result is accomplished.

I Ask You Why is also on From The New World Vol. 1 (LP); Ali Baba can also be found on Diggin' Out and He Was A Friend Of Mine has resurfaced on Byrds Won't Fly Today (LP). (MW)

Just 500 copies of this recording were pressed on a custom-label single recorded in a basement studio in Anderson, South Carolina. Dave and The Stalkers was a quartet from Royston, Georgia that was augmented by Carey Richards on keyboards for the recording session.

Considering the reported paucity of technology employed (two microphones hooked up to a reel-to-reel!) the sound is surprisingly good and comes over as a cross between the Beatles and the Stones. You can judge for yourself as How Can I Tell Everybody features on Psychedelic States: Georgia Vol. 1 (CD). (MW/RM) melody lines. Much of the material - which was all written and composed by Warren Hansen - is heavily orchestrated. Hansen also invented an instrument, which he called the Plasmatar, to provide the vibrant rasp on one track Mirrors of Wood, which also contains some fine fuzztone. The final track Of Our Other Days had considerable commercial potential with a calypso- style melody and hypnotic beat.

The second single includes a fabulous non-album scuzzy-sitar-punker: People Saying, People Seeing.

Los Angeles outfit Morgan David and His Winos is best remembered as the launching pad for Harold Bronson, future head honcho of Rhino Records. Tagged by some as "retro-punk", they were going against the grain by making ugly garage noises at a time when prog, glam, and power-pop were ascendant. However, they were also ahead of the game - their album is actually a collection of recordings by various line-ups from 1968 through 1973; one photo is labelled "punk abroad" - prophetic or what?

An earlier version of Nose Job (from circa 1963) was included with an issue of 'Mad' magazine. This group's version has subsequently resurfaced on Sixties Rebellion 12: Demented (LP & CD) and Mad Music (CD). (MW)

This Texas engineer, songwriter, producer and musician is now a kind of cult figure for fans of Texas psychedelic rock. As an engineer, he was an associate of Walt Andrus and worked on sessions by the 13th Floor Elevators, Children, the Fever Tree and many other sixties productions. As a musician, he took part in the formation of the short-lived Saddlesore with Mayo Thomson (ex-Red Crayola) and Cassell Webb (ex-Children). It's also known that he recorded circa 1966 an album worth of songs for a concept project known as "Metamorphosis", which still remain unreleased.

He also released some singles on local labels, most of them being extremely hard to find now and credited either to Frank Davis or to the Frank Davis Foundation.

Tim Davis was the drummer in the Steve Miller Band for their first five albums. He went solo, recording two albums for Metromedia with several California musicians: Turner, Sidran, Scaggs and Cooke (Steve Miller Band), Linda Tillery (Loading Zone), Richard Olsen (Charlatans), John McFee (Clover), Tracy Nelson (Mother Earth), Stephen Miller (Linn County)... Take Me As I Am is the better of the two, being in the Steve Miller Band mould.

Davis came from the Children's Service Society, an orphanage in Milwaukee where he was with Ken Adamany. In 1964, he formed "Tim Davis and the Chordairres" with Curley Cooke in Madison, Wisconsin, where the other local groups included Tracy Nelson and the Imitations and Steve Miller and the Ardells. In 1965, Davis, Adamany, and Cooke got together with Miller and Scaggs and played occasionally as the Knight Trains before Miller drifted south to Chicago to form the Goldberg-Miller Blues Band. The Chordairres reformed and played the affluent resort town of Lake Geneva every week for at least a year. Tim Dawe, aka Jerry Penrod, was from San Diego and an early member of Iron Butterfly. He reappeared on the scene in 1969 with an album on Frank Zappa's Straight label. Penrod was a superb debut, full of psychedelic folk-rock with lots of organ, harpsichord and brilliant acid guitar. Four masterpieces are included: - Nite Train Home, Junkie John, Sometimes Alone (with strong percussion) and Didn't We Love. The result stands comparison to another better known Straight artist, Tim Buckley. Quite surprisingly, however, the backing group doesn't seem to have played on other albums (unless they were using pseudonyms).

Dawe then wrote songs for Rod Taylor and It's A Beautiful Day (Places Of Dreams and Bitter Wine on Choice Quality Stuff/Anytime).

In 1976, he returned with an interesting West Coast album produced by the ex-It's A Beautiful Day member Mitchell Holman, who also played bass on it. Another ex-It's A Beautiful Day member, Hal Wagenet, also played guitar, whilst Patricia Pickens was an excellent vocalist. On this album Dawe included versions of Bitter Wine and Junkie John together with nine new songs. It was recorded in Coos Bay, Oregon.

In 1978, he produced A Night At The Wine Cellar (Cabernet GWC 101), a live folk-blues album on which he sang three new songs, along with Billy Roberts and other California local artists. (SR)

This Kentucky act plays excellent AOR/prog-rock, which is presented in a shiny metallic sleeve. Indeed the title track could have been a hit with better promotion. This won't interest garage or psych fans, but few can dispute its class. (VJ)

John Day (NC)

ALBUM: 1 JOHN DAY (No label 4123N12) 197?

This is a pastoral folk-rock album by a North Carolina artist that is housed in a nice cover. Day is backed by a full band on the album, which features mellotron, congas, steel guitar and harmonica. (VJ)

The Day After (?)

This outfit recorded a song called The Graduate, which is a soft, haunting number, but has little special to differentiate it from the crowd.

(1) reissued legitimately on CD (Gear Fab GF-184) 2002. (1) also reissued on vinyl in a 180 gram pressing (Studio 10/Scorpio) 2005.

45: House And A Dog/Middle Class Lament (Studio 10 2494) 1969

The above is an unexceptional San Francisco studio album, with some competent organ work, but little else to distinguish it, save possibly the final and longest track Holy Land - an attempt to sound like The Doors', The End.

Gary Pihl went on to become Sammy Hagar's guitarist and more recently he's been a member of the platinum-sellers Boston. Dave Mitchell went on to produce and engineer for acts including Emerson Lake and Palmer, Alistair Galbraith and Changing Faces. (VJ/SR)

(w/lyric insert and two posters) (Dome 51374) 1974 R1

Presumably a High School Project from Richmond Hill, Queens in New York, this album came with two posters and a lyric sheet. Musically it's a mixture of psychedelia with fuzz guitars and Christian folk-rock similar to Holy Ghost Reception Committee. (SR)

45: Psychedelic Siren/Afterthoughts (Dial 4066) 1967

Hailing from Iowa City this band underwent frequent personnel changes but featured the personnel listed above at various times. They recorded just the one single at the time. Psychedelic Siren features a screeching siren intro, which distinguishes what was otherwise a routine psychedelic/punk single. An album of their material has subsequently been put out on Unlimited

	Zack/Like Me Like You	(S.L.R. #68-983) 1968

From Orange Park High School, just outside Jacksonville, Florida The Daybreakers' rivals at their school included the Nu-Sounds, Six Teens and Sound Vibrations. Their debut, featuring the first line-up, was recorded at the local Sound Lab studios on Edgewood Avenue (where apparently the Classics IV also recorded); it charted in Jacksonville in July 1967. I'm In Love is soppy pop with shrill female vocals; the flip is far better, moody and heavier, with tasty reverbed fuzz. The equally hard-to-find follow-up features dreary ballad Zack but again the flip is stronger, a lively keyboard-led waltzer with a San Francisco vibe.

Page Matherson and Mac McCormick formed the band Richfield in the late seventies with bassist Ricky Powell, younger brother of Lynyrd Skynyrd's Billy. They recorded a novelty number, Disco Sucks, which was picked up by Capitol. (MW)

Not a garage band at all, but a popular Minneapolis-based dance group who seemed to make songs about 'The Baldies', a sixties Minneapolis gang. Their finest moment, Empty Heart has recently been reissued with the bonus of an unreleased Bring It On Home To Me from the same sessions, and rounded off with a brief history from Minnesota mastermind Jim Oldsberg.

NB: α shown as by The Beloved Ones.

Forming in 1963 as The Intruders and later known as The Quinstrells they became known as The Dearly Beloved in late 1965 and were Tucson's most popular sixties band. Shortly after their name change Dan Gates, a DJ from a local radio station KTKT came along with the tape of a song called Peep Peep Pop Pop. The group were not at all keen at first but eventually he persuaded them to record it at the Audio Sound Recorders in Phoenix and a record deal was negotiated with the New Mexico-based Boyd label. They got the band's name wrong on the label and the single was released in 1966 and credited to The Beloved Ones. It was a No. 1 hit in Tucson that year and held the No. 1 position for many weeks on KTKT radio. Consequent upon its success the single was leased to Columbia, who at least got the band's name right. With national distribution the single almost made Billboard's Top 100.

Fuelled by their success, the band headed to L.A. to record an album for Columbia. They recorded 20 songs in all in just three half-day sessions! These sessions spawned their next single. Tom Walker wrote the 'A' side, the flip was the work of The Grodes' leader Manny Freiser. The posthumous Voxx compilation includes some tracks from this session, but Columbia didn't promote the band or release the album. Around this time Pete Schuyler left the band and was replaced on drums by Rick Mellinger from The Grodes.

On a further trip to L.A. the band was spotted playing with The Leaves by a White Whale rep. and this led to them signing a new record contract (having sued Columbia to get out of their previous one). Larry Cox had to return to Tucson the next day to get married so they left L.A. at 3 a.m. taking turns with the driving. Eventually they all fell asleep including the driver. Inevitably they crashed and Larry Cox was killed instantly. The rest of the band sustained injuries. To make matters worse Larry's death negated their White Whale contract because it contained a clause stating that the band would have to stay intact.

The band tried to keep going but never successfully replaced Larry. The 'A' side of their final single was a haunting song written by Larry about death ironically shortly before his own tragic demise. The flip, a punker with a ripping bass line, was a regional hit. Vocalist Jim Perry sang on the 'A' side and Terry Lee took the vocal role on the flip. Arguably this single was their finest moment, and both sides can be heard on the Voxx compilation.

The band disintegrated when Shep Cooke left to join Linda Ronstadt's backing band, The Stone Poneys. Although he soon returned to Tucson to rejoin The Dearly Beloved he got into a motorbike accident shortly after his return and couldn't play for six weeks. This led to the final break-up.

Tom Walker and Shep Cooke have remained active in the music scene. Walker going on to play for Arizona outfit Butterscotch and later composing songs used on the Chuck Wagon and The Wheels album. Cooke recorded as Shep in 1969 and formed The Floating House Band in 1970. He later made some solo albums as well as playing on albums by Jackson Browne, Tom Waits and Linda Ronstadt. Pete Schuyler joined the marines and now works in electronics, Terry Lee is a successful Tucson architect and Mellinger is an inhalation therapist. Tom and Shep still continue to gig together.

The Voxx compilation is an excellent guide to their career with full liner notes by Lee Joseph which have been summarised here. It contains all the band's better singles and some of their unreleased recordings for Columbia.

Compilation appearances have included: 1965 KTKT Radio Promo, Flight Thirteen, Iceman (Wild About My Loving), I'm Not Coming Back, It's All Over, I've Got A Girl, Keep It Moving, Merry Go Round, Music Revolution, Peep Peep Pop Pop, Strange Feeling, Wait Till The Mornin' and You Ain't Gonna Do What You Did To Him To Me on Let's Talk About Girls! (CD); and Flight 13 on Pebbles Box (5-LP), Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP), Acid Dreams Epitaph (CD), The Tucson Sound 1960-68 (LP), Trash Box (5-CD) and Boulders, Vol. 6 (LP). ALBUMS:	1	LETTERS TO MY HEAD	(Capitol ST-11170) 1973
	2	WINGS OF AN EAGLE	(Sparrow SPR-1009) 1976

45: Beauty/Eli Wheeler (Capitol 3518) 1973

An excellent guitarist, Mike Deasy was a member of the "Wrecking Crew", the group of Los Angeles musicians who recorded hundreds of sessions in the Hollywood studios during the 1965/75 period. The "Wrecking Crew" also included Ben Benay, Larry Knechtel, Jerry Scheff, Jim Horn, Joe Osborn, Jim Troxel, Toxey French as well as several other renowned players like Hal Blaine and Mike Melvoin.

His recorded legacy is extensive; the discography we present here contains only the solo releases that fall within the time-frame of this book. From what we've been able to gather, after playing in several California surf groups, Mike Deasy began a studio career circa 1965 and was then behind several projects like The Flower Pot, The Ceyleib People, Friar Tuck, Michele and Your Gang. He often worked with Curt Boettcher.

Among his session work and collaborations, we must include mention of the albums by Mark LeVine, Gentle Soul, Tongue and Groove, Curt Newbury, Smokestack Lightning, Mark Spoelstra, Spontaneous Combustion, Stapleton-Morley Expression and Peter Anders.

In 1969, he formed the short-lived Gator Creek with other L.A. musicians and kept on doing session work, but his seventies work is generally outside the scope of this book as he generally played on mainstream rock or pop acts, although the album he did with Spider has its moments.

His two solo albums from 1973 and 1976 went unnoticed. The Capitol one is a decent rock effort with some light acoustic tracks and some heavy ones. The album recorded with his wife Kathy is in a Christian country-rock vein. (SR)

(1) reissued on clear vinyl (Anopheles Records 006) 2002, limited to 1,000 copies and including a previously unreleased 1975 practice recording of The Stooges Real Cool Time - a different version to that included on the earlier CD reissue.

Formed in Chickasha, Oklahoma in 1975, the band was apparently high on acid when they recorded this, so unsurprisingly the result is pretty demented psychedelia. Modulators and synthesizers, a vibraharp and more are utilised to good effect. Indeed the album is full of sound effects and echoes.

All the material is written and arranged by Ivey and Powers and many psych heads will want it in their collection. The recent CD reissue comes complete with bonus tracks and a detailed history.

Sadly Oliver Powers died of a massive brain aneurysm on June 22nd 2001. (VJ)

NB: Above info from promo copy without indication of 'A' or 'B' side.

This 'East Coast' girl-group made two singles for Mercury. They're sometimes thought to have come from England, since Sloopy's Gonna Hang On, which has resurfaced on Girls In The Garage, Vol. 4 (LP), was issued there shortly after it came out in America, but it's pretty clear they originated somewhere on the East Coast and were probably a studio group.

Their Goodbye Boy/Give Him My Love single credits Dennis Lambert and Louis Pegues as vocal producers. Goodbye Boy was written by the same pair, whilst Give Him My Love has Donovan/Dunn credited as songwriters. (VJ/MC)

From Cleveland, Ohio and based around the Balzer brothers. The above album, which was recorded in Miami, is not outstanding. The band's sound was characterised by the vocal harmonies of Craig Balzer, Petti and Popovic and some competent guitar work. Living (Way Too Fast), which captures Alice Popovic's vocals at their most poignant and the opener Trilogy, which displays the band's harmonies to best effect, are arguably the best tracks.

Bruce Balzer later played with Ambleside (also spelt Amblesyde, after a street on which the band rented a house), whilst both brothers played in Circus, an early seventies power-pop band who had an album on Metromedia and Windfall. They later went on to form a band called 747 which was signed to Planet Records in late 1979 and had its named changed to American Noise due to some protests from Boeing or the record company.

American Noise's eponymous album (Planet P-8) 1980 topped the charts in Cleveland and few other areas.

Craig and Bruce Balzer are now both married and run a specialty advertising firm out of Greater Cleveland, Ohio. (VJ/MW/GGI/AJ/SR)

Hailing from Spirit Lake/Dickens/Estherville and Armstrong, this band played an important slice in the history of Iowa rock. Johnny Senn (Jay) was instrumental along with Cliff Plagman and Roger Blunt in setting up the IGL Studios and Jenny Jenny became the label's first recording. As only 100 copies were pressed it's understandably now extremely rare. Peter Rabbit a rather popish song was picked up by the Chicago-based Smash label and earned the band an appearance on Dick Clark's 'Where The Action Is' show as well as a place in the charts. However, when the big breakthrough never came they reverted to Sonic for three further singles, including a cover of the Spencer Davis hit Keep On Running, on which they were joined by local vocalist Terry Klein.

The core of the group was former members of the Chevelles and the VanDels who joined forces in 1964 due to draft and other member depletion. Line-up "C" recorded Peter Rabbit. From 1966 John Senn 'retired' to concentrate on the IGL studio work, though he continued to be involved and record with the group. After line-up "D", personnel was very fluid to cover departures and touring. The band officially split in 1968 but IGL continued well into the seventies becoming a cult collector's label since its demise and the label has been well compiled in recent times on album and CD by Arf!Arf! and Get Hip.

These details and a comprehensive story of the band are to be found on Erik Lindgren's retrospective CD, which contains 32 tracks including four by the Chevelles. It confirms that the band was an adept outfit covering rockin', instrumental and frat genres in a pop vein and ballads in an accomplished Four Seasons style. Their appeal will lie with connoisseurs of sixties Midwest pop - you'll find neither fuzz nor psych here. In 1981 Storey and Senn got together to revive the name and laid down four more tracks. Two were put out on a single, and three are featured on the CD.

Kintzi, Storey and Powell all went on to record solo singles for IGL/Sonic along with Peter Rabbit song writer Tim Smith, Johnny Senn later recorded an album for IGL with a new band, The Fortunes. The retrospective single release in 1982 also comes with a photo and history of the band.

Also briefly in the band was a guy called Roger Hughes, who later formed Bands Of Gold who recorded one single, You Won't Change Me/It's Over (Smash 2058) in the late sixties. Prior to his spell with the band he'd produced one single, In A Thousand Cities/Is It Really Love? (Sultan 1002), with a Sioux City- based project called Denny and The Dukes.

Compilation appearances have included: Don't You Ever on Roof Garden Jamboree (LP); The Gorilla on The Arf! Arf! Blitzkrieg 32 Track Sampler (CD); Jenny Jenny and The Gorilla on The Best Of IGL Garage Rock (LP); Jenny Jenny, The Gorilla, Peter Rabbit, She's A Big Girl Now, Boney Maronie on The IGL Rock Story: Part One (1965 - 67) (CD); Keep On Running (with Terry Klein) and Take A Look At My Baby on The IGL Rock Story: Part Two (1967 - 68) (CD); He's Not Your Friend on Who Needs Tomorrow Vol. 2 (CD); and the previously unreleased Instrumental on *The Arf! ALBUM: 1(A) PSYCHEDELIC MOODS OF THE DEEP (mono/stereo)
(Cameo Parkway P/SP-7051) 1966 R3

NB: (1) stereo and mono editions exist of the original pressing with the stereo version being significantly more valuable. (1) reissued on vinyl (Cicadelic 977) 1987, and also on CD (Collectables 0521) 1993. (1) reissued as a limited edition on vinyl (Void Records VOID38) 2006 with a bonus 45 on pink vinyl featuring Five Years Ahead Of My Time, which was penned by Rusty Evans. (1) reissued on CD (Fallout FOCD2029) 2006 with both the mono and stereo mixes, six bonus tracks and liner notes.

This was a New York City-based studio-only project. The album, which is an extremely rare and costly collectors' item, had for many years been shrouded in total mystery. It was produced by Mark Barkan and Rusty Evans. Both were also involved in Freak Scene whose album Psychedelic Psoul (Columbia 9456) 1967 is virtually a second Deep album. The other personnel listed above have been deduced from songwriting credits and may also have been involved.

Their album is very strange, full of weird sound effects, haunting vocals and acid-soaked lyrics. It is based on a psychedelic-folk format. Some, such as Color Dreams and Your Choice To Choose, sound very Seeds-like. Others, like Shadows On The Wall and Wake Up And Find Me are haunting acid ballads.

"Wake up and find me
With dreams of liquid nights
And never ending lights"
(from Wake Up And Find Me).

Arguably the best two tracks are Turned On and Psychedelic Moon - which are both very odd. The album is recommended listening. Fans of the band will also be interested in a series of outtakes released on CD by Collectables, Part 2 and Part 3 contains alternate takes and unreleased tracks (which were recorded in 1966), whilst Part 4 (which also features tracks by Hydro-Pyro) and Part 5 are now also available on CD through Collectables.

Barkan went on to a group called Hydro Pyro. In 1970 Rusty released a solo album as Marcus.

Compilation appearances have included: Psychedelic Moon on The Psychedelic Experience, Vol. 1 (LP); Trip #76 on Echoes In Time, Vol. 1 (LP) and Echoes In Time Vol's 1 & 2 (CD); Color Dreams on Gathering Of The Tribe (LP) and Gone, Vol. 1 (LP); and Pink Ether and Psychedelic Moon on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 9 (CD). 45: Pretty Little Thing/Somebody's Girl (Blue-Fin BL-FI-102) 1966

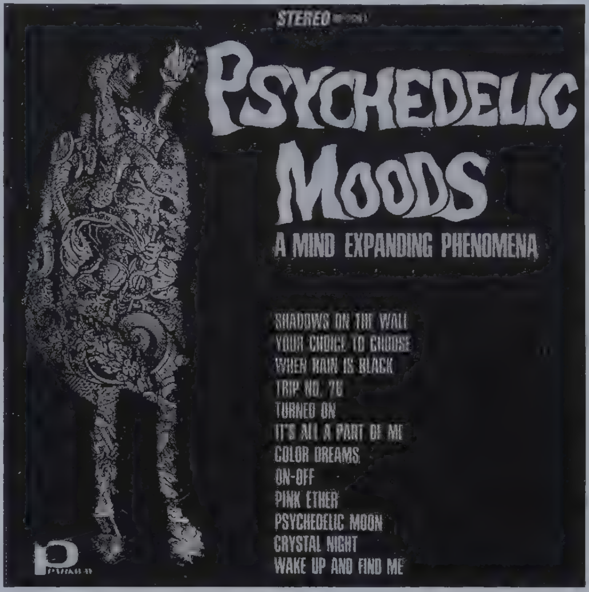
Fine Stones-influenced garage punkers The Deepest Blue operated out of Pomona, California. Starting out as a surf/grease combo in the early sixties, The Doves had stabilized as the above line-up by 1965. Soupy Mauro and Ken Zabel were Pomona locals, Earl Shackelford and Bruce Lavoie hailed from Ontario, Russ Johnson was from England, and Rick Edwards was from Montclair.

Earl Shackelford recalls: "We played mostly in the teen clubs - the Oasis, Hilltop, Pace Setter, Discoteen - what's known today as The Inland Empire. And some beer bars - no-one cared the how old you were then. College fraternity parties were always the best unless some drunken jocks decided you were dead meat and you had to fight off the sweaty block heads as you tore down your equipment and threw it into your trusty band mobile. Oh yeah.. those were the days alright."

"We went out of state once to a little bar in Pocatello, Idaho. I was sick with strep throat so we played instrumentals mostly and lived on bar food for several days, (slim jims, jerky, and beer). That was our tour. We did work in Hollywood a couple of times on the Strip, but we all hated Hollywood. We played with The Leaves once and The Seeds ... although I don't remember playing with them - Ken Zabel says we did. High schools were a good gig except that we were banned from all of them after one gig at each, for various reasons (hee hee hee)!"

In the summer of 1966 they released their sole single as The Deepest Blue. "Our main influences were The Stones, Animals, Them, early Moody Blues. We changed our name during the time of our recording - we thought it was more commercial."

Sadly the single bombed and the band split soon after, leaving a few tracks recorded for an album in the can. Tragedy struck soon after: Soupy Mauro died in a motorcycle accident; one year later Rick and three members of a band, with whom he was doing a car tour, went off the road in the middle of the night, to join Soupy.



THE DEEP - Psychedelic Moods Of... LP.

Thereafter Earl "bummed around for several years doing what most people were doing in the late sixties, singing in coffee houses until I returned to Los Angeles and began to perform with various bands again in the early seventies, experimenting with all the jumbled forms of psych/country/rock/acid that was affecting musicians at the time".

"Eventually I teamed up with Walter Egan, thanks to mutual friend and musician Chris Darrow of Kaleidoscope fame, whom I'd known for years after The Kaleidoscope had recorded one of my songs I Found Out (on the Beacon From Mars album). We formed a band called Wheels and played the Los Angeles circuit until Walter got a solo record contract.

"I worked with him in some capacity on most of his records. He had a Top 10 hit (Magnet And Steel) and recorded two or three of my songs for his string of albums on CBS and MCA/Backstreet labels. During this time, 1978 to be exact, I worked with James Williamson on Iggy Pop's LP New Values arranging and singing backup vocals. From that time on I've been involved at various levels with friends putting out CD's, playing the guitar and writing."

What of the others? "Ken Zabel lives in Boise, and was recently playing with a bluesband, The Ramblers; Bruce Lavoie just retired from the union after having been in road construction for 30 years; Russ Johnson disappeared somewhere - Australia we believe - and hasn't been heard from since 1969."

Compilation appearances have included: Pretty Little Thing on Off The Wall, Vol. 11 (LP), Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 3 (LP), Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 2 (CD), Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 10 (LP & CD) and *Where The Action Is! A six-piece (five men, one woman) folk-rock and harmony-pop group, Deep Six was from San Diego, California. Their fifth Liberty single, What Would You Wish From The Golden Fish, is an amazing pop-sike tune complete with fuzz guitar and hammered dulcimer, with lyrics based on the old story of the mythical fish who granted wishes. Why Say Goodbye, is more straight forward pop, but pleasant nonetheless.

Their album combined folk, soft-rock and flower-pop and includes several covers, notably the Stones' Paint It, Black, Neil Diamond's Solitary Man and A Groovy Kind Of Love.

One track from an earlier single, Rising Sun can also be found on Nuggets, Vol. 10: Folk Rock (LP) and Bring Flowers To U.S. (LP); and C'mon Baby is compiled on Soft Sounds For Gentle People (CD). (KSI/MW/SR)

45s:	Poverty Shack/Rover	(Eldorado) 1963

NB: acetates only.

Poverty Shack was recorded by none other than Fred Cole, who recorded this single in 1963, at the age of 15, at the El Dorado studios in Los Angeles. Cole sings lead and plays bass, Larry Williams plays guitar and is the producer and The Blossoms are the back-up singers. Fred was managed at the time by Mike Tell, son of a Las Vegas newspaper owner. Mike took Fred to L.A. where he stayed for a couple of weeks with Larry Williams and met Stevie Wonder and lots of other black acts. For the cover of the record they dumped a bucket of water over Fred's head, to make him look like he had sweated his guts out. It's the very first recording by this outrageous person and it has resurfaced on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 9: The Nightclub (LP & CD). Later Cole would turn up in The Lords, The Weeds, Lollipop Shoppe, Zipper, King Bee, Torpedos, Rats, Desperate Edge, Western Front and, finally, Dead Moon. (VJ/MW/SR)

NB: (1) counterfeited on vinyl (Flat Rock) 199? (1) reissued on CD (Gear Fab GF-148) 2000.

Formed in Houston, Texas in 1968, Deerfield was originally known as The Dream Machine. Their album, a mixture of country-rock and a tinge of psychedelia, has attracted increasing interest from collectors. It peaks on Trilogy (Do You Believe In Words, Sing Together, Relax (Enjoy Your Friends)) and Riverside on side two. It was issued with a letter (in envelope) stuck inside the cover.

The Flat Rock release features four live recordings not on the album.

Charles Bickley is now the owner of a small Austin Texas-based label named Buttermilk Records which released several vinyl albums and singles in the seventies. In fact he's still releasing 25-year-old masters on new vinyl and CD of Texas Blues, Rock, Jazz, Cajun, and more. (CF/MW)

Maggie's Farm from Hutchinson, Minnesota's Defiants can also be found on When The Time Run Out (LP & CD).

The lynch pin of the band, Mike Shaw started in The Nightbeats in 1960 and played with The Embers in 1961. In 1967 Loren Walstad left the group to join The Underbeats and Budd Setzaphant took over lead guitar. This line-up was short-lived, however, as Terry Shaw and John Collins, were soon drafted. Before leaving for service, Terry played a short stint with The Country Ramblers.

When he came home in 1969, Terry formed The Shaw-Allen Trio with Mike Shaw and Jim Allen (rhythm guitar). This act became a popular live attraction, breaking attendance records on the ballroom circuit, and receiving an award from the Ballroom Operators Association each year until their demise in 1975. At different times the band was augmented by Duane Larson (keyboards, harmonica and trumpet) and Danny Grossnickle (lead guitar, keyboards). The band also recorded two albums: This Side-That Side 1970 (as Shaw, Allen and Shaw) and South Fork Crow River 1972. In one form or another, the band has continued to this day as the Shaw Band.

A musical family, Mike and Terry Shaw's oldest brother, Dennis, had a band from 1958-1959 called The Chancellors and later The Rockets. Mike's three sons also have a band called the Shaw Brothers. (VJ/MW)

DeFrates is reputedly a reasonably good singer/songwriter from Jacksonville, Florida. The highlight on Pegasus In Flight is the opening track Illinois Central. Whilst his first album is quite stark with simply guitar and vocals the second veers towards the prog-folk genre and utilises flutes, guitars and a rhythm section. It too starts with a superb opening track, Ride with powerful playing and soaring high-pitched vocals. (VJ)

This single was released in late 1968 or early 1969 on an obscure Hollywood label, which also put out singles by Randy Bachman's Mongrels and Pfeifer Ashman Kickbush.

Composed by Jack Walker, The Night Is Almost Gone is fuzzy, big-production pop and appears on the well-annotated Fuzz, Flaykes, & Shakes Vol. 6 (LP/CD), yet the band remains a mystery. (MW)

Lollipop Lady is heavy bubblegum-pop with plenty of fuzz & wah-wah; it has reappeared on Come Fly With Us (LP).

Formed in 1959 in Muscle Shoals, Alabama this band's style predates the British Invasion and garage waves but they're a fine example of the more rockin' sounds around in Deep South in the early-to-mid-sixties. Their debut was a brassy instrumental Hot Toddy. Later efforts were in an accomplished frat-pop style, notably garage-band fave Fortune Teller (reportedly from 1963 and re-released in 1965).

An expanded line-up reunited for the 1992 'Muscle Shoals Bands Of The '60s Reunion' concert. The CD of the event (Alabama Music Hall Of Fame 1993-01) captures them swingin' through Hot Toddy, Love Potion No. 9, Fortune Teller and Ya-Ya.

In 1969 Koda formed Brownsville Station whose success peaked in 1974 with Smokin' In The Boys Room, a massive hit which sold over two million copies. He continued to write and release solo works as well as recording and performing in numerous bands and travelling Oldies road shows. He also wrote about music, via a monthly "Vinyl Junkie" column and as co-author of the 1998 book "Blues For Dummies". Highly-regarded as a purveyor of blues and rockabilly styles, he was dubbed "America's Greatest Houserocker". On the 1st July 2000, at the age of 51, he died of complications arising from kidney dialysis.

	I Call My Baby STP/ That's The Way It Is (PS)	(Dunwich 142) 1966

The Del-vetts formed in Chicago back in 1964, playing Chuck Berry covers for kids in the well-to-do Highland Park Suburb of the city. They soon became a popular live attraction and cut a single, produced by Bill Traut for Seeburg back in 1965, before signing to Traut's Dunwich label to record their magnum opus, Last Time Around. This was a superb single with some really rousing guitar work and great vocals. Indeed it sold very well locally and, for a while, the group all owned Corvettes.

The follow-up, I Call My Baby STP, became something of a hot-rod anthem and is now very rare. Picture sleeve copies also included a free STP sticker!

When it didn't happen for The Del-vetts they changed their name to the Pride and Joy. Their bassist/singer, Jack Burchall, later played with Bloodrock (not the Texas one). He was later in The Jump 'n' The Saddle Band who had a U.S. hit with The Curly Shuffle. Jim Lauer is, reportedly, locked away in a mental institution.

Compilation appearances have included: Last Time Around on Off The Wall, Vol. 1 (LP), Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 2 (LP), Mindrocker, Vol. 2 (LP), Nuggets Box (4-CD); Nuggets, Vol. 2 (LP), Sundazed Sampler, Vol. 1 (CD), Early Chicago (LP) and Excerpts From Nuggets (CD); Ram Charger on Pebbles Vol. 4 - Various Hodads (CD); Last Time Around, Every Time and That's The Way It Is on The Dunwich Records Story (LP); and Last Time Around, Everytime, I Call My Baby STP and That's The Way It Is resurfaced on *Oh Yeah! NB: α also released in the UK (CBS 201.807) 1965. β produced by Bob Johnston, the future producer of Leonard Cohen and Dylan.

This popular New York City band came into being when singer/dancer/actor Steve Curry united with a neighbourhood band from Queens. Their debut I'm Your Man is a ringin' rockin' punker with a swinging beat and fluid guitar runs. Shortly after this they were asked to promote the 'Adler Sock' company, the resultant disc being given away with each purchase. Their name proved useful when they were sought out the following year by the Scrub Denim Jeans company to do a similar promotion for their 'Salty Dog' brand.

Also in 1966 they met Jimi Hendrix when he was playing with Curtis Knight and The Squires at The Cheetah club in Manhattan. He even played with them for some engagements at Ondine's, a club frequented at the time by The Rolling Stones prior to their national tour and where they first encountered the soon-to-be-celebrated guitarist.

By the time of their final single, White Ship, they sounded like they were experimenting with LSD:-

"Let me take you on a trip,
A voyage upon a pure white ship,
Of pretty maids, set the costs
Informed me that the ship was boss,
When the waves destroyed the sea
The ship went down with all our sanity
Ride baby ride - so deep in my mind
Ride baby ride - leave reality behind
Oh No!"
(from White Ship)

The liner notes to A Fistful Of Fuzz state that, contrary to previous belief Adrian Belew was not in this band, but rather a similarly named group from Kentucky. Belew became a renowned guitar player in the seventies playing with Frank Zappa and in the eighties was a key member of the resurrected King Crimson, as well as releasing several solo albums.

The band split at the end of 1966 when Punchowski and Zaccor were drafted.

Compilation appearances have included: I'm Your Man on Mindrocker, Vol. 7 (LP), The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 2 (2-CD), Psychedelic Patchwork (LP), Justification (LP) and Psychedelic States: New York Vol. 1 (CD); White Ship on Boulder Punk EP Box, Pebbles, Vol. 7 (LP), 60's Punk E.P., Vol. 1 (7"), and A Fistful Of Fuzz (CD); Salty Dog Man on Fuzz, Flaykes, And Shakes, Vol. 2 (LP & CD); and The Adler Sock on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 9 (LP). NB: α shown as by Dennis & The Times, β shown as by Denis & The Times.

Denis and The Times were formed by the three Burlage brothers and two friends in Norfolk, Virginia. With promotional help from their father they released their debut single in the fall of 1967 - and Dad should've been proud, 'cause his boys produced a classic that's revered to this day.

From the opening ringing chords to the final flourish of spacey effects, Flight Patterns is a wondrous piece of Eight Miles High-inspired psychedelic folk-rock complete with a freak-out guitar break. Good enough indeed to have graced The Byrds' Younger Than Yesterday or Fifth Dimension platters. Compilers seem to agree - you'll find it on 30 Seconds Before The Calico Wall (CD), Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 9: The Nightclub (LP & CD) and Aliens, Psychos And Wild Things (CD). Just If She's There isn't bad either - check it out on Killer Cuts! (LP) and Ear-Piercing Punk (CD).

Their second single was released in the spring of '69. Whenever... is a heavy pop ballad with strident vocals and punctuated by fuzz attacks. The flip is a faithful cover of the Cryan' Shames (on their Scratch In The Sky album) - but with a harder edge and burning guitar. (VJ/MW/BHr/ST)

This was a one-off collaboration in the summer of 1965 in Berkeley, California when Denise Kaufman was backed by local garage combo The Answer (later to become The Drongos).

It's not known how many copies were pressed originally but, over the years, this single has taken on the aura of a holy grail among serious collectors. Until recently only one copy was known, unfortunately it was in the hands of a famously disreputable hoarder. When a copy did turn up for auction in 2006, it fetched an amazing $5,100 !! If only Denise & Co. had known back then...

Kaufman was soon to be a member of the all-girl San Francisco garage band The Ace Of Cups.

Produced by Bob Ezrin and recorded in Toronto, Detroit was a fine example of the "High Energy" bands coming out of Michigan, like MC5, the Stooges or Frost. Formed by Mitch Ryder and his stalwart drummer John Badanjek, with Phillips and Cook (both ex-Catfish), Steve Hunter and Dirty Ed, their music was a powerful mix of hard-rock and rhythm and blues. Their material ranged from original cuts penned by Ryder and Badanjek, to covers of Let It Rock, Lou Reed's Rock 'n' Roll and Wilson Pickett's I Found A Love. Erzin and Steve Hunter would later work with Lou Reed and Alice Cooper.

The first single contains harmonious orchestrated pop-psych with baroque touches, which may appeal to Left Banke fans. The second, which may be by a different group, consists of heavy blues-derived rock with a soulful singer and much (unsatisfactory) guitar and organ to the fore. (MW/MK)

ALBUM: 1(A) DIAMONDHEAD (CD) (Gear Fab GF-209) 2004

Bob Yeazel grew up in Denver, Colorado and learnt to play guitar at the age of 14. He was briefly with The West Coast Pop Art Experimental Band and in that period met Ron Morgan and Jimmy Greenspoon (later of Three Dog Night). This led to Yeazel, Morgan and Greenspoon forming Super Band with Roger Bryant and Myron Pollack. Super Band was short-lived but recorded one rare single. Bob was then in Beast in 1970. When they disbanded he was invited by Jerry Corbetta to join Sugarloaf. It was when he quit Sugarloaf that he formed Diamondhead with Roger Bryant and Peter Johnson (who had just left a band called Fat Emma), Galen Pew and David Williams.

In 1972, he went into the studio with members of Diamondhead and Brother Son, two local Denver bands. The result was an unreleased album of material very much in the vein of Sugarloaf, Steely Dan and early Doobie Brothers. The Gear Fab retrospective CD contains nine tracks by Diamondhead and four by Brother Son. The material on the CD is strong and diverse. The opener, When The Blues Come Walking is notable for some fine guitar work; Crazy Man has a strong intro with appealing vocals; and there are some good ballads too - Lady Of The Night is a magical song with strong lead and backing vocals and a classical influence and My Ship Is Coming In is a very emotional number with piano about working for something and believing it's going to happen and if you do it will. This Laid Back Life has a country-ish tinge with an acoustic Martin 12-string. The CD maintains a good standard throughout and is recommended. (VJ)

	Baby What Do You Say/Knock You Flat	(Panorama 41) 1966

A garage outfit, from the Rainier Beach area of South Seattle and influenced by The Viceroys. Their finest moment, She's Boss was captured on Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 (LP) in 1966. It's a stark garage punker, which although a regional hit, deserved to do better.

All the band members grew up in and went to South Seattle schools, 'Franklin' and 'Rainier Beach' and presumably the band was either formed in high school or college. By 1967, however, The Dimensions had cratered and a new band formed called Lyte.

Clyde Heaton later played with Calliope. Bill Hoak became a born-again Christian and moved to Nashville for a time before settling in Knoxville. Lee Dark became a hairdresser and Joe Villa was last heard to be teaching music at Cornish College in Seattle.

Retrospective compilation appearances have included: Penny and She's Boss on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 - Flash And Crash (CD); Knock You Flat on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 2 - Knock You Flat! (LP & CD), History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 2 - The Garage Years (CD) and Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 2 (CD); She's Boss on The History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 2 (LP) and Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 (CD); and Penny on Bad Vibrations, Vol. 1 (LP & CD) and Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 2 (CD). 45s:	Nina-Kocha-Nina/Penny A Tear Drop	(Sully 914) 1965
	Ugly Girl/Kocka-Mow-Mow	(Sully 925) 1966

This odd bunch was originally from Beloit in Kansas, but appears to have relocated to West Texas. Nina-Kocha-Nina and Kocka-Mow-Mow are both more frat-rock/'trash' than garage with slightly demented nonsensical lyrics. The flip to the first single, Penny A Tear Drop is a folk-rocker.

Compilation appearances include: Ugly Girl on The Lost Generation, Vol. 2 (LP); Kocka-Mow-Mow on Monsters Of The Midwest, Vol. IV (LP), Midwest Garage Band Series - Kansas (LP) and The Big Itch Vol. 3 (LP); Penny A Tear Drop on Texas Punk, Vol. 9 (LP) and Acid Visions - Complete Collection, Vol. 3 (3-CD); and Nina-Kocka-Nina on Boulders, Vol. 6 (LP), The Madness Invasion (LP) and The Big Itch Vol. 1 (LP). This Beverley Hills group comprised Dean Martin, Jr. (Dino), Desiderio Arnaz IV (Desi) and William Hinsche (Billy). Dino was the son of singer/comedian Dean Martin, Desi was the son of Hollywood stars Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz (of the fifities TV show 'I Love Lucy'), and Billy was the son of a successful real estate developer. Billy Hinsche played with the Beach Boys road show (his sister married Carl Wilson). They attended school together and became friends, and in 1964 they formed their group. In the beginning, they just played for fun.

Dino, Desi & Billy performed with studio musicians and handled only the vocals on most of their records, and even at that, they were not among the best singers of their time. They recorded primarily on the Reprise label, which was Dean Martin's label and for which an audition was arranged in front of none other than Martin's good pal, Frank Sinatra.

They secured material from some of the top pop promoters and songwriters of the day, including Lee Hazlewood, Jimmy Bowen, David Gates, and Tommy Boyce and Bobby Hart. In 1965 they made the Top 40 with I'm A Fool. Later that year they had a second Top 40 hit when Not The Lovin' Kind, reached number 25. They also appeared on the 'Ed Sullivan Show'. Billy Hinsche's sister married Carl Wilson of The Beach Boys. In 1970 Dino, Desi & Billy released a song that had been written by Brian Wilson and Billy Hinsche titled Lady Love. The group continued recording throughout the rest of the decade before disbanding in 1970.

Dino died in a 1987 plane crash, aged just 35 and his younger brother Ricci has reformed the group as Ricci, Desi & Billy.

The Rebel Kind! The Best Of (CD) contains 20 tracks (their entire single 'A' sides plus many non-album sides). They enjoyed quite a bit of chart success over the years.

Compilation appearances include:- I'm A Fool on Even More Nuggets (CD) and Wild Thing (2-LP); and Tell Someone You Love Them on Nuggets: Come To The Sunshine (CD) and The Rebel Kind on Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book). (VJ/EW)

Both are traditional electric blues albums, dominated by Piazza's fiery vocals and harmonica. Piazza later formed the Southside Blues Band with George "Harmonica" Smith, who were subsequently re-named Bacon Fat by Mike Vernon of Blue Horizon. The band was based in southern California. Their debut album is a mean and dirty production of rambling guitars and screaming vocals; listen out for their howling version of Hound Dog. (SR)

NB: Line-up (A) performed Forest Of Black and line-up (B) did Morning Sun Flower. These details were posted on the West Coast Psych Forum by Gary Kennings, who explained that Dirty Filthy Mud was essentially a group of musicians, who had "been recruited at one time or another to fill-in for someone in The Baylanders, one of the more successful local bands in the Oakland/Berkeley/El Cerrito area". Hunter, Kennings, and Sabine had been in that outfit with the likes of William Bostic and Bob Patrientes. Of the others above, Thorsen was from The Tempests, Minzyk from The Third Half, and Doran from The Sewer, "the only bona fide garage band that never played a paying gig but was just a hellava lot of fun".

45: The Forest Of Black/
Morning Sun Flower (PS) (Worex R-2340) 1968

Based in Oakland, California this band recorded their only single at Sierra Sound Labs in Berkeley. It was issued in a thick cardboard art sleeve like the Frumious Bandersnatch and Country Joe and The Fish EP's (which explains why it is often referred to as an "EP"!). The Forest Of Black is one of the most blatantly psychedelic recordings from the Bay Area sixties scene, with wild electronic effects and druggy lyrics that seem to have been inspired by Country Joe's Bass Strings:

"I go down to the seashore to wash my brain
When I go down to the seashore to wash my brain
I never come back feelin' the same now
I never come back feelin' the same
What do I see in the sea?
What do I see in the sea?
Well, it's me lookin' deep inside of me
I said it's me lookin' deep inside of me
I said it's me... yeaaoww!
(from The Forest of Black)

The original single has become very expensive and nearly impossible to locate at any price.

45: Hard Driving Man/Growing Old (Amsterdam AM 85014) 1970

Produced by Charlie Dreyer and Bobby Hern, this Boston, Massachusetts quintet released their only album in 1970. Carey Mann (ex-III Wind) and P.J. Colt wrote four of the nine tracks (Hard Driving Man, Growing Old, Living In A Cloud, River). It contains some excellent tracks, especially Growing Old which contains, slowly rotating, grinding fuzz-filled psych, with an ethereal trumpet and a heart-felt solo guitar. A cover of Irving Berlin's Blue Skies (7'10" of guitar and thunder noises) has its moments, but alas there's also some very regrettable soul-blues crossover with horns (Hard Driving Man). The album comes in a great gatefold cover with a hearse, mushrooms and a forest made of musicians' heads. (MK/AH/MW/SR/CF)

Dirty Martha (NJ)

45: She's Not There/Why Can't I (Castle 110) 1969/70

Recorded at MSI Studios in Camden, New Jersey in the late sixties - She's Not There is the Zombies song with some overwrought male vocals, the flip by Murray Goodman and Terry Wade is a laid-back lounge-ballad with piano and brassy crescendos. Just a coincidence or is there some connection between this group and another New Jersey bunch called Victoria, given that the latter's music was published in 1971 by Dirty Martha Music Co.? This Dirty Shames comprised Canadian blues singer/musician Chick Roberts and two lads and a lass who delivered two platters of breezy harmony-pop and folk-rock that were only issued in the US. Originally based in Michigan, the group later moved to New York City. Roy Michaels of Au Go Go Singers and Cat Mother was a member later on once they'd moved to New York City. He co-wrote Walk Away and the other two tracks with Bob Smith who was also in Cat Mother.

Following Jim McCarthy's departure, the Dirty Shames enlarged the band by adding bass, piano and drums and became the regular band at Andy Warhol's club 'The Dom' and openers for The Velvet Underground at the 'The Gymnasium.'

In 1968, the Dirty Shames disbanded and Chick Roberts returned to Canada. A devoted member of the folk music community, he became one of the organisers of the Mariposa Folk Festival. For 25 years, he used his talents as a raconteur, singer, guitarist and all-around crowd pleaser to tour schools, libraries, festivals and to introduce and deliver jug band and blues workshops to children across Ontario.

Blow Your Mind has reappeared on I'm Trippin' Alone (LP). Coconut Grove was a cover of a Lovin' Spoonful song. (MM/MW/NW)

45: Better Than You (Mental So)/ ? (Avco 4536) 1970

Disciple was a New York quintet. Their album is a soft soulful psych-pop offering with mixed male/female vocals, decent guitar and organ. There are catchy melodies and some lush vocal harmonies and a fine cover of The Beatles' Got To Get You Into My Life. Some songs have a punkish edge while the opening cut flirts with layered harmony-pop-jazz-psych. Overall, though, this is quite an under-rated and peculiar effort. (SR/VJ)

The first killer punk single was recorded in Minneapolis, but the band came from Norman on the southern perimeter of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. After their third single the band upped sticks and made the trek to Los Angeles, where they renamed themselves Southwind.

Their Junior Saw It Happen is on The Bad Vibrations (LP). (VJ/MW)

45: Who Do You Think You're Foolin'/A Man (DYG CF-748) 1967

These unknown teenagers are believed to have hailed from Pasadena, California. Who Do You Think You're Foolin' is wonderful Byrdsian jangle with Beatlesque vocals - check it out on Teenage Shutdown Vol. 9 (LP/CD). A Man is a slow, moody, beat ballad. Both sides sound like Class Of '65, despite the supposed 1967 release date. (MW)

	The Lonely One/You Can't Do That	(Mantra M-115) 1970

This six-pack of likely lads from Astoria, Oregon released a quartet of singles between 1967 and 1970 with some local success. The second and third singles came in picture sleeves and reveal them to be a smart Beatlesque bunch. Their second single is a wistful folk-rocker backed by a more up-tempo soft-rocker and much of their material is light Invasion-infused pop, so they won't appeal to garage or psych purists. They wrote all the material themselves, except for the Beatles cover of You Can't Do That. For that final single they moved into heavier rock territory which makes their version all the more interesting.

Only recently have compilers started to notice them: both sides of the second single are on Storm In The Garage (3-CD) and What Will The New Day Bring is on Fading Yellow Vol. 2 (CD). (MW)

20 PSYCH-PUNK CLASSICS FROM THE SIXTIES
MAYHEM & PSYCHOSIS
VOLUME ONE

MAYHEM & PSYCHOSIS (Comp LP) includes Dirty Wurds.

The Big Apple's answer to Peter & Gordon? This New York City duo's singles should appeal to fans of crisp'n'classy beat, pop and folk-rock with a garagy edge. They wrote (and co-wrote, mainly with N. Nader or producer Bob Crewe) nearly all of their material. If their names seem familiar, it's because their songwriting talents were appreciated by others, including: - Richard & The Young Lions - the classic Open Up Your Door, You Can Make It, Nasty, Lost And Found and a cover of Distant Cousins' To Have And To Hold and Missing Links - Behind Locked Doors and You Don't Love Me Anymore.

She Ain't Lovin' You, which was a big hit in Ohio and made some impression nationally, has been compiled on Boulders, Vol. 10 (LP) and Ya Gotta Have Moxie, Vol. 1 (2-CD). Let It Ring - a vibrant Beatlesque raver - also adorns Psychotic Reactions (LP). (MW/GGI/VJ)

	Let's Spend Some Time Together/ Gimme Some Lovin'	(Capitol 2223) 1968

Formed in the early sixties by Alexander, Bibb and Marlin, while still at high school in Birmingham, Alabama Distortions came to the attention of Travis Wammack around 1965. He took them on as his backing band and one of his compositions, Distortion, inspired their band name. With the support of Wammack and a newly-recruited Zack Zachary on keyboards, they headed for the studio.

Their releases were a mix of originals, Wammack songs, and some choice covers. They embraced beat, folk-rock and garage styles, but infused them with a strong flavouring of soul/RnB. As a result they're often labelled 'soul-garage' by dealers, but don't write them off if that's not your bag.

Their version of Smokestack Lightning is quite extraordinary; instead of a bluesy workout, it's an amphetamine-fuelled version with driving rhythm, spiralling guitar, and keyboard embellishments, topped off with Yardbirds-like harmonica and wolf howls! Check it out on Psychedelic States: Alabama Vol. 2 (CD).

Another highlight is the Casino single, whose low-key garage-ballad I Don't Really Like You is a muted Searchers styled folk-rocker; this is a cover of a song by Baton Rouge's Canebreak. Can You Tell has been compiled on Quagmire Vol. 6 (CD).

The band went through several line-ups before folding at the end of the sixties, although it is reported that Zachary and Alexander did some gigs as The Distortions in the early seventies. (MW/MM)

	I Just Don't Care/Mousin' Around	(Veep V 1209) 1965
	So Little Time/Every Minute Of Every Day	(Kapp 691) 1965

Stamford, Connecticut combo, The "D" Men was originally known as The Demen. Their name was truncated by a Veep publicist who also insisted that each member have a D-name (Dwayne, Don, D'Arcy, Duke, D.Wm)...

Their debut single, a garagy beat-pop affair in the style of The Searchers, was picked as a hit by Billboard, Cashbox, and Record World, but when the parent label, United Artists, decided to promote Shirley Bassey's Theme From Goldfinger heavily instead, it failed to make the charts.

For their second effort, they got to perform I Just Don't Care on Hullabaloo on 30th March 1965, but again it failed to ignite the public's interest. The flip, Mousin' Around was a surf-style instrumental.

Their final single, So Little Time is teen pop-punk, influenced by The Beau Brummels with some nicely reverberating guitar chops.

Askew and Wadhams went on to become The Fifth Estate who released several singles on Jubilee and one on Red Bird. You can find much of the D-Men and Fifth Estate material on the Ding Dong: The Witch Is Back CD retrospective.

You can also hear So Little Time on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 8 (LP & CD). (MW/LP)

(Number One K 1000) 1971 R1

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Synton K 6114) 2005.

From Massachusetts, a jazzy underground rock outfit, unrelated to the more well-known UK bunch, but presumably named after the same R&B standard. The album with a flute played in the early Jethro Tull style, contains originals with track titles like Nasal Greens And Toe Jam, The Roach Did It and Smoke Dream. Essentially progressive in style it has strange effects, sax and offbeat arrangements in addition to the distinctive flute.

Winters, Cooper and Corelle were all in a 1963 Beverly, Massachusetts based group named The Sensations. Shortly after the group renamed themselves Teddy and The Pandas, Winters left the group, then Cooper. Winters and Cooper went on to form another North Shore based band named the Warlocks.

When Teddy Dewart left the Pandas, Paul Rivers took his place as lead guitar. Soon after being dragged into the 'Bosstown Sound' and Basic Magnetism album debacle by their management, the Pandas folded (about 1969). Corelle and Rivers joined with the by-then-defunct Warlocks players Winters and Cooper to form the jazz oriented Doctor Feelgood. Dick Winters had the remarkable ability to play two horns at once in any combination of flute and/or saxophone. (SR/BW)

Malcolm "Mac" Rebennack, also known as Dr. John, Mac Rabinac or Dr. John Creaux, is an extraordinary singer, guitar player, pianist, producer and songwriter who took a very active part in the Hollywood scene between 1965 and 1972.

Born in New Orleans in 1940, Mac Rebennack began playing professionally in the Crescent City Studios in 1954, when he was only 14 and his first album was released in 1957. Working with Specialty and Ace Records, he started songwriting and producing for local singers and in 1960 he was already President and A&R man of Ric & Ron Records, a local label. After a long stay at the Fort Worth federal prison in 1964 due to a drug bust, Mac Rebennack had to leave New Orleans for Los Angeles where he teamed up with exiled New Orleans musicians: Harold Battiste, Earl Palmer, Red Tyler, Melvin Lastie and Plas Johnson, who were at the time in demand as studio musicians.

MUSIC

DR. JOHN, THE NIGHT TRIPPER - Gris-Gris CD.

Battiste (who was Sonny & Cher's musical director) introduced Rebennack to both Sonny Bono and Phil Spector as a keyboard and guitar player. After a while, he began playing piano for the Mothers of Invention but had to leave as Zappa refused to work with musicians who used drugs. (Rebennack later explained that he began taking narcotics of all kinds since he was 12 and only got 'clean' in the eighties. His career was subsequently marred by drug busts, debts, bad contracts, problem with managers etc.) He was also very active in the Los Angeles studios, playing keyboards and/or guitar, often uncredited, on recordings by Oxford Circle, Iron Butterfly, Buffalo Springfield, Hourglass, Future, John Sebastian, Sonny & Cher and dozens of other rock, psych, soul, blues and pop acts. He was also a producer for Mercury Records and their short-lived Pulsar subsidiary (where he worked with Wayne Talbert and produced two Graham Bond albums among many others).

In 1967, he thought up the concept of forming a musical group around the personality of Dr. John, a 19th century New Orleans root doctor and, through Harold Battiste (together with his Sonny & Cher job), managed to cut a few tunes on "free" studio time at the Gold Star Studios. Ahmet Ertegun was at first very surprised to be asked to release an album that had been recorded "on the sly", but finally agreed to release it on Atco. The album, Gris-Gris, fell right into the "hippie" groove of the time and soon became a kind of underground hit, being supported by the free form radio stations and receiving good reviews. It's quite easy to understand why when reading the lyrics of Gris Gris Gumbo Ya Ya:

"They call me Dr. John
Known as the Night Tripper
Got my satchel of gris gris in my hand
Tripping up, back down the bayou
I'm the last of the best
I'm known as a gris-gris man
Got many clients come from miles around
Running down my prescriptions
Got medicine cure all y'all's ills
Got remedies of every description"

Other tracks include Walk On Gilded Splinters and Croker Courtbullion whilst the music can best be described as "voodoo rock". The Dr. John live shows were also totally unusual for the California scene, Rebennack and his group using the old minstrel shows and New Orleans carnival outfits:- smoke, feathered clothes, snakes, make-up, candles, limbo sticks and burning incense. Rebennack and his group also began hanging out with Emmett Grogan's Diggers, the local Hell's Angels and were often in trouble with all sorts of authorities.

In 1968, Atlantic asked them to do a second album. Rebennack and Battiste wrote songs about the end of the world, using unusual rhythms and named it Babylon. The title track had these lyrics, just before the sound of an atomic explosion:

"No politicians, no high religions to guide you from the dark
No more love-ins, no more human be-in's will light up Griffith Park"

A true psych gem, Babylon is a strange album, with the croaking voice of Dr. John mixed with lots of percussion, guitars and female vocals. The final track, The Lonesome Guitar Strangler is about a character "smoking psychedelic guitar picks and strangling guitar players", every day he gets one more and the lyrics cite Gabor Szabo, Jimi Hendrix, Wes Montgomery and Ravi Shankar, with a short example of their style every time. Scary!

After that, Rebennack got busted once more, this time in St Louis, Missouri and had to spend time in the UCLA Neuropsychiatric Center for a detox attempt. He finally escaped from there and went to Miami. In the meantime, the third Dr. John album, Remedies, had come out and was in fact "finished" by Dr. John's new managers, Brian Stone and Charlie Greene (who also worked with Buffalo Springfield, Iron Butterfly and Sonny & Cher). The side-long Angola was about the Louisiana prison farm although the critics thought it was about the African country.

The group then went to Europe for a long and chaotic tour, with many drug and visa problems. Rebennack wanted to record a triple concept album: The Sun, Moon and Herbs and recorded it in London, with many guests including Mick Jagger, Eric Clapton and his Dominoes, Doris Troy, Graham Bond, Ray Draper and Chris Mercer. During the sessions, Stone and Greene tried unsuccessfully to sign Dr. John to the Blue Thumb label and somehow most of the original tapes were lost. Rebennack then signed a new management contract with Albert Grossman and finally a single album was rescued from the project and released on Atco. Housed in a superb gatefold sleeve, the result is not surprisingly, not very convincing although it still has its moments.

After this album, Mac Rebennack and his singers worked with the Rolling Stones on Exile On Main St and with The Band. He later returned to New Orleans and his following albums are out of the scope of this book (although many of them are excellent). Deeply involved with the New Orleans-centric pagan beliefs, Rebennack even fronted the 'Dr. John's Temple Of Voodoo', a local "church" in the early seventies.

His songs have often been covered including: - United States Of Mind by Great Jones, Walk On Gilded Splinters by both Humble Pie and Marsha Hunt, Headin Closer To Home by Great Bear and Glowin' by several different groups.

For further reading check out "Under A Hoodoo Moon, The Life Of The Night Tripper", his very sincere memories published in 1994.

Dr. John is still recording and touring extensively. His 2008 CD City That Care Forgot (credited to Dr. John and The Lower 911) slams the US government for its shambolic response to the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina. (SR)

Thanks to Andrew Brown's "Brown Paper Sack #1" for the line-up and informing us that this New Orleans band was originally known as the Illusions and would later be known as Flavor from 1969 through to about 1973. Both sides of this single are hard-edged punk veering towards psychedelia with confident vocals and lots of organ.

This band had a minor hit with one of the all-time greatest novelty songs, The Eggplant That Ate Chicago, in 1967. Their album, produced by Tony Marer, was released by a small California company, Go-Go Record and distributed by Epic.

Anyone wishing to check their blend of Spike Jones and Bonzo Dog Band should look out for Sundazed's CD retrospective Euphoria! The Best Of..., which contains 25 tracks, including all their singles and plenty of unreleased cuts... completely zany, off the wall, deliciously goofy stuff!!

Singer Norman Greenbaum hit the big time with Spirit In The Sky in 1970. He came from Boston originally.

Jigsaw has also resurfaced on Exploding Plastic Inevitable 1 (LP) and you can also hear a radio commercial as the bonus track on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 3 (LP & CD). (VJ/MW/SR)

The last Time I Saw You (Sire 45-SI-4107) 1969

NB: α shown as by Paul Dowell and The Dolphin.

On the demise of The Hangmen, Dowell, Daly and Berberich approached a young and talented guitarist named Nils Lofgren. Nils was with the Crystal Mesh, who'd recorded some demos in New York City with Richard Gottehrer (Strangeloves) producing - Gottehrer would produce both Dolphin singles too. After the second single Dowell split to California and the remaining trio (line-up 'B') became the first incarnation of Grin. They'd take the trail to L.A. themselves and the rest, as they say, is history.

Their first single on the short-lived Sire subsidiary (also responsible for a single and album by David Santo) features a heavyish version of the hippie anthem and a decent bluesy (first?) Lofgren original, credited to "Nils Lothgrin". He wrote both sides of the more commercial orchestrated pop-rock follow-up. Neither is outstanding but they will be of great interest to his loyal legion of fans. (MW)

Originally from Rhode Island, this strange pop-rock singer's real name is Richard DiDomenico. His only album is filled with well-crafted orchestral pop and psych-pop, often accompanied by fuzz guitar. He wrote all the songs except one (Maybe) and is probably best known as a result of the inclusion of Bad Dream on the Mystic Males (LP) compilation. His band, The Blue Jays, back him on the album and issued an album of their own on Map City on which he plays. It's unclear at present if this was the guy in Dick Domani & The Demons. (SR/VJ/MW)

Domestic Help (?CA)

45s: A Woman Owns The Biggest Part Of Man/
The Bad Seed (Acta 805) 1965
You're The Potter/Try To Forgive Them (Acta 814) 1967

This group's origins remain a mystery, though L.A. is a good bet. The first single features a decent folk-rocker backed by a mid-tempo garage lament with disturbing lyrics and both cuts feature excellent guitar work. The second single is melodramatic orchestrated pop with the odd burst of unwelcome brass, a disappointment after their first release. (MW)

The Dominions (OR)

45: Spanish Harlem/I Need Her (Graves 1091) 1966

The Dominions was a mid-sixties punk outfit. The label was based in Eugene, Oregon and the band was made up of college students at the local University of Oregon. I Need Her, a pretty strong punker, has since resurfaced on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 16 (LP) and Gravel Volume 5 (CD). (MW/GGI)

The Dominos (WI)

45: A Matter Of Fact/Here Comes The Dawn (Kleo KO-101) 1971

This is an obscure late-sixties sounding psych-rock outfit from Wisconsin. To confuse the hell out of everyone for the last several years, Pebbles Vol. 22 got their tapes mixed-up and listed A Matter Of Fact by "The Dominoes" (with erroneous E), BUT the song featured is actually Dooley Vs. The Ferris Wheel by I.R.A. (Dot 17087). So, no, neither side of this Dominos single has appeared on a compilation, yet. (MW)

NB: α was also issued on Action (1012). β shown as by Delna Lee with The Fugitives.

Another mystery outfit whose In The Cover Of Night is a rather accessible garage punker - good vocals and an effective organ-led backing. As Fabor Robinson's label was based in Burbank, California they may have come from California, although Louisiana has also been suggested. The second single featured Delna Lee (a guy not a gal) and both sides were written by Don and Jerry. One Year Today is an early-sixties teen ballad, the flip a frantic beat number.

Another single as by Don And Jerry is probably the same outfit:-
45: Better Run And Hide/Too Much Confusion (N-Joy NJ 1018) 1966

In The Cover Of The Night can also be heard on Sixties Choice, Vol. 1 (LP) and 60's Choice Collection Vol's 1 And 2 (CD). (MW/VJ)

Formed in Portland, Oregon in 1964 when Don Gallucci was forced to leave The Kingsmen because he was still in high school and unable to tour. Gallucci drafted in Bob Holden, a good friend of his, on drums and Holden brought with him Don McKinney, who had played sax with him in a band called The Imperials. With the bass and guitar slots filled by Dave Childs and (ex-Paul Revere & The Raiders) Pierre Oulette, The Goodtimes started out playing at The Chase in Portland, Oregon, but soon became a popular regional attraction. Their debut recording in 1964 was Turn On Song, an instrumental which featured McKinney's wailing sax and Oulette's superb guitar. It became a big regional hit. However, in 1965 Oulette left to join Aesop and The Fables and was replaced by Jim Valley on guitar. As well as being one of the region's finest guitarists he was a talented songwriter and his songwriting opened up new opportunities for the group. For example, he wrote Little Sally Tease for the band, which became a gigantic regional hit and was recorded by several national acts such as The Standells and The Kingsmen. The single was picked up by Dunhill and the band went to L.A. to record Sweets For My Sweet and Mary Mae with P.F. Sloan and Steve Berry handling the arrangements. Whilst there, they appeared on several Top TV shows. Indeed L.A. became their base until their demise.

On New Years Day, 1966, they shared the bill with Mr. Lucky and The Gamblers at Portland's Oriental Theatre and Don and the lads were so impressed they helped get them a record deal with Jerry Dennon's Panorama label and wrote and produced a couple of songs for them.

Sweets For My Sweet went on to become a huge hit in the Northwest, but whilst they were working on a new single, Blue Turns To Grey Jim Valley left to join Paul Revere and The Raiders, with whom in late 1966 they appeared as regulars on 'Where The Action Is'. They also signed for Epic in 1966, bringing them two national hits, I Could Be So Good To You and Happy And Me in 1967. Just when they seemed to be at the pinnacle of their career their world fell in around them - 'Where The Action Is' was cancelled, two members quit and their next single bombed. By 1968 the band had evolved into Touch. John Bordonaro: "I replaced drummer, Bob Holden in the fall of 1967. Bruce Hauser, who I played with in The Gretschmen from Connecticut, also played with Don and the Goodtimes in 1968 when we went through a series of names until our manager Howard Wolf, came up with the name Touch."

Their most successful album, in commercial terms, had been So Good, which rose to No 109 in the U.S. charts. Produced by Jack Nitzsche and Stu Phillips, it's very pop-oriented, with several English covers (Troggs' With A Girl Like You, Beatles' Good Day Sunshine and Spencer Davis' Gimme Somme Lovin'), two Nitzsche selections and four Ron Overman compositions. It hasn't aged well and sounds a bit naive now.

Newman had earlier played in The Liberty Party. Don McKinney went into personnel management and record production and Bob Holden became a recording engineer. Later still Gallucci became a producer/engineer for Elektra Records. Don Gallucci was last reported working in real estate, Ron Overman is a pastor in Arkansas, Jim Valley works in education with gifted children, Dave Child is a machinist, Pete Oulette works in advertising, Charlie Coe (who had joined them from Paul Revere and The Raiders) is in food sales, Joey Newman is a studio musician and has also recorded two gospel albums, Jeff Hawks is a hair stylist in L.A. and Bob Holden works as a recording engineer in Seattle. Interestingly, McKinney, Child and Holden are all active with Christian music in some way and Gallucci is active in the Christian ministry.

DON AND THE GOODTIMES - The Original Northwest Sound Of... LP.

The band's material has been quite well documented on some of the regional compilations: - Blue Turns To Grey and Little Sally Tease appeared on Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 (LP); You Were Just A Child on Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 2 (LP); and Lip Service, Tall Cool One and Louie, Louie were on The Hitmakers (LP).

In 1994, Jerden Records issued a Don & The Goodtimes CD called simply Don & the Goodtimes. Its 21 tracks cover virtually all of their recorded output from Money and Little Sally Tease to You Were Just A Child and I Could Be So Good To You. This is highly recommended.

In 2000, Sundazed turned their attention to the Northwest, specifically Jerry Dennon's sixties empire (Jerden, Piccadilly and Burdette labels). The Original Northwest Sound Of... compilation showcases D&TG's earlier (1964-1966) raucous R&B and punkier material - 16 cuts which include nearly everything on that elusive 1981 retrospective Goodtime Rock 'n' Roll album plus classics like Little Sally Tease and I'm Real.

Compilation appearances have included: Little Latin Lupe Lu on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 - Flash And Crash (LP); Little Latin Lupe Lu, Money and The Turn On Song on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 - Flash And Crash (CD); Little Sally Tease and Louie, Louie on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 2 - Knock You Flat! (CD); Blue Turns To Grey and Little Sally Tease on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 (CD); You Were A Child and the previously unreleased Runnin' Not Walking on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 2 (CD); Little Sally Tease and The Turn On Song on History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 2 - The Garage Years (CD); You Were Just A Child and Little Sally Tease on The History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 1 (LP); Blue Turns To Grey and I Could Be So Good To You on The History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 2 (LP); The Turn On Song on The History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 2 (LP); and The Witch on The History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 4 (LP). 45: You're Gonna Cry/
Time Will Tell (Golden State Records GSR-45-606) 1966

This band was from Fairfield, California. They recorded at Leo (De Gar) Kulka's Golden State Recorders in San Francisco and their single appeared on his house imprint. You're Gonna Cry begins with a soulful blues feel and works up into a climax of blistering guitars. Superimposed on all this is Gifford's emotive style which owes a lot to Eric Burdon. This single is definitely worth investigation, and you can find You're Gonna Cry on Pebbles, Vol. 17 (LP).

The Donnybrookes played a lot around the Bay Area, including gigs with The Beau Brummels and The New Breed. In 1967, they evolved into Stone Henge. Ric Eittreim was also with The Maze who issued the highly-rated Armageddon album in 1968. (VJ/MW/CF/AP/JCa/EW)

45:	Always Getting Hurt/I'm Going For You	(Canterbury 505) 1967

From Bakersfield, California this band formed in 1963 when Dugan Turner splintered with The Avengers (yes - that Avengers). Managed by KFAY disc jockey Mike Lundy, they played the Sunset Strip often, as well as performing with Sonny and Cher, The Beach Boys, Lovin' Spoonful, Chad and Jeremy, Paul Revere and The Raiders, and The Yardbirds, among others. Though the Canterbury single was their only release, they did record demos in Hollywood for Ken Handler, then with the Mattel Toy Company.

The single consists of harmonious folk-rock-pop ballads, with the winner being the tender Byrdsy Always Getting Hurt.

The Donnybrooks dissolved when some of them decided to attend college. Turner later joined a local band named Air Circus. (VJ/MDo/MW/DTu)

45:	Hi-Fi Baby/I Need Your Lovin' Babe	(Viv 10) 1965

From Phoenix, Arizona The Door Nobs included brothers Floyd and Jerry Westfall, who as a duo would achieve regional stardom and record five singles for Presta and Double Shot between 1966 and 1967. Hi-Fi Baby was a big Phoenix hit in the fall of 1965. The guitar-driven screamer is not a typical garage-rocker. In fact, it is a surf-frat-garage hybrid that blurs genres so much that years later it was included on the primarily rockabilly Desperate Rock and Roll Vol. 4 (CD). The Merseyish ballad I Need Your Lovin' Babe includes harmonica by Michael Bruce, later of The Spiders and The Nazz. The Door Nobs also recorded four raucous demos and three other songs at Debra Recording Studio in Phoenix that remain unreleased. Hi-Fi Baby originally came out with two label variations. It also can be heard on Bear Family's Phoenix Panorama: The Viv Labels (LP) 1995. (DN)

Numerous posthumous releases have appeared. Of particular interest may be The Doors Live at the Hollywood Bowl (Elektra 960741-1) 1987 which captures the band on stage on 5 July 1968. Real fans of the band may want to invest in The Complete Studio Recordings (7-CD box set) (Elektra 62434) 1999. This was later remastered and repackaged The Complete Studio Recordings (7-CD box set) (Elektra 73767) 2003 limited edition comprises their six original studio albums in a lavish box set and a bonus disc of rarities, alternate takes, demos, and live cuts. Best Of The Doors (WEA/East West 7559625881) 2000 (reissued in 2007) was a vinyl compilation. Bright Midnight: The Doors Live In America (Elektra/Bright Midnight Records 7559-62656-2) 2001 compiles live recordings from 1969/70. This was reissued on CD (Rhino 78330) 2002. Live In Hollywood: Highlights From The Aquarius Theatre Performances (Bright Midnight/Elektra 7559 62733 2) 2002 captures two 1969 live concerts at the Aquarius Theatre, Los Angeles. Live At The Aquarius Theatre (1st Performance) (2-CD) (Bright Midnight 7906) 2005 and Live At The Aquarius Theatre (2nd Performance) (2-CD) (Bright Midnight 7907) 2005 are sets of previously unreleased material (aside from a few cuts that have appeared on live highlight discs) of the complete show from the Aquarius Theatre in July 1969. Boot Yer Butt (4-CD box) (Rhino Hand Made RHM2 7911) 2003 was compiled chronologically by Robbie Krieger from their live concerts. There's also Legacy: The Absolute Best (CD) (Rhino) 2003. Perception (Rhino/Elektra 77645) 2006 is a rather disappointing 6-CD plus 6-DVD set. This was reissued (Rhino 8122799848) 2007. The Very Best Of The Doors (WEA 081227999599)/(Elektra/Rhino 99959) 2007 is very similar to Rhino U.S.'s 2001 release The Very Best of the Doors - and the 2007 compilation is also available as a single disc and as a double-disc set, as well as a limited edition that adds a DVD to the two-CD version, so it's very easy to get all three compilations confused. That said, there are notable differences between all three U.K. compilations and the original U.S. set. The American disc had 16 tracks while the single-disc U.K. set has 20 tracks and, in fact, boasts a stronger overall selection of songs, making this arguably the best single-disc introduction to the band yet assembled. There's also a 7-LP box set The Doors (WEA/Rhino 8122748811) 2007. The Future Starts Here: The Essential Doors Hits (Elektra/Rhino 360060) 2008 (#161), The Platinum Collection (Warner Platinum/Rhino) 2008 and The Doors Vinyl Box Set (Rhino) 2008 will also interest fans. Live In Boston (3-CD) (Bright Midnight/Rhino 216124) 2007 captures two live concerts from 10 April 1970. Live In Pittsburgh 1970 (DMC/Bright Midnight/Rhino 271548) 2008 was part of the same 'Absolutely Live' tour as was captured on Live In Pittsburgh 1970 so the material is pretty similar but spread over one CD rather than three. Live At The Matrix (2-CD) (/Bright Midnight/Rhino 516205) 2008 draws from their first two albums. Live In New York (6-CD) (Bright Midnight Archives/Rhino 523104) 2010 captures them on the top of their game.

STRANGE DAYS

THE DOORS - Strange Days LP.

The Doors more than any other band, broadened the appeal of 'acid-rock' and carried it beyond the acid-heads and students to the wider teeny bopper audience. However, theirs was a different brand of 'acid'-rock from The Jefferson Airplane, less psychedelic and more surreal, their lyrics were concerned with the struggle against social repression and did not romanticise about the virtues of psychedelic drugs. Their significance in the evolution of rock is immense - to attend a Doors concert was to undergo a novel experience of rock theatre. On stage, Morrison, one of the late sixties' leading sex symbols, was electrifying. Although some say he lacked a good singing voice, he was an artist of many moods who could shout loudly and furiously or sing softly and mysteriously.

The group formed in 1965 when Morrison, son of a U.S. admiral, met Ray Manzarek whilst studying at the UCLA. Morrison was more interested in poetry than music, but claimed to hear strange songs inside his head. It was Manzarek who encouraged him to get them down on tape. Manzarek persuaded Morrison to play in his own band, Rick and The Ravens and later he also recruited the other group members, Robbie Krieger and John Densmore, from a group called The Psychedelic Rangers. Jim Morrison apparently chose the name The Doors from a line of William Blake: 'There are things that are known and things that are unknown, in between are the doors'. The inference of opening doors to new perception and discovery fitted well into the acid scene. They got their first gigs in small clubs along the Sunset Strip. The record companies showed little interest at first but eventually Elektra, then a small company who had made inroads into the rock market with another top L.A. band, Love offered them a contract after Arthur Lee had persuaded Jac Holzman to go to hear the band. Their first single, Break On Through appeared to stem from Morrison's obsession with freedom which came from extensive reading of existentialist texts. At the time, however, it was widely understood to refer to a younger generation's struggle against repressive adult society. Their follow-up Light My Fire, an edited single, also from their first album, was a rock masterpiece and shot to No. 1 in the US. Probably the most fascinating track on the first album, however, was The End, a long, semi-improvised tale of madness, patricide and incest. Their follow-up album Strange Days was even more imaginative

WAITING FOR THE SUN

THE DOORS - Waiting For The Sun LP.

and equally bizarre, containing songs of mystery like People Are Strange as well as songs of rage and confusion like When The Music's Over.

Their reputation as a live band also grew from strength to strength. A Doors gig was not merely a rock concert but more a theatrical show. In their debut at the Fillmore West, for example, they opened the show third on the bill to The Young Rascals and The Sopwith Camel, but dominated the proceedings. In 1968 they embarked upon a successful European tour which included a memorable appearance at The Roundhouse in London. Although they were co-billed with Jefferson Airplane, they attracted practically all the publicity.

However, by 1969 the acid dream was fading and their third album saw a change of direction, away from acid psychodramas towards areas of political concern - the stand-out track The Unknown Soldier being a straight-forward political protest song. It was also issued as a single. Somewhat surprisingly, another track Hello, I Love You which sounded very much like The Kinks' All Day And All Of The Night gave them another No. 1 hit.

Meanwhile, the pressures of rock stardom were beginning to tell on Morrison, who in the height of the acid explosion had taken LSD over 250 times, but was now fast becoming an alcoholic. He arrived increasingly late for concerts and, as the band played before increasingly younger audiences, every concert bordered on utter chaos. He had been arrested in New Haven, Connecticut in December 1967 for using obscene language and staging a riot. But following an appearance in Miami, in March of 1969, he was charged with lewd and lascivious behaviour, indecent exposure, open profanity and drunkenness, although in the subsequent court case he was found guilty of only profanity and this was the subject of an appeal at the time of his death. In the short-term, the result of his arrest on the group was catastrophic; venues were cancelled at Jacksonville, Dallas, Pittsburgh, Providence and Syracuse - indeed they were banned nearly everywhere. More ominously, perhaps, many city radio stations removed their songs from playlists. Gradually as things simmered down they got gigs again, although on Morrison's insistence they cut down on their live performances. Their two new albums of this era Morrison Hotel and LA Woman were both highly acclaimed. Gone was the rage and confusion of their 'acid' days, in its place was fine relaxed music which has proved more durable over time.

Morrison Hotel was a nice contrast of driving rockers like Roadhouse Blues and You Make Me Real and relaxed music like The Spy and Indian Summer. Absolutely Live contained an impressive medley opening with the much-covered Who Do You Love and The Celebration Of The Lizard. L.A. Woman was a rather inconsistent album but at its best contained some of the band's best music including the doomy Riders On The Storm and Love Her Madly which both brought them further singles chart success.

By now, however, Morrison was much worse for over-indulgence in life and alcohol, and quit the band to spend a few months in Paris with his wife, Pamela. He would never return to the States. Much mystery surrounds his death on 3 July 1971, which was officially attributed to a heart attack in his bath, but only his wife and the doctor who issued his death certificate saw his body, and no autopsy was conducted. The Parisians preferred to believe that he had OD'd on heroin (many of the clubs he frequented were junkie haunts). Admittedly, a bath tub is often the first place heroin victims are placed to resuscitate them, although Morrison was known to have a fear of hypodermic needles and his wife kept her own heroin habit a secret from him. It is, however, more probable that he may have snorted a lethal dose of the drug. Alternatively, there are those who believe he staged his own death to escape the pressures of public life which were clearly taking their toll. Only Pamela could have known the truth, and she outlived him by just three years, dying herself from a heroin overdose in May 1974. Essentially, of course, he followed the line of rock stars who died from self-abuse - indeed, a young death was almost inevitable from the time he attained stardom.

The remaining members continued as a trio. Their first effort Other Voices was not too bad, but Full Circle was very weak indeed suggesting they had exhausted their inspiration. Numerous posthumous releases followed and also worth investigation are two bootlegs: - The Lizard King recorded at The Roundhouse in 1968 and Moonlight Drive recorded at The Matrix, San Francisco in 1967, although both are hampered by their quality.

An American Prayer was issued on CD in 1995. A CD was issued in 1996 (Ozit) entitled Stoned! But Articulate. It contains a 16-minute interview with Jim Morrison. The 4-CD box set Boot Yer Butt was compiled chronologically by Robbie Krieger from their live material. Each CD comes in a mini-jacket that mimics the look and feel of a real bootleg, and Robbie's track-by-track reminisces. In all there are over 50 previously unreleased recordings. The Complete Studio Recordings (7-CD box set) comprises their six original studio albums in a lavish box set and a bonus disc of rarities, alternate takes, demos, and live cuts. There have been numerous other compilations - some appear in the discography earlier in this article.

Highlights From The Aquarius Theatre Performances captures two 1969 live concerts at the Aquarius Theatre, Los Angeles. Live At The Aquarius Theatre (2nd Performance) (2-CD) was a set of unreleased material (aside from a few cuts that have appeared on live highlight discs) of the complete show from the Aquarius Theatre in July 1969. Highlights on this latter recording include When The Music's Over, Gloria, Crystal Ship, and The Celebration Of The Lizard. The disc includes the crowd requests, introductions, tuning, etc giving it a real live feel.

When Manzarek left Jess Roden was pulled in on vocals and Krieger and Densmore formed The Butts Band along with Roden, Roy Davies (keyb'ds) and Philip Chen (bs).

Compilation appearances have included: Tell All The People and My Wild Love on Kings Of Pop Music, Vol. 1 (LP); Love Me Two Times on Kings Of Pop Music, Vol. 2 (LP); an unreleased acetate of Go Insane on Mind Blowers (LP), Turds On A Bum Ride Vol. 1 & 2 (2-CD) and Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 2 (LP); Five To One on Hallucinations, Psychedelic Underground (LP); and Take What Comes on Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book).

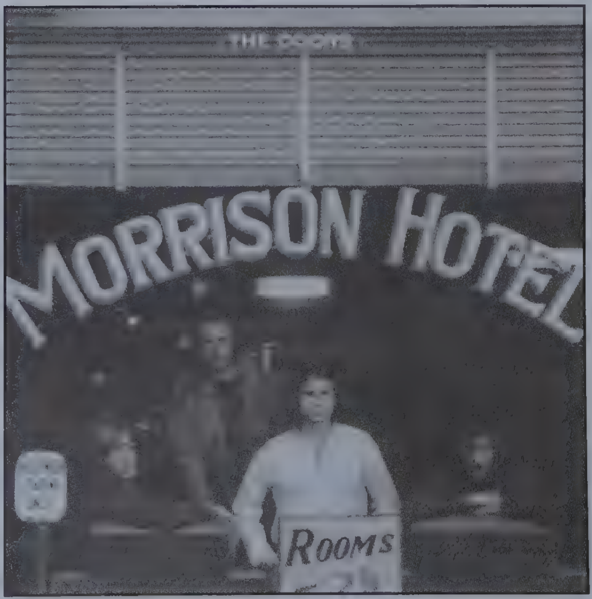
THE DOORS - Soft Parade CD.



THE DOORS - Morrison Hotel LP.

Real fans of the band may want to invest in the 7-CD box set The Complete Studio Recordings. Each CD is housed in a thick card miniature replica of the original album cover. It includes an Essential Rarities Disc, which is basically a selection of demos and rarities culled from an earlier 1997 Elektra box set. The new set comes with a lavish 76-page colour booklet, including many photos of the group, a commentary covering each album and the complete lyrics for the studio albums.

Live In Hollywood: Highlights From The Aquarius Theatre Performances will delight diehard Doors fans. Highlights of this CD set of two LA 1969 gigs are typically rambling versions of When The Music's Over and Light My Fire (the latter preceded by a brief excerpt from Celebration Of The Lizard). The set comes with informative and lengthy sleevenotes by Danny Sugarman and Doors-producer Bruce Botnik and a contemporary gig review from the 'Los Angeles Times'.

Perception is a 6-CD plus 6-DVD set which puts out six studio albums and six DVDs of live footage. There are early 1966 versions of Moonlight Drive and Indian Summer and a 17-minute studio version of The Celebration Of The Lizard, which was previously only ever released live. Otherwise the set is beautifully packaged but has little new to offer to their fans.

The 3-CD set Live In Boston captures two live concerts from 10 April 1970. This is a warts and all effort which does effectively capture the excitement of the band live. Live In Pittsburgh 1970 was part of the same 'Absolutely Live' tour as was captured on Live In Pittsburgh 1970 so the material is pretty similar but spread over one CD rather than three. Live At The Matrix (2-CD) draws from their first two albums and naturally some of their finest moments like Light My Fire and The End are on offer here. Live In New York features recordings of a four-show, two-day residency staged from 17-18 January 1970 at New York's Felt Forum and it captures them on top of their game.

The Doors are deservedly remembered as a vital band in the evolution of rock and Morrison is still regarded as one of rock's most creative figures. (VJ)

In 1997 they were inducted into the Iowa Rock 'N' Roll Hall of Fame. (VJ/MW)

A Chicago band, originally dubbed The Double-O-Six, whose Like What, Me Worry is the ultra-cool punk anthem to teenage alienation and flippancy - it's just as relevant today to the "whatever" generation. Apparently the girl band The Sweet Nothings were on back-up vocal duties, which is apt.

	Everybody Knows My Name/Candy Candy	(Bell 678) 1967

From Plainfield, New Jersey they evolved out of The Ascots. Rhoda Mendelbaum is reasonable orchestrated pop with baroque flourishes. The flip is a poppy piss-take of fashion victims but has a glorious freaky'n'fuzzy break and outro that come as a pleasant surprise. The Crewe/Gaudio Everybody... borrows a couple of lines of melody and vocal style from Sonny and his I Got You Babe but is decent orchestrated pop nonetheless. Candy Candy, written by Milan (Leather Boy), is straight bubblegum pop.

You'll also find Rhoda Mendelbaum on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 8 (LP & CD).

Myke Scavone later got together with Bill Bartlett from The Lemon Pipers members as Ram Jam. They had a big hit in 1977 with the Kasenatz-Katz produced Black Betty which Scavone sang lead on. Richie Heyman later played with Golgotha and then recorded as Richard X, creating several albums of well-received power pop in the eighties.

The Doughboys have recently re-formed and are playing gigs in the New Jersey/New York area. (MW/GF)

45: Smokey Joe's/Comin' Back Home (Quad QU 104) 1970

Originally known as The Sun Trio, this Portland, Oregon outfit spent two years putting together an album's worth of material. Snider made the trip to Hollywood to do the record label rounds. Following a chance elevator encounter, he landed a deal with MGM's Quad label. Bruce Bye was added to the line-up and the band toured briefly before the label folded.

The title track is pretty powerful with strong, soul-based vocals, effective organ backing and occasionally some good guitar work too. There are four mellower, laid-back numbers (Jersey Thursday, Early In The Morning Rain, Coming Back Home and Tom's Song) and most of the remaining material (New Orleans Queen, Moratorium Waltz, Smokey Joe's and 21 Years) is very rocky. There are some good keyboards too, on a couple of tracks (particularly I Didn't Try) and the vocals are powerful and appealing throughout.

This album is recommended and you'll also find Jersey Thursday on Realistic Patterns (CD). Apparently the single is rather rare because - "the album had just come out and reviewers were making comparisons with the Doors. Quad had just put out the single and it was starting to garner airplay on the West Coast, when MGM decided to shut the label down. Remaining copies were destroyed; the band was left without support and called it quits within months." (CF/VJ/MW)

45: Prince Of Darkness/
Taming The Snake (No label S-80 778-37105) 1974

This Minneapolis, Minnesota band independently pressed this punkish single in the early seventies, which is now rare and sought-after by some collectors. The band was put together as a outlet for Dave Moltzen's songwriting.

Dave Moltzen and Dave Stinski had been friends since a young age and both became interested in playing music after seeing the Beatles on the 'Ed Sullivan' show as did scores of others. Their first band effort while still teenagers was called Eternal Death and although the band never went further than their basement the collaboration did produce their first song, a co-written instrumental called Breakthrough.

As the years went on Dave Moltzen started focusing more on songwriting and Dave Stinski became quite an acomplished lead guitar player. The two remained good friends but lost contact temporarily in in the early seventies. Then one day Moltzen called Stinski to see if he would be interested in playing lead guitar on a song or two he had written. Stinski agreed and the two quicky renewed their friendship.

After teaming up with the other two players, Vince Mobeck and Dave Reese, the question of what to call this new group was asked. Many names were tossed around until finally deciding on Douglas Idaho. The name was taken from the streets that they lived on. Stinski lived in an apartment on Douglas Avenue with his new wife and Moltzen was still living with his parents on Idaho Street. Both lived in the city of Crystal which is in Minnesota.

That year (1974) the foursome booked recording time in the best studio in Minneapolis (at the time) called 'Sound 80'. During the recording process the group wanted something special to make the song Prince Of Darkness sound darker and foreboding so they rented a Mellotron organ from the studio and that did just the trick. Another stumbling block they ran into was that Dave Moltzen found he just couldn't quite sing as high as he had hoped on a harmony line for Snake River that was higher in pitch than the main vocal. Out of desperation Dave Stinski gave it a try and hit it the note dead-on which was much to the surprise of everyone, including himself, since he had never attemped to sing before!

After the two tracks were recorded and mixed, they had 1,000 singles pressed and started distributing them themselves to local radio stations and record stores. The radio station that gave the single the most airplay was KQRS 92.5, still the biggest station in Minnesota. After a couple of weeks, the requests came flooding in and when the stations started playing the 'B'-side, Prince Of Darkness, things really got wild; local record stores couldn't keep them in stock, 'Sam Goody' alone bought 200 copies and sold them all within a few weeks. The boys had finally "made it", or so they thought.

Without playing gigs or re-stocking store orders, the single stopped getting played on the radio after a few months and the few remaining copies were never sold. The last surge of interest came when Snake River was played again, right after daredevil Evel Knievel attempted to jump the Grand Canyon.

Dave Molzten moved to L.A. in '75, becoming a staff songwriter with E.H. Morris & Co. for two years. He then moved to Nashville in '78, signing with MCA music publishing. In the eighties/nineties he signed with three other publishers with 15 or so songs published, two were recorded by female country artists, but none released commercially. Dave Stinski has since received his degree in music and become one of Minnesota's finest jazz guitar players. Dave Reese switched over to guitar/vocals and in the mid-eighties fronted the very popular local new-wave band called Sometimes Y, which Dave Stinski occasionally filled in on lead guitar for. Vince Mobeck went on to play bass in the jazz quartet, Sara Brozzie and later on opened his own chain of ice cream parlors. (VJ/JJa/DMnandDSi)

Unusually these club-rockers from Fresno, California boasted a double battery of drums, as pictured on the rear of their album. It features a dozen tracks, predominantly rock'n'roll, dance, frat, and soul favourites. The notes boast that the band's instrumental versatility meant that they could switch between blues, rock'n'roll, latin, and jazz.

These guys were experienced club performers, all in their 20s - not some spotty garage band then, but a couple of their tracks have turned up on compilations - Pink Elephants on Sounds Of The Sixties: SFO Part 1 (LP) and Mama Keep Yo! Big Mouth Shut on The Bad Vibrations (LP).

This Beatles-influenced combo from Santa Barbara started life as The Vandells. Their compilation appearances have given them a cult following making it impossible to acquire any of their singles at realistic prices. Their first single consists of two folk-rock ballads, whilst the second charted locally. Shortly afterwards Rick Morinini left the band, being replaced by the drummer from Ernie and The Emperors, in time for The Third Eye - a stand-out raga piece. Their fourth and final single also includes some great guitar work.

Compilation appearances have included: What Am I Going To Do on Nuggets Box (4-CD); She's Gone and What Am I Going To Do on Pebbles Vol. 2 (CD) and Pebbles, Vol. 2 (LP); She's Not Just Anybody on Pebbles, Vol. 7 (LP), Pebbles Vol. 8: Southern California 1(CD) and The Essential Pebbles Collection (2-CD); Your Love on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 6: The Biker (LP & CD); The Third Eye on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 20 (LP) and 30 Seconds Before The Calico Wall (CD); and People Ask Me Why and I Could Be Happy on The Cicadelic 60's, Vol. 2 (LP).

The great news is that you can have their complete recorded output on one disc. After many years seeking out and talking to many of the band members, Mike Markesich has been able to piece together their story on this absolutely essential release.

Few modern bands have been brave enough to attempt to cover Dovers' songs, given the very high esteem in which they're held. So, hats off to Buffalo, New York's Mystic Eyes for attempting She's Gone (1997 single on Get Hip GH-188). Buy it yourself so you can judge whether they've succeeded in doing it justice. The above album by this Durango, Colorado band is superb, full of driving rhythms and excellent psychedelic guitar. It's easy to see why copies of this collectors' item now change hands for a fair bit. My personal favourites were I Feel It, Portrait Of Youth and the spacey Miles Away, although it's difficult to single out tracks as such a high standard is maintained throughout. The Dragons were from Malibu, California. Their father, Carmen Dragon, enjoyed a long and illustrious career as a big band leader, with dozens of albums and movie soundtrack scores to his credit. His children were all musically inclined from an early age. Daryl also studied music in college, it was his major.

Their first release was the Capitol single listed above. Both sides are instrumentals with a surf music feel, but they also sound a bit jazzy and could easily have found their way onto a movie soundtrack. The Capitol deal likely came about as a result of their father's long association with the label, but it probably didn't hurt that Doug Dragon was a friend of Bruce Johnston of The Beach Boys.

THE DRAGONS - Self Titled (ESP) LP.

In 1967, The Dragons became backing musicians for the touring Beach Boys, a gig they held for several years. It was during this period that they also started recording their own music independently at local studios after-hours, and in Dennis' home studio. The album listed above has one side of studio recordings written by Daryl Dragon in 1968-1969, and the other side is a long electronic piece by Dennis Dragon recorded in his home studio circa 1969. The album is horrendously rare, in fact only two copies have turned up in 25 years that I know of! When asked about the album recently, Dennis stated that it was a miniscule demo pressing and he only had two copies in his own archive.

The recently-issued BFI: Blue Forces Intelligence collects tracks the band recorded at SunWest studio in Hollywood in 1970. This is jazzy progressive rock with quirky twists, much like the music they would soon contribute to the Farm Innermost Limits Of Pure Fun and A Sea For Yourself soundtrack albums, although much of the BFI material has vocals.

Dennis Dragon went on to The Surf Punks, while his brother Daryl found fame as the Captain in Captain & Tennille. (CF)

From Cleveland, Ohio originally known as Sunrise, they released a single in 1968 - Fire Climbs/Flowers Grow Free (EJ 1001/2). Their ultra-rarities as Dragonwyck are well worth seeking out for connoisseurs of psychedelia. The first album, which was only issued as a demo disc, is an effective blend of keyboards and guitar. Fire Climbs is the outstanding track but there are lots of other highs on this album which is well worth searching for, although even the Rockadelic reissue has become difficult to obtain. The recent World In Sound vinyl reissue comes with a 7" EP with five bonus tracks (three of which were previously unreleased). The set comes with previously unseen gatefold artwork and a poster insert.

Their next effort didn't get beyond the acetate stage. Even more keyboard-orientated than the first one with lots of synthesiser it perhaps inevitably leans more towards the progressive genre. A different version of Fire Climbs and the final track, Freedom Son are among the highlights and there's still some fine psychedelic guitar work in places. Fortunately, you can now check it out on the European reissues.

Their third venture was made under the name Fun. The opening cut, Music is superb, whilst on the whole this acetate is more experimental than their earlier recordings. I Shall Stay, for example, is quite chaotic. They went on to evolve into Moonlight Drive releasing some singles and a mini-album with quite a lot of Doors' covers. (VJ/CF/MW)

ALBUM: 1(A) AURALGRAPHIC ENTERTAINMENT (w/insert)
(Stone Theatre DM 68481) 1974 R2

NB: Original copies came with a booklet. (1) has been pirated twice on vinyl (Stone Theatre) 199? and at least once on CD. (1) reissued officially on CD (Gear Fab GF-146) 2000 and also on vinyl (Gear Fab GF-206) 2000.

A very cool local Delaware private pressing of psychedelic-folk with sound collages weaving in and out. The cover states that it's "an incredible mental experience" and it's out there! Bill Holt's style was inspired by The Beatles and composer John Cage. The mood of the album reflects the dreams of a young man caught in the middle of the Cold War. From the trauma of President John Kennedy's assassination, through the psycho politics of the sixties and early seventies, acoustic guitar, Moog synthesizer, and sound effects from the period are used to paint a hauntingly surreal and beautiful musical tapestry of the times. Side one, Program Ten, and side two, Program Eleven deliver over 50 minutes of very personal music. Rolling Stone writer David Fricke (at the time a fledgling critic writing for The Drummer in Philadelphia), called Dreamies "endless hours of mental entertainment".

Composer Bill Holt created Dreamies using a four-track recorder, an acoustic guitar and one of the original Moog synths. The album cover was modelled after a box of "Total" breakfast cereal. The recording took two years to complete and was done in Holt's home studio in Wilmington, Delaware. It was mastered at the renowned Sigma Sound in Philadelphia. It was originally sold via direct mail through 'Rolling Stone' magazine. Holt is currently working on Dreamies Program 14. (CF/VJ/BHo)

Is this one of those cross-genre explorations or just a psychedelic cash-in? Despite some occasional bursts of psychedelic guitar, this appears to be a studio-only project. Trendy, musically competent, but lacking feel or spirit this is ultimately unconvincing. (MW)

DREAMIES - Auralgraphic Entertainment LP.

A rare and excellent blues/rural-rock item from Michigan, and probably the best album ever produced at Bryce "Uncle Dirty" Roberson's Sound Machine studio in Kalamazoo. Some terrific players contribute to this little-known record. Don't let the size of the personnel listing scare you; on a track-by-track basis, only three to five musicians appear and the results are quite stunning. Old Man Gibbs and I Feel are both dark, bluesy, and (at a stretch) even psychedelic.

This is one of only a handful of private press albums that I know of with a proudly American rural blues sound - being without any of the pervasive heavy riffing blues produced in England beginning in the late sixties. It could be compared to Bill Homans' Merry Airbrakes or Denny King's album on Specialty in this respect.

Drendall, Thrower, Spillane, Skory and Dunham also appear on an album shown as by Bluejohn (Boots And Bottles, Black River Records 544) from about the same vintage (1973?); this release is equally rare but a great deal less inspired. A further album with most of the same crew exists, but I don't have details. (CF)

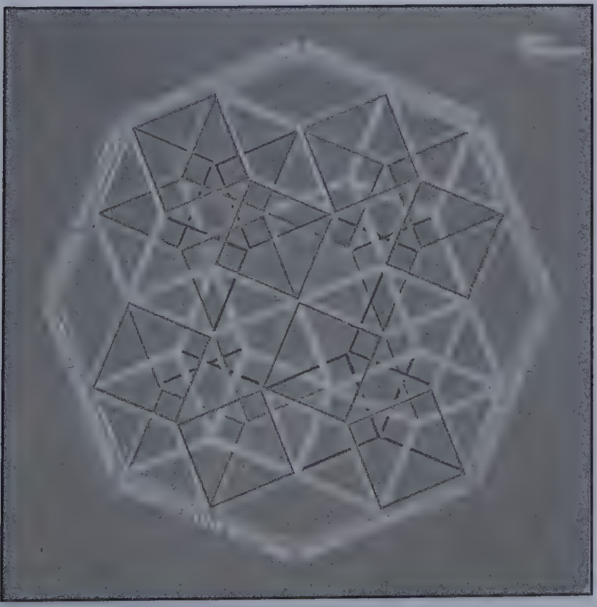
45: Horror Asparagus Stories/
The Reality Of (Air) Fried Borsk (KR 102 (0116)) 1966

NB: Single-sided white label promo copies numbered 116 also exist. There's also a CD compilation Horror Asparagus Stories (Sundazed SC 11111) 2002.

This is generally heralded as one of the acid-punk classics of the sixties, with off the wall lyrics, psychotic vocals and one of the simplest guitar solos imaginable. The flip is even better with an out of key 'I'm A Man' rhythm to lyrics like 'You stand on the table, Rugs creep up the legs, Tiny green lobsters, Throw spiders eggs'. Copies of the single were apparently plentiful in San Francisco, even enthralling Big Brother and The Holding Company, to the extent that they wrote a song The Driving Stupid, in tribute, but little was known about the group.

A second single was tantalisingly advertised in the July, 1966 issue of "The Lance". This featured a full page ad promoting The Driving Stupid's next single: My Mother Was A Big Fat Pig b/w Green Things Have Entered My Skin, Gladys. Both tracks were recorded in Jerry Wilson's Nu-Mex Sound Studios in June 1966, but the single doesn't appear to have been released. In fact Dick Stewart, the publisher of the original 'Lance' Newsletters in Albuquerque in the mid-sixties remembers:

"Jerry Wilson of Nu-Mex Sound ordered and paid for a full page ad in the July 1966 issue. I don't recall ever hearing the cuts but, according to Jerry at that time, the songs were recorded and I remember him being hot on them. I'm not convinced that the single was released on Wilson's QQ record label. Nevertheless, I saved a handwritten letter that was given to me from one of my staff members that lends credence to the existence of the record and the possible label that issued it. It was addressed to Marshal Chess of Chess Records, Chicago, Illinois. The staff writer is unknown (although it could be Jerry himself) and there is no date on the letter; however, I did receive it sometime in late 1966." (Chess handled distribution for KR at the time.)



DREAMS AND ILLUSIONS - Self Titled LP.

Dick was incidentally the founding member of King Richard and The Knights and also the founder of Lance Records who released singles by The Kreeg and Fe-Fi-Four Plus Two: "I do remember the ad causing quite a stir (good and bad) as the song titles were so radically new at the time. In fact, it was the Lance Newsletter's first experience with psychedelic musical expressions although the term psychedelia had not yet found a home during the time the ad was run."

In fact, The Driving Stupid didn't come from Chicago or New Mexico, but were originally from New Jersey... They recorded the two demo tracks in Jerry Wilson's New Mexico studio on route to find fame and fortune in Hollywood. The band tragically existed for only one summer and never got to perform anywhere, as band leader Roger Kelley recalls:- "We could barely play our instruments, and I taught one of the members how to play guitar on the drive to the East Coast. The best guitarist in the band was our drummer, but he had to be the drummer, because it was his drum kit. In Hollywood we hung out with Jim Morrison, Neil Young, Steve Stills and got to meet The Mothers Of Invention. We were also (probably) the first 'white' act to sign to Chess."

"Hollywood went nuts over us, and we had offers from many labels and clubs in L.A., but we were all enrolled in different colleges in the East including U.N.C., Harvard and Penn State. If we'd dropped out of school, we'd all have been drafted and sent to Vietnam, so at the end of the summer we split up."

Most tantalising of all, is the news that The Driving Stupid recorded an album's worth of material, the masters of which still exist! Kelley: - "We did about eight songs in Albuquerque, and then got a record deal with Koppelman and Rubin in Hollywood. We re-recorded everything, and added four tunes for a total of 12. The Albuquerque tapes rock harder, as it was a two-track studio, and we pretty much had to blow 'live.' Also, Koppelman and Rubin made us change lyrics on two of the songs, and they lost a bit of juice in the transformation. A lot of juice when it came to one song that made fun of postmen. Really. They were afraid we'd offend the U.S. Post Office. Horror Asparagus Stories was originally called My Mother Was A Big Fat Pig, which was also the first verse. We had to change the verse to 'My mother was a little wren'. Thankfully, nothing else was 'censored."

Compilation coverage has so far included: - Horror Asparagus Stories and Reality Of Air Fried Borsk on Pebbles, Vol. 3 (CD), Pebbles Box (5-LP), Trash Box (5-CD), Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP), Acid Dreams

This later effort is the work of a Salem, Ohio folk-rock band. There's some melodic guitar work on the title track which is the high point of an album of varied music styles. If you like good guitar work, this album, which is already quite rare (800 copies are thought to have been pressed), is worth seeking out. It also contains very well-crafted songs. (VJ)

Martin Torbert popped up again as writer of the Kings Ransom's Shadows Of Dawn (it is not known if he was a member) prior to releasing a solo single on the same label - Magic Girl/All Of Tomorrow (Integra 106) 1967. (MW)

NB: The first four songs of the (double) EP above were recorded in New York in 1965, the other two were recorded in Los Angeles in 1966. All six tracks are previously unreleased.

45: A Garden Where Nothing Grows/
Painted Woman (Uni 55021) 1967

This outfit came from Columbia and Syracuse Universities in New York, but relocated to Los Angeles in 1966. The band reputedly included Elliot Randall on lead vocals at one time. Randall later played with Sea Train prior to forming Randall's Island in 1970. However, the line-up for their sole album, which was produced by Jerry Goldstein, was that shown above. It's a fairly routine rock album, which includes cover versions of Jay Hawkins I Put A Spell On You and Dylan's It's All Over Now Baby Blue. Not really worth searching for, but it has recently had a limited repress. Their single was later included on the album.

The recent double 7" EP on Sundazed contains some brilliant Pretty Things-styled raucous R&B/garage - particularly the rollercoaster rendition of Who Do You Love and Them inspired Baby Please Don't Go. The EP, which is recommended, comes with detailed sleeve notes from Mike Stax and Jud Cost, which reveal how The Druids' played in front of their idols The Rolling Stones, whilst they were house band at the Ondine - a trendy Manhattan club. They also jammed with Eric Burdon and Jimi Hendrix.

DRYEWATER - Southpaw LP.

The Druids Of Stonehenge also opened shows for Moby Grape, The Blues Project and Big Brother & The Holding Company in their time.

Compilation appearances have included: I Put A Spell On You on Songs Of Faith And Inspiration (CD); and Six Feet Down and Pale Dream on Baubles - Down To Middle Earth (LP). Their previously unreleased version of Who Do You Love and Bald Headed Woman have been compiled on Garage Beat '66 6 (CD). (VJ/MW)

This New York quintet was also known as Supa Heat and between 1967 and 1970 was the backing group of several artists produced by Wes Farrell, including The Cowsills, the Everly Brothers and Cashman, Pistilli & West. Farrell finally helped them to get a recording contract and their sole album contains some good psych-pop cuts: - Together As Friends, Sesame Summer (in a CSN&Y vein) and Fish Bite Better In The Summertime, as well as poor covers of Buffalo Springfield's Mr. Soul, Lovin Spoonful's Blues In The Bottle and the Stones' Last Time. This patchy album came with a small poster. ALBUM: 1(A) SOUTHPAW (J.T.B. NR 5122) 1974 R3

NB: (1) had an initial pressing of 1,000, but some of these exist without a cover as fewer covers than records were manufactured. Those without original covers are (R1). (1) reissued on vinyl (Void VOID 04) 2008 limited to 350 copies. (1) reissued on CD (Radioactive RRCD161) 2005.

Southpaw is an interesting rural hard-rock album from a North Carolina band. Occasionally the lead vocals get a bit strained and screechy, but when the band shines it has great moments. Don't Let Her Sleep Too Long has a confident, sinister quality to it that satisfies. (CF)

The Dry Gins (LA)

45: She's A Drag/You're Through (Montel-Michelle 959) 1966

The Dry Gins were from Lafayette, Louisiana and were also known as The Rogues. While playing a gig in Baton Rouge, they were spotted by Cyril Vetter from The Greek Fountains who got them a recording contract with Montel-Michelle. It was Vetter who suggested they change their name to The Dry Gins for this single. The band called it quits in late 1966.

Compilation appearances have included You're Through on The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 1 (2-CD); and She's A Drag on Back From The Grave, Vol. 8 (CD) and Back From The Grave, Vol. 8 (2-LP). (MW)

ALBUM: 1 (A) CRYSTAL DREAM (American Sound AS-1010) 2004

NB: Numbered limited edition of 500: 400 on white vinyl, 100 on black vinyl, all with insert photo of band.

Dry Ice was a sextet from Revere, Massachusetts that evolved out of Johnny & The Patriots. Neither outfit managed to achieve any releases during their tenure but the American Sound album gathers together unreleased recordings from 1967 through 1969, laid down at Fleetwood "and some other forgotten studio in Malden". Six of these had previously appeared on two Arf! Arf! CD's; five (two versions of Mary Is Alone and Mr. Sawyer, Lucy Mae and Sunny Day) on 1996's New England Teen Scene Unreleased, and one on 2001's Arf! Arf! (El Cheapo) 2-CD Sampler.

They reveal a band who'd already made the transition from garage to mature pop, indebted most obviously to The Beatles, with covers of I Saw Her Standing There and Oh Darling, plus the Penny Lane-inspired Mr. Sawyer. Overall it's interesting, yet uncommercial, late sixites, soft-rock (and not really 'psych' as some would lazily label it).

Frank Dimino would find success eventually, in the mid-seventies with androgynous glam/prog-rockers Angel. (MW)

Duck (NY)

ALBUM: 1 DUCK #1 (No label) 1968 SC

Just 500 copies of this New York project were pressed. One of the three cuts is a bluesy jam; the two remaining ones comprise recitations of beatnik poetry over a jazzy background. (VJ)

45: Come Back, Come Back/Hello There Girl (Dial 4097) 1970

This unknown artist's single was produced by Buddy Killen and probably recorded in Nashville, Tennessee. Come Back, Come Back, which is full of studio gimmickry with lots of echoplex and other sound effects, can also be heard on Beyond The Calico Wall (LP & CD) and is well worth checking out. The flip is reputedly awful - an insipid song sung through a megaphone. (VJ)

This was Goshen, Indiana's top band in the mid-sixties. Formed in 1963 by the Jones brothers, they underwent several personnel changes but their most stable line-ups are shown above. They recorded a few singles for Fujimo and one for the Chicago-based Signet label, Gary Jones left the band in 1966 and was replaced by Jay Purvis who wrote Take Your Love, which has recently got another airing on the Hoosier Hotshots (LP) compilation. It's very much in the folk-garage mould and worth a listen. You'll also find The First Time I Saw Her on Teen Blast Volume #2 (CD). They later signed to Columbia who clearly wanted to turn them into a Midwest version of Paul Revere and The Raiders and fit them with navy uniforms and a new moniker Gene Paul Jones and The American Navy. When the band made it clear they didn't want to know, Columbia simply didn't record them and they soon were no more.

Sadly, Gary Jones died in April 1995 and Keith Kilmer on 29th November 2001. (VJ/MW/PY)

Their two albums range from southern rock to white soul with horns and bar rock, and are of mediocre interest here. As with many large groups, they were probably better live.

Guitarist Monte Dunn was a session musician who can be found on many albums of sixties folk-rock, such as Peter Walker, David Blue, Tim Hardin, Judy Collins, Fred Neil, Phil Ochs, Cher and Buffy Sainte-Marie. He also recorded this rare folk album with Karen Cruz and it was housed in a lovely psychy cover. Cruz wrote most of the songs (with the notable exception of Tim Hardin's Yellow Cab and their cover of that song is very strong). Dunn contributes guitar, and they both sing. The album exudes a peace and love vibe within a medieval folky framework with the occasional touch of country. Note that track 3 is incorrectly labelled Loving You (track 4 is correctly labelled Loving You as well) and it should be You Don't Smile Much. (SR/VJ)

Pebbles, Vol. 16 (LP) includes a live version of Louie, Louie by this band at a 'Battle Of The Bands' competition in Hawaii and originally issued on Battle Of The Bands (LP) (Star SRM 101) 1964. It is pretty undistinguished. Most of the other participants were surf instrumentalists. (VJ)

A New York City hard-rock trio, Dust played a sound quite similar to UK prog/hard-rock outfit Uriah Heep that was highly regarded by some. Their eponymous debut is a solid effort with good vocals and some riffy guitar courtesy of Richie Wise. There's also some good bottleneck guitar by Kenny Aaronson and versatile drumming by Marc Bell. The lyrics aren't always of the same standard.

· DUST - Self Titled LP.

THE DUKES.

Hard Attack is a considerable improvement on their debut effort. It's presented in a gatefold sleeve and artwork from Frank Frazetta and musically is more progressive with acoustic passages and orchestration on many tracks.

Marc Bell later played with Richard Hell's Voidoids and the Ramones. Kenny Aaronson went on to play with Stories, joined the Rick Derringer Band and played with several hard-rock groups including HSAS (Hagar, Schon, Aaronson, Shrieve). He also played on Blue Oyster Cult's Club Ninja album.

Richie Wise and Kenny Kerner (their producer and collaborator) went on to produce the first two Kiss albums. Richie also has a producer credit and photo on Savoy Brown's Greatest Hits/Live.

It's rumoured that Dust also laid down some tracks for a third album that was never finished. (SR/KS/CG/VJ)

45:	Goin' Back Down To The Country/Patchin' Up	(Roulette ?) 1970

NB: also issued in France with a PS (45 VR 19 5083) 1971.

Chuck Laskowski is in fact Faine Jade's real name and he also wrote most of the Dust Bowl Clementine material. Bruce Bradt (Illusion) and Nick Manzi (Bohemian Vendetta) had already worked with him on his Introspection album.

Produced by Michael Earle and recorded in Hempstead, New York, the album is clearly country-oriented, most of the songs dealing with the same subject: Going Back Down To The Country (the only one penned by Manzi), Farm Song, Get Back Home, Country Man. Some good guitar solos by Manzi help to improve the final result, but this album is more a curiosity than a masterpiece. Assembled by MY label-owner Earl Denton in Little Rock, Arkansas to provide backing for his vocals, the band continued without him after the debut and produced one excellent single. The Expectation, a "mid-tempo fuzz-grinder", has subsequently resurfaced on Erik Lindgren's A Lethal Dose Of Hard Psych (CD) compilation, which notes that the band decked themselves out like the depiction of Dutch dudes on cigar boxes.

One member was later in The Hombres.

The Expectation has also been compiled on Pebbles, Vol. 4 (ESD) (CD) and Psychedelic States: Arkansas Vol. 1 (CD). (MM/MW)

The two Connecticut teenagers that recorded this album used their middle names to give the band its moniker. The front cover has a picture of the duo in a small recording studio. On offer is a set of pleasant self-penned folky numbers, although there are some occasional electric and percussion incursions. One cut The Crusades features some haunting flute and Anti-Gregorian Chant is a reverse-tape experiment. (VJ)

The (Dynamic) Dischords operated out of Oakes, a small town in the southeast of North Dakota. After recording their first single in Moorhead, North Dakota, they became the only band from that state to sign for the IGL label, based in Milford, Iowa. The result was a good punk single with Passageway (To Your Heart) especially noteworthy. Later, in 1971, they recorded a reasonable hard-rock single. By then they were known simply as The Dischords.

Passageway (To Your Heart) can also be heard on The Midwest Vs. Canada (LP), The Best Of IGL Garage Rock (LP), Gathering Of The Tribe (CD) and The IGL Rock Story: Part Two (1967 - 68) (CD). (VJ)

A youthful garage quintet The Dynasty came from Superior, Wisconsin. Their first single is much sought-after. I've Gotta Shout has also resurfaced on the compilation The Midwest Vs. Canada (LP) and on Psychedelic States: Wisconsin (CD) and is a bone-crunching punker with an I'm A Man type guitar riff. The flip is an Animals cover.

Their later release covers the Buffalo Springfield classic, but falls short in the vocals department. However their version of the Doors' Soul Kitchen is altogether better, quite excellent actually, with strong and raucous vocals.

In Gary Myer's book on the Badger state, 'Do You Hear That Beat', Jack Casper recalls some highlights for the band - opening for Tommy James and The Shondells and a show with The Electric Prunes.

A later line-up included Mike Polaski from local rivals The Emotionals.

Jack Casper went on to several other outfits, including a 14-year stint with Vegas. (VJ/MW/GM)

A Lansing, Michigan band, although their rare album is on a Tennessee label. The single cuts are on the album. The group played hard-rock with male and female vocals (overtly religious lyrics) punctuated by loud fuzz guitar. For a while in the early seventies they were one of the top 'Jesus Rock' bands in the Midwest.

After the band split Dave Caudill joined the Air Force, studied in Amsterdam, and then went to Law School. After joining a law firm in San Diego, he became a professor of law at an Eastern University. John Sprunger became involved in providing helicopter services to missionaries in Africa and eventually relocated to West Cameroon.

When You Were Full Of Wonder (Elektra 45636) 1968 -
Home To You/Alfie Finney (Elektra 45650) 1969 97

Another of the Boston wave of rock groups, Earth Opera certainly possessed talent. However, they arrived on the scene a little too late to make a sustained impact.

The origins of the group lay in the rich Boston folk scene in the early sixties with the first experiences of Rowan and Grisman. A gifted songwriter, singer, mandolin and guitar player, Peter Rowan began playing in the early sixties doing bluegrass and string band music with Bill Monroe and the Bluegrass Boys and the Mother Bay State Entertainers. A master of mandolin, David Grisman had similar roots and played with Siegel, Grisman, Rose and Lewinger. Some recordings of these early Rowan and Grisman bands can be found on The String Band Project (Elektra EKS-7292) 1965.

EARTH OPERA - Self Titled LP.

Earth Opera was formed at the end of 1967 by Rowan and Grisman and their first album was housed in a strange gatefold sleeve with pictures probably taken inside an Indian temple. All the songs were credited to Rowan (Time And Again being co-written with Grisman) and the use of vibes, harpsichord or mandocello help to create a gloomy atmosphere on songs like Death By Fire or As It Is Before. The following year The Great American Eagle Tragedy pursued a similar direction. Bill Halverson had left but the four remaining members were helped by various guests, including Velvet Underground's John Cale on viola, Jim Kweskin Jug Band's Bill Keith and Jefferson Airplane's friend Jack Bonus. Once again the sleeve was notable, this time with a collage combining a skull with the American Eagle symbol.

Both albums were produced by Peter Siegel, formerly with The Even Dozen Jug Band and Siegel, Grisman, Rose and Lewinger.

Commercially unsuccessful, Earth Opera broke up in 1969. Grisman and Rowan went to California and joined two bluegrass outfits: Muleskinner with Clarence White of the Byrds and Old And In The Way with Jerry Garcia (Grisman also played on The Grateful Dead's American Beauty).

Peter Rowan would later join Seatrain and form the Rowan Brothers with his brothers Chris and Lorin. He also released several solo albums mixing rock, bluegrass and country. In the mid-seventies, David Grisman formed the David Grisman Quintet and spearheaded the Dawg Music movement, mixing bluegrass and jazz. Both are still recording.

John Nagy became a studio musician and also played with Michael Hurley.

You can also find Home To You and The Red Sox Are Winning (from their first album) on the compilation Elektrock The Sixties (4-LP); Close Your Eyes And Shut The Door on the Elektra compilation Elektrifying (LP); and The American Eagle Tragedy on Hallucinations, Psychedelic Underground (LP) and Home Of The Brave on Kings Of Pop Music Vol. 2 (LP). THE EAST SIDE KIDS THE TIGER AND THE LAMB

· THE EAST SIDE KIDS - The Tiger And The Lamb LP.

As The Sound Of The Seventh Son (line-up 'A'), this Los Angeles band started out playing clubs on the Strip, including Stratford and Brave New World. They released a single on Tower in the fall of 1965, shortly before changing their name to The East Side Kids. Both sides have reappeared: I Told A Lie is on Love Is A Sad Song Vol.1 (LP) and Wyld Sydes Volume 4 (CD); and I'll Be On My Way on The Electric Coffee House (CD).

Belsky, Doud, and Greenspoon had previously been with The New Dimensions, which had at various times included Art Guy (pre-Smokestack Lightning) and Michael Lloyd (pre-West Coast Pop Art Experimental Band (WCPAEB)). Greenspoon and Belsky would team up with Lloyd again in WCPAEB or its offshoots further down the line; both would also be involved with various Kim Fowley ventures. Greenspoon was in a host of other bands, including Grains Of Sand and Smoke.

Prior to the album, Belsky was replaced by Dave Potter, who was also with Endle St. Cloud and later Potter St. Cloud. Considering their promising singles, the album is frankly disappointing - predominantly mainstream pop apart from a psychedelic interpretation of Dancing In The Street. Some tracks were written by H. Wesley Watt of Euphoria and two were written by Buzz Clifford. Their album was produced by Dan Moore and Buzz Clifford and in 1969/70, the Doud brothers and Dave Potter played on their solo albums.

Written by Greenspoon for Kim Fowley Music and produced by Larry Tamblyn of The Standells, Listen To The Wise Man is compiled on East Side Revue (LP) and The West Coast East Side Sound, Vol. 4 (CD), whilst Close Your Mind also appears on the Psychedelic Experience, Vol. 2 (CD) and Take A Look In The Mirror can also be heard on Fading Yellow Vol. 3 (CD).

An undocumented ESK single turned up recently - Pitter Patter/Gone By Day (Kirk KR-5002) 1968. Credited to Gladstone with "Tracks By EAST SIDE KIDS", both sides were produced by "Gregory, Gladstone & D.F.Potter". Pitter Patter is OK bubblegum pop but, as is so often the case, the nugget is on the non-commercial side. Gone By Day is off-kilter, stoned psych (sorta Autosalvage meets Clear Light); mind-scrambled lyrics, busy percussive runs, swelling gong caresses and crashes, and haunting french horn, topped off with a way-too-short denouement of cacophonous and backwards guitars. Both sides were written by Gladstone and it dates from October 1968; wonder what the story is behind this.

Another single credited to The Eastside Kids - Subway Train/Sunday Stranger (Philips 40295) 1965 - is NOT by this band. Nonetheless it is noteworthy - both sides are raw garage instrumentals, credited to Gentile-Moehrle-Carl and W.E. Strange and produced by BillyJo Productions. (MW/VJ/SR/KSI)

CD:	1(A)	RIDE DOWN TO HOUSTON	(Collectables COL-0582) 1994

From San Antonio, Texas the line-up included two distant cousins of the late Steve Perron (of Mind's Eye and Children) and Chris Holzhaus (of The Argyles, Mind's Eye and Children). Recorded in Houston at Andrus Recording Studios 1969-1970, Roy Ames was unable to get any interest outside the locals - slow and moody blues-rock wasn't the flavour of the industry then, it seems. So it languished until now - if Cream, Johnny Winter or early Fleetwood Mac appeal to you, this is worth a listen.

Chris Holzhaus, incidentally, later played guitar with Roky Erickson on his Live At The Ritz album. He still plays regularly around the San Antonio bar scene. Marius Perron (Bubba) is now a recording engineer and also teaches recording classes around San Antonio. An internet search inquiry under "marius perron" will bring up a string of hits regarding credits on the albums he has been involved with. He has been very involved with Michael Morales who made a local noise a few years ago. His brother Laurent Perron is not involved in music anymore and works a regular job. Ricky Hernandez still performs on the side as a freelance player with several local acts in the bar scene.

A previously unreleased recording by this band from 1969, I Like It That Way has now been compiled on Acid Visions Vol. 9: Child Of Evil (CD). (MW/MLI)

Of the three tracks on their rare one-sided album, two are long, sleepy blues numbers and one is an amazing Eastern/heavy psych cut with distorted wah-wah guitar. Jeff Simmons and other members of this band were previously managed by Matthew Katz as Indian Puddin' and Pipe, but although they were the first band to use the name, they were not the people responsible for Indian Puddin' & Pipe's known recordings... that outfit was West Coast Natural Gas, who inherited the name when the original band split with Katz and became Easy Chair. ALBUM: 1 FAREWELL AMERICAN TOUR (Paramount PAS-5021) 1971

This is a surprising record by a New York artist who relocated to San Francisco. The ugly front sleeve makes you want to put the album back where you found it, and the first four tracks, which are boring, just confirm this impression. But with Flower In The Air, a raga with oriental percussion, you begin to get hooked and side two is really good, culminating with the seven-minutes of Maybe My Love For You. The plus points are the swirling organ, nice guitars, and Sally Eaton's voice.

The record was produced by George Brackman, Nat Shapiro and Harold Wheeler and all the songs were written by Sally Eaton and Brackman.

45: My Baby's Gone/Sumertime (Arco 107) 1966

This was an early incarnation of Tangerine Zoo, from New Bedford, Massachusetts. Taveira had formed The Rogues (the name taken from the street gang in "West Side Story") in 1963, but joined forces with Don Smith in 1965 to form The Batmen. Once The Batmen were able to acquire the services of talented guitarist Bob Benevides, who was returning from the service, the band changed names to the Ebb Tides in order to accommodate the new sound.

THE EBB TIDES (Ohio 1965).

THE EBB TIDES (Ohio 1966).

Taveira, Benevides and Smith decided to drop the Robidoux brothers from the band when they learned that Wayne Gagnon - who had previously played with Benevides in the Rockin' Teens - had become available (he, too, was in the service). They would then add organist Ron Medieros from the Knight Riders, and briefly change their name to the Flower Pot. The band would later sign with Mainstream Records, where they finally settled on the name Tangerine Zoo.

The Ebb Tides lone single was recorded at ARCO Records in New Bedford, Massachusetts.

Tony Taveira later formed a seventies disco outfit with his brothers called Tavares.

You can also find My Baby's Gone on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 4: The Go-Go (LP & CD) and Quagmire Volume 3 (CD). (VJ/MM/MDo/TTa/BBs)

45s: Little Women/What'd I Say (Clark 238) 1965
Seance/Spirits Ride The Wind (Jar 820J-106) 1967

The Ebb Tides were formed in Columbus, Ohio in early 1963 by three 14-year-old high school friends, along with a local 10-year-old drummer. Promotion by a local DJ enabled the band to have their name aired frequently on local rock station WCOL in exchange for playing station-sponsored sock-hops.

In 1964, while playing at a secluded off-midway show at the Ohio State Fair, the band was heard by a talent scout from WTVN, a local NBC affiliate, and was asked to play that night at the station's pavilion. Crowd reaction was so favourable the band was contracted to perform nightly for the remainder of the fair. This engagement lead to multiple appearances on the local TV show 'Dance Party'. One of these appearances caught the interest of a regional music promoter.

Hired by Moffett Productions in 1965, the band signed to do an 11 state, three Canadian provinces, tour with the variety show 'Shindig All-Star Review'. The cast consisted of from 11 to 17 personnel including vocalists, go-go girls and a popular dance team. The band backed headliners such as Bobby Sherman, Del Shannon, Joann Castle and the Mills brothers. They also opened for The New Colony Six, Terry Knight and The Pack and The Byrds.

The Ebb Tides' first single was Little Women, penned by Kyre and Whited, which had a driving Money type of beat. The 'B' side was a cover of Ray Charles' What I'd Say. This single was recorded in Nashville in 1965.

In 1966 Don Kyre introduced the band to Ben Vandervort. An insurance salesman from D.C. in Ohio visiting relatives, Ben couldn't play a musical instrument but had a good "rock-a-billy" voice and a talent for writing lyrics. After a few guitar lessons, Ben was a band member, playing, singing and writing songs under the stage name of "Benny Van".

The second single is a spirited affair, literally. Seance is a jaunty keyboard dominated punk-pop-novelty, with ghostly 'wooooos' and tongue planted firmly in cheek. Spirits Ride The Wind features spoken poetic lyrics over a mellow psychy backdrop of gently cascading guitar and soft hand-drums. Benny Van would take this group on a spiritual odyssey to higher musical planes in the course of which he and they metamorphosed into J.D. Blackfoot.

You can also hear Seance on Boulders, Vol. 6 (LP), Ya Gotta Have Moxie, Vol. 2 (2-CD); and rather strangely, for an Ohio outfit, on Michigan Mayhem Vol. 1 (CD). (GGI/MW/MWd)

45: I Can Make It Without You/Sunny Day Rain (Norman 581) 1967

Came from Granite City, Illinois and were originally known as The Invaders. When Barry Ebling joined his father took over as manager. I Can Make It Without You has some fine guitar work from Vandever.

Compilation appearances have included: Sunny Day Rain on Killer Cuts! (LP); and I Can Make It Without You on Monsters Of The Midwest, Vol. III (LP) and Destination Frantic Volume 3 (CD). (VJ)

The Eccentrics (TX)

45: Baby I Need You/She's Ugly (Shane 60) 1966

Another obscure garage band from Texas, The Eccentrics' Baby I Need You features a compulsive rhythm guitar and is quite a superb slice of garage. The flip is a slower ballad in The Animals vein, with typical "girl put-down" lyrics.

Both sides have also resurfaced on the excellent Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 3: The Auditorium (LP & CD). (VJ)

Eccentrics (WA)

45: Podunk Holler/Weathermaster (Fresh FR 32) 1965

Podunk Holler is a five-star fuzz'n'farfisa punker from a Sequim, Washington State band with all the ingredients of the so-called "class of '66" - driving rhythm, raucous vocals, screams, stunning break and attitude aplenty. It's amazing that this has evaded the compilers. The single was produced by Jeff Hagen and Kearney Barton with a label address in Sequim, Washington state. The flip is an instrumental.

Both sides of this single have been compiled on Northwest Killers Vol. 2: Shout! (CD). (MW/AB)

α Don't Know Why/Young People (Rebound 001) 1967
α Cheatin' Girl/Shadows (Argee 103) 1968

NB: α shown as by The Echo.

From Miami, Florida after their first single above as The Echoes, they were credited as The Echo.

Every Second Of The Day is on Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 7 (LP). Shadows, a piece of fragmented psych, is on Psychedelic States: Florida Vol. 1 (CD), which reveals that a different version made it onto a Universal Recording demo disc with a different flip (credited to The Echoes).

When Wayne left the band in late 1968 to join the Air Force the band continued as a four-piece. In 1969 they played at the Dinner Key Auditorium in Miami at the infamous Doors exposure concert and when it all ended up in court they had to give evidence 'cos they were witnesses. In late 1969 Kenny was drafted, but the band continued for a few more gigs supporting Led Zeppelin, The Allman Brothers Band, The Chambers Brothers and Sweetwater before splitting.

The Gear Fab CD includes their singles (and alternate versions of them) as well as several previously unreleased songs, some of which are cover versions of popular songs of the day (Sunshine Of Your Love, Dock Of The Bay, Monterey, Love Me Two Times and Hello Goodbye). Most of the songs sound pretty amateurish but a few cuts (like Shadows) are quite interesting.

Ahern and Goodson were both ex-members of The Invaders. (MW/JLh/RM/VJ)

45s: No Place Or Time/Baby Doesn't Know (Thames E-105) 1966

From Miami, Florida this quintet was also known as The Echoes and latterly The Echo. No Place Or Time was co-written by Travis "Fairchild" Ximenes of The Clefs Of Lavender Hill. It's a great effort - an upbeat choppy harmony popper that metamorphoses mid-song into a mini acid guitar work-out. Initially compiled (erroneously) on Eva's Louisiana Punk From The Sixties (LP) (reissued on CD as Sixties Archive, Vol. 3), it has been restored to full glory on Psychedelic States: Florida Vol. 1 (CD). The flip has some outstanding guitar-work too - check it out on Sixties Choice, Vol. 2 (LP) or 60's Choice, Vol's 1 and 2 (CD). (VJ/MW/JLh/RM)

An unheard and uncompiled single to-date, but the titles (presumably covers of Chuck Berry and the Zombies) sound encouraging. What's more interesting about this Canton, Ohio outfit is that after this single they changed their name to The Chylds, of Hay Girl fame. Joe Vitale later did time with The Measles and Marble Cake. In the seventies, he raised his profile higher as Joe Walsh's main "Barnstormer" from 1972 to 1978, and released a solo album in 1974 - Roller Coaster Weekend (Atlantic SD 18114). (GGI/MW)

ALBUM: 1(A) EVERYTHING I'VE GOT (Capitol SKAO-395) 1969

45: Everything I Got Belongs To You/
Where Do The Hounds Go? (Capitol 2706) 1969

Nicely packaged to look like an EMI or Harvest import (just so we knew it was sophisticated) this concept album is basically the vision of one individual... Steve Forman. Subtitled "Suite for voice, wind ensemble, percussion and electric instruments" it fits into an odd catagory of big band music that was at the same time ambitious and experimental in all the best ways one could be at the end of the sixties. A very interesting record, not always rock or psych - there are no fuzz guitars (well maybe once) and sometimes there are effects on the vocals. Lyrically it is "deep", stylistically eclectic. Kind of like Lionel Bart directing a Three Dog Night/Grand Wazoo collaboration with Gary Usher producing. There are no song titles, just six movements.

A quote from the inner sleeve notes: "Musicians are challenging the long accepted borders separating popular and intellectual music, expanding the musical vocabulary on both sides. The styles are blending and the stereotypes are disappearing. Today's competent American musician must be as familiar with Eric Clapton and Sly Stone as with Beethoven and Bartok, Miles Davis and Oliver Nelson, Jim Webb or Buck Owens. Past predjudices within the industry are becoming myths..." It was recorded in Arizona.

The flip to their single, Where Do The Hounds Go? has been described as a very rare, very strange psychedelic horn freak-out!

The album was written, arranged and conducted by Steve Forman, with assistant conductor, Jim Bastin and vocals by Harry Anglum (drummer with Cornerstone) and Jack Wilkerson. (BC/TBo/PPe/VZ)

On offer here is orchestrated psychedelic-pop melodrama by an unknown outfit on an obscure New York City label. Despite minor brass intrusions, this should appeal to Anglophile Rubble-ites - the outro guarantees a re-appraisal of first listen. The flip fails to live up to the promise - pretty straight. (MW)

45: Party Hats And Olive Spats/Tourniquet (Demelot NS-7402) 1974

NB: It's rumoured that only 50 copies of this white label single exist.

According to the very cryptic liner notes on the back cover of this extremely rare private pressing, these three musicians had been playing together for seven years by the time of this album's release in 1974. Created in Minneapolis on instruments "borrowed or otherwise appropriated", this talented trio weave pieces of music into songs using both seamless and jarring segues through the course of each side.

"We all came along to see each other
To hope we could make progress like brothers
We didn't realise it could be a bother
Although our thoughts were running together like water..."
(from Marching Together)

"Growing older than we need to Singing songs of being children all our lives
Throwing trees at knives
Lie down in your head, take off your eyes..."
(from Take Off Your Eyes)

A quantity of these albums turned up in 1985 but quickly vanished into collections. Following the release of the bootleg, demand and value has skyrocketed for the album. I haven't heard the bootleg, but the original pressing has the dynamics of a stereo demonstration record. This is not a record for garage fans, but one that will appeal to collectors of progressive, folk, psychedelic and electronic music.

By the way - the liner notes also state that Damin Eih rhymes with "flamin' tree". (VJ/SR/CF)

The Longer Nights Of Summer (Jana 6969) 1969

On the release of their debut single, the band pushed In The Garden, composed by drummer Donnie Atwell, which they felt had more promise. Time Change was co-composed by Atwell and the lead singer.

Psychedelic Moods - Part Two (LP & CD) and Psychedelic Experience, Vol. 3 (CD) give this Houston band's In The Garden an airing. Musically it leans toward heavier psychedelia in the Iron Butterfly and Vanilla Fudge tradition, but was secluded on the 'B' side of a Third Rail style pop ditty.

Time Change has been compiled on Psychedelic Moods Part Two (LP), The Psychedelic Experience Vol. 3 (CD) and Psychedelic States: Texas Vol. 1 (CD), which also featured the previously unreleased I Would Have Liked You Anyway (also from 1968). Three more unreleased cuts - Long Night Summer, Love It Is and Nothing'll Stand In My Way - finally got an airing on Acid Visions Vol. 11 (Spalax) (CD). (VJ/MW/RM)

NB: α trivia fans will note that Papier Maché was misspelt on the Atco label... the typo was corrected on the U.K. (Stateside SS 2056) release on the 45, but the EMI subsidiary misspelt the band name as The Elastick Band instead. β promo copies came with white label, stock copies black. χ white label radio station promo 45 also exists with Tunesmith on both sides. δ shown as by Dangerfield.

The Elastik Band (CD) (Digital Cellars DC111451-2) 2007 compiles all their 1967-1968 singles alongside a rare 1966 release recorded as This Side Up. The package comes with sleevenotes penned by the band and previously unseen photos.

A band they all love to hate? Renowned for the utterly tasteless and politically incorrect, Spazz, their frantic punker has overshadowed their other 'pop' singles, and probably from the band's point of view given a skewed perspective of what they were 'about'. Still a compulsive riff, with lyrics sung within an almost (modern-day) Rap style, a bluesy mid-break and a Electric Prunes style arrangement, are hard to ignore.

Amazingly, the Spazz single was also scheduled for release in the U.K. on EMI subsidiary Stateside, and demo copies were pressed, credited to The Elastick Band. Even stranger is that Spazz was played exactly once (almost) in Australia on Sydney radio station 2UW as a request, about one minute into the track the DJ lifted the needle and apologised to the audience.. "I think we've heard about enough of that, I don't know what they're getting at and I don't care what they're getting at, but I find it offensive and I'm sure a lot of other people do too...."

NEVER MIND
A.L.K.
BROTHER CLARK

DAMIN EIH, A.L.K. AND BROTHER CLARK - Never Mind LP.

Originally known as This Side Up, they recorded a single for Century in 1966, before a slight personnel shuffle resulted in the new moniker The Elastik Band.

Given the reaction to Spazz, it's understandable that many people are disappointed with their other three singles, which are in a straightforward pop-ballad vein. The final single, Tunesmith was a Jimmy Webb composition and was advertised in Billboard. The Elastik Band's version was actually an attempt to beat another group's rendition which was then shooting up the charts somewhere in Oregon or Washington. They recorded it as a "cover record" for Kapp who flew them in from Arizona and within three days Universal recorded, pressed and distributed singles of their cut. As a result, stations refused to play either record because they didn't know which was the cover!

David Cortopassi later went on to play in Dangerfield, who recorded further singles for Kapp and then he played with Rodan. Rodan also featured Scott Page on horns, who went on to play with Supertramp and Pink Floyd. Rodan's manager loved them so much he put out a 12" LP for them gratis! Acetates for this exist which contain five medium-tempo pop tracks:- Rose Come Lately, Easy Come, Easy Go, Wouldn't You Dare, Boxkite and Taste Of Love. It was recorded at the point the band changed names to Dangerfield.

David Cortopassi's excellent 21-track retrospective CD adds a host of unreleased cuts to their single sides (including the pair as This Side Up) and demonstrates that there was much more to this band than their infamous song (the final cut is the broadcasted reaction of the Aussie radio DJ).

If you haven't heard Spazz, and garage is your bag... then you're missing possibly one of the most tasteless records ever. Check it out on Pebbles, Vol. 1 (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 1 (CD), Nuggets, Vol. 2 (LP) and Nuggets Box (4-CD). In A Family Tree has been compiled on Soft Sounds For Gentle People 3 (CD) and the previously unreleased Think Of Today (from 1967) gets an airing on Today's Just Tomorrow's Yesterday (CD). Also worth investigation is the Digital Cellars CD - see the discography for details. (IT/JCi/TA/JRe/MW/BM/VJ)

In 1966-7 they qualified their name with their hometown (thank goodness) and released a brace of singles and an all-covers album, mainly blue-eyed soul but with a little frat and garage thrown in. After one more single as The Jades, they became Pure Jade Green.

NB: (1) also appeared as Eldeberry Jak (Forest AW-14019) 1977. This edition, with misspelled band name, was mastered from vinyl and is probably unauthorised. (1) reissued on vinyl (Comet/Gear Fab) 2002 and on CD (Gear Fab GF-178) 2001.

45: Vance's Blues/Vance's Blues (Electric Fox 2000) c1970

Elderberry Jak was a "coal-patch" quartet from the Morgantown region of West Virginia. A couple of the members had been in an earlier outfit, J.B. and The Bonnevilles. Their album has been described as 'psychedelic' but this can only be by opportunistic dealers. That is a disservice to collectors and the band - they put together a varied collection of rural-rock. Mined from a rich seam of folk it switches from driving electric rock with funky riffs or snakin' leads to reflective soft-rock with excellent acoustic guitars. Inspired is a gorgeous mellow song, and You're The One and Mr. Sun both exude a relaxed, laid-back vibe, for example. The album merits investigation, but it's certainly not psychedelic.

The 1977 vinyl pressing as Eldeberry Jak gets no mention in the Gear Fab CD liners and may be a pirate. Whilst this features the same music, it is mastered from vinyl and credits a different line-up with Dave Coombs (bs, vcls), Mike Snyder and Tom Steele. The Tennessee-based Album World company (note AW prefix above) released highly dubious "reissues" of both Elderberry Jak and Hillow Hammet, two non-Texas groups produced by Lelan Rogers. On both albums, the band name was misspelled, the cover art changed and both were dubbed from vinyl!

Group leader Dave Coombs died in 1999.

Joe Cerisano was later in Silver Condor, then a studio musician before carving out a solo career and touring with the Trans Siberian Orchestra. (MW/CF/DHs)

This garage-punk outfit was formed in Ely, Minnesota in 1962, although the line-up didn't stabilize until the fall of 1964. All of their recordings are now hot property - their best know Dirty Ol' Man was written and produced by Warren Kendrick, The Litter's producer. This is a superb example of mid-sixties punk with excellent snotty vocals and chainsaw guitar and became a local hit selling 5,500 copies.

Bill Bulinski was drafted in July 1966 and so didn't play on Dirty Ol' Man and Kendrick soon after helped the band get a deal with Columbia Records, of which Date Records was a subsidiary. Because somebody else had already copyrighted the name 'Electras', Kendrick changed their name to Twas Brillig and the nationwide-distributed Date single was released under this name. Shortly after, Tim Elfving was drafted which resulted in Columbia not renewing their option and the group broke up after another single. Bulinski was released from service in April 1968 and the band reformed as The Chapman Street Blues Band and then Hard Rain. They disbanded in 1969.

The Litter's Litter - Rare Tracks (LP) (which should really be called The Best Of The Rest Of Warren Kendrick) features many non-Litter tracks including the Electras/Twas Brillig tracks Dirty Ol' Man, You Love, This Week's Children and Soul Searching. The latter is even stronger than The Litter's version and considering that The Litter covered other tracks that The Electras had done first these guys must get justifiably pissed off when people say they're The Litter. Let's hope this finally puts the record straight and that The Electras receive due credit.

There's also an album on Get Hip (GHAS 5066), which was released in 1993, entitled Electras vs. Scotsmen/Victors. It contains tracks from 1965 to 1968 by Warren Kendrick's earliest project The Scotsmen and the pre-Litter Victors. Get Hip has also issued a 7": Soul Searchin/Action Woman (GHAS 67) on coloured vinyl. For those who prefer CDs, Erik Lindgren has put together The Scotty Story (CD) which includes all the album tracks plus some unreleased goodies (Action Woman, 'Bout My Love, Courage To Cry, Dirty Old Man, I'm Not Talkin', Pregnant Pig, Soul Searchin', Summertime, This Week's Children, Won't Take No For An Answer and Your Love). Recommended.

Dirty Ol' Man was also compiled on the rare 1967 sampler Money Music (LP). Other compilation appearances have included: Dirty Ol' Man on

Not to be confused with the Minnesota bunch, this private press album for RCA is a mixture of instrumental guitar and surf covers and was the work of a prep-rock band from St. Paul's Academy in Concord, New Hampshire.

The young man on bass guitar did rather well; 40-odd years later, in 2004, Senator John Kerry was running for President of the United States. At a rally in Boston, collector Erik Lindgren gained the senator's undivided attention (and amazement) by waving his copy of the album at him!! This short-lived venture came together in Vietnam whilst Dean Kohler (formerly of The Satellites out of Portsmouth, Virginia) was doing his service for Uncle Sam. Despite its rarity both sides have been preserved on Aliens, Psychos And Wild Things (CD) which reveals that the band adopted the Banana theme from the Velvet Underground album, playing in banana uniforms around the region's service clubs.

A cover of Lou Reed's There She Goes Again is backed by a Kohler original - two pleasant jangly folk-rockers recorded live (and "on tour") in an army tent. 10 copies were pressed up with individualized custom labels and distributed to all involved. Dean Kohler would be back in the studio again on his safe return to Portsmouth at the end of the year. 45: Scarey Business/You Remind Me Of Her (Titan FF-1735) 1966

Previously thought to be from Los Angeles, The Electric Company are now known to have formed at Menlo College on the San Francisco Peninsula, and were originally known as Lothar and The Hand People (no relation to the Colorado band of the same name). They are notorious not only for the outstanding single, but also the fact that Morgan was the original bass player of the (pre-Grateful Dead) Warlocks, before Phil Lesh took his place.

Scarey Business is a superb R&B/punker whilst the flip is more in the folk-punk genre. Both are featured on the top-drawer garage punk compilation Scarey Business (CD), along with two equally superb unissued cuts You're Wrong and See Me Some Time.

ALBUM: 1 DANCE PARTY TIME (Crown CST-618) 1969

Another exploitation album from Crown, presumably recorded by studio musicians in Los Angeles. The Dance Party Time album is light instrumental fare that sounds just like The Animated Egg but without the fuzz. Some tracks have a haunting quality because they've been recycled: Out Of Town is the same track as Dark by The Animated Egg; and Doors Time turns out to be a pedestrian version of the backing track to The Id's Boil The Kettle Mother.

The Associated Soul Group album, which shares the same cover photo and is on another California budget label, has a very similar feel and may be related. (MW/VJ)

	Sweet Soul Music/Every Now And Then	(Atlantic 3222) 1975
	Doctor Oh Doctor/The Band Kept Playing	(Atlantic 3237) 1975

This short-lived, but successful band certainly deserves a mention. They were formed in 1967 by Mike Bloomfield after he'd left The Butterfield Blues Band and were full of talent, particularly black soul drummer Buddy Miles, who'd done session work with Otis Redding and Wilson Pickett, Chicago singer-composer Nick Gravenites and keyboardist Goldberg, who'd previously played with Steve Miller. They played a combination of soul and Chicago blues which was flavoured with a taint of psychedelia and liberal use of flashy electronics, which were ideally suited to the times. They were also one of the first bands to use a brass section. Their first break was an extremely well received performance at the Monterey Pop Festival in 1967. To some degree their appearance in the Peter Fonda/Roger Corman movie 'The Trip' consolidated their growing reputation. Collectors of psychedelia may be interested in this largely instrumental album, which included tracks like Joint Passing and Psych Soap, which were evocative of the growing psychedelic culture. The Peter's Trip single was also taken from the album.

Their first album proper, A Long Time Comin', was basically blues-rock with an occasional hint of psychedelia. It got to No. 31 in the U.S. Album Charts. The follow-up An American Music Band was dominated by Buddy Miles, a drummer whose musical focus led the band towards funk. It climbed to No. 76, but failed to mask the turmoil that hard drug abuse and internal stresses had created and which led to their disintegration in 1969. They did reunite in a studio project with Mama Cass shortly after, which was completed then shelved.

In 1974 the band made a reunion album with Roger Troy replacing Harvey Brooks on bass; but the sparkle had deserted their music and the end result was patchy and can't be recommended.

After their split in 1969 Buddy Miles went on to form The Buddy Miles Express, Barry Goldberg made several solo albums and Nick Gravenites worked for Big Brother and The Holding Company. In 1975 Bloomfield and Goldberg were instrumental in forming KGB, one of the most disastrous supergroups ever.

A compilation CD, Old Glory: The Best Of Electric Flag was issued on the Rock Artefacts label in 1995. It contains 17 tracks, among them five of which are previously unreleased. Also issued on CD in 1995: The Best Of An American Music Band, a 60-minute CD which contains previously unreleased alternate takes, demos and live tracks from the Monterey festival. It's available on Columbia Legacy (CK 57629) in the UK. There's also a 1983 album, Groovin' Is Easy (Thunderbolt), which contains previously unreleased live material.

45: Flower Song/Good Vibrations (Bell 695) 1967

Electric Piano Playground was a short-lived, and possibly studio-only, outfit. The album consists of covers of popular sixties songs done in a psychedelic style, although it's also been suggested that Psychedelic Seeds is a "Children's" record - whether of the "Flower" variety is open to question! The Electric Prunes originated from the San Fernando Valley, a suburb of Los Angeles, although many biographies mistakenly claim that they came from Seattle, since I Had Too Much Too Dream (Last Night) first broke in Seattle and then Boston. In fact their very first live concert to promote the record was in Seattle, and according to their drummer Preston Ritter, a DJ there started the mis-information, by claiming that the band was from that area.

More commercially successful and classier than the average punk bands, they experimented with different types of music. Their first single Ain't It Hard was a brash punk number written by Roger and Terrye Tillson, members of folk-rock duo, Gypsy Trips. It was not a hit and was not issued in the U.K. but, along with the flip side, Little Olive and both sides of their next single (I Had Too Much To Dream Last Night/Luvin), it appeared on a French EP (Reprise RVEP 60098) which is the rarest 'Prunes item. Their debut album provided two U.S. hit singles: I Had Too Much To Dream (Last Night) and Get Me To The World On Time. Both also attracted airplay in the U.K. reaching Nos 49 and 42 respectively. The former, starts with a freaky fuzz-box intro - the brain child of their producer, Dave Hassinger. The lyrics and their sound were tailor-made for the druggy days of 1967. Get Me To The World On Time was a driving, urgent rocker, superimposed on top of a culminating whistle sound. Also on the album and the flip side to their second single was Are You Lovin' Me More (But Enjoying It Less) which used echo-drumming techniques to good effect. Some of the other numbers like Onie and Train For Tomorrow, were a little more laid-back, but still featured acid guitar work. The album peaked at No 113 in the charts.

The second album, which was not issued in the UK, developed their psychedelic experience further. Recorded for the most part by line-up (A), drummer Preston Ritter recalls that he was given the choice between being credited on the cover or being given royalties... In fact his replacement, Quint, only played on five tracks, Children of Rain, Antique Doll, I, Capt. Glory and Long Day's Flight. Despite the line-up changes, the album is more consistent than their debut with fine acid guitar work and effective drumming. Sadly, however, it failed to maintain their stream of hits. Of particular note are the psychedelic rockers The Great Banana Hoax, Long Day's Flight (both unsuccessful singles), - the latter a U.K.-only issue, Children of Rain and strange, more subtle tracks like Wind-up Toys, Antique Doll and I Happen To Love You. This was a fine album, and it is a pity the group didn't pursue this direction further. It made No 172 in the U.S. charts. Also of note around this time is a non-album single Everybody Knows You're Not In Love/You've Never Had It Better. This was also issued in the U.K. and in France. The flip side is a fine dance number with a great psychedelic intro.

Another recording of note from 1968 is a second French EP (Reprise RVEP 601 10) consisting of Long Days Flight, Dr. Do Good, The Great Banana Hoax, and Captain Glory.

Towards the end of 1967 the band embarked on a European Tour, and for many years a short poor quality tape circulated of a recording from Swedish Radio. Intrigued by the performance, 'Prunes fan Simon Edwards spent years tracking down the master-tapes and clearing the rights to the material. In 1997 his efforts were rewarded with the release of Stockholm '67 in a lavish gatefold sleeve, with a booklet of Gered Mankowitz photographs and tour reminiscences from 'Prunes' James Lowe and Mark Tulin. The album, which was also released on CD, is on a par with the excellent H.P. Lovecraft and Shadows of Knight live albums that have recently resurfaced and captures the band in full flight - it also includes about 45 minutes of material, approximately 20 minutes more than was originally broadcast.

Their next album Mass In F Minor was backed by an additional orchestra of studio musicians and as the group's identity started to be swamped by Hassinger and Axelrod's grandiose concepts, members of the original outfit started to drop out of the project. Canadian band The Collectors, then based in L.A. and whose two albums' were also produced by Hassinger, were brought in to plug the gaps. Mass... is regarded as one of the first rock operas, a mix of Gregorian music and psychedelic pop with vocals in Latin, which was written, arranged and conducted by David Axelrod - a neoclassical musician. The opening track Kyrie Eleison is widely known and backed the acid trip in the cemetery scene of Easy Rider. The album climbed to No 135 and was re-released by Midi in 1974. They made a further album in a similar vein Release Of An Oath with a playing time of just 25 minutes that may have also included members of The Collectors, before breaking up, although Dave Hassinger later attempted an unsuccessful comeback with the album, Good Old Rock And Roll, which contained none of the band's original members. Recent interviews of some original members, notably in 'Record Collector' and Jeff Jarema's 'Here 'Tis #8', reveal that they were unaware of subsequent machinations by Hassinger so it seems unlikely that the whole truth of the post-Mass period will ever fully emerge.

The Shadows promo is horrendously rare. Shadows was also included in a little-known movie 'The Name Of The Game Is Kill'. It sounds like the song was originally intended for The Doors. A 'Record Collector' article also revealed that different mixes of their singles were made for the European and American markets. 'For England, they felt that the music ought to be a little more up, peppier. So we would put the material on the capstan and make the songs faster', James Lowe told journalist Mark Paytress.

In July 2000 Heartbeat released Then Came The Electric Prunes which unearths pre-Prunes Audiodisc acetates recorded chez Russ Bottomley - 12 tracks from 27th March 1965 by the Sanctions (Jim Lowe, Ken Williams, Mark Tulin and Mike Weakley) and four tracks from 29th September 1965 by Jim And The Lords (with Dave Hargrave added to the previous line-up). The Sanctions' sound is of a garage band with surf roots performing popular covers including Long Tall Sally, Money, Moon Dog, Love Potion Number Nine, What'd I Say, Jack The Ripper and of course Louie Louie. With the Jim and The Lords tracks - Little Olive, I'm Free, I'm Down and Too Many People - the surf influences are replaced by raw harmonica and a raucous punk style similar to Stones and Seeds. A folk-rock lilt on I'm Free marks another development since the March sessions. The sound quality is surprisingly good considering the source. With previously unseen photos this is a must-have for any Prunes fan.

In 2001, the retrospective Lost Dreams CD/2-LP album compilation appeared. Produced by Jim Lowe, it contains their debut single, the Vox wah-wah ad, a selection of the strongest tracks from the first two albums (many in unreleased studio four-track form) plus three never-released tracks: the mythical Shadows, a demo of the Hollies' I've Got A Way Of My Own and World Of Darkness. The superb double-album package comes in a gatefold adorned with numerous band photos and a coloured insert sheet depicting single labels and picture sleeves from around the world.

With increasing interest in the band thanks to the reissues and Heartbeat releases, James Lowe and Mark Tulin decided it was time to set the record straight by recording a new album on their own terms. They reunited with lead guitarist Ken Williams and Joe Dooley, drummer in the final (1968) line-up of the original band. The 21st century line-up was completed by guitarist Mark Moulin (ex-Pyewackett) and James's son Cameron on keyboards.

The result was Artifact (CD later released by Heartbeat on LP) which appeared in 2001 and again in 2003 included guest appearances by drummer Quint and good friend Peter Lewis (Moby Grape). In answer to sceptical rock historians and the Hassinger/Axelrod hijack, they proclaimed "This is our third album, the one we never got to make. Unfinished business." Their undiluted spirit is evident from the opener, Lost Dreams, and reflected in the cover art featuring those alien electric transformers on which they'd posed for publicity shots way back when. Having made their point, they could have sat back contentedly but, to fans' amazement and delight, they took to the stage again at the Voxfest guitarist conference.

Too Much To Dream compiles 41 tracks including all their finest and many previously unissued tracks.

2002 saw a welcome return to the UK after 35 years with the "Rewired" tour - appearances at the Canterbury Fayre festival, several club gigs, a triumphant final UK gig at London's Royal Festival Hall, and ending with two gigs in Greece. For those who couldn't believe that it had really happened there's the Rewired DVD (Snapper SMADVD014) 2003. In 2004 they returned to the UK for a further tour on the back of another new release, California. Another CD, Feedback, followed in 2006. Prunes fans never had it better!

The Electric Prunes were undoubtedly pioneers in experimentation with psychedelic and quasi-religious music. They certainly made some fine singles and had they not been overshadowed by San Francisco's own psychedelic sound may well have achieved wider recognition. Their first two albums, both reissued more than once, or alternatively one of their compilations are highly recommended.

Compilation appearances have included: Long Day's Flight on Garage Music For Psych Heads Vol. 1 (LP & cassette); Get Me To The World On Time and I Had Too Much To Dream (Last Night) on Nuggets Box (4-CD); Everybody Knows You're Not In Love on Nuggets, Vol. 5: Pop Part Three (LP); I Had Too Much To Dream (Last Night) on Nuggets From Nuggets (CD), Nuggets - Original Artyfacts From The First Psychedelic Era 1965-1968 (2-LP), Nuggets, Vol. 1 (LP) and Excerpts From Nuggets (CD); Get Me To The World On Time on Nuggets, Vol. 6: Pop Part Two (LP) and Psychedelic Perceptions (CD); Vox Wha-Wha Peddle Advert on Pebbles, Vol. 2 (CD), Pebbles Box (5-LP), Psychotic Reactions (LP), Great Pebbles (CD) and Trash Box (5-CD); Ain't It Hard on Sound Of The Sixties (2-LP) and Sixties Archive, Vol. 1 (CD); Hey Mr. President on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 & 2 (2-CD); Hey Mr. President and Mojo Walkin' (sic - Mojo Workin' from Stockholm '67) on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 2 (2-LP); and You Never Had It Better on Everywhere Chainsaw Sound (LP).

That's not all! An alternative previously unreleased version of Little Olive and an unreleased studio version of Luvin' dating from 1966 were aired on Today's Just Tomorrow's Yesterday 2 (CD); the original backing track for Hideway appeared on an EP issued with Ptolemaic Terrascope 24 in February 1998 and the actual song can be found on Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book); Antique Doll has been compiled on Nuggets: Hallucinations (CD); a live version of I Had Too Much To Dream (Last Night) from December 1967 graces Urban Spacemen and Wayfaring Strangers Book (CD); and Night At The Rendezvous and Misirlou have been compiled on Psychedelica Volume One (CD).

A 67 Christmas was recorded on 12 December 2004 and is basically James Lowe and Mark Tulin with Peter Lewis (ex-Moby Grape). It says previously unreleased and indeed it was not commercially available ... however, it was on a CD single, A 67 Christmas: Let's Bodypaint Your Reindeer (Prune Twang no#) 2005 that was only available from their website (and may have been a freebie from the band when you ordered merchandise). It was later available free with Timemazine #1 (CD).

Since 2001, the band has reformed. In addition to their recent albums - Artifact (2001), California (2004) and Feedback (2006) there is a single of two live tracks from a 2001 Voxfest appearance - Get Me To The World On Time/Dream I Had Last Night (Birdman BMR 037). (VJ/MW/SR)

Originating from New York City, Elephant's Memory was formed in 1967 by Bronstein and Frank, who were both playing the strip joint circuit. They soon became known for their outrageous performances, with light shows, destruction of sculptures and weird outfits. After recruiting a young Israeli singer, Michal Shapiro, they were signed to the Wes Farrell Organization, a powerful management and production company. Their first album was released in February 1969 and has a flashing sleeve, the group members being pictured nude, covered with paints, in front of an elephant. An interesting record, it mixes psych, dreamy ballads, jazz and hard-rock. Two of the songs, Old Man Willow and Jungle Gym At The Zoo appeared on the soundtrack to 'Midnight Cowboy'. It spent two weeks at No. 200 in the Charts.

With the success of this film, Buddah released Songs From Midnight Cowboy, which was basically a reissue of the first album with new versions of Everybody's Talkin' and Theme From Midnight Cowboy. With the album originally titled Elephants Memory, the connection with 'Midnight Cowboy' occurred by chance after the tracks Jungle Gym At The Zoo and Old Man Willow, were selected to appear on the film's soundtrack. Dustin Hoffman (Ratzo Rizzo) and Jon Voight (Joe Buck) were among its stars: the Buddah label decided to cash in on the attention the band was getting from the film, hence the re-packaging of the album as Songs From Midnight Cowboy Plus Their Hit Singles. Further weight was added to the film connection with the addition of a version of Everybody's Talkin', Nilsson's hit from the soundtrack, with Michal Shapiro taking the vocal lead. John Barry's achingly sad instrumental theme (featuring jazz harmonica legend Toots Thielemans), already a US Top 10 hit for Ferrante & Teicher that year, was another addition, with trumpet and saxophone replacing the original harmonica and wordless vocals from Shapiro.

Then Michal Shapiro, Richard Sussman and Chester Ayers left, with Richard Sussman joining Grootna. A new line-up was put together and the next album, produced by Ted Cooper, Take It To The Streets was totally different to their debut. Elephant's Memory was now playing a very effective hard-rock, obviously inspired by the Detroit groups of the era. Tracks like Power, Piece Now, Damn and Mongoose are powerful and Mongoose became a hit. Incidentally Rick Frank is credited as "Reek Havoc" on the sleeve.

Following this album, the line-up changed again and the band backed John Lennon and Yoko Ono on Some Time In New York City and Approximately Infinite Universe. Their fourth album was naturally issued on Apple and has a good reputation.

In 1973, they backed Chuck Berry on his Bio album and then released a final record in 1974, produced at the Rockfield Studios in Wales by Steve Smith.

Stan Bronstein launched a jazz-rock career; Rick Frank formed various local bands, but died in the nineties. Adam Ippolito went on to play with soul and funk groups and Wayne Tex Gabriel joined Mitch Ryder. Adrian Peritore (aka Guy Peritore) later formed Beede Oms with David Cohen and went on to play with The Motels amongst others. (VJ/SR)

Produced by Kim Fowley and arranged by Michael Lloyd, so what more do you want? The result is a fine blend of psych, marching rock and menace on Louisiana Teardrops. The flip starts like the Left Banke, although simultaneously saccharine and inept. The ramshackle accompaniment and the badly tuned guitar on this track produce something like America's answer to the Bonzo Dog Band. (SR/MK)

The Elite was formed by three 17-year olds from Paschal High School in Fort Worth. Brownlee was a weekend addition. They won many 'Battle Of The Bands' competitions and were the house band at Fort Worth's Teen-a-Go-Go for a while. Their first single was an instrumental.

Barnes and Deaton later joined a flower-power outfit, Those Guys, with Bob Barnes later going on to the Yellow Payges.

45: Mary Anne/The World's For Free (PS) (Vanguard 35070) 1968

This is a fairly standard late sixties rock album with a few highlights such as the fuzz guitar extravaganza on You Should Be More Careful, the rather haunting Alarm Rings Five and the final track When All Else Fails, which is more interesting than most of what has preceded it. Originally from Philadelphia they moved to New York, where they recorded their album. Earlier, drummer Stewkie Antoni, who later played with The Nazz, had played with them and Hank Ransome later played for Good God and Duke Williams and The Extremes. Bob Patterson went on to release at least three solo albums.

Compilation appearances include Not That Kind Of Guy on The New Sound Of Underground (LP) and You Should Be More Careful on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 6 (double cassette box); and a different version of the song can be heard on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 7 (double cassette box). (VJ/SR/MW)

45: Seven North Frederick/Can't Be Love (Mainstream 686) 1968

This band was from Roseville, Michigan. Bill Long had a school band called The Logicals (line-up 'A') before joining the Tidal Waves (latterly known as The Gruve) in 1966. Around 1968 he got back together with his original bandmates and they became Ellie Pop, later renamed Featherstone and finally Macomb Delfonics. Brothers Doug & George Kouri, under their stage-name Dunn, wrote most of the material on the album. It is reasonable light 'n' fresh psychedelic-folk-pop. Ellie Pop had quite an Anglophile sound.

In the seventies Long went solo and formed Bill Long & The Morning Sun. In 2009 the Bill Long Band is still performing, with Len Gervasi on bass.

Can't Be Love can also be found on Pepperisms Around The Globe (CD & LP); and Oh My Friend features on Fading Yellow Vol. 7 (CD). (VJ/CF/MW)

NB: some with lyric booklet (SC). (1) reissued on CD in Germany by Line (LECD 9.00944 O) 1990.

A must-have for Beau Brummels fans, the only solo album of Ron Elliott is an excellent follow-up to Triangle and Bradley's Barn. The side-long The Candlestickmaker Suite with its 14' 53" minutes of magnificence is the most impressive track, but All Time Green, To The City, To The Sea and Deep River Runs Blue are interesting too.

Recorded at Sunwest Studios in Hollywood, all the songs were composed and produced by Elliott, sometime helped by Gary Downey, the co-producer.

Levitt and McClure were previously in Levitt and McClure whose only album was produced by Elliott. In 1971, McClure and Dragon formed Joyous Noise with some help from Elliott. Ron Elliott was later a member of Pan and Giants and reformed the Beau Brummels in 1975. (SR)

ALBUM: 1(A) JAM IT (Dog Dirt DD1) 1975 SC

Elmer City Rambling Dogs was a local Pennsylvania bluesy bar band. Their album is sometimes given a psychedelic tag, which is misleading as it is, essentially, Grateful Dead influenced hillbilly rock. All the songs were recorded between January and August 1975 by Tony Pappa at MSI Recording Studio, Pennsauken, New Jersey or by Frank Virtue, Virtue Recording Studio, Philadelphia. Produced by the group and Eddie Harris, it contains mostly original material with very crude lyrics (Spitball King, Hot Prison Love, The Prowler...) and an almost X-rated drawing on the front cover. 45s:	Kind Of A Man/Alone On Your Doorstep	(Imperial 66318) 1968
	24 Hours Of Loneliness/ Strange Changes	(Imperial 66387) 1969

In 1968 Bugbee, Settle and Maxwell broke away from Louisville's premier garage band Soul, Inc. to pursue a more pop-oriented style. The resultant brace of singles on Imperial showed a strong tendency to the orchestrated pop sounds of the Classics IV - no surprise since they too were produced by the Buie/Cobb team.

After the first single, Settle was replaced for a while by The Oxfords' Gary Johnson. The band wanted to move to an aggressive hard-rock style, but Imperial were having none of it, rejecting the band's own material and presenting them with more Buie/Cobb songs. The band relented for the second single but persisted with their chosen direction. Imperial balked and terminated the contract. The group carried on until 1971 but nothing more was released.

Interest in their material was renewed after band members responded to the Soul, Inc. entry and were put in touch with Gear Fab. Two CD volumes documenting Soul, Inc. are now accompanied by a CD dedicated to Elysian Field. It comprises the single sides but, of more interest here, a baker's dozen of unreleased tracks that are a revelation - excellent hard-rock with scintillating guitar. The cuts vary from Cream-inspired riff-heavy bombardments to crisp vibrant rockers with occasional folk and country influences. Recommended.

Mother Hate can also be heard on Soul Inc. 'Volume 2' (CD). (MW/NK)

		Did You Have To Be So Cruel/ Tomorrow Never Comes (PS)	(Century 30851) 1968

NB: α Matrix no 7-8088.

Although this band recorded in Minneapolis, they were from Minot, North Dakota and were a popular local draw in their home state. Fire In My Heart in particular, is frat-ish pop given a spirited performance.

The Break-A-Way compilation collects both sides of their four singles and five lo-fi live tracks (although the vinyl version excludes their versions of Gloria and Roy Head's Treat Her Right). They come across as a standard garage band.

According to Tom Tourville's "Musical Winds Of The Northern Plains" the group moved into the country-rock field first as The Contagious (w/Jerry Tanner) then Pierson Lake in the seventies. (BM/MW/VJ)

Not within the confines of this project, The Embers is/was a long-lived band from Raleigh, North Carolina who had numerous single and album releases from the mid-sixties right through to the current decade, mostly on their own "eEe" label (Embers Entertainment Enterprises). They championed a form of blue-eyed soul, christened "Beach Music" (aka Shag Beach), whose party atmosphere and blend of R'n'B, soul, and frat sounds was prevalent in the south-eastern and southern states. This is well documented elsewhere and those interested should check out Greg Haynes' gigantic tome "The Heeey Baby Days Of Beach Music". (SR/MW)

	Maybe Too Late/Why Girl?	(Dunhill 4060) 1966
	It's Too Late Baby/ You've Been Changing Your Mind	(Dunhill 4082) 1967

The Emergency Exit formed in Seattle, Washington in the spring of 1965. Goldsmith, Rabb and Walters had all previously played with The Nightsounds, whilst McGrath had been with Jack Eely & The Courtmen. They played beat-influenced music and before long became a local live attraction. Their debut single was eventually picked up by Dunhill and shows the band had achieved a good garage sound. In their heyday during 1967 they appeared with The Beach Boys at the Seattle Center Coliseum and at the Oregon State Fair with B.J. Thomas and The Triumphs.

Al Malosky joined the band from The Liberty Party but when Jim Walters was drafted Emergency Exit broke up, late in 1967. Malosky later played in Easy Chair.

Walters and Rabb later both played together in Ballin' Jack. Goldsmith also went on to several bands including Soldier and Calliope, in which Rabb also had a spell.

Their original songs were combined with covers of blues standards (Sittin On Top Of The World and You Don't Miss Your Water), Jesse Winchester's Brand New Tennessee Waltz and Johnny Cash's I Still Miss Someone.

Probably from about 1968, Better Man differs from other covers - it's pretty competent but instead of the usual Yardbirds-type rave up in the 'break', here we get some keyboard workout followed by a short drum solo - hmm. Are You Real? is like '68 'psych-pop', orchestrated unfortunately but the use of echoes and phasing plus some good wah-wah guitar lifts it out of the dross. The Emporium (IA)

ALBUM: 1 I'M SO GLAD - IN CONCERT (Peace no #) 197? SC

From Iowa, this large Christian group (four girls, four guys) played harmony folk with jangling guitars and some rock songs. Their album contains mostly covers, like Aquarius, For What It's Worth and Get Together but they also penned the long trippy Jesus, Jesus, one of the tracks with fuzz guitar. (SR)

	Heat Wave/Melody For An Unknown Girl	(Cardinal 100) 1966

The first single features two folk-rock covers. The Byrds' trademark sound is captured superbly on Dylan's Tomorrow Is A Long Time, compiled on Byrds Won't Fly Today (LP).

It is not known if the same band was responsible for the singles on Cardinal and IGL, which are reportedly horn-rockers. That band is known to have been from Luverne, Minnesota as revealed in Tom Tourville's 'Minnesota Rocked'; significantly perhaps, he doesn't list the Coral single. (MW)

This garage band came from Oak Park, Illinois. Their first single, I Don't Know is a mid-tempo Mersey sound, while the flip is a guitar instrumental...

The End (MA)

45:	Bad Night/ Make Our Love Come Through	(Insegrievious CR 31007) 1966

Aram Heller's 'Till The Stroke Of Dawn' tells us that this bunch hailed from Phillips Academy, Andover, Massachusetts, well-spring of the 'prep-rock' genre and many of its best proponents (Rising Storm of course). That prep-rock aura oozes through. Bad Night epitomises the New England garage sound and the flip is a competent beat-ballad.

Bad Night has been compiled on You're So Square (LP) and Trip In Tyme Vol. 2 (CD). (MW)

		Come On In To My World/ This Is Really The Zoo Plus Two	(Seascape SS-504) 1969

NB: α shown as by The End.

This La Porte, Indiana band was billed as The End for their debut single, a garagy beat ballad (NOT the Everlys' song) backed by a booming call-and-response party instrumental. The follow-up featured a pair of fine garage punkers, the flip being a cover of The Banshees' nugget. For the third single they switched to jangley folk-punk and on their fourth Come On In To My World is a heavy, pumping, psych dirge reminiscent of Blue Cheer and Emerge-era Litter. The oddly titled flip is explained on the Fuzz, Flaykes, & Shakes Vol. 6 (LP & CD) liners - an instrumental jam featuring two members of the Endd accompanied by label mates The Zoo (who released Black Blues on Seascape 502).

From Springfield, Ohio came The Endless. Prevailing Darkness, is very much in the garage punk mould and comes with snarling vocals and farfisa organ. The flip, Tomorrow's Song, is more sensitive - a Zombies-influenced composition with chiming guitars. Apart from their sole single, five unreleased tracks exist which include alternate versions of the single tracks. These are to be featured on a forthcoming CD set The Mus-I-Col Story on Get Hip.

This outfit formed in Wilmington, Delaware around 1964. Ted Munda and Gordon Berl had earlier played in an outfit called The Playboys with a third guy called Rick. Bernard Gallery and Eaton had previously played in a quartet named The Touchstones with a fourth guy called Charles Jenner, which played mostly surf music. With the British invasion so strong at the time they opted for a British name to reflect the sound they were striving for. There was after all a town in England called Enfield, the Royal Enfield motorcycle and a British rifle named the Enfield. They got their first break in late 1965 when they were taken under the wings of Vince Rago, who managed several local Delaware bands in the fifties and sixties. The group agreed to make a record and at Vince Rago's suggestion the same song was put on both sides so that dee-jays would know which side to play. Eyes Of The World created quite a lot of interest locally with its Beatle-like harmonies and some nice minor chord guitar work. The follow-up, She Already Has Somebody, was more polished, a minor-key folk-rocker with some fine guitar work from John Bernard, and already The Enfields had become Wilmington's top band. You Don't Have Very Far was a quieter, reflective ballad but the flip, Face To Face was one of their finest moments with a compelling "Taxman" riff.

Bill Gallery left the band shortly after the third single. He was replaced by John Rhoads from The Wrecking Crew - another local band that included Jeff Daking, who later joined The Blues Magoos. In early 1967 they travelled to the Virtue Recording Studios in Philadelphia to record cuts for a possible album. Twelve Months Coming, Time Card and four other songs were recorded for the album. The tape ended up costing quite a bit of money and Vince Rago decided not to buy it. The studio's owner overdubbed it with a different vocalist and sold it to Capitol Records, where it remains today. Rago, meanwhile, took the band to an inferior studio in New Jersey, where less good versions of Twelve Months Coming and Time Card were recorded and released on a single by Rago without the band's consent. The Enfields decided to call it a day in disgust and the record flopped. Ted Munda, who had written all the band's songs, formed a new outfit The Friends Of The Family with John Rhoads and two members of another local band, The Tuds.

The Distortions retrospective album collects all The Enfields and most of The Friends Of The Family tracks together and provides an excellent insight into this obscure outfit who produced some magical moments that deserve wider recognition. Get Hip have also released a similar CD retrospective, which also includes previously unreleased material.

Compilation appearances have included:- She Already Has Somebody and I'm For Things You Do on A Journey To Tyme, Vol. 1 (LP); and She Already Has Somebody on What A Way To Die (LP). (VJ)

NB: α shown as by Butch Engle & The Showmen.

From Mill Valley in Marin County, California this five-piece evolved out of The Showmen who cut one rousing single on a tiny label based in Sausalito. As Butch Engle and The Styx they enjoyed the patronage of The Beau Brummels' Ron Elliot who produced and wrote/co-wrote nearly all of their subsequent recordings at Leo De Gar Kulka's Golden State Recorders. Occasionally he sat in on guitar too. Despite the undoubted calibre of this band (who beat off all opposition at the April 1966 Band Bash at the Cow Palace in San Francisco) and their material, just a few of their recordings made it onto record as shown by the recent trawl through the Golden State archives for the 'Nuggets From The Golden State' series on Big Beat.

Good Things Are Happening (CD) features Going Home, an early version of Hey I'm Lost plus the unreleased If You Believe and I Call Her Name; the Someone To Love (CD) compilation unearths I'm A Fool and Smile, Smile, Smile; whilst What A Way To Come Down (CD) includes three more previously unreleased cuts - No Matter What You Say, Left Hand Girl and She Is Love.

Sundazed's No Matter What You Say retrospective harvests all three singles plus the unreleased tracks on the Big Beat compilations. Their CD version adds another version of Smile, Smile, Smile and demo versions of Help I'm Lost and She Is Love.

Previous compilation appearances include: Going Home on Boulders, Vol. 7 (LP) and Garage Beat '66 3 (CD); and I Like Her on Boulders, Vol. 10 (LP). Both sides of their final single as The Styx are on Sounds Of The Sixties: SFO Part Two (LP); and Hey I'm Lost is on Pebbles, Vol. 17 (LP) and Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD book).

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Collectables COL-0609) 1995.

Apart from their own composition, Summer Is Here, we have a snappy-suited clubbie band, plodding through instrumentals, R&B, teen ballads, easy, Latin and beat covers. Even their attempt at 96 Tears is fairly routine and flat. As with The Checkmates, it's best to stick to the known Justice classics and avoid disappointment.

96 Tears and Summer Is Here have been included on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 10 (CD). (MW)

45:	Leave Or Stay/It's My Pride	(Gama 702) 1966

This quintet was at college in Bridgewater, Virginia but has tended to be regarded as a Washington, DC band, although they were based in Rushville, Maryland. The Washington DC connection was reinforced by the inclusion of their fuzz-fest Leave Or Stay on the Signed, D.C. (LP) compilation and by the way it's also on Aliens, Psychos and Wild Things (LP).

By 1967 they'd been rechristened as The Seventh Seal and journeyed forth to Winston-Salem, North Carolina to record what turned out to be an unreleased album for the Justice label. It was eventually released as a limited edition in 1999 - Reflections (Justice JLP-0).

The English Muffins on B.T. Puppy was another outfit - an all-girl group - which puts a totally different complexion on the name! (MW)

	Wake Up/She's In Love	(Jubilee 5560) 1967

Formed in Washington D.C., but relocated to Arlington, Virginia, this band offered a pretty average garage fayre although the second single is decent folk-rock pop.

In 1968, Meadows and the Grimes Brothers formed the Cherry People and later their front man, Punky Meadows went on to form Angel, who recorded for Casablanca, toured with Kiss, and also appeared in the Jodie Foster film "Foxes".

	β	Moanin'/Just Don't Complain	(Moonglow M-5011) 1966

NB: α shown as by John English III & The Heathens. β shown as by John English III and The Lemondrops.

Formerly with The Preachers, this singer was based in Monterey, California. The Moanin' single was actually recorded by The Preachers just before they split up. With no band to promote it, Moonglow decided to issue it as John English III and The Lemondrops. Another moniker used was John English III and The Carnaby Commoners, but no releases have yet come to light.

The Sabra single goes for incredibly silly money - until recent years only one copy was known. It was owned by Dave "Moxie" Gibson and used for his Boulders (LP) compilation, then auctioned off in the mid-eighties. In 2005 a copy turned up and went for a staggering $7,600... then another turned up in 2008 and fetched a mere $5,000. It sits at #5 on the "G100" chart of the top 100 sixties garage rarities.

Both sides of the Moanin' single are compiled, along with the three Preachers singles on the 2-CD set (also available on vinyl) Moanin' (Bacchus Archives CD BA 1181) 2002.

Boulders, Vol. 7 (LP) includes I Need You Near. Just Don't Complain, co-composed with The Preachers' Rudy Garza, is on Fuzz, Flaykes, And Shakes, Vol. 2 (LP & CD). (MW/VJ)

45: It's Cruel/Roll Over Beethoven (Pumpkin Seed 83-4010) 1971

Based in Iowa City, this band was formed in 1969 by guitarist Dickie Douglas and their popularity kept them going until 1976. Douglas had previously been with the Legends, Al's Untouchables and St. John and The Heads. After the latter outfit had relocated to Los Angeles the other members - Phil Jones, Felix Falcon and Casey Foutz - teamed up with Crabby Appleton, leaving Douglas to return alone to Iowa.

It's Cruel can also be heard on A Lethal Dose Of Hard Psych (CD). (ELn/MW)

2 THE NEPTUNE COLLECTION (Folkways FW33870) 1975

NB: Both reissued by Smithsonian Folkways on custom CD and digital download in 2007.

Both albums by this strange acid-folk troupe were recorded and released in the early seventies on Folkways Records. The musicians on the first album are also featured on both Bob Brown albums (produced by Richie Havens). The first was packaged in psychedelic art work.

Wall Matthews later released an album with Biff Rose - Hamburger Blues (Sweet Jane) 1973/74, and Rusti Clark also played on a late seventies album by Wall Matthews - The Dance In Your Eye (Philo/Fretless).

Sadly, Joe and Rusti are both now deceased. (SR/WM/MW)

The Epics (CA, L.A.)

45: Give Me A Chance/Louis Come Home (Zen 202) 1965

This was one of the few L.A. bands to record a variation on Louie, Louie. Indeed Louis Come Home with its superb growling vocals was one of the finest versions to come out of L.A.

You'll also find it on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 1 (LP). They were unconnected to any other Epics so far as is known. (VJ)

The Epics (OH)

45: White Collar House/She Believed In Me (Dolphin 3821) 1966

From Columbus, Ohio this band's single also has a rare picture sleeve which shows the band wearing long hair wigs. Expect to pay $100+ for an original copy and $250+ for one with the picture sleeve!! White Collar House can be also heard on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 21 (LP). It's a pretty standard garage punker. Both sides of the single have been compiled on Storm In The Garage (3-CD box). (VJ/MW/GGl)

45: Homesick/Humpty Dumpty (Love 670312) 1967

This Epics was a good trashy garage punker from Walnut Creek, California. The asking price for this single in 1997 was $300, probably due to the fact that this was Bob Winkelman's outfit prior to him joining Frumious Bandersnatch.

Compilation appearances have included: Homesick on Fuzz, Flaykes, And Shakes, Vol. 4 (LP & CD) and Humpty Dumpty on Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 8 (LP), Diana's Rootin' Tootin' Party (LP) and Nuggets From The Golden State: You Got Yours! (CD). (MW)

45s: A Little Rain Must Fall/
Cowboys And Indians (Hot Biscuit 1450) 1967
It Could Be Wonderful/
She's High On Life (Hot Biscuit 1452) 1968

Larry Jack, had previously played in Little Bits of Sound and it was through their single that Epic Splendor came about. Issued on Roulette, Little Bits of Sound's What Life's About/Girls Who Paint Designs single was a product of Koppelman & Rubin Associates Chardon Music, Inc. A member of that company, James Foley, approached Larry with a demo by Richard Fishbaugh of A Little Rain Must Fall, a moderate piano ballad. He asked Larry to put a band together to record the song and so he left Little Bits of Sound and joined a local group The Entire Thing, who included Masarti, Canone and Garguilo. The Entire Thing's original organ player was replaced by Charlie ???.

Hot Biscuit was a Capitol subsidiary and Epic Splendor (a name the record company came up with) was its first release.

Their first single was recorded in New York and produced by John Boylan, who went on to work with Linda Ronstadt and The Eagles, among others. It was arranged by Trade Martin, who also went on to bigger things. A Little Rain Must Fall was a great pop tune notable for Paul Masarti's vocal but it has a very produced feel, with horn section throughout. Boylan and his brother Terence (who wrote Shake It, an Ian Matthews semi-hit) wrote the flip side, Cowboy's And Indians. The siblings also recorded as Appletree Theatre.

The band was promoted heavily, appearing on the 'Upbeat' show out of Philadelphia and 'Zacherley's Music' show in New York. They also had some success in the Northeast. A Little Rain Must Fall made the Top 30 in New York as a Pick Hit on WMCA, in the week of 6th December 1967. They also toured with The Stone Ponies as well as The Lemon Pipers, Blues Magoos and Vagrants.

The follow up single It Could Be Wonderful was a cover of the UK Smoke act, from their It's Smoke Time album, but Epic Splendor's version was released to a mediocre reception. The group was then dropped by Capitol and drifted into the ranks of one hit wonders.

Larry Jack latter became a successful chiropractor in Sacramento, California. (RJ)

45s:	Baby Be Mine/I Don't Know Why I Cry	(IGL 113) 1966
	Break Out And Run/Blue Side Of Lonely	(UA 551) 1969

This band hailed from Fairmont, Minnesota and they had in Steve Murphy one of the state's finest guitarists. Jerry Clark had previously been the leader of another local garage band, The Corvairs and Murphy had fronted The Pacers, who were also a local garage act. Through the latter part of 1965 and into early 1966 they competed in several local 'Battle Of The Band' type events. One of their contest wins enabled them to use some recording time at the IGL Studios in Milford, Iowa. Initially four tracks were recorded - Pain Is Evil, Somewhere, Someplace, Sometime, My Baby Went Away and P W Blues. They didn't get beyond acetate form but the band returned shortly after to record a single, which remains sought-after by collectors today in part due to Steve Murphy's fine vocal performance. The second single was more in the hard-rock genre. In 1971 the band became known as Highway.

I Don't Know Why I Cry can also be heard on The IGL Rock Story: Part One (1965 - 67) (CD) and The Best of IGL Folk Rock (LP). Two of their unreleased 1966 tracks - Pain Is Evil and Baby Be Mine are also included on IGL Dance Jamboree '66 (2-CD). (VJ/MW)

45s:	I Need You/Flower Power	(Mona-Lee 219) 1967
	I Can't Face Myself/Sleep	(Kama Sutra KA-265) 1969

On their debut single, this suburban New York City band chose to cover The Other Half's I Need You - a slower bluesy workout with swelling keyboards that doesn't quite jell. The Billy Hocher composed flip is better than the title may suggest - bouncy pop with raw-throated vocals.

Hocher next came up with Sleep, up-tempo power-pop with pizzicato picking and a baroque-tinted lilt. On I Can't Face Myself he shares credits with those listed above - other members of the band perhaps? This is a slow bluesy power-ballad with brassy outbursts.

Is this the same Billy Hocher who played bass and sang in Bulldog, the post-Rascals group formed by Gene Cornish and Dino Danelli? (MW/MM/SR)

Girl In The Mini Skirt has been compiled on King Richard And The Knights - Precision! - (Plus Other 60's Albuquerque Groups) (CD), New Mexico Punk From The Sixties (LP), Sixties Archive, Vol. 4 (CD), 60's Punk E.P., Vol. 1 (7"), Garagelands, Vol. 1 & 2 (CD), Garagelands, Vol. 2 (LP) and Psychedelic Archives Vol. 7 (double cassette box). 	California Home/ Where Do The Girls Of The Summer Go	(Revue R 11064) 1970

Produced by Norman Gregg and H. Ratner, A Midsummer's Day Dream is a soft psych album with orchestration in the mould of Sagittarius or The Beach Boys' Pet Sounds. The stand-out tracks include Where Do The Girls Of Summer Go, Just Passing By and California Home. It's beginning to attract some collectors. Revue was an UNI/MCA subsidiary. Both singles were taken from the album.

The Now Sounds reissue includes three airline commercials based on California Home and a session section. The album's original sleevenotes have also been expanded to include comments on each track by Mark Eric himself.

His real name was Mark Eric Malmborg and he worked as an actor in Hollywood for several years in commercials. He made several appearances on The Partridge Family and other shows. He later spent much time playing on cruise liners! More recently, he has started making a few live performances in Los Angeles. (SR/JG)
